Feb. 10th.—Hamilton grocers are now very much interested in the collection of small accounts. At the regular meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association held on Thursday, Feb. 4th, they suggested that a deputation be sent to Toronto to interview the provincial government in regard to a simpler procedure of collecting accounts than the one now in vogue.

Regret was expressed at the defeat of the good roads by-law at the last election and hopes were expressed that the City Council may be able to devise some way to raise the money to improve the city streets. It is the intention of the association to hold a series of debates that will be of interest to the members in the near future.

The secretary was instructed to invite H. C. Beckett to give an address at the next regular meeting.

The Skedden Brush and Broom factory is advertised for sale by auction on Feb. 20th.

R. R. Hendry with Rose & Laflamme, Montreal, was in Quebec for a few days in the early part of the week.

EXPENSIVE STRAWBERRIES.

Twelve Cents Each in New York—Served in Baskets in Which They Arrive.

New York, February 8.—"Everglade" strawberries from Florida, huge, deep red and fine flavored and thoroughly ripe, are being served in the Hotel Knickerbocker in the square baskets in which they come to New York. The baskets, bound with a napkin, rest on a silver platter. The arrangement is attractive and in one case was too tempting to a woman diner. A portion consists of six berries and the charge is 75 cents. This woman consumed the contents of the basket and a charge of $3.75 was put on her check. She was horrified and protested that she had eaten only six or eight berries, but 30 green stems told the tale. The charge was compromised at $2.50.

Other delicacies at the Knickerbocker are the peaches from Africa and gooseberries from Mexico.

A NEW PARTNER.

C. Ryan Becomes Successor to the Late C. E. Kyle, of Kyle & Hooper.

C. Ryan who has become partner of the firm of Ryan & Hooper, 73 Front St., East, Toronto, grocery brokers and manufacturers' agents, as successor to the late C. E. Kyle, was for many years associated with the firm of Wilson, Lytle, Badgerow Co. Ltd., one of the largest vinegar manufacturers in Canada and is, consequently, well known to the wholesale trade throughout the Dominion of Canada.

He is a man whom the trade know to be honest in his dealings, and his many friends will no doubt be pleased to hear that he has become connected with a firm who represent some of the largest firms known to the trade.

C. RYAN,

The New Partner with S. Hooper, of Kyle & Hooper.

Mr. Ryan has shrewdness and ability and possesses that genial manner that is necessary to qualify his forming a position for the duties and responsibilities which rests upon a broker whose business transactions with foreign countries are, to some extent, complicated, but those who know Mr. Ryan best will have no hesitation in venturing the statement that he will meet with the success that his perseverance and intelligence entitle him to.

It may also be said that it is the intention of this firm to keep well in touch with the wholesale trade of the Dominion and use their effort to have in their possession such information respecting the markets as will be of great value to the trade generally.

Don't stack goods up so high in the windows that no one can see the inside of the store. Let in a little light. The store will be more cheerful.

HELPFUL TO THE HEN.

Little Mabel was visiting her uncle in the country and helping him gather eggs.

"What's that one you leave in the nest every time?" was the youthful inquiry.

"That's just the nest egg. It isn't a real egg, you know—it's made of porcelain," explained the uncle.

"Oh, I see," said Mabel. "It's the pattern that the hen uses."

STRINGENT TRUST LAW.

The Supreme Court of the United States has again applied the stringent interpretation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law in dealing with the case of the Continental Wall Paper Co. versus Louis Voight & Sons, Cincinnati, which has been commonly known as the Wall Paper Trust Case.

The suit was brought by the company on a debt of $57,000, the payment of which was resisted on the ground that the paper company is a trust. In effect the decision holds that an admitted trust, organized contrary to the Sherman Anti-Trust law cannot use the court to collect debts.

Have Provision Prices Reached the Top

Farmers Now Realize Highest Remunerative Returns—Demands of New Ontario, the Mining Camps and Requirements of New Provinces Are Contributing Causes—Will Butter, Meat and Eggs Be Shipped From the West in the Near Future and Enter Into Competition With Output of Ontario Farms? — Conditions Which Are Shaping to a Climax.

Have prices for farm produce reached the culminating point so far as values are concerned, and how long will it be before a re-action sets in and Ontario products have to compete with shipments of eggs, poultry, butter and meat from Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan to the east?

In the opinion of some far-seeing dealers this forms an interesting query and constitutes a speculative study of the provision situation, the tendency of the times, the development brought about by changing conditions and the movement of population. It is a situation which will bear deeper analysis than a mere surface view of things reveals.

The strangest fact of all is that in a wealthy province like Ontario, where an abundance of produce of all kinds comes from the farms, prices are abnormally high for butter, eggs, pork, poultry, etc. This is caused to a large extent by the demand from other provinces, particularly Manitoba and the West, as well as the new towns along the Transcontinental railway, and the various settlements, some of them in the shape of growing towns and others fragmentarily spread over New Ontario. The people in the new districts and mining camps and the residents of the West where to-day many farmers are consumers, instead of producers, require a great deal in the line of provisions and meat products, and the older places in Ontario reap the benefit. How long will this state of affairs continue, how long before there will be a reversal, how long before the farmers of Western Canada will raise enough eggs, pork, butter, poultry, etc., to supply, not only their own wants, but to create a surplus that will have to find and outlet in the east; then the farmers of old Ontario will have to put forth renewed efforts in view of the competition threatening them from the west, which, at present, like New Ontario, is a large consumer? How far distant that day is none can tell. It may be nearer at hand than some think. When it does arrive the whole conditions of supply and demand may be altered and there is no saying just what will be the exact effect. In the meantime produce was never sold at such a high figure, relatively speaking, as it is to-day.

The Present Situation.

What are present conditions as compared with the general trend of affairs a few years ago? Youth is ambitious and must find an outlet to the west, where the field is large and opportunities more attractive. The farmer whose son has gone to make his home on the prairies, does not relish the idea of getting up at daybreak and doing a lot of chores, attending to the stock, etc. But some one says that he can hire all this done. Labor is scarce and, as a result, wages in the country are high, but, perhaps the principal reason that farmers get along without hired help is, that, in the majority of instances, it is not intelligent, and has to be trained. To undertake all this and pay liberally for it at the same time is more than the average farmer cares to undertake and hence the full possibilities of his land and stock, so far as yielding a revenue is concerned, are not realized. The farmer's daughter, too, does not care to do a great deal of milking or egg-hunting. The work is not a necessity beyond a certain point, as many tillers of the soil, after they have borne the burden and heat of the day, will, like men in other professions, slacken up. In plain Anglo-Saxon, they do not have to toil so long and strenuously as they once did. They have more money, prices for what they raise are high, and there is no pressing necessity to go extensively and exhaustively into butter making, poultry raising, hog raising and other lines.

It seems to be a law, universal in its application, that people invariably do just about what they have to. If circumstances compel them to make the utmost out of their land, their stock, or their dairy, they do so, but, if they are not hard pressed and prices prevail of such proportion that a good income is assured at any rate, they are content to take things easy, especially if they have some money in the bank.

Prices That Prevail.

Relatively speaking, the figure for hogs in Canada today is higher than in any country in the world, and nearly everything else in the line of farm produce is equally high—just at present. This is due, as alreadv pointed out, to the fact that New Ontario, the construction of another national railway, the opening of fresh mining camps and the rapidly expanding settlements of the West, have all created a large outlet for Ontario farm products, as these people are consumers and not producers to any great extent as yet. Many a resident in the West raises thousands of bushels of wheat, but in all probability buys his butter, his eggs or his pork. This state of affairs is changing and what the future will bring forth it is difficult to conjecture. The course of events points to a not far distant date when the output of the farms of Ontario will have a rival from the west. Even now pork packing houses of Winnipeg are sending representatives to supply mining camps in New Ontario, and dressed beef dealers in the Prairie City have appointed agents in Montreal. The receipts of hogs on the Winnipeg market during 1908 were about 75,000 more than in the previous year, which was the largest up to that period. Before long farmers of Manitoba may be shipping butter and eggs to the east, and the people of New Ontario will be in a position to meet not only local consumption, but to satisfy the demands of the mining camps, and also a great deal of territory beyond. No one can foretell the future or predict with any degree of certainty just what will happen.

An Anxious Period.

It is the same regarding general prices as it is now with eggs and butter. The latter was held in big quantities for export and the future looked promising. A few weeks ago the bottom dropped out of the export trade, Danish and Australian butter being sold on the English market five cents cheaper than Canadian butter. There is comparatively little butter made in Canada during the winter. It is true that a few creameries run, but their output is small and butter made by the farmers is generally hard and lumpy. Owing to the export business going to pieces, stocks are heavy and the price has accordingly taken a tumble.

At this season there are practically no fresh eggs and what there are sell from 40c to 50 cents a dozen. Produce merchants, who buy all the butter from May to November that they can corrall and place in cold storage, often make well out of it. This was the case a year ago when certain firms or produce merchants bought from 19 to 21 cents per pound and disposed of their purchases a few months later from 28 to 30 cents. It costs about one-quarter cent per month to store every pound of butter, but even at that there was big money in it. At this particular season there is in the produce line considerable uneasiness—dealers do not know whether to let go or to hang on; whether the tendency will be upward or downward; whether the supply will equal the demand or the demand go ahead of the supply. The result is a sort of tenter hook feeling just now as there always is in the trade about this period.

The sensation of not knowing what is just going to happen in relation to butter and eggs is exactly what may transpire with respect to the future of farm produce in Ontario. The outlook, rendered so uncertain by the scarcity of competent help, the migration of young men to the West, the opening up of New Ontario and the rapid increase of mining camps, will all play a potent part and prove a determining factor in the future trend of events so far as the relations of supply and consumption are concerned. When the newer provinces sent part of their produce to the east—when the territory beyond Lake Superior forwards eggs, butter, bacon and dressed beef to Ontario, as come it will sooner or later, what will Ontario do? Will the present generous prices be maintained, will the farmer in the older provinces have to exert himself to a greater extent than he feels compelled to do at this juncture?

This goes to show that, after all, the reliable market for the farmer is the one at his very door—that nearest home. It is not the export trade or the consumption in the neighboring province that means so much to him as the quotations that he can realize right here. The home market, where the bulk of his produce is sold. Toward happiness and contentment on the farm anything that will add to the earning or producing power of the farmer is worthy of encouragement and general support.

BUYING BANANAS.

How a Fruit Company Purchases Produce of a Plantation.

An authority on buying bananas in the West Indies in telling how it is done, says that when a fruit company is nesirous of purchasing the produce of a banana plantation the manager first sends round a circular stating that he is willing to take so many "stems of good, round, full, and clean fruit." The price per hundred "counts" is then quoted. A stalk carrying nine or more "hands" is called a "bunch," a "count," or a "payable"; one bearing eight "hands" is termed a "three-quarter bunch"; one with seven is a "half"; while another with six is a "quarter." Consequently, a hundred stems may contain considerably less than a hundred "counts," owing to the varying number of "hands" on each stalk. Five pounds is the lowest price paid per hundred, and that is from October to January, after which prices go up until April and May, when as much as £12 10s. is obtained. "Wrap your fruit to avoid bruising," and "Don't cut your bananas until the day before selling," are two maxims which are golden in more ways than one, says the buyer.

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Dalley, Hamilton, left on Monday for New York and sailed for Bermuda on Wednesday, where they will spend two months.

DEMAND GOOD TIN PLATE

Dr. Wiley's Advice to the Canners at Louisville Convention—He Tells of Advantages of Glass Package Over Opaque.

Doctor Harvey W. Wiley, the chief exponent of the pure food movement in the United States, was present at the National Canners' Convention in Louisville last week and on Wednesday gave an address. It was expected that Dr. Wiley would have something to say on the use of benzoate of soda and the recent decision of the referee board, which pronounced it as harmless when used as a food preservative, but those delegates who anticipated this were doomed to disappointment.

Many members of the National Food Manufacturers' Association who have been gloating over the victory in the late decision of the referee board, did not stay to hear the close of the pure food champion's address.

Talk on Tin Plate.

Doctor Wiley took as his subject the tin plate question, a subject which has been an issue before the convention, and the better quoting of tin plate, together with the cost of the article. He argued that tin plate was one of the highest importance, being one of the problems which the canner and chemist have to solve. He referred to the efforts that have been made by prominent factors to improve the quality of tin plate. He cited instances where factors in the canning industry have argued for the use of two and one-half pounds of tin to the base box, and gave the results of investigation made by inspectors of his own department in behalf of the government. He pointed out the fact that the reports from the government inspectors showed that the canners' themselves have been careless in ordering their cans because in most instances they did not specify the coating of tin they required. He also expressed the opinion that tin-coated iron plates are more durable than tin-coated steel plates. Steel, he said, rusts more readily than iron and where steel is used the oxidation is quicker. He argued that one and one-half pounds of pure tin to the base boy if spread evenly is better than double the quantity spread over the plate unevenly. This, he said, is a matter that should be taken up by the canners with the makers of tin plate and the makers of cans.

Continuing Dr. Wiley said: Another point which must be kept in view is the purity of the tin itself. This is quite important as to have the surface of the tin of an unbroken continuity. I think it would be highly desirable if a committee could be formed which could represent all these interests to consider the whole problem of tin plate.

Glass Package.

It is possible that in the future the improvement in glass manufacture may be such that glass packages will be much less fragile and much more difficult to break than at the present time without being notably increased in cost. There is one consideration, however, in the use of glass packages, which should not be forgotten, and that is the action of light upon the contained material. It is well known that light in some way acts often as a bleaching agent, and thus food products contained in glass packages might be more or less subject to discoloration. On the other hand, light in many instances has germicidal properties and packages exposed to the bright light might in some sense have their keeping properties increased. On of the chief arguments in favor of the glass package, other things being equal, is that the character of the goods is subject to the inspection of the purchaser before the can is opened. It is evident that any deterioration in the properties in the material might be more easily detected, in the case a glass package were used, than if the package were opaque.

The question of standardization of grades in canned food products came to the front also. It was considered certain by the delegates that official recognition of the need for the fixing of definite standards will be taken in the shape of action to this end.

A Standard Tomato.

Ralph B. Polk, of the J. T. Polk Co., Greenwood, Ind., addressed the delegates on modern tomato packing. He pointed out the absolute necessity that exists for a definite description of what should be a standard tomato.

"Farmers, he said," are in some sections abandoning the cultivation of tomatoes because other crops pay better. Quality should be the watchword of the packers. The jobbers are doing as much injury to the industry as the packers, by insisting upon getting the packers' goods at below the cost to produce good stock."

The speaker dwelt at length on the matter of sterilization and the means used to discover the germs of spoilation.

Officers for This Year.

The convention re-elected the following officers: President, Chas. S. Crary, Hoopeston, Ill.; Vice-President, L. A. Sears, Chillicothe, O.; Secretary-Treasurer, Frank E. Gorrell, Belair, Md.; Executive Committee, Wm. R. Roach, Hart, Mich.; Hugh S. Orem, Baltimore, Md.; Geo. G. Bailey, Rome, N.Y.; L. A. Sears, Chillicothe, O.; Chas. S. Crary, Hoopeston, Ill.

The location of the next convention has not been decided upon as yet. The places favorably spoken of are Toledo, Atlantic City and Milwaukee.

S. McCormick & Sons, of Lucan, who for the past 12 years have conducted a grocery and general store here, will, it is stated, discontinue business. Mr. McCormick will go into the hotel business.

J. L. Archibald, Saskatoon, has purchased the grocery business of T. A. S. Campbell at the corner of Avenue D and Spadina Crescent. Mr. Campbell has opened a store at Zelma, which will require his attention in the future.

Provisions—Strong.

Montreal, February 11, 1909.

The week has been a rather quiet one, although collections have been very good, considering all conditions. Considerable business for spring delivery is being done, but immediate trade is decidedly dull. The most notable change however, during a week, which has presented few changes, is in the sugar situation, which has declined 10c. This condition has arisen from the better outlook in the primary markets, and for good supplies of raw sugar. The feature of the local dairy situation is the weakening tone of the butter market. The recent level of prices had the effect of checking consumption, and as stocks are comparatively heavy, a decline was inevitable. The cheese market is quiet, with unchanged prices. Eggs are coming in, in good quantities, so a decline has resulted. Vegetables are arriving from the south in better supply, consequently prices have eased off somewhat. Other lines remain unchanged since our last report.

SUGAR—Tuesday morning last sugar declined 10c all round. This is due to better supplies in the primary markets, and good prospects in the growing countries. Locally trade is just fair.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—Canned fish are going well, owing to the fish season approaching. Canned vegetables are selling well, while canned fruits and meats are somewhat neglected.

TORONTO.—There is a fair demand for canned goods at the present time, all lines being reported fair. A local broker, in sizing up the situation, stated that peas were rather scarce with a firm undertone to the market. Corn and tomatoes are plentiful. During the past week he had disposed of two thousand cases of gallon apples, indicating a fair demand in this regard.

The consumption of canned pumpkin has rapidly increased during the recent past, and although the supply is plentiful, there is a fair demand.

Generally speaking inquiries for peas, fish and fruits are good.

D. W. Smith & Son, grocers and butchers, Parrsboro, N.S., have been succeeded by V. O. MacNamara.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—
Sugar—Decline of 10c.
Currants—Market very firm.
Evaporated Apples — Splendid demand.
Beans—Firm tone to market.

Toronto, February 11, 1909.

Sugar seems to be the most restless commodity on the market these times. Only a couple of weeks ago a change was announced, and on Tuesday, Feb. 9, at 11.30 a.m., there was a decline of 10c. The reason for this is the fact that there is a plentiful supply of raws and a poor consumptive inquiry. The present price of raws is the lowest in twelve months. The prices in Europe are maintained at 50c per cwt. above parity on the New York market.

In the tea market it will be of interest to know that a local broker received a cable message from Colombo on Wednesday which stated "that the quality was better, the prices were up and the market would likely remain at the present condition."

There is a firm tone to the bean market, as well as evaporated apples, prunes and apricots.

SUGAR—The decline of 10c on Tuesday was the feature of the sugar market during the week. The change may be considered a natural one. The demand for sugar is rather quiet.

NEW COMPANIES.

The Domestic Manufacturing Company has been organized in Medicine Hat, Alta., to manufacture household ammonia and bluing. Percy Geo and L. Lowenthal are in partnership. The works are at 500 South Railway Street.

A new company, known as the Kootenay Jam Company, has been incorporated with a capital of $50,000 in $1 shares, and with its works in Nelson, B.C. It proposes to begin operations on June 1st. The president is the Right Hon. Lord Brassey, K.C.B., England.

A provincial charter has been granted the Gordon Davies Company, Cobalt, to carry on a wholesale and retail business as general merchants and dealers in meat and provisions. The provisional directors of the company are James Ralph Gordon, Rose Ellen Gordon, Wallace Emmett Davies, Anna Mary Davies and Frederick Joseph Harris.

MOLASSES IN THE TEA.

The Newfoundland Situation at Present —Shortage in The Market There.

A Newfoundland authority on the molasses situation as it exists in that island writes The Grocer as follows:

The total importation of molasses into Newfoundland during 1908 was 12,715 puncheons, being 204 puncheons less than the preceding year. This quantity would possibly have carried us along until the arrival of the new crop from Barbadoes, but on arrival here, several cargoes were found to be unsuitable for this market, being slightly sour; considerable quantities of this, it is understood, were afterwards exported, some going to Halifax and a shipment or two to Montreal.

These exportations have caused a shortage in the local market, and no Barbadoes being obtainable elsewhere, there has been keen competition for such small lots as were offering, with the resulting high prices; quotations being at the time of writing 45 cents in single puncheon lots and 43 cents in 10 puncheon lots, but very little to be had, possibly not over 300 puncheons being held here. The Newfoundlander uses molasses largely in his tea and Barbadoes seems to be the only kind that will not turn his national beverage dark. We were offered a choice lot of Porto Rico some weeks ago, but when tested " in the cup," it was found to turn the tea a dark muddy color, and therefore practically useless for this market.

The first shipments of the new crop from Barbadoes are expected to arrive here about first week in April, and until that time such lots as are on this market will be held at very stiff figures.

Messrs. Tyndall & Carr, Clinton, have purchased the grocery business of M. T. Beacom, who for years has conducted a successful business here. The new proprietors will continue on the same lines as Mr. Beacom, and it is believed that their success is assured, both being experienced business men and widely respected for their straightforwardness and integrity.

WHEAT ACTIVE IN WINNIPEG

Report of Tax Commission a Live Problem in the Western Metropolis—Church Lands May Be Taxed—The Railway Commission and Charges Against Express Companies.

The Western Viewpoint, by our Special Correspondent.

Winnipeg, Feb. 10.—Winnipeg has been a sort of storm centre this week, and there has assuredly been no lack of subjects for discussion. The report of the Tax Commission, which has been sitting for a long period, was presented on Monday and was sufficiently radical in character to call for the many protests. The first recommendation of the report was the appointment of a Board of Valuation and Revision, the commission being of the opinion that such a board would ensure a sound basis for assessment values and a more satisfactory method for the consideration of questions arising from time to time in respect to assessment and taxation. This board, if established, would perform the duties now undertaken by the Court of Revision. In the case of appeals covering matters of law, recourse would be had to a judge of the Court of Queen's Bench.

Church Lands to Be Taxed.

In the matter of the much discussed business tax, the commission recommended that there be no exemptions and no discrimination as between the different classes of business, but that the basis of the assessment should be the rental value. The commission further suggested that the rate be 6 per cent. of the rental value. On the question of land and buildings, the recommendation was that land be assessed at its full value, and buildings at two-thirds of their value.

In the matter of churches it was recommended that the land be taxed and the buildings exempt. An increase in the controllable rate from 1 to 1½c on the dollar was recommended. These are just a few of the recommendations in a report which had evidently been prepared with extreme care.

The Railway Commission.

The Railway Commission has been hard at work all week. There were no less than 51 cases on the list here for consideration. One of the cases of general interest was that of the Western Livestock Shippers' Association. They asked that both the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. be required to provide improved shipping facilities at many points; that there be a reduction of the freight rates on livestock, and a reduction of the minimum weight of cars from 20 to 16,000 pounds. Much evidence was heard on these matters. The question of weight of cars was left over, but Chairman Mabee condemned the railway companies as dilatory, and suggested that Mr. Dillinger, an official of the livestock association, and a railway company's inspector, visit all the points where livestock is shipped in the three Provinces and inquire into conditions on the spot; further, that railway companies supply this committee with complete lists of cattle shipments during the year.

Excessive Express Charges.

The complaint as to conditions at Winnipeg was fully met by the representations of the railways as to the erection and maintainence of the new Union Stockyards as soon as spring opens. There was a grand wrangle between the Canadian Northern and Dominion Express Companies on the question of division of express rates on joint hauls, and a great many complaints came from newspapers, jobbers' unions and others, of excessive express charges, failure to deliver at flag stations, and many other minor grievances. Much evidence was taken but final action was reserved for further consideration.

Decision was also reserved on the complaint of the Grain Growers' Association against the railways in the matter of bulkhead cars to Fort William and Port Arthur.

Judge Mabee has created a most favorable impression as chairman of the commission. He is doing one excellent thing in the matter of holding western people to time. Ample notice was given of the sitting and when a number of complainants failed to turn up at the appointed time they were simply struck off the list.

The Winnipeg Stock Exchange was duly opened Feb. 1st, and though there has been no large amount of trading there has been a decided increase in the number of western stocks listed. Those behind the scheme declare themselves as quite satisfied with the week's business and the outlook for the future.

Wheat Market Active.

After extreme dullness ever since the turn of the year the wheat market became decidedly active during the last three days of the week, and on Saturday, Feb. 6th had a record "short day" market over 2,000,000 bushels of May wheat being traded between 9.30 and 12 o'clock. The first day of the increased activity there was not lacking evidence that Paten of Chicago was buying on the Winnipeg market, but later the speculative gave place to really active export demand. The cause for the increase in export demand was twofold. The last report issued by the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association was very bullish, placing the total wheat crop of the Canadian West at 97,000,000, nearly 10,000,000 less than the report of the previous month. This report had been cabled to Great Britain and had additional weight in view of the light receipts for the past six weeks, and further, there was an increase in the rumors as to damage to the winter wheat crop of the United States.

There was quite as active a demand for cash wheat as there was for May, but practically no offerings, as all receipts are sold ahead. It is not generally accepted by dealers here that the report of 97,000,000 is correct, the discrepancy between the two reports is too extreme, but it is quite apparent that the farmers who have wheat intend to hold on to it for higher prices. By the end of another week your correspondent will have more definite information on this matter in return to queries sent out.—H.

END OF A USEFUL LIFE.

Passing of the Pioneer Merchant of Huron County—Owned First Brick Store There.

With the death last week of John Sanderson, Wroxeter, Ont., there has passed away a man interested in the grocery trade for almost half a century. Such a record in the business world of to-day is worthy of more than a passing glance, Mr. Sanderson has always been recognized as the pioneer grocer of Huron county and when his record there is reviewed no one will dispute the claim.

He was born in the year 1831 at Enniskillen, Ireland, and therefore had reached the ripe old age of 78 years at the time of his death last week. Starting in business in 1858 in Wroxeter, he carried it on himself until the year 1888, when his son took over the grocery store. For 30 years he kept the general store there, as well as carrying on the business of a grain buyer. He was postmaster in Wroxeter 15 years having just relinquished that position last year on account of ill health.

Mr. Sanderson held the unique distinction of having the first brick store in Huron county. It was considered quite a curiosity in the early days and scores of people used to come from the surrounding districts to see it. The brick was brought from Stratford.

The deceased, too, was one of the most familiar figures to the travelers in former years. It was the custom then for the travelers to make their headquarters at the home of some storekeeper and on coming into that locality Mr. Sanderson's home was thrown open to them. Most of the buying was done then in Montreal and Hamilton—the big buying points in Canada thirty or forty years ago.

Mr. Sanderson's son, J. W. Sanderson, was formerly a grocer in Toronto, at the corner of Dundas Street and Brock Avenue.

The late Mr. Sanderson was always a man to be looked up to by his fellow merchants. Honest in his dealings and faithful to his work he made a success of his work and those who knew him will regret to learn of the passing of such an influence for good in the community in which he resided.

CATALOGUES AND BOOKLETS.

Manufacturers and wholesalers are requested to send catalogues, booklets, etc., to The Grocer in order that it may be announced to the retail trade that they have been issued. Retailers in sending for catalogues referred to, should mention this paper to show they are in the trade and they should be read thoroughly by them on account of their educative value. Often they may be able to secure new ideas.

Geo. E. Bristol.—A handy catalogue has just been issued by Geo. E. Bristol & Co., wholesale grocers, Hamilton, Ontario, in which are included most of their regular selling lines. The booklet is one that contains a good deal of information and yet can be carried in a waistcoat pocket and referred to at leisure. When the book is open the right-hand page shows clear with the exception of the firm's name at the top. This may be used for memoranda, while the left-hand page contains information in concise form regarding the goods carried by the company. The opening page contains a brief talk to the trade. The handiness, conciseness and usefulness of the book are its features.

F. T. James Co.—Printed on excellent paper and with a handsomely colored front cover is the booklet issued by the F. T. James Co., Toronto, wholesale fish merchants. The artistic design of the cover is worthy of special notice. The book contains cuts of the building, interior of the cold storage, shipping and office rooms, and the machinery which cools the cold storages, as well as a picture of Mr. James, the head of the company. The other pages contain the history of the company in the fish business, giving some profitable ideas and the goods that are carried. There is an interesting talk also to what constitutes success in this pretty booklet.

THE GROCER'S ENCYCLOPEDIA

The Manufacture of Macaroni and Vermicelli—Goose Wheat the Principal Product—Interesting Story of the Origin of This Wheat—Vermicelli Industry in China.

MARCARONI AND VERMICELLI—The manufacture of these two articles which are coming prominently before the grocery trade is of particular interest to the grocers who handle them. Questions are often asked regarding the constituents used in the making of macaroni and vermicelli and often the grocer is not able to answer.

Their manufacture calls into prominence "goose wheat," which in itself is the basis of a very interesting story. It is this wheat which is the principal part of both macaroni and vermicelli, the two being composed of the same substances, the chief differences being the shape and size of the products.

Origin of Goose Wheat.

In explaining where goose wheat came from every miller interested will tell you it was brought across from the United States in the crop of a wild goose some years ago. The goose was shot by a farmer in central Ontario, and in its crop were found a few grains of wheat which appeared to be somewhat different to the ordinary variety grown in Ontario.

The farmer who was of a progressive nature planted the wheat, saved the few dozen grains of the first harvest and planted them again in the following spring. This was the origin of the goose wheat in Canada and its cultivation has progressed continuously although the price paid for it ordinarily is some four cents less than for other wheat. It is cultivated chiefly between Toronto and Kingston. In the Western States and in England it is known as Durum.

Why Used for Macaroni.

The composition of the goose wheat is different from the ordinary Manitoba variety. This can be readily seen when a grain of each is cut in two with a knife. The Manitoba seed is of a white, starchy appearance in the interior making it valuable for the manufacture of flour, whereas the goose wheat is of a yellow color all the way through. This glutinous substance is what is needed for macaroni and vermicelli and that is why it is valuable for such. In the case of Manitoba wheat this glutinous substance is located just inside the hull of the grain. It is also, of course, useful for making the macaroni but there is not enough of it.

For instance out of 400 bushels of durum 300 bushels of material is furnished when the wheat is ground, for this manufacture of macaroni, while in 400 bushels of Manitoba wheat scarcely half that quantity is useful.

What Macaroni Is.

In the production of macaroni only two things are extensively required—goose wheat flour and water. The manufactured product is therefore nourishing.

It is used principally for making soup and its use in this respect is extensive. Dainty dishes are made with cheese and macaroni aso

Italy is probably its home although at the present time large quantities are manufactured in Canada. One Ontario factory last year used twenty-three cars of goose wheat each containing 410 bags and the manufacturer of the macaroni informed the Grocer that this was not nearly enough but all that he could get.

A few years ago Italy made a big demand on Canadian goose wheat and the price went up above other varieties here. The result was that the following years Canadian farmers went into growing it extensively and the price came down again. Russia produces a large quantity of goose wheat and Italy gets a large portion of its supply from that country.

Vermicelli in China.

A. W. Gilbert, of the Chefoo consulate force, has prepared an interesting account of the Chinese methods of manufacture and shipment of vermicelli. He says that vermicelli in China is made from the small green bean in the Ninghai and Fushan districts, in the vicinity of Chefoo, to the south and west, there being one factory in Chefoo in connection with the Hwa T'ai silk filature. Large quantities are made by individual farmers in these districts, but more is made in the little family factories scattered all over this territory. The farmers in Dushan buy their beans in Chefoo, as the soil in this district will not raise a good crop of the green bean; while those living in Ninghai raise their own.

The beans grow upon the ordinary bean bush and are harvested about the first of September. They are separated from the pods on a primitive thrashing floor by the use of flails, and winnowed by being thrown up in the air by wooden shovels for the breeze to carry off the chaff.

The First and Second Stages.

After thrashing, by a process of boiling and repeated washing the skins are separated from the white meat of the beans, which are then ground in the primitive millstones. Then, by a further process of straining, cooking in cloth bags, draining, and cooling, the first stage of the process results in the appearnace, upon a long bench outside in the sun, of a number of pear-shaped snow-white bean meal molds, having diameters at top and bottom of 8 and 12 inches, respectively. This is the invariable sign (and the only one to a stranger) of the exact location of a vermicelli factory—the long white lines of the drying product, mentioned below, serve as a general guide at a distance.

After drying, the molds are brought in and crumbled to a dry powder. A little is thoroughly mixed in cold water and about half a pint of the mixture is poured into about twice as much boiling water and whipped into a gelatinous mass, in order to bring out the starch, and then dumped into a large pot of water which is kept up to the boiling point. After eight or ten of these masses have been made, the number depending upon the amount of vermicelli desired, they are separately dipped out in a small amount of the boiling water and again whipped until the water has been absorbed. These starchy masses are then in turn dumped into a large earthern jar containing pulverized bean meal, with which they are thoroughly kneaded to the consistency of dough, the starch and meal being gradually added during the kneading process until all the starch has been used. A workman then takes a sitting position at the edge and above the large pot of boiling water, holding the handle of a brass-bottomed 10-inch colander, the other side of which is suspended by a wire 18 inches above the boiling water.

Final Operations and Profits.

A ball of dough is tossed into the colander and forced through by striking it with the palm of the hand. The little slender strings of dough trail down into the boiling water and are guided on over the edge of the vessel into two lower vessels consecutively arranged and holding cold water, from the last of which they are collected into bundles of strings and strung upon short sticks in 4-foot lengths and hung up to drip. Two piculs of vermicelli are thus made at one sitting.

When the dripping frame has been filled the partially dried strings are hung outside of the village to be thoroughly dried in the sun. At a distance these 200-foot lines have the appearance of lines of white clothes. The product is then packed in burlap bales of 1 picul and taken to the market on pack animals, 2 bales to the animal, where it is sold to the wholesale dealers at $4 to $5 per bale, who in turn export it at an advance of about 100 per cent. in price. The quality of the product is regulated by the amount of starch and adulteration by sweet potatoes or kaoliang, the adulterated product being the cheapest.

In making 1 picul of vermicelli the manufacturer uses about $6 worth of beans; but these farmers who make vermicelli and sell it for less than they could get for their beans make their profit from the chaff and harvested fields upon which they fatten their cattle, and the waste upon which they fatten their hogs and fertilize their land, and which is considered a superior fertilizer to the silk chrysalis, which sells at 2 cents per pound. The by-products of a picul of vermicelli amount to about $3, thus giving a nominal profit of from $1 to $2 per picul, which represents three days' labor of four men.

KEEP AWAY FROM DANGER.

"Soda crackers? Yes'm," said the country storekeeper. "I got 'em. I'll—er—send 'em up to you!"

"Well," replied Mrs. Medders, "I did 'low to take 'em with me."

"Yes'm, but, you see, Bill Bruser he's a-dozin' on top o' the bar'l jest now an' he ain't in the best o' humor to-day."—Philadelphia Press.

MIDWINTER MEETING HELD

Bean Jobbers From Various States Unite at Detroit—Want Present Duty Maintained—Imported 2,000,000 Bushels Last Year—Canada's Share in This.

Detroit, Feb. 6.—Bean jobbers from Michigan, New York, Wisconsin and California, banded as the Michigan Bean Jobbers' Association, held their mid-winter gathering in the Hotel Cadillac last week. About 100 jobbers were present. Annual reports were read, as were several papers dealing with beans.

The chief matter before the association was the maintaining of the present duty on beans coming into the United States. The members of the association are busily engaged in circulating petitions to the Ways and Means committee of the House of Representatives, asking that in its report on the tariff it leave intact the present duty of 45 cents a bushel.

"We believe that this duty is necessary for the protection of those engaged in the raising and marketing of the crop," says the petition. "The production of this crop is confined to a limited area in the north, as the area of rice production is limited in the south. The duty on rice is two cents per pound and we have no reason to question its necessity.

"The area suitable for the production of beans in a commercial way, because of climatic conditions and the ravages of the bean weevil, is confined to New York, Michigan, Wisconsin and California. Statistics are more available concerning the crop in Michigan than in any other state. The crop of Michigan runs from five to seven million bushels a year. At the present price such a crop would be worth from $10,000,000 to $14,000,000 annually. In spite of the tariff large quantities of beans are imported.

Imported Beans.

"Last year more than 2,000,000 bus. were brought in. When the crop becomes low in price, competition from abroad is lessened, else our farmers could not raise beans at all. There are some 300 plants in Michigan which have been built and equipped for the handling of beans. These range in value from $5,000 to $40,000.

"Employment is given in these to many hundreds of people. The present tariff cannot be let down without affecting the owners of and operations in these various institutions and the growers of beans as well. In the production of beans, according to the last printed statement of the Secretary of State, more than 300,000 acres of land are cultivated in Michigan, and the cost to the consumers is the same, 10 cents per quart, almost without variation and without regard to the price paid to the producer."

N. H. Stevens, president of the Canada Flour Mills Company, one of the most extensive bean dealers in the western Ontario section, was present at the convention, where he read an interesting paper dealing with the Canadian situation.

In reference to the statement that 2,000,000 bushels of beans were imported last year into the United States, Mr. Stevens was interrogated by The Grocer, as to what proportion, if any, Canadian beans bore to the entire 2,000,000 bushels imported.

What Canada Sent.

"Canada exported to the States," he rejoined, "about 35,000 bushels, out of the 2,000,000."

He added that the rest of the importations would be practically all Austrian and Indian beans.

The Austrian and Indian product, he said, enters very largely into competition with the Canadian beans. Canada, indeed, would use all the beans she produces, were it not for this competition. At the present time British dealers are understood to be offering Austrian beans landed at Halifax, at a price lower than that for which Canadian beans can be bought. The bringing in of these Austrian beans results in the breaking of the price, which would otherwise be kept up. Canada had imported about 30,000 bushels of Indian and Austrian beans this season, and more are on the way. Were it not for this competition, Canada would not be an exporter, but instead would consume all the beans she produces.

HOW RUSSIA BUYS TEA.

Her Big Importers Go After it With a Rush When They Want it.

The contention that Russia is a contending factor in the world's tea market is in one sense true and in another, not. Statistics regarding importations of Ceylon tea by Russia when compared with other countries would not lead one to believe that the former country was much of contender.

In 1908 authentic figures show that the importations of Ceylon tea by Russia were 17,000,000 lbs. Australia, however, which in area is much smaller than Russia, and which has a smaller population, imported about 20,000,000 lbs. North America imported 9,000,000 and Great Britain about 100,000,000 lbs. From these figures therefore and taking everything into consideration, a person might be lead to believe that Russia has at no time much of an influence in the tea market.

But there is another side to the question. When Russia does buy tea she becomes really "strenuous." Her big tea importers go after it with a rush. As they usually want the best classes of tea, and as they buy without hesitation Russia then becomes a contending force in the market. The tea trade in that country is controlled by a few enormous concerns and when the goods are offered for sale, which they want to buy they act like a big wedge and Russia then becomes prominent. This only occurs at intervals and particularly when a good class of tea is placed on the market.

BECOMES THE MANAGER.

Advance of Alexander Foreman, Montreal, From Clerk to Manager.

When S. Carsley wanted a new manager for their large down town departmental store, they selected "Alec" Foreman, who held the position of manager of the grocery department. This is evidence that a grocer can climb the ladder as well as anybody else.

Mr. Foreman is a native of Montreal, having been born here 44 years ago. He was apprenticed to a grocer at an early age, and was in the employ of Fraser, Viger & Co., when he accepted a position as clerk with the Carsley people eleven years ago. He rose to the managership of the grocery department and is now bearing the responsibilities of management of the entire store. The success, which has crowned his efforts in a smaller sphere, will undoubtedly be his reward, in his now much extended field.

RESULTS OF THE EARTHQUAKE.

Widely Known Company Loses Several Members of Their Office Staff.

Watt & Scott, brokers, Toronto, have received word on Feb. 8th, from Ferd. Baller & Co., whose offices were in Messina until the recent earthquake, that the big land shake did them a great deal of damage.

The letter was written on Jan. 23rd, and stated that although the partners of the firm and their families escaped several of the members of the staff perished amid the ruins. Books, papers, codes, etc., were all buried beneath the debris of their late offices at Messina which were completely wrecked.

The letter further stated that the writer, Mr. Baller, had not seen an exaggerated account of the great catastrophe and that it was impossible for pen to picture the actual horror connected with the earthquake and the awful devastation that it brought.

The company which is widely known throughout Canada and the United States was badly disorganized but their offices have been transferred to Catania and they are collecting what remains of their office staff and expect soon to be on their feet again.

NEW COMPANIES.

The last Ontario Gazette contains the notice of incorporation of Ryerson Bros., Limited, commission merchants, Brantford, capital $50,000. The firm has been in business a good many years, their intention now being to branch out still farther and cover Northern Ontario and other parts of Canada. The new firm is composed of F. W. Ryerson, R. E. Ryerson, R. J. Ryerson, P. O. Barker and Earl L. Martin.

SUBSIDIARY COMPANY FORMED.

It is reported by cable from London, Eng., that Bovril Ltd., the largest and most widely known manufacturers of concentrated beef preparations in the world, has acquired control of large estates in the Argentine Republic. The report further states that a company has been formed under the name of "The Argentine Estates of Bovril Ltd." with a capital of $3,409,000. The prospectus states that the company is organized in order to guarantee an unfailing source, and to ensure an ample supply of highly bred cattle for use in the manufacture of Bovril. These estates are among the finest grazing grounds in the world, comprising 438,082 acres, with 100,000 head of horned cattle, and two large factories fitted with all the latest appliances for the preparation of the raw material used in the manufacture of Bovril. The parent company, (Bovril Ltd.), has engaged to take, as a minimum quantity, 30,000 head of cattle annually. This is supplementary to the large supplies already coming from the British Colonies. It is expected that this number will be greatly increased as the resources of the new company are developed.

HOME FROM TEXAS.

Shaw T. Nishimura, on his return from Houston, Texas, via Chicago, western Ontario and Toronto, called at the Toronto office of The Grocer this week on his way home to Montreal. He and a few associates have a large rice plantation in Texas, and he reports a favorable advance there, the acreage increasing every year. Mr. Nishimura referred to the good results obtained from the experiment of growing the Satsuma variety of Japanese oranges. A plantation has been laid out there and these oranges have proved hardier than the Florida or native oranges.

A GROCERY STORE WHERE FLOWERS ARE HANDLED WITH PROFIT.

This picture is one view of Chas. Page's store at 1154 Yonge Street. Accident which lays the course for most careers made of Mr. Page a printer, but unlike most men he cut the moorings of fate and launched out into business. That was over two years ago, and already he has amply demonstrated the wisdom of his course. He started by stocking quality goods and making attractive displays of them as he has with Red Rose Tea. He has gone after the best trade at the head of Yonge street, and from the first the business has been a success. A department that has helped in many ways is cut flowers and plants. The Canadian Grocer has been urging grocers for years to handle flowers, but few have followed the advice. This department has been looked after specially by Mrs. Page, whose pleasant personality has been a great help to the business. Mr. Page has fitted his store with the modern and sanitary facilities for handling foodstuffs, and he is finding that it pays.—Toronto Sunday World.

What Would John Wanamaker Say About Red Rose Tea?

This is what he says about advertising goods :

"Advertising is making the goods speak. It is putting a truthful, animate tongue into inanimate merchandise.

"Merchandise itself cannot lie. Sooner or later its true character will develop—in its use—in the satisfaction it gives to the owner.

"When exaggerated or false statements are made about goods it is a human tongue that talks or a human hand that writes; it is not the merchandise that speaks — therefore it is not advertising."

Have you ever known an exaggerated or false statement made on behalf of Red Rose Tea? Have you ever known of any "catch penny" methods being used to sell it? Have you ever known anyone connected with the business to adopt any underhand method of securing orders; or, has Red Rose Tea in daily use fully borne out all the claims made for it; has every method of selling the tea been in every respect legitimate and honorable; has every Red Rose Tea salesman been manly, straightforward, and above suspicion of anything underhanded?

If John Wanamaker knew as much about Red Rose Tea as you, and other merchants all through Canada, know, I believe he would say, "it has made good in every respect." Nothing else would account for the continued and increasing confidence displayed toward it by the many thousand merchants who sell it and the hundreds of thousands of people who drink it.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Montreal, February 11, 1909.

The activity of the cheese market of a couple of weeks ago has developed into a period of decided dullness. From reports arriving from England, the New Zealand product seems to be satisfying the demand there, which is not large just now. The New Zealand cheese arrives on the London market in an opportune time, just following the close of our season. Stocks, however, on the other side are low, consequently a resumption of a more extensive trade may be looked for soon, as the New Zealand product will wane in supply before long. The best quotations offering locally are 12½c to 12¾c for finest Westerns, and 12⅜c to 12½c for Easterns. The receipts for the season up to date since May 1 have been 1,957,566 boxes, against 2,053,635 boxes for the same period of last year.

The butter market is dull, as the demand has suddenly fallen off, and stocks are more than adequate to meet current demands. Butter is arriving freely. Some extra fine early autumn stock is being held for a fancy figure, but it is doubtful if it will be obtained. Reports from the country state that the cows have come through the winter very well, indeed, and feed is plentiful. From this then it is fair to assume that there will be a good year if other things are equally favorable. Last year it will be remembered, the cows emerged from the winter season in very poor shape, owing to scarcity of feed. Prices locally rule around 26c for fall creamery, 24½c for winter creamery, 23c fresh receipts, and 20c for dairy rolls. Receipts for the season have been 416,781 packages, against 410,582 packages for the same period of last year.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

Toronto, February 11, 1909.

With the price of hogs f.o.b. in the country at $6.70, the situation of the packers is not very encouraging. After several weeks of keen rivalry, the packers have come to the conclusion that the supply of hogs throughout the country is considerably below the average, and that even by paying much above their value, the required quantity to keep all the packing house supplied cannot be secured. The cause of this shortage is freely discussed, but opinions differ. Some claim that the new inspection act has something to do with it, and that farmers are either killing their hogs themselves or selling them to small packers, who confine their business entirely to the Province, where inspection is not required.

While the local demand for bacon is increasing from year to year, there is less shipped to England, which market is principally supplied by Denmark and other countries. The chief causes of the dangerously high prices for hogs seems to be that there are more packing houses in operation than are required to work up the hog product of the country. It might be stated that some time ago during a short supply of hogs, and in order to keep the men employed, packers were allowed to import hogs from the States and work them up in bond. This, however, cannot be done now.

The butter market is still in an unsatisfactory condition. The accumulation of poor butter, in order to get rid of it, is sold at lower figures, and while there is no more good butter than is required to meet the demand, merchants have difficulty in maintaining the price. Poor butter always has a tendency to pull down the price of even that which is good. Making poor butter, and putting it on the market always results in losses, not only to those who make it, but it is doing an injustice to those who make good butter.

The egg market is firm, with a drop in the new arrivals from the country, which come invariably with a strict guarantee of being strictly new laid. Here is a sample of the reliability of the guarantee. Three cases arrived of 36 dozen each, making 108 dozen. By careful candling, they turned out as follows: 49 dozen new laid, 32 dozen held stale, 21 dozen salted, and 2 5-12 dozen black rotten.

The stock of cheese is rapidly diminishing, but in the absence of export demand the prices are unchanged.

EGGS—In consequence of the fact that the eggs sent in from the country as strictly new laid, are almost in all cases not up to the mark, the price of such stock has dropped very nearly to the level of cold storage. The candling showed that these eggs were not running more than 50 per cent. new laid. The farmers put away a supply of eggs for their own use in the fall which are supposed to last them till the spring. This year on account of the mild weather, hens started to lay in January. Instead of continuing to use the old stock, and sell the fresh eggs, a good percentage of them used the best and sold their old stock. This accounts for the bad showing in the new laid arrivals from the country. This would lead one to think that the farmers would scarcely measure up to the standard they like to see in the business man.

WINNIPEG.

DAIRY BUUTER — The market is weaker. This is due to two causes, first the absence of demand from the east, and secondly milder weather conditions. Accumulations, however, are not heavy. Buyers are paying from 17c to 18c f.o.b. Winnipeg for good round lots, and the lower grades are in poor demand.

CREAMERY BUTTER—The tail ends are being cleaned up, although some holders would have realized better prices if they had sold earlier in the season. Prices are firm at 25c to 26c.

EGGS—Stocks are low and arrivals are very light. Sales are being made in case lots from 32c to 34c per dozen. Prices will decline sharply providing milder weather prevails.

CHEESE—Very little Manitoba cheese is being offered. Ontario is selling in a jobbing way at 14½c to 14¾c per lb.

LAW IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Manufacturers' Association to Consider Course to Follow at Next Meeting.

Something new is likely to develop at the next meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association regarding the conditions existing in British Columbia by which incorporated companies doing business there, especially where orders are taken, must first register before they can legally collect accounts or enforce agreements.

This question was considered at some length in The Grocer of a couple of weeks ago when it was stated that G. M. Murray, secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, had received a number of complaints as to this extra-provincial corporation law, and that the matter was then being considered with a view to taking definite action to bring about a change.

"A report is being prepared which will be submitted to the Manufacturers' Association at its meeting next week, and until then I cannot make public any proposals as to our future course," remarked Mr. Murray to the representative of The Grocer this week. The plans to be pursued will, therefore, not be made known for a week at least.

Mr. Murray stated that in his opinion the fact that a traveler could not legally make sales for his company in British Columbia, unless that company registered was merely an oversight at the time the Act governing such conditions was amended. It has been in existence now since 1897, and although twelve years have since passed, it was only recently that companies were non-suited in attempting to collect accounts.

This, he said, would indicate that the omission was an unintentional one.

"Some smart lawyer has observed the omission and won a case just because there was nothing in the Act allowing companies this privilege in British Columbia," he added.

This occurred first only a short time ago, and as it has been repeated occasionally, manufacturers are beginning to take notice. Mr. Murray said that similar conditions existed in other parts of the Northwest. The plans of the Manufacturers' Association will, therefore, be awaited with interest.

Indirect Benefit to Canada if Franco-Canadian Treaty Goes Through.

There is a probability that the French Government within the next year will put into operation a revised tariff which, it is believed, will have the effect of very seriously discriminating against imports into France from the United States. The French tax now on many articles of United States production is prohibitive.

A very pertinent fact to be considered in this situation is the new Franco-Canadian treaty, which is now being concluded, says a despatch from Washington. Under this treaty Canada is to receive all of the minimum rates of the French tariff. Even under present conditions this will be sufficient to cause many United States manufacturers to build factories across the Canadian line, so that their product may be sent to France with the benefit of the low tariff.

APPLES FOR INSOMNIA.

A Good Fruit to Eat Before Retiring at Night—Has Medicinal Properties.

A writer who believes in the usefulness of apples to prevent sleeplessness, says that the apple is such a common fruit that very few persons are familiar with its remarkably efficacious medicinal properties. Everybody ought to know that the very best thing he can do is to eat apples just before retiring for the night. Persons uninitiated in the mysteries of the fruit are liable to throw up their hands in horror at the visions of dyspepsia which such a suggestion may summon up, but no harm can come even to a delicate system by the eating of ripe and juicy apples before going to bed. The apple is excellent brain food, because it has more phosphoric acid in easily digested shape than any other fruit. It excites the liver, promotes sound and healthy sleep, and thoroughly disinfects the mouth. This is not all—the apple prevents indigestion and throat disease.

THE FLOUR AND CEREAL MARKETS

Advance Expected in Price of Flour—Rolled Wheat and Rolled Oats Market Very Firm—Bran is Scarce.

In all probability the price of flour will advance in the near future. Wheat has gone up so high that millers state they can make no profit so that a change may be expected at any time. The cause for the recent decline still exists, but the millers interested are expected to settle their differences soon.

Rolled wheat and rolled oats are also likely to advance in view of the high prices of wheat and oats.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—The recent drop in prices has precipitated such a demand upon the mills, that stocks have been pretty well cleaned up. There is a strong probability that prices will stiffen up soon. Export demand is also in a good healthy condition.

TORONTO.

FLOUR—The flour market seems to be in a rather peculiar position this week. Although Manitoba wheat has not actually advanced it does not seem that the strain can last much longer. The price of wheat at present is such as should demand higher prices, but the millers who a couple of weeks ago were responsible for the decline have not yet settled their differences. One milling company states that wheat is so high and so hard to get that milling is more of an expense than profit these days. Flour is therefore likely to advance. Export demand is improving.

CEREALS—In the cereal market this week rolled wheat is very firm with no change in prices as quoted last week. From the statements of one or two firms, however, the price is likely to advance on account of the condition of the wheat market. It does not seem that the strain can last much longer. There is a fair demand for rolled oats and on account of the many advances in the price of oats there is not likely to be any decline in prices.

AWAIT "OLEO WAR."

Proposed Lowering of Revenue Tax Excites Powerful Interests.

Washington, D.C., Feb. 8.—There is prospect of a sharp contest over a measure which Representative Burleson, of Texas, has introduced, to repeal the present internal revenue tax of ten cents per pound on oleomargarine. There are powerful interests on both sides of the question, among which, it is declared, importance must be given to a sharp change of opinion about the desirability of oleomargarine as a food. The high price of butter in recent years, with the prospect that it will go still higher, has forced a considerable demand for removal of the tax. Moreover, there is not so much sentiment as formerly, it is said, against imitation butter.

The question of revenue is also important. It is declared that a tax of two cents per pound would produce more revenue than the present ten cents, because the latter is to a large extent prohibitive.

The big packing interest is always named first among interests which want to remove or greatly reduce the tax. But the makers of cotton seed oil are just as insistent on removing the tax as the dairymen are on retaining it. Back of them are lined up the cotton producers, and a strong sentiment has developed in the South that the tax on imitation butter is a protection to a Northern industry at the expense of the cotton producers of the South. The wholesale grocers are also said to be strongly in favor of the change, because they could handle oleomargarine, while butter is beyond them.

Already promise is made that the dairy interests of the East and Middle West will bring great pressure to bear, and that they will use extreme measures to keep their representatives in line to retain the tax. The original fight which the dairy interests made to get the restrictions imposed on imitation butter was one of the most picturesque ever made in Congress, and there is every indication that it will be repeated in connection with the Burleson Bill or some similar one.

W. H. Thompson of Hamilton, and Fred D. Menzie of Niagara Falls, have just returned from Texas, where they have been representing the F. F. Dalley Company in the interests of "2 in 1" shoe polish.

Strong Feeling in Green Fruit Market — Fish Market Being Stimulated — Strawberries on the Market—Fresh Cucumbers Expensive.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—The recent disaster in Sicily did not affect the lemon market as much as was anticipated as there was a fairly large quantity in the country and other consignments on the way to keep the market supplied for some time. These, however, are becoming exhausted and the effect of the earthquake is beginning to be felt now slightly. There is a slightly stronger feeling in the market for bitter oranges, grape fruit, lemons and cranberries.

VEGETABLES—The vegetable market is a shade easier this week, although the declines are not very much. Among these are cucumbers, new carrots and parsnips. Montreal potatoes are a shade stronger, and Canadian celery is also on the firm side. Other lines are unchanged, with a weaker undertone to the market. The freer arrivals of stock from the South has given a weakened aspect to the market.

GREEN FRUITS—California navel oranges, almost the only kind that are now receiving attention, are a little easier, and perhaps from 5c to 10c a case lower, with regular arrivals to meet the demand. Apples are firm and choice stock of Spies sell as high as $6.50 a barrel. This may seem very high, but one of the fruit men declared that he sold apples a few years ago as high as $8 a barrel. Strawberries are selling at 55c a quart box, and the lemon market shows very little of the effects of the recent earthquake, and prices are normal.

VEGETABLES—The pototo market is very steady, and the dealers who are a very courteous lot of fellows, simply smile and from week to week report no change. However, "by putting your ear to the ground," you might, perhaps, notice a little more firmness than usual. The crop in Ontario was good and the quality is excellent, and without any export demand it is not likely that prices will be any higher. The very high price of held cabbage may be checked, by the new cabbage coming in from Florida, a car of which has arrived, and which will be followed by another in a few days. These sell for $3.25 to $3.50 a case, but the dearest article on the market is the fresh cucumber, which sells as high as $2.75 a dozen—think of eating cucumbers in the winter at 30c apiece and in the summer at 30c a bushel! New potatoes are quoted at $3 a bushel, or $9 a barrel, and Bermuda onions $4.50 a case.

FISH—The fish men are busy, and naturally happy. How is business was asked by The Canadian Grocer? With a feeling too full to express himself the fish man pointed to the stack of fish that were ready to go out. "Yes, we have all we can do," he added. The fresh caught fish that came in last week are all sold, with no arrivals this week. Although with a good demand, prices are not changed.

Selling Sardines

is part of every grocer's business—Sardines are a delicious food and if properly cured and packed, enjoyable to everybody.

France for half-a-century or more had a monopoly of the Sardine trade, but since the Norwegians have entered the field, it's for the best trade all the time.

To "King Oscar"

brand is due to a very large degree the reputation of superiority now held by Norwegian packers.

Fine small fish, clean, sweet, purest oil and government inspection, are the reasons.

Let these be your arguments for selling "King Oscar" brand. Demand them.

Hamilton Grocer a Sound Believer in Doing a Cash Business—Where Credit Sometimes Prevails—A Young Man's Opportunities With Large Concerns.

"I conduct a strictly cash business," said a Hamilton grocer the other day. "I would not run any other kind. I have had many opponents start saying that they would run me out and capture my trade, but in the end they have had to give in. The cause was they were giving credit. They would endeavor to undersell me by offering certain staple lines as bait for the public at one or two cents less than me, but in the long run they found they were running away behind and had to cease the struggle. The man in my line who sells for cash and cash only can afford to dispose of his goods from five to ten per cent. less than one who extends credit. It stands to reason that he is able to do this because he has no bad debts. One customer has got to make up for the shortage of another. I believe in small profits and quick turnover. As a special inducement I offer certain snaps on Saturdays and have bills printed setting forth the bargains. This has resulted in my doing a largely increased trade and people flock here in great numbers knowing my sales are genuine. They embrace half a dozen or a dozen lines and not one or two particular things."

Cash Versus Credit.

When times of depression arrive and there is industrial stagnation with many artisans out of work, some trades are hit particularly hard. Among those who feel the downward tendency first are the jewellery men, the carriage men, the automobile makers, the furniture and piano industries. These things are counted to a certain extent as luxuries. The retailers do not buy; they have stock enough on their hands. But what about the grocer? He cannot keep his stock, and when a number of his customers are out of work he thinks he has to carry them over the quiet period, and trust to a revival of conditions to get his pay. Discussing this phase of the situation a Winnipeg representative of the trade recently said: "When a man has paid you cash right along it is a pretty hard matter to refuse him credit when he is out of work. Supposing you are doing a strictly cash business. Some morning a customer comes into your store and after ordering a liberal supply of goods, says, 'You will have to charge this as I am out of employment at present.' You refuse and he immediately pulls a long face and tells you that he expects work soon, and that a man has got to eat. What can you do but relent and extend him credit. Sometimes you get your pay when he resumes work and sometimes you do not. He may later go some place else. This cash business is a pretty hard problem but in the long run I believe it is the best."

Depends on the Viewpoint.

"When I was a clerk I had to work ten hours every day," remarked a Peterboro young man the other day. "I complained bitterly of my lot and its exasperating condition. Now I am in business for myself and I find that I have to labor twelve and fourteen hours daily in order to keep the sheriff from the door."

"Oh, that is one of the glorious privileges of being boss," responded a fellow sympathizer, "You must look upon the other picture. Think of the advantage that it is to have nobody to order you around. What are long hours to being master of your own actions, responsible to no one but yourself for your doings?"

It all depends on the viewpoint.

Chances With Large Concerns.

"Opportunities are better and more favorable in a flourishing city with a big concern than in a smaller centre," remarked a young man this week, "and I will tell you why. In a local business after serving your apprenticeship there are only one or two positions in the gift of a firm carrying with them a good salary and prospects sufficient to induce permanency. If you miss these you miss all. In a big corporation there are several remunerative posts and if you do not land the first or second vacancy, you still have an opportunity to try for the others. You may have to wait a while, but by energy, application and industry you are almost sure to rise in the end and do much better than in small and non-progressive centres. I freely admit that a local or general business is perhaps preferable to a large one for acquiring a good all-round experience, but when you have served a reasonable length of time, my advice is to get out and connect yourself with a large firm."

A SUGAR REFINERY.

It is stated in Victoria, B.C., that representatives of American capital have been there looking for a site for a new sugar refining factory.

"Confidentially you will give me a soap I like much better than Fels-Naptha?"

"Confidentially nothing! There is something doing against customers' interests in this shop, or you would not knock Fels-Naptha soap. That is a good tip for me to deal elsewhere. I want genuine goods—no imitations.

"No other soap made is just as good as Fels-Naptha."

—Anty Drudge.

A PLEA FOR THE CASH SYSTEM

In Order to Prevent Bad Debts—Writer Does Not Believe in Securing Money by Litigation—Suggests Organization of the Merchants.

To the Editor of the Canadian Grocer :

I have read with considerable interest your article on how "Grocers may be benefitted," and I desire to express my sentiments and to assist if possible in removing abuses that a long suffering class in the community has been forced to contend with in the past.

I realize the importance of the task. I recognize that under our advanced civilization, and the present complex system of competition, the methods and means of distribution are distinctly in favor of the departmental stores and jobbers, that sell their goods on a cash basis.

The strained conditions existing between capital and labor, the uncertainty of employment, the persistency of manufactures in placing their goods upon the market, and a desire to stimulate trade and create wants by perfect methods of advertising and sampling, and added to this the excessive cost of living, and the environment of pleasure that is calculated to absorb the last cent of the laborer, presents a problem to the mercantile community that is fraught with disaster unless adequate legislation and protection is obtained.

Small Dealers' Standing.

The small dealer does not enjoy the confidence of the financial institution owing to the system of credit and his inability to make collection. He is thus handicapped in competition by the departmental and wealthier concerns that possess unlimited capital and credit and are able to purchase the goods in the market of the world, at the best prices, and frequently lower than the importer that supplies the retail trade.

The grocer has no security or protection when he disposes of his goods on credit, as the cost and annoyance of legal operations are certainly not worth the time and bother. The landlord virtually holds a chattel mortgage. The piano manufacturer plays a musical dirge and obtains his money, while the poor grocer struggling along depending upon the honesty of his customers, who by this time are dead to all sense of honor and true manhood is afraid to press his claim lest he offend others that he is depending upon for support.

What the final outcome will be in this tragedy of life we are unable to predict, but I venture to express a solution of this difficult problem, if we organize and unite our forces upon an equitable basis. True co-operation is a natural law. United we stand—divided we fall, and the truths of history and nature prove that unless we recognize society as a unit and producer and distribute accordingly, we must pass to the rear, and make way for more progressing and intelligent nations. The reforms I would like to have enforced are first : the introduction of a cash system and the abolition of all premiums and rebates ; secondry : if credit must be extended, a contract must be the signal, and goods sold at increased price, with satisfactory security by the person with whom customer is employed, or other responsible party ; Thirdly, that all traders be placed on the same footing and no destinction be made in price or quality, and all goods sold to the trade be listed at a selling price and a percentage allowed for the handling of same, and any trader known to violate agreement by cutting prices forfeits his right to handle goods by this method. There should be no discrimination between the trade, and the success of a tradesman would depend upon his personality and his qualification for the business.

In conclusion I am not in sympathy with legal proceeding against a customer as it is not good business and is revolting in character, preferring at all times the maxim, that an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure. Trusting that through the medium of organization that we may safeguard our interests and assist in developing a healthy moral sentiment is my supreme desire.

W. J. KING.

Worms in Horses and All Live Stock

The eradication of worms from horses and other animals is one of the most striking features of Molassine Meal, and is proof of its unique properties. When is used regularly—although it is quite free from arsenic or drugs- in consequence of its antiseptic properties, all foul or putrid matter is evacuated, worms cannot live, and are naturally expelled.

A food which has effects like this must command the attention of all persons interested in the feeding of horses and cattle.

Baking is best done by using

"Cow Brand" Baking Soda

It's easy enough to make this claim for other sodas, but it is another thing to prove it. The soda put up in packages under "Cow Brand" Soda Brand is purer, stronger, cleaner and more perfect than any other soda on the market.

Canned Fruits and Vegetables Absolutely Pure

All our Canned Fruits and Vegetables are absolutely pure. The preservation is accomplished solely by sterilization, this being the cheapest as well as the safest method of processing.

We not only guarantee our Canned Fruits and Vegetables to be preserved solely by sterilization, but we further guarantee that all our Fruits and Vegetables are canned when they are best fitted for table use.

Quality is of the greatest importance in Canned Goods, and owing to it being impossible to tell quality until the can is opened, consumers should be very particular as to the brands they purchase.

It has always been the policy of the Management of the Canadian Canners, Limited, to work for Quality.

The buyer of a can of goods with the Canadian Canners' Label, knows that he is running no risks. The quality is guaranteed by a responsible, reliable company.

Why buy inferior goods even if at lower prices only to perhaps incur the ill-will of your customers?

If you secure a name for handling nothing but reliable goods you are on the high road to success.

REMEMBER THE BRANDS :—

Simcoe, "Lynnvalley," "Auto"; Aylmer, "Canada First," "Log Cabin"; Bowlby's "Horseshoe"; Lalor's "Grand River," "Kent"; Delhi, "Maple Leaf"; Boulter's "Lion," "Little Chief," "Thistle"; Lakeport, "White Rose," etc.

The Staying Customer is a Boon to Business

The only way to raise a transient customer into the permanent class is to serve him with goods that particularly please him.

Naturally, the main question for you to settle with yourself when giving an order for new stock is whether the quality of the goods being offered you is calculated to please your customers by its excellence.

If it isn't don't order it!

We make certain claims for the high quality of Old Homestead Brand

Canned Fruit and Vegetables

which it will pay you to carefully consider.

We claim that only the best grade of fruits and vegetables are selected for Old Homestead Brand, and that they are preserved by the most modern and sanitary methods known.

We claim that careful selection and skilful, sanitary packing produce goods of the highest quality, and every can of Old Homestead Brand is a concrete proof of our claims.

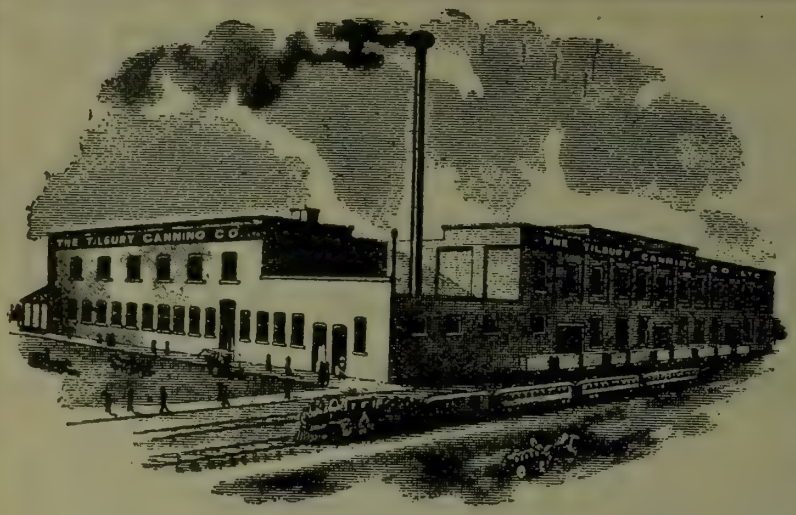
QUALITY THAT TALKS—ATTRACTS—SELLS

The way to get the people coming to your store and passing by the man 'round the corner, is to sell

FARMER BRAND
CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES



Every can is a splendid advertisement for the man who sells it. The reason we are able to produce goods of uniformly high quality is the fact that all our stock is grown upon our own 3,000 acres of the finest garden land. That's the basis of quality — good raw material. Then, look at our Canning Factory! Positively, it is modern and sanitary in every particular; and the people who operate it are clean and highly skilled in their trade.

We paid the freight when sending it to you and will pay the freight back again if you want to return it, and allow you the full cost. Look around at your stock of bulk and packet teas. Would you not gladly return a lot of it if you could do so on the same conditions?

"Wayne" Stands For Quality Washboards

TRADE MARK

First, last and all the time. Wayne Boards are sold with a guarantee of first-class workmanship and the best and highest grades of Glass, Brass, Enamel and Zinc Surfaces. We furnish with our regular line, frames made of the celebrated St. Francis Basin Red Gum Lumber, which is peculiarly adapted to this purpose. It is hard and smooth and has not the warping qualities of cottonwood. When our customers absolutely demand it, we are in position to furnish the Wayne line with white hardwood frames, using the best white hardwood that can be obtained in the U.S. This necessitates a slight advance in the price, owing to greater waste in the lumber but produces a frame far better in all respects than cottonwood or any of the kindred soft woods used in the manufacture of boards. We wish, however, to draw your earnest attention to the St. Francis Basin Red Gum Lumber, which we maintain is an absolutely perfect wood for the manufacture of washboard frames.

Our prices will please both the Jobber and the Dealer. Carrying our line will increase your sales.

As Pure as Windsor Salt

$1.00 Sold $25 Worth of Groceries

It was a thirty-mile trip to town and the instructions of Mrs. Smith to husband John were to get a dollar's worth of Windsor Salt at the grocer's—naturally husband John secured his entire list of groceries at the store that was stocked with "Windsor." He spent twenty-five dollars in that particular store.

The reason why Mrs. Smith was determined to have Windsor Salt was and is plainly evident—its uniform excellence, purity, whiteness and dryness. It pays to sell the salt that helps to sell other goods in the store.

Co-operative Ranks Recently Broken

President and Vice-President Have Resigned Within a Short Time of the General Meeting—Old Treasurer's Name Not on the New Prospectus—The Picton Affair Recalled—Some Reasons for Resignations.

Since the report of the failure of those interested to form a Picton branch of the Dominion Co-operative Association a few weeks ago, some changes are observed in the personnel of the officers of the Association. These can be seen from a leaflet pasted on the second page of the old prospectus covering the old officers names and showing the new. The change as shown by this "extra" or added leaf occurred on Feb. 9th, 1909.

Of course the Governor-General is not the president as the advertisement in the Picton press represented him to be. Other statements were made in that advertisement which should not have been and the natural result was the farmers who had been somewhat interested, declined to have anything to do with the scheme as it has so far been presented.

Change of Presidents.

Alexander Fraser is not now the president. He was but he has resigned. He told the Grocer his reasons were that the Dominion Co-operative Association is only yet in its preliminary stages. He accepted the presidency to get things started and never intended to stay with it.

"I was only president until the Association was ready to go on and do business. I merely gave advice," he states.

Speaking further he said: "The present arrangement (that is, the new officers elected since the resignations took place) will only last for a month or so; there is to be a general meeting in March."

This would indicate that the Association "is not yet ready to begin business."

And therefore, why did Mr. Fraser resign so soon?

"Can a man in the public service hold office in such an Association?" was asked Mr. Fraser.

"It's not illegal," he replied; "but its very undesirable that such should exist. I wouldn't care to hold office under those conditions and that was one reason why I only undertook to be president until the Association was ready to do business."

Name Without Authority.

Mr. Fraser, speaking in regard to the Picton affair said that his name was used in the advertisement without his authority. His successor according to the recently revised prospectus is Robert J. Goudy, manufacturer, Toronto. Mr. Fraser is Provincial Archivist.

The resignation of the president led to a change in the vice-presidency. Albert Chamberlain, in the office of the Belleville Portland Cement Co., the Arcade, Yonge St., Toronto, was the vice-president, but he has been succeeded by J. S. Milligan, bookkeeper, Toronto—so says the prospectus.

He Follows Mr. Fraser.

Mr. Chamberlain has also given his reasons for leaving the Association. Among them are the following: He is a busy man and he resigned because Mr. Fraser resigned.

"As long as Alex. Fraser was at the head of affairs I had no fear of things going wrong," he told the Grocer. "I never would have allowed my name to go before the Board for vice-president if Mr. Fraser had not been at the head."

Mr. Chamberlain is President of the British Welcome League and no doubt is a very busy man.

While he was connected with the Association he had wanted things done right. He had told the Board that if he ever found anything wrong he would resign and let them know why. He was on good terms with both the secretary and treasurer at the time he handed in his resignation. So far as he knew everything was done "on the square." Referring to the attempt to establish a Picton branch of the Association he also stated that there was no authority for his name going on the advertisement as one of the speakers.

Secretary's Statement.

H. Macdonald is the secretary of the Dominion Co-operative Association. He has not resigned. He told the Grocer that the Governor-General was not the president of the above named association as represented in the Picton paper. He, however, is the president of the International Co-operative Alliance of England.

He, Mr. Macdonald, was invited to Picton a few weeks ago to lecture for the purpose of laying the foundation stone of a branch of the Association there.

He had been told by the leading farmers that if the movement did nothing else it would serve to abandon the credit system.

"I left some literature and authorized J. Sayers, who I think is president of the School of Commerce there, to take subscriptions for stock on our published prospectus. The next information from Sayers was that he wanted me to give another address to the farmers. He carried out all arrangements on his own behalf. In the meantime a complaint was received through Alex. Fraser, the president, concerning the advertisement. I appreciated that the statements were misleading. I was not consulted regarding the ad.

They Couldn't Go.

"I wired Mr. Sayers that owing to the terms of the advertisement, my directors disapproved of my attending the meeting as it might be construed that I had given countenance to a misleading statement. The president telephoned to Picton that the advertisement was incorrect and asked his correspondent—who, by the way, was Fred Newman, president of the Retail Merchants Association there—to intimate this to the farmers."

The subsequent happenings were told in the Grocer of a couple of weeks ago.

Mr. Macdonald is a Scotchman. He was a member of St. Cuthbert's Society of Edinburgh, before coming to Canada.

In addition to changes already referred to the new prospectus hasn't the name of H. Kiteley who was the treasurer. There are three new directors and the auditors are also different.

All this in the face of a general meeting within a month's time might seem rather peculiar.

ILLICIT COMMISSIONS.

Clerks and salesmen throughout Canada are advised of the introduction of a bill a few days ago in the House of Commons by Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, regarding illicit or secret commissions. This bill is for the purpose of preventing the payment or acceptance of illicit or secret commissions and other like practices. The object of this legislation is that the payment or acceptance of illicit or secret commissions and practices of that nature shall be an offence punishable either by indictment or upon summary conviction, according to the gravity of the circumstances.

The measure is one of general application. Already on the statute book are enactments against receiving of secret commissions by agents in the employ of any government in Canada or municipal corporation.

No Employe Can Accept.

But the new legislation proposes to go further and make it illegal on the part of any employee to accept any secret commission in consideration of favors to be given at the expense of his employer.

This legislation is in substance the enactment adopted on this subject by the Imperial Parliament two years ago.

SEMOLINA.

The Grocer has received an inquiry from a London, England, house desiring to know whether an article known as "Semolina" is made in Canada or not. Any of our readers who know anything of this article which is manufactured from hard red wheat are requested to communicate with this paper telling particularly where it is made. The British firm wants to do business in Canada.

Rapid Advance of the Fishing Industry

The Pacific Coast and Lakes of the Northwest Becoming Important Sources of Supply—More Fish From the West Than From the East—The Part the Grocers Have Played in Developing the Trade by Educating the Public—Success of the F. T. James Co., Wholesale Fish Dealers, Toronto, and Methods Used.

During recent years the advance in the fishing industry in Canada has been such as to make it one of the Dominion's strong commercial points and deserving of particular notice. The vast development of the industry has greatly increased the internal trade in fish in the country and a few years ago where we had one grocer dealing in fish now we have scores. The consumer is gradually becoming educated to the value of fish as a food, by the grocers who handle them. They provide wholesome, cheap food and are a valuable change from meat which in many cases is consumed too freely for the health of the consumers.

The handling of fish at the present time is vastly different from what it was in the not yet distant past. During recent years the Dominion Government through legislation in connection with cold storage, etc., has done much to improve the industry and thus give work to a greater number than before.

Fish From the West.

One of the important changes which has come about in the last few years is the rapid gains western Canada has made in supplying the eastern trade. this development is phenomenal and promises to increase.

From Winnipeg, Winnipegosis and Manitoba Lakes in the province of Manitoba come white fish, pickerel, pike and perch and the fisheries in these lakes are becoming very important.

In the Lesser Slave Lake, farther to the west and north, fish are caught in abundance through the ice. They are frozen practically while they are still kicking on the ice and shipped east as they are. They land here in better condition than fresh fish and as they are immediately placed in cold storage there can be no deterioration.

Western Halibut.

The Pacific coast trade in halibut is enormous. This fish is caught by the ton there, Victoria and Vancouver being made the chief centres of distribution. Ontario fish dealers handle much more halibut from the Pacific than from the Atlantic and the western fish is now even being sold in Halifax and Boston.

Successful Fish Merchant.

The fact that the fish trade has gone rapidly ahead in latter years is well illustrated by considering the development of the business of the F. T. James Co., wholesale fish merchants of Toronto, of which F. T. James is the manager. The progress has been made in the last eleven years. Mr. James' connection with the trade however, dates back twenty years, when he became clerk and assistant to the late D. L. Port, of D. L. Port & Co., who had their business establishment in Toronto on the Esplanade.

Nine years afterwards he launched out for himself and has now a modernly equipped wholesale fish establishment fitted up with cold storage rooms of the latest type. Eleven years ago, therefore, the company began with almost no money, a little credit and a room 25 feet by 50 feet. Their early business was not very remunerative but it served to gain a good name among the trade. Courtesy and consideration were among their mottoes and they have now one of the most important fish and oyster wholesale houses in Canada.

The firm aimed at quality of service and for some time it was a test of determination and endurance but their qualifications for doing business were made manifest and success was the result. They have now a new building fitted with every facility for doing things correctly.

Fish Trade Entirely.

In earlier years Mr. James did a general commission business and it was not until recently that he dispensed with fruits and vegetables and has since confined all the operations to fish and oysters. The company has now their own branches on Lakes Ontario, Erie, Huron, Superior, Winnipeg and Georgian Bay together with buying connections on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts.

Oyster Trade Advance.

In this age of progress it is not surprising that the Oyster industry is keeping pace with the giant strides of civilization.

It used to be a question of what to eat, now that has been decided by science and the only thing that agitates the consumer is how to secure his food in the most wholesome manner.

There has been more or less talk as to the best possible means of shipping oysters, but it seems that it has been left to Mr. James to solve the problem.

Head of F. T. James Co., Wholesale Fish Merchants.

That he has succeeded in doing so, to the satisfaction of the dealers who draw their supply from the F. T. James Co., is shown by the popularity of the Beacon Brand Oyster package, which is the company's private carrier. It appeals strongly to pure food enthusiasts, for like a paper match box, it is used but once. That the value of this package is recognized by more than the oyster industry is shown by the visit recently of a score or more scientists, who were eager to inspect the packages and they highly praise the "single service package."

Mr. James now handles more fish from the West than from the Atlantic indicating that the West has more resources than merely its renowned wheat fields. It is not very long ago since fish was brought to Toronto in small quantities whereas now they come only in carload lots and these arrive every week.

Treat the order sent in with the same care it would receive if the customer were watching you put it up. People like to trade where they can trust the store. It's inconvenient to have to watch your grocer or butcher every move he makes.

EDMONTON MERCHANTS UNITE

Form Protective Association—Will Watch "Dead-Beats" and Indiscriminate Peddling—To Wait on Government for Purpose of Getting Small Accounts Collected With Less Expense—Cutting of Prices Considered.

Edmonton, Feb. 16.—For a long time Edmonton merchants have seen the need of some organization amongst themselves for protection against bad accounts and unwarranted cutting of prices and other evils. This matter has been talked of for some time but nobody until recently seemed to take the initiative and try to formulate plans whereby the retailers would get together and talk the matter over with a view to forming an association. Almost every city of any size at all in the country had some system to work upon.

A Protective Policy.

Within the last month or so though, this matter has been rapidly brought to a head through the strenuous efforts of some of the leading retailers and wholesale men and what gives promise of being one of the most important organizations of retail merchants in the West has been formed and is styled "The Retail Merchants' Protective Association."

At a meeting held a short time ago, in the office of G. S. & J. Galt, much business was gone over and officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows :—President, G. H. Graydon ; 1st Vice-President, H. K. Hilburn ; 2nd Vice-President, M. Webb ; Treasurer, H. W. B. Douglas ; Salaries Secretary, P. C. Engle ; Executive Committee, A. R. Duncan, W. J. Jackson, E. Tomlinson, C. C. Thompson and J. C. Dowsett. Mr. Engle will assume his new duties at once and in a short time will open up an office and devote considerable time to the affairs of this organization. At present the membership of the association is sixty-five and about two hundred more retailers of the city have expressed their desire of affiliating with the organization.

Objects of Organization.

The chief purpose of the Retail Merchants' Protective Association is, as its name implies, to protect the retailer. As far as possible the rating of every person in Edmonton will be obtained and thus the association will be able to control the credit system in the city and protect themselves against bad accounts. Representatives of the association will wait on the government and ask them to pass a law whereby merchants will be enabled to collect a small debt without expensive litigation. Steps will also be taken to protect merchants against indiscriminate peddling. The organization will endeavor to control and uphold prices as far as advisable and any retailer found guilty of "slashing" prices to the detriment of the other merchants will be brought to task.

The wholesale houses will be asked to cooperate in this matter by not selling to any retailer who has been causing any unwarranted break in prices under penalty of losing the business of the balance of the merchants in the city. Thus the offender will be cut off from getting goods and seeing his mistake may mend his ways.

PRESENTATION TO PRESIDENT

Geo. F. Benson Honored on the Occasion of the Silver Anniversary of the Canada Starch Co.—Given Handsome Solid Silver Centre Piece—His Reply.

At the conclusion of the annual meeting of the Canada Starch Co., Montreal, which was recently held, an event of a social rather than of a business nature occurred of more than ordinary interest. The reaching of the silver anniversary of the institution of the company was made the occasion for the presentation to President Geo. F. Benson, of a handsome solid silver centrepiece, manufactured by Henry Hickson & Sons, Montreal. In addition to the directors, there were present the local salesmen and office staff.

The following address was read accompanying the presentation :—

To George F. Benson, Esq.,

President of the Canada Starch Co., Ltd.,
Montreal.

Dear Sir :—

On the 50th anniversary of the founding of the starch industry in Canada, we the directors of the company, and the working staff in every capacity, ask your acceptance of this testimonial.

We offer it as a memorial to the courage and foresight of your late respected father, the founder, a pioneer and maker of the industrial history of this country—as a token of our appreciation of your maintenance of his successful administration as president—and of your qualities of mind and heart as shown in all your dealings with everyone connected with the company.

Solid Silver Centrepiece Presented to President Benson, of the Edwardsburg Starch Co., by the Directors, Office and Sales Staff of the Company.

This gift and our expressions are but feeble exponents of our personal feelings towards you, engendered by long experience of a character which has inspired all with that camaraderie and esprit de corps which is not only beneficial but absolutely necessary to the proper and successful development of industrial enterprise.

They are accompanied by our heartfelt wishes that you may long continue to guide the destinies of the company along the same pleasant paths of prosperity. And we venture moreover to express the hope that in the natural succession of generation to generation, on some future occasion a son of yours may receive from our successors, a similar tribute, tendered with as sincere pleasure as we ourselves are to-day experiencing."

A Modest Acknowledgment.

In acknowledging the gift and the sentiments expressed, Mr. Benson remarked that while he appreciated the kindness shown him, he felt that the comparitively few years during which he had been at the helm of the company did not warrant such a tribute. Had he been the chief for a quarter or half a century it might have been different. He thought his services had been overestimated but since he was honored he would have to live up to what had been said concerning him. He assured all of the absolute confidence he had in the business and its future.

WHY BROOMS HAVE ADVANCED

Great Shortage in the Oklohoma Crop—Many Manufacturers Can Scarcely Secure Raw Material—Available supply Bought Up Unawares.

(Written for The Canadian Grocer.)

There have been great changes and developments as to the districts in which broom corn has been grown. Beginning in the Mohawk Valley in New York State many years ago, it gradually drifted over to what is termed the central district in Illinois, where the rich black prairie soil produces a class of broom corn which has never been surpassed, particularly as to its wearing qualities. Since 1899, however, the land in this portion of Illinois has become more valuable selling as high as $150 per acre in the last few years. This coupled with the fact that Indian Corn has brought high prices has contributed to a continuous reduction in acreage planted into broom corn since that year, so that at the present time Illinois does not produce more than 20 per cent. of the total crop when at one time it produced probably 75 or 80 per cent.

Sometime previous to 1899, numbers of farmers from this central district having moved to Kansas, began raising broom corn in that state and from this, the evolution of the broom corn raising in the new neighboring state of Oklohoma was a natural one. The land in Oklohoma being cheaper and the new settlers being anxious to raise any crop which could be sold for cash, went into the raising of broom corn quite extensively, so that during the last eight or ten years, Oklohoma has produced the bulk of America's crop of broom corn.

Difference in Growing.

Conditions, however, are entirely different in Oklohoma from those in Illinois. In Illinois the crop was practically raised in two or three counties and a buyer at any time could, within a few days become cognizant of the conditions by taking a drive around, whereas in Oklohoma the crop is pretty well distributed over the whole state and it is practically impossible to obtain a fair knowledge of the size of the crop until after the crop is shipped and the records are taken from the various shipping stations. It was this fact which helped to develop the peculiar conditions in broom corn last autumn. Previous to the Presidential election broom corn manufacturers were practically not in the market, although usually the bulk of the broom corn is bought in October, so that buying was comparatively small in October.

Broom Corn Bought Unawares.

Immediately after the election, however, manufacturers swarmed out into Oklohoma and, lo and behold, the broom corn had practically been bought up before anybody was aware of it. Careful estimates since that time, go to show that instead of a crop of between 30,000 and 40,000 tons which Oklohoma usually produces, there was not more than 16,000 tons, which with a reduced crop in Illinois, has developed a shortage such as has not existed during the last twenty years.

Naturally such dealers as had been buying for future requirements, when they became aware of the actual conditions, advanced prices and while broom corn during October was selling at from $30.00 to $70.00 per ton, almost anything will now bring $120 per ton and the better grades as high as $130 per ton in Oklohoma. With the market firm at this advanced price and the probability that before another season's crop can be grown, a large number of manufacturers will practically be out of business because no further supplies can be obtained, the condition is entirely different from what it was in 1889 when the broom corn market was manipulated and the broom corn secretly bought up, and prices boosted to $200 per ton and that during a year when there was a larger crop of broom corn than usual. This year however, practically everybody was caught short, being practically unaware of the actual conditions, until brought face to face with them, so that unless all consumers are bound to quit buying brooms, the market will continue to advance according to the demand.

The actual advance while it seems large in dollars per ton is not very much in cents per broom, the advance of 10 cents per broom to the consumer practically covering the advance so far.

This should not affect the trade very seriously, considering the small number of brooms used annually in a household. It is however of the utmost importance to the manufacturers because in the aggregate this amounts to a large sum.

COMMISSION VERSUS SALARY

Across the Border the Former System for Travelers is in Vogue — Benefits Claimed for Wholesaler, Retailer and the Traveler—Best Salesmen Come to the Surface—Poor Men Fall by the Wayside.

Travelers paid by commission instead of by salary is the system chiefly in vogue in the United States and information secured regarding the results to the traveler and wholesaler indicate that it is appreciated by both. Practically all the large wholesale houses across the border pay their travelers on commission and they claim the system proves more satisfactory than the other method and more beneficial too, from a monetary standpoint.

Paying on this profit sharing basis brings forward, it is maintained, good, active salesmen. It has the tendency to produce travelers who are real artists in selling. The brainier men are left on the road and those who have not the ability to make good salesmen are forced to drop out and seek their fortune in some other sphere of life.

The Retailer Also.

This system is claimed to be better for traveler, wholesaler and retailer. Advocates of it say that the travelers who make the salesmen, on the commission basis will make more money than by salary. It stands to reason that the greater the amount of sales the greater will be the commission. The standard of traveling is raised by the fact that only the best men come to the surface.

If the traveler sells more goods the wholesaler is bound to benefit because he will sell more also. Travelers in the United States make from 25 per cent. to 40 per cent. according to their territory and of course the man who provides the goods reaps his share of the benefits.

Those who advocate traveling on the profit sharing basis maintain also that the retailer comes in for his share of the advantages. A salesman to hold his customers must be very careful how he treats them and what he sells. Often it is said, retailers are sold goods they do not want, on the recommendation of the salesman, only to find he cannot get rid of them. This makes the merchant indifferent to purchasing from the same traveler again and the latter loses custom. No difference would be made to him if he worked on the salary basis unless this occurred too frequently. It therefore appears from this reasoning that the retailers would be supplied with the goods for which they would find ready sales.

Travelers Become Artists.

The commission system has been gradually established in the United States during the past fifteen or twenty years and it seems to be getting more advocates every year. The travelers appreciate it because it gives them something to work for and, as stated above, raises the standard of salesmanship.

To be a successful traveler a man must be a judge of human nature. Principles that make a sale in one case are disastrous if used in another and travelers themselves across the line claim that the commission system is the better because it brings out men worthy of the position and these are better paid. Travelers working on commission have often been known to make as much as $10,000 a year and instances are known where $25,000 have been earned.

Another benefit claimed for the wholesaler is that definite sales are always made. On the salary basis this does not always occur and trouble too frequently arises.

Mr. Loudon, of The Tillsonburg Packing Co. has purchased the business of J. W. Wait, known as the Jubilee Meat Market, on Broadway St., Tillsonburg, and will begin at once to make extensive alterations with a view to running a butcher and provision store. H. K. Anthony, late with the Wm. Davies Co., Toronto, and J. & A. McHardy of Guelph, has been appointed manager and intends carrying a full line of fresh smoked, pickled and cooked meats, canned goods, cheese, lard, butter, eggs, pickles, catsup, etc.

MERCHANTS ASK LEGISLATION.

A very representative deputation of members of the Retail Merchants' Association met the Provincial Secretary, the Hon. J. W. Hanna, in his office on Feb. 17th, to lay before him the legislation they desire.

They ask for assistance in securing an amendment to the criminal law of the Dominion, which they claim is unfair, and is the cause of much disturbance to the best interests of trade. They also ask for an amendment to the Pedlar's Act, to force the pedlars to pay their fair proportion of business tax, as well as to prevent transient traders from taking undue advantage of the retail stores.

They further ask an amendment to the Division Court Act, so that small debts can be collected at small cost, and with less trouble and annoyance to the retailers.

The law now on the statute books prohibiting girls being employed in stores or factories after six o'clock they ask to be amended so that they cannot be obliged to work more than a certain number of hours a day, but at any time their services are required.

The business tax to coal dealers they think is in some cases unfail. The deputation thanked the legislature for the assistance given them in defeating the co-operative bill in Ottawa, and called attention to the importance of safeguarding very fully any charters that may be given to these companies.

The deputation were assured that their requests were reasonable and should have careful consideration.

All merchants throughout the country should acquaint themselves with the legislation the retail trade is asking for, and urge upon their representatives in parliament to support them.

U. S. BISCUIT PROFITS DECLINE.

The profits of the National Biscuit Co. of the United States declined over $204,000 last year. The cause is attributed to the depression universal in the United States last year. The number of customers, on the other hand, increased over the previous year.

SUCCESS NEEDS ENERGY.

Success, it is said, is composed of one part ability and two parts energy. A grocer in order to succeed must attend to every detail of his business and he must enjoy his work. Intellectually he may occupy a favorable position, but unless that knowledge is augmented by the power to do something it will profit him nothing. The grocer who takes it into his head to do a thing and does it, who first plans his work and then works his plan, is the grocer who wins. He takes the "get-there" stroke and sticks to it. Failure itself, often leads to success. If you should lose all your possessions would you quit work or stop saving? What you would do, having the right stuff in you would be to buckle down and work harder than ever and save more rigidly than before.

WHOLESALER AND THE BROKER.

One of the first requisites of the ideal business man who is accustomed to come in contact more or less with his fellow men in the same or different lines of trade is prompt consideration of the wants and requests of others. Apropos to this might well be recalled the golden rule with which everyone should be familiar.

The attention of The Grocer has been called to the manner in which some wholesale grocers treat the brokers who call upon them to do business. The latter claim that on many occasions they are allowed to wait unreasonable periods of time before they secure a hearing. Courtesy and consideration for others are traits in a man's character that should be commended, and the business man who does not possess them has something to cultivate.

Time is valuable to the broker as well as to the wholesale grocer, and if business has to be done, promptness in attending to it should be a motto. A good plan might be to set a particular hour or two for business with the broker and he would then know the proper time to call to receive immediate consideration.

VALUE OF PEAS.

Since the days of Jules Verne all sorts of predictions and prognostications have been made regarding the future. These have largely, however, related to methods of transportation and communication, and have left the field of dietetics comparatively untouched. Lately, however, the general public has become more and more familiar with proper methods and means of nourishment.

A kind Providence has provided some of the most nourishing products in the greatest abundance, and until lately when their great value as producers of heat and energy has been discovered, many of them were thought of little value, because they were comparatively cheap. Among these, peas rank high. From a proteid standpoint they are much superior to oatmeal, being some 80 per cent. richer in this substance than the latter, with a high percentage of carbo-hydrates and a small proportion of water. In fact the pea is an ideal edible, since it possesses practically the whole of the constituents in correct proportions for the building up of animal tissue. Fashion decrees that they shall be eaten frequently during the summer, but in the winter they have to share their services with numerous other vegetable foods. This, however, is precisely the reverse of what ought to be, as they should, from a dietetic standpoint, find their greatest usefulness during the winter months on account of their sustaining and heat producing capacities.

Until comparatively recent times it was extremely difficult to preserve peas without to a great extent destroying their color and injuring their flavor, when canned without chemical preservatives. This, happily, is not the case now, as a dish of peas can be enjoyed in the middle of the winter which almost equals in flavor and color the freshly picked product. Beans are another vegetable which possesses highly nutritive value, and are being more extensively used each year as a food. Lately investigations have been carried on with forms of sea weed cast up on the coasts, which will furnish a highly nourishing food at a low cost for the entire world. From this then it is obvious that many of the best, most efficient and most highly useful foods are also commonest and cheapest. Each generation is realizing the necessity for greater supervision of food production, preparation and distribution. Adequate food laws are restricting adulteration so that we may hope to arrive before long at that Utopian state when it will be impossible for anyone to starve to death, when all, rich and poor alike, will at least be supplied with a sufficient, cheap perhaps, but sustaining food.

BUSINESS MEN AND THE COURTS.

That there is necessity for law reform that would cheapen the cost and expedite the work of legal machinery is quite obvious, but what is perhaps not so obvious is the necessity for the exercise of greater forethought and caution on the part of business men and others before they take their troubles into the law courts.

Where knotty legal questions are to be unravelled it may be necessary to have recourse to the Courts, but as a rule matters of dispute between business men could be settled not only at less cost and more expeditiously, but better by referring the same to arbitrators instead of to magistrates and judges.

A great many serious and important commercial disputes between their members are often settled by boards of trade in the large cities on both sides of the Atlantic through the machinery that is provided for the purpose. And in small places in Canada where there are not boards of trade there are always to be found business men of common sense and fairmindedness qualified to arbitrate average business disputes.

It is better to trust the average business dispute to arbitration than to run the risk of being tangled and torn in the machinery of the courts of law.

KEEP AN EYE ON THE FUTURE.

Vigilance and foresight are elements which enter materially into the success of any business. The merchant who is alert and active, always keeping his eyes and ears open, is the one who in the long run is going to distance his competitor. Call the quality shrewdness if you prefer the term, but no matter what name you bestow upon it, the exercise of watchfulness and keen insight are most important. This is seen in all lines of trade and a few examples serve to bring home the point.

The auctioneer scans the papers to learn who have sold their farms, knowing full well that a sale of effects will likely follow, and then he goes after the business of handling the sale. Being first on the spot he often secures the engagement. The furniture dealer watches the society and nuptial columns, knowing that the participants will soon go in for housekeeping; then he gets in communication with the parties with a view of selling them goods with which to furnish their home. The monument and marble dealer reads the obituary announcements and seeks to sell the surviving relatives some suitable memorial to mark the last resting place of the departed. The transfer man scrutinizes the "houses wanted" and sends the persons advertising a card that he is prepared to cater to their wants in the line of conveyance or removal of household goods. The plumbers and heating contractors peruse the building permits, knowing full well that they may secure business by getting in connection with those who are about to build. Other instances might be furnished of the line of action adopted by different merchants to learn in advance the wants and undertakings of those in their community.

A grocer can put his time to good advantage, or open the way for increased trade by attending an auction sale in the country whenever an opportunity presents itself. In the smaller towns and cities he deals largely with the farmer, and by being present at sales not only becomes better acquainted with his customers but gains a personal touch that he cannot do by always remaining behind the counter.

In various ways the time spent in the country attending gatherings at which farmers assemble in large numbers is not lost. It may be hours well invested and result in the acquisition of pointers which will yield considerable business in the grocery trade.

MAPLE SUGAR AND FRUIT CROP.

Reports from different parts of the Dominion as to the probable effect the weather of the winter up to the present will have on the maple sugar, fruit and grain crops indicate varying prospects.

In Quebec the winter has been favorable to a good flow of sap on account of the bright sunshine of the days followed by cold and frosty nights. This, the sugar men say, is splendid weather for stimulating the flow of sap and a good run may be expected so far as can be seen at present.

The season has not been a particularly good one for fruits. The lack of snow for so long a time left the earth without its usual winter blanket and damage to strawberry plants are anticipated. Warm days followed by cold nights are not conducive in aiding the progress of the buds on the fruit trees. However it is not considered that much damage has been done to them so far. The future weather will tell.

Last autumn, on account of the dry weather, fall wheat seeding was somewhat delayed and it is therefore not far enough advanced to have been much injured by the varying thaws and frosts.

PASTEURIZATION.

There is always a danger of overdoing a good thing. No one who is well informed, doubts for a minute the efficacy of pasteurization of butter, but at the same time, there is a grave danger, of the process being carried to excess. The chief function of this process, is to eliminate certain forms of microbic life, which impairs the keeping qualities of the butter and to destroy nocuous microorganism. This latter aspect of its function, however, is really not as significant as the former, because butter prepared under normal conditions, does not include in its composition harmful bacteria, to any great extent. The happy solution of the difficulties, seems to have been reached at the Dominion Experimental Station at St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, where the milk is not submitted to the maximum temperature, but rather is maintained at a point half way between the minimum and maximum points. In this way the cooked flavor of butter, which is present in the Danish product, is eliminated, and all the natural aroma, flavor and taste is retained, and the preservative qualities largely increased.

It is a well known fact, that water which has been boiled is insipid, and disagreeable to the taste, due to the fact, that not only the nocuous, but the innocuous organisms are destroyed, and in this way, to use a common expression, the "life" of the water is destroyed. In food products such for instance as butter, cream or milk, a cooked flavor is the result of too great a sterilization. Therefore then, the ultimate degree should not be employed, only where the specific organisms of diseases are suspected, such as for instance those which are most frequently encountered, as the bacteria of typhoid or the bacilli of tuberculosis. As far as the keeping qualities of butter being improved by pasteurization, are concerned, this can be accomplished by relinquishing the process, before it reaches too great a degree, and the result for practically all purposes, will be adequate.

Nowadays there is a deep rooted impression, that anything known as bacteria or bacilli is the avowed enemy of mankind, and therefore relentless warfare is waged upon them, with the result that the innocent perish as well as the others. Many of the large breweries of the world employ a large staff of bacteriologists, who make a study of bacterial life, and their effect upon the flavor of the products. In this way, the product is improved from a hygienic, as well as an epicurean standpoint.

At the present moment, only about 5 per cent. of the butter, which we produce, is shipped abroad, the remainder going into home consumption. It is essential, however, to pave the way, for a larger export business, to manufacture Canadian butter in the most modern way, and undoubtedly one of the greatest steps in its scientific production, is marked by the introduction of the pasteurization process. If it is necessary to pasteurize our butter, which is shipped to Europe, because it comes in competition with pasteurized butter of other countries, then therefore it is just as necessary, that the butter for home use should be pasteurized for our own people.

THE TRAVELER A NECESSITY.

Mail order papers are continually throwing out slurs, aimed at traveling men. One of them recently stated "he is an expensive, useless luxury maintained at an enormous expense, merely to assist and encourage sluggish, ignorant storekeepers."

The traveling men of to-day are men of character and usefulness. They are the advance agents for improvements and new goods. They are educators whose views and conclusions are practical and based upon experience. Most of them are married and loyal to their families. They save their money and sooner or later usually embark in business. They are an economic necessity. If we had no traveling men, the dealer would have to go frequently to market; there would be the time and neglect of his business, as well as the expense of a long trip to account for.

The traveling salesman comes from the nearest town, the order is made up in the store where stock can be referred to and the advice of clerks obtained. If one merchant is making a great success of a certain line or method in another town, the traveling man knows it and speeds the information. If there is a failure or a fraud, he warns his customer who in turn can protect the public.

But why defend the traveling man, when all intelligent people to-day recognize his worth and influence. "Here's to his unbounded success. May he live long and prosper."

Winter Carnival in Montreal Increases Trade — Marmalade and Jam Factory Burned—New Cold Storage Plant for Nova Scotia—Increase of Fish Shipments.

HALIFAX.

Feb. 16.—The announcement this week that the Department of Trade and Commerce had renewed the arrangement with the Express Companies to pay one-third of the cost of transportation of fish from the Maritime Provinces to the markets of Central Canada, was well received here. Since this arrangement has come into force there has been a notable increase in the shipments of fish from these parts, particularly from the Cape Breton districts. Shipments valued at thousands of dollars are made weekly from Nova Scotia to the American market. In lobsters alone, it is estimated that the shipments last year to the American market, totalled a half million dollars. It is a well-known fact that large quantities of fish taken from the waters along the Nova Scotia coast and sent to the American markets, find their way back into Canada again. With the fish taken fresh from the waters and shipped direct to the centres of Canada, the consumer would get a much more palatable article of food.

With a capital of half a million dollars a company composed of Halifax business men has been formed to erect a modern cold storage plant in this city. The proposed plant will be the equal of any on this continent. Plans have already been prepared, the site has been bonded, and it is expected that the work of construction will be started early in the spring. All the latest improvements will be installed, and it is the intention to make the plant one of the best in the Dominion. The plant is being erected with the idea of catering to the apple shippers, and for the storage of apples alone there will be a capacity of one million and a half cubic feet. The apple shippers of the Annapolis Valley have long felt the want of such a warehouse for the storage of their fruit. The exports of apples from Nova Scotia have grown enormously in recent years. In 1886 the shipments were only 20,000 barrels, while this season the exports will be over 600,000 barrels, and it is expected that before many years, the shipments from the valley will total a million barrels. All perishable products with the exception of fish will be stored in the plant. There is already a large cold storage warehouse here for fish. The new company will be known as the Acadia Cold Storage Company, and the proposed building will cost in the vicinity of $300,000. The site which has been bonded is an excellent one, being on the waterfront, and close to the terminus where all the large ocean steamers berth. The want of such a plant has been long felt here, and the announcement now made has been well received by local business men.

There is a heavy demand for Nova Scotia apples from all quarters and prices rule high. In addition to more apples going to Quebec this season than ever before, an almost entirely new market has been opened in Scotland. The shortness of the supply in other places has caused a big jump in prices of late. The last three shipments of Nova Scotia apples to the Old Country have averaged $3.50 per barrel. One lot of four thousand barrels sold for $4.00 per barrel f.o.b. at Bridgetown, N.S. The jobbers are reported to have cleared from $1.00 to $2.00 on every barrel that they bought at the opening of the season. The firm of Elliot and Miller of Paridise, N.S., have thus far handled over sixty thousand barrels of apples this season. Some of the Nova Scotia speculators who, in order to cover their losses last year, when the market was a little slack, asked their former clients to give them a rebate, are now doubtless ready to return the favor. Early this week three steamers sailing from Halifax for Liverpool took away 25,000 barrels. There is a general complaint among the local grocers regarding apples. They are unable to purchase any first-class stock, even though they offer prices in advance of those paid for the fruit on the other side of the Atlantic.

VALUE OF SUBSCRIPTION.

"I read the Canadian Grocer last week for the first time. and I take this opportunity to thank your persistent representative, to whom after a great deal of persuasion, I gave my subscription. When it came I started to read, and I found it so interesting from page to page, that I read everything in it, and am pleased to say that I appreciate it, and feel that I have already the full value of my subscription." This is what one subscriber says about the CANADIAN GROCER.

The past season was not a very successful one for the Louisburg Fishing Company. The report presented at the annual meeting this week showed that total expenditure for the year to be $8,955.28, and the total receipts $8,983.34. A dull market, the low prices for fish, and a shortage in the catch were attributed by President Murphy, for the poor showing. The old board of Directors was re-elected.

Some improvements was noted this week in the receipts of butter, a most unexpected condition. This butter was held back for higher prices, but as there is no prospect of any advance those holding stocks are now marketing them.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Feb. 16.—There was very little in the local markets last week. In the produce line butter has declined in price, tub butter being quoted at 22c to 24c a pound, while choice rolls are quoted at 22c to 26c. On the other hand, eggs are firmer, although there is no change in price at present. One reason given for the drop in price of butter is the importation of a large quantity of Upper Canadian butter, which was brought here for 21c a pound.

The position of Manitoba flour remains the same, but dealers expect an advance in price at any time. Winter wheat has reached a very high figure on the Montreal Exchange, and reports are to the effect that it is likely to go still higher.

Letters patent have been granted to the Port Elgin Trading Co,. of Albert County, with a capitalization of $20,000; the St. John Forwarding Co., of St. John, with $2,000 capitalization, and Dearborn Co., of St. John, with $75,000 capital stock.

An assignment has been made to Sheriff Tompkins, of Carleton County, by Aubrey B. Lyons, of St. John. He was doing business as the Lyons Syndicate, in Woodstock and Hartland.

R. M. Fulton, of Sydney, C.B., who formerly carried on a business in Sackville, N.B., recently sold out his grocery to H. Harrington, also of Sackville.

J. D. Palmer, who for ten or twelve years has been traveler for the G. E. Barbour Co., of this city, chiefly through New Brunswick, has resigned his position and in a week or so will establish himself in the wholesale grocery business in Fredericton. Mr. Palmer has been a very progressive salesman and should make a success of his new venture.

An event of much interest to people here took place in Dorchester, Mass., on Saturday last, when Frank White, manager of the Frank White Catering Company, was married to Miss Janet Lingley, also of this city. After a wedding trip to various American cities, Mr. and Mrs. White will return to this city, where they will reside.

Thomas McClelland, who for forty years was connected with the firm of Jardine & Company, who conducted a grocery business here some years ago, died on February 8. He was 87 years of age, and is survived by one son, David McClelland, clerk for John Sealy, wholesale fish dealer, on South Wharf.

Fifty steamers which have made returns to the customs house up to February 13, took away goods to Great Britain valued at $10,417,553, of which $7,547,501 was Canadian goods, and $2,870,052 foreign products. Included in the cargoes were 3,294,090 bushels of grain, 174,896 sacks of flour, 37,128 boxes of cheese, and 13,149 cattle.

MONTREAL.

Feb. 16. — George Graham, who carried on a large grocery business in Montreal for more than a quarter of a century, died February 11. Mr. Graham, who was born at St. Michel, 82 years ago, took up farming at Henrysburg, but for over forty years he was engaged in the grocery trade in this city, his store being situated on Notre Dame Street, where he carried on a flourishing business. Next he moved to St. James Street, and then to Victoria Square, where he carried on business for twenty-six years. He saw the advantages which the residential uptown district afforded in the nineties, and he then established the business at the corner of Drummond and St. Catherine Streets, which his eldest son, Alexander, has managed for twelve years. The late Mr. Graham is survived by two sons, Alexander and William, and three daughters.

The merchants residing in the uptown districts report increased trade, due to the carnival. This, however, is due to the increase in the number of people being entertained in the homes and various hotels rather than sales directly to the visitors themselves. Tourists are not in the habit of buying groceries to take home with them as souvenirs. But their presence in the city is, nevertheless, an indirect advantage to the city in the increased supplies required all around.

J. Richer, late manager of W. A. Scroggie's grocery department, has opened a store on DeLorimer Avenue.

A delegation from the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, having at its head the president, J. A. Dore, submitted a request to the Provincial Premier, Sir Lomer Gouin, regarding the question of licenses. At present the license under the new law is fixed at $450 for the maximum and $300 for the minimum price. The delegation asked that the licenses be fixed at $275 to $425. The Premier promised to take the matter into consideration.

Horace Boisseau, one of the best known French Canadians in the city, died last Friday. Mr. Boisseau was downtown the day before, feeling as well as ever. He was 53 years of age. For many years he represented several French houses in grocery specialties, and only recently retired from active business.

D. M. Macpherson, of Glengarry, recently appointed by the Department of Agriculture to watch for frauds practiced in connection with the marketing of butter and cheese, brought action against the Montreal Dairy Company. This is one of the first cases taken in Montreal under the new act. The charge was, taking dairy butter and blocking it, putting it in creamery butter wrappers, and selling it as creamery. The company pleaded guilty and were fined $10 and costs. It is the intention of the department to push all cases of fraud to their ultimate limit.

Window displays in the uptown districts have, in a large number of cases, a carnival aspect.

A grocer who lives in the outskirts of the city, where his customers can go in for a certain amount of intensive farming, has kept well in touch with his people. A window full of poultry food has assisted sales considerably and proved a good drawing attraction. This mixture is prepared by the grocer himself and provides a first class profit.

From time to time the Grocer has urged simple treatment of windows as most effective. A local grocer was discussing this point a few days ago with a representative of this paper, and told of a window which had much impressed him, seen in Lowell, Mass. He stated that the entire window had been cleaned out and filled with fine washed potatoes, which certainly looked alright. On the very top was a well painted sign, "Murphies." Along the lower edge of the pile there were several cards, bearing on each a separate method of doing potatoes. The various ways in which the good old product can be prepared were fully set forth, and inside the store the grocer had all these various ways neatly printed, and with each half peck sold he gave one of these sets of recipes.

A fire, the origin of which is unknown, occurred early on Wednesday morning of last week, destroying J. W. Windsor's marmalade and jam factory, Visitation Street. The approximate loss is $20,000. The firm will secure temporary quarters and will rebuild a larger and more modern factory, and business will not be seriously interrupted.

The following grocers' buyers were in town this week: L. H. Beaulieu, of Cote, Bowin & Co., Chicoutimi, Que.; D. Hebert, Drummondville, Que.; W. Pierre, Sorel, Que.; H. Tourangeau, Varennes, Que.; T. Barbeau, Laprairie, Que.; J. B. Lanier, Lachine, Que.; J. Morand, St. Bartholemy, Que.; G. Lalonde, Papineauville, Que.; J. Lanctot, St. Isidore, Que.; J. A. Chevrier, Rigaud, Que.; Miss Eugenie Lanciault, St. Jacques le Minem, Que.; James Desasmath, Truro. N.S.; J. Dumaini, Shawinigan, Que.; T. Huet, St. Julie Vercheres, Que.

A very neat postal card has been issued by the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co., Montreal, on which are illustrated Crystal Diamond Sugar and their 20-lb. cotton bag of granulated sugar. The card shows the two on a table with a tea set, and the printing is done in natural colors.

There has been quite a demand for Montreal cabbages from the West. One car load sold at $22 per ton f.o.b. track Montreal, but the seller refused this figure on a further offer of 8 to 10 car loads.

Emil Chaput, assistant to L. E. Geoffrion, manager and chief buyer, has been admitted into partnership by L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, wholesale grocers, Montreal.

In an attractive booth, centrally located at the pure food fair held by Carsleys in Montreal, Canada First Brand Evaporated Cream and Canada First Brand Condensed Milk were demonstrated. These products of the Aylmer Condensed Milk Company are rapidly coming to the fore, through the progressive methods of the firm, and the lines attracted much attention at Carsleys. No less than three firms demonstrated Canada First Brand Evaporated Cream in conjunction with their goods, these being Chase & Sanborn, coffees, and the Dominion Chocolate & Cocoa Co., and Fry's cocoas. J. A. Gordon & Co. are Montreal agents.

T. Kusanobu, of S. T. Nishimura & Co., is visiting Kingston and other Ontario towns this week.

J. Chartrand & Cie, grocers, Montreal, have dissolved.

H. Drouin, grocer, Montreal, is succeeded in business by Alfred Rochon.

Geo. Graham, grocery and liquor merchant, Montreal, is dead.

J. N. T. Laberge, grocer, Montreal, is offering to compromise.

Death of J. C. Woods—Kingston Grocers Keep Fancy Fowl—Toronto Grocers Want Provincial Association—Ingersoll Board of Trade Annual Meeting—Advance of Corner Grocery Stores in Peterboro.

KINGSTON.

Feb. 17. — Investigations seem to be the order of the day all over our fair Dominion and perhaps when all is over a circle will be formed by accused and accusers and each pointing a finger at the other fellow with one voice they will say, "It was you." Grafts and tips seem to have been all the go. Jim the grocer once took a trip to California and was innocent about tipping the colored porters who played tunes on his back with whisks and run out for milk, etc., at the stopping places. Jim soon learned the reason. His trunk was thrown off at Toronto and bounced all over. Jim put his hand in his pocket after that, and smiles, showing ivory teeth, followed and black hands were always willing when tipped by a shilling or more—25c and you are called sergeant, 50c captain and $1 colonel. And so it is in all our affairs of state.

James Crawford's tender got the yearly contract for the Home for the Aged. This home has for superintendent Wm. McDougall, who came out from Scotland many years ago. He was in the grocery business all his life, and makes an A1 manager. He and his good wife are kind to the aged.

Kingston is undergoing a series of troubles. Like Montreal, everything is coated with ice. Trees, wires, etc., are in danger of breaking.

The sheets issued by some of the institutions here asking prices, in some minds were just bluffs to make the departments feel they were trying to save money for the government treasury, and should an investigation occur these sheets might help them cover up their sins and short comings.

Many of our grocers here took prizes at the poultry show for fancy fowl. It is quite a hobby now to keep good fowl for pleasure and profit. We get tired of the eternal and everlasting counter work and serving the public. Every one, even the newspaper man, likes to get out of the rut and run into the woods for a change.

Geo. Morrison, manager of the grocery department of Hudson Bay store at Portage la Prairie, and at one time one of Kingston's most efficient clerks, intends going on a claim near Moose Jaw. He is a South African veteran and can tell some good stories about dodging Boer bullets. George has a grant of land in New Ontario, in a good location. We are all glad to hear of his success in the West.

Chas. Saunders, after giving the cash system a year's trial, has declared it to have been the best and most satisfactory year since he started. Charlie saw this years ago, but doing a credit business, he was loath to change, as we all are, but he did it and does not regret the move.

It has always been a question for debate whether it is wise or not for a wholesaler or retailer to quote prices in local papers or trade journals. On the one hand you perhaps get orders quicker when prices low enough are quoted but you are telling your competitors what you are doing. Some send a type written list to good grocers and many think this is a good plan. A large firm who have a permanent advertisement in the Grocer sent me a list and they got an order.

PETERBORO.

Feb. 17.—"Have you ever sat down, and reviewed the change of the grocer in relation to his customers during the past twenty years," asks a business man—not a grocer. "Formerly the down town merchant sold many families everything in the grocery line, and supplied them with all the edibles required. All that is altered now. The family grocer gets us the staples, another supplies the tea, another the vegetables, another the fruit, another the flour. The corner store has become patronized too, for many of the housekeeper's needs, especially those living farther out in the residential districts. These smaller stores are increasing in number and size all over the suburbs of the city. In many cases they are doing a good trade, because with smaller expenses, the same prices are maintained as those of the leading main-street dealers. This is another of the many changes that have been slowly but surely taking place."

Eighteen hundred pounds of tea the property of the Daly Tea Co., Napanee, were destroyed in a fire early Friday morning in the White House sheds. An insurance will likely cover this entire loss.

The manufacturers of Spearmint and Fruitlets chewing gum have moved into larger quarters and are turning out large quantities of their product.

E. F. Mason has purchased the stock of groceries carried recently by Wesley Bros. who assigned to Jas. Edgar.

Local millers are paying one dollar for wheat much to the delight of the farmers.

Quite a number of the cheese factories on Peterboro's Board have held meetings arranging for the years' work. Many have added new equipment and facilities.

TORONTO.

Feb. 17.—Grocers in Toronto who are not at the present time members of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association are missing profitable information. The Association is becoming stronger every month and at the present rate of advance should at the end of the year become an important factor in the trade.

The regular meeting was held on Monday night, Feb. 15, in their hall, Temple building. The members are very much interested in a new scheme which promises to attract the attention of its grocery trade all over the province of Ontario. That is the formation of a provincial association including as its members, men in the trade who are anxious to bring about unity in effort and thus advance the interests of the retail grocers of Ontario.

Discussion on this project was of long duration at the meeting and the feature of it was that there was not one dissenting voice. The members present voiced themselves as being in favor of the proposition and have placed on record a motion to the effect that they are willing to co-operate in carrying it to a successful issue.

Among the advantages pointed out was the effect of united effort, such as a provincial association would provide, on the governments at Toronto and Ottawa. The movement, it appears, will be followed up and it will be no surprise to find a well-working Ontario Retail Grocers' Association in a year from now.

The Toronto Association are much interested in bowling and have arranged for games with the College Street druggists and fruitmen.

The Secretary of the Retail Merchants Association reports that an elderly couple called on him, who had saved $80.00 of their hard earnings, and who claim that they were approached by one of the canvassing agents of the Dominion Co-operative Association who represented to them the advantages of investing their money in this concern, and they understood that they could draw out the whole or any part of it, with interest at 6 per cent. at any time they wished to do so. The representations, they said, seemed so plausible that they handed over the money. Since then they had occasion to require some of it, but were unable to get it back. Instead, however, they were handed certificates for stock in the company. They are now seeking advice, how to proceed in the matter, and to find out where they are at.

Some of the grocers in the city are so blind to the value of advertising, that they give the advertising space in their windows entirely to some wholesaler, without even having a sign containing their own names.

There are some grocers who know so little about the business that they keep their coal oil tank within three feet from the butter.

Bouskill Bros., Queen St. West, have a new idea of showing their goods. Instead of having boxes of the different articles opened and exposed to the dust of the store, they have samples neatly put on china plates and arranged artistically in a show case with neat little cards showing the prices. This shows the quality of the goods, the prices, and the goods kept in stock are seen at a glance.

Some merchants complain that bakers are selling bread to consumers, at the same price as they do to stores.

HAMILTON.

Feb. 17.—Commodity prices are high, poultry, butter and eggs still keeping up around the top figures. Everybody in the trade have looked for a slump, but this cold snap seems to have made the market firm. Cold storage and pickled eggs are just about done, and the bakers and confectioners are obliged to use fresh eggs. This extra demand has made the price hold firm to the farmer. Creamery butter is easier, the best firms offering at 27c. There is lots of dairy coming in, but it does not break 25c. a pound.

Trade continues good in groceries. Canned goods are moving freely. The wholesalers express themselves as delighted with the situation. One manager says their business this year is far in excess of last year and that their outside travelers never handled so much business before; so that it looks as if 1909 would be a banner year for grocery trade here. All the jobbers have from one to three travelers doing the city and to judge from the style of the men and their turnouts, the salary list must loom up pretty well in the expense account.

The Grocers Association are extending an invitation to all grocers to attend the next meeting, whether they are members or not, for the purpose of listening to an address from H. C. Beckett, President of the Dominion Grocers' Guild. This will be one of the events of the season for the trade. As Mr. Beckett is one of the best platform speakers in the country, eloquent and forceful, and there is no doubt that every grocer attending will learn something to his advantage.

Great regret is felt here at the closing of Bennett's mill. The bank has possession and stock is being taken. It is hoped that they will be able to show a surplus and continue in business, as they were very popular with the trade, and were considered level headed business men.

It is reported that E. Skedden, late proprietor of the Skedden Brush Co., is going on the stage.

The McCaskey Register Co., Alliance, Ohio, have opened up a branch factory in Hamilton. This company's account register and system of sales, etc., have secured strong endorsation at the hands of United States grocers and merchants and their invasion of the Canadian field indicates that they purpose pushing their system here.

BRANTFORD.

Feb. 17.—The Brantford Grocers' and Butchers' Association held their eighth annual banquet on Feb. 16, and the harmony and good feeling which have characterized former occasions of this kind were not lacking. A number of Hamilton grocers and salesmen were present, showing that the bond of friendship which has existed for the past eight or nine years between the Brantford and Hamilton grocers was not broken. After partaking of a hearty repast all present enjoyed the following programme :—President's address, Arthur Coulbeck; Address, Mayor W. B. Wood ; ; Greetings from Hamilton, Ald. John Forth, President Hamilton Association ; Address by Senator Hill of Hamilton, "Greater Canada" ; Address, Frank Foster, representing wholesale grocers, "Greater Brantford" ; Song, "The Shamrock," by Mr. Friend; Comic Song, Clifford Todd ; Address, Geo. Cairn, Vice-President Hamilton Association; C. H. Peebles, Hamilton; J. T. Price, Hamilton; Mr. Connawarf, Hamilton; Comic Recitation, Harry Gowman.

After singing the "Maple Leaf" and with the usual amount of cheering the Hamilton party were escorted to the radial station where they took the 11.30 o'clock car for their city.

Those present from Hamilton were, Thos Stevenson, D. C. Allen, R. B. Hill, J. L. Price, E. L. Connawarf, John Forth, M. W. Roland, P. H. Gage, E. Mosgrove, S. Hilton, C. H. Peebles, John Lampman, B. Chrysler, J. M. Semmens, A. Louis, Geo. Cann, E. Springstead, H. P. Boyd, Jas. Main.

We have heard much in the city press in the past few weeks about "Booming Brantford," and, judging from the speeches at the banquet the grocers are particularly interested in this. Brantford on account of its great big shops and factories is essentially a city of workingmen who are in the enjoyment of good wages and a high order of comfort, and the grocers seem to appreciate the fact that this year's council is thinking seriously of going at it in a systematic way. An industrial campaign is sure to be started and it has been stated that the city council may set aside $1,500 this year for that purpose.

The market last Saturday was very good, the inside being well filled. Prices remain unchanged, although eggs are more plentiful. Butter 28c. to 30c. a lb., eggs 30c. a doz.

CHATHAM.

Feb. 17.—Throughout the grocery trade just now, the tone is quite optimistic. December was a good month, and ahead of December of 1907. January this year was in some cases as good as last January, and in many cases better; and February thus far gives good promise of beating last February. Last Saturday was on all sides pronounced a splendid day, though earlier in the week business was quiet. Steady cold weather and good, hard roads, will mean a lot. Grocers are looking forward to a good summer.

Shockingly sudden was the death of Orville I. Dolsen, who has for some years past conducted a business on St. Clair Street, and who dropped dead while crossing Aberdeen bridge last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Dolsen was in his 69th year, and a native of Chatham, being a prominent member of the I.O.O.F. and A.O.U.W. Mr. Dolsen, formerly conducted a flour and feed business, but for the past ten years has been engaged in the grocery business He leaves a wife, but no children.

There was a good market on Saturday. Potatoes went down from $1 to 90c a bag, and eggs from 28c a dozen to 25c. Live hogs sold for $6.75, and dressed for $8.75—a slight decline. Wheat, on the contrary, soared to the dollar mark.

The almost steady cold weather of the last couple of weeks has boomed the fish business. Smith & Jermyn, fish dealers, brought in three-quarters of a ton on Saturday, while many of the grocers, especially Wm. Anderson and Geo. A. Young, have been featuring fish of all kinds. Mr. Anderson has a special fish refrigerator, the lower portion filled with ice, while the fish, in the upper portion, are separated from the ice by a wooden lattice work. Above the fish is a good sized pane of glass. The galvanized top slants like an old-fashioned desk, giving space for a fish display. The refrigerator keeps the fish in better condition and smaller space.

D. H. Ingram, of the King Edward grocery, has accepted a position with Laffer Bros., Detroit.

C. J. Markle, of Kenny's wholesale grocery, Sarnia, called on the trade last week.

Hardy & McGaffney's grocery and general store at Thamesville had an exciting chimney blaze last week, which, fortunately, was extinguished before it had a chance to spread.

O. E. Willson, of the Dunnville Flour Mills, formerly of this city, was here last week.

Ald. John McCorvie and ex-Ald. Wm. Potter, both grocers, were in Toronto last week on business in connection with the I.O.O.F., in which both are interested.

J. F. Holden, Western representative of the Magic Baking Powder, Toronto, was in the city last week.

Ernest Russell Woodiwiss, general merchant, of Kingsville, has made an assignment to Richard Tew, of Toronto, with liabilities placed at $10,000. The assets are not known. The creditors' meeting takes place in Toronto on February 19.

Robert McWha died in Dresden last week, aged 81. In 1854 he started probably the first bakery in Dresden, carrying on the business for many years.

Ray King, formerly Western representative of the Chatham Fruit Growers' Association, has left for Moose Jaw, where he will represent a Western fruit concern.

Fred. S. Archer, of Walkerville, has sold his grocery business, and will leave shortly to locate near Hardisty, Alta.

ST. THOMAS.

Feb. 17. — Both markets were more largely attended Saturday and were better than for some time. Although the grocers were debarred the privilege of buying before ten o'clock by the by-law passed by a majority of the city council, prices were fully maintained and the expected result, that produce, etc., would be cheaper, did not materialize. Butter was in light supply and 27 to 28c per lb. was readily paid. Fresh laid eggs, owing to the mild weather, were very plentiful, but did not sell below 28c doz. Potatoes were eighty cents per bag; apples are very scarce, of an inferior quality and sell at $1.50 per bag; turnips are 40c per bag; cabbage sell from 10 to 15c per head. Other vegetables were in good supply at the usual prices.

It seems regrettable that the two aldermen who were instrumental in having the by-law amended prohibiting the grocers from going on the markets to buy before ten o'clock are both merchants.

On Wednesday night last the grocery store of C. J. Norsworthy was entered by burglars and a quantity of provisions taken, consisting of 10 lbs. butter, some cooked ham, 6 tins of sardines, and other articles. Entrance was gained by the cellar window on Wellington Street and the marauders left by the back door, leaving it partly open. As usual, the police have no clue as to the identity of the burglars.

Adcock's mill, recently in the possession of the Dominion Bank, has been sold by them to the John Campbell Milling Co., and business will be conducted as heretofore.

At a meeting of the grocers, held on Thursday of last week, the question of the price of a particular kind of creamery butter was up for discussion and it was found that nearly all were retailing at different prices, ranging from 29 to 32c per lb. Yet the public have an idea that there is a combine. The formation of a grocers' section of the R.M.A. was delayed until their next meeting, when the election of officers will take place.

LONDON.

Feb. 17.—The meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association on Tuesday night last was one of the largest and most enthusiastic held in a long time. Five new members were admitted, three of them doing business in West London and two in South London, and all having recently engaged in the grocery trade. The question of price-cutting was taken up. One blamed his action on some other grocer, while another offered a similar excuse. The result was that promises were made to correct matters. A strong committee was named to wait on the City Council to ask that the license fee charged peddlers be increased from $30 to $50 or $60 a year. The object is to put a stop to peddling from door to door from which legitimate trade suffers seriously.

Travelers report business in the London district fair the past week, with collections good. The feature of the wholesale trade during the week was the drop of ten cents in refined sugar, due to the fact that raw is lower and slow of sale. Teas are very firm and coffees are advancing. All the other staples are unchanged. Canned goods seem to be still hanging on canners' and wholesalers' hands.

The handsome trophy presented to the London grocers by the Lea Pickling Company for competition in baseball—North vs. South—is on view in Ryan & Russell's store, Richmond Street. It is a beautiful silver cup, mounted on an

PURE SPICES

Recent Government analyses of spices being sold to grocers reveal some startling facts. Eggs took a drop on the local market on Saturday, strictly fresh selling at 25c per dozen.

John M. Dillon, of the wholesale grocery firm of A. M. Smith & Co., has left on a pleasure trip to the West Indies. He will be absent about six weeks.

The annual at home of the employes of the D. S. Perrin & Co., Limited, on Friday evening last was in every way enjoyable. The affair took the form of a "hop," lasting from 9 till 12, and was held in the Palace Dancing Academy, Dayton's orchestra furnishing the music. The guests numbered about 150. Thos. W. McFarland was chairman of the committee, having the affair in charge, and Wm. Evans, secretary.

J. C. Woods, founder of the line of stores in Ontario cities known as Woods' Fair, died at his residence in this city during the week as the result of an accident about three weeks ago, he having fallen down stairs and sustained injuries to his spine which affected the brain. He was 63 years of age, a native of New York State, and an ex-alderman of Hamilton, Ont. Some time ago he sold all of his stores, except those at Kingston and Guelph, which he controlled at the time of his death.

West London grocers report business particularly good, being 50 per cent. better from every point of view than last year. "Both sales and collections are away ahead of last year," said one grocer. "Our business is keeping up to the summer standard."

Owing to the advance in the price of wheat, which recently touched the dollar mark, local millers have put up the price of flour ten cents per cwt. This will not affect the bakers, as their flour is purchased by contract, and any fluctuation in the price of wheat is not felt by them. The advance will fall on grocers and housekeepers. "Unless deliveries increase and the farmers let up a little," said the manager of a local milling concern Saturday, "there will be a further advance in flour, as it takes two and a half bushels of wheat to make a hundred pounds of flour, and flour has only advanced ten cents per cwt., while wheat has gone up eight to ten cents per bushel." Local millers' supplies are being rapidly exhausted, and another advance is expected at any time.

INGERSOLL.

Feb. 17.—The annual meeting of the Ingersoll Board of Trade was held a few nights ago, a fact which suggests the important part that every enterprising citizen can play in the development of a town or city. It is a regrettable fact that not only in Ingersoll, but elsewhere, there are merchants who do not appear to realize the importance and necessity of their being identified with the Board of Trade. It is certainly displeasing to a merchant to learn that citizens of his own town are doing their trading at a distance, and that instead of buying from him or a home merchant in some other line they are spending their money elsewhere. This being true, should not every merchant who looks to his own town for support, take off his coat, figuratively speaking, and put his shoulder to the wheel of progress? There is an old saying, "don't knock; boost." The merchant who does not take an active part in work calculated to advance the affairs of his own town is indirectly neglecting his own business for the greater advancement made by the town, the greater will be his volume of business. There are many ways in which grocers and other merchants in general can assist in this work. They should always talk up the town in which they live and identify themselves with all movements that are deserving of their support, for it is a well known fact that the people like to go to the busiest and most talked of places and an increase in population spells more business for the merchants.

STRATFORD.

Feb. 17.—Owing to the favorable weather and fairly good roads a large number gathered on the market on Saturday. Everything was very firm in price. Butter still remains at 25c, and is in good demand. The egg market has taken a drop to 27c. They seem to be quite plentiful, and in all probability the price will be lower next week. Apples are very scarce and the price advanced to $1.40 and $1.60 per bag. The grain market remains much the same as last week.

W. J. Norfolk, of Ingersoll, is spending a few days at his home in the city.

Thursday next will be a great day for Stratford, when General Manager Hays, with a large staff of the highest officials on the road, will formally open the new G.T.R. shops here. The shops are to be open for public inspection between the hours of 3 and 6 p.m., and a movement is on foot to close the stores, if not for the whole afternoon at least during those hours, that all may have an opportunity to see the marvellously interesting processes at work. In the evening the civic corporation is tendering a banquet to Mr. Hays and staff, and the citizens are manifesting a keen interest in it. Our long and friendly relations with the Grand Trunk Railway, and the presence among us not only of the great locomotive shops, which are the pride of our city, but of a large number of operating and other employes, produce an identity of interest between city and railway which is cordially acknowledged by both. In viewing the new shops and the new station to be erected this year, the banquet is a proper compliment to Mr. Hays and staff, and that they are accepting it in the spirit in which it is offered is shown by the virtual transfer for the day of the head offices to Stratford.

The North Perth Farmers' Institute held meetings in the city hall Saturday afternoon and evening. Instructive addresses were given by the chairman and others. The addresses by the delegates were much admired by all, and no doubt many who came there to hear the lectures given went away with a better knowledge of farming than ever they had before. New methods were introduced by the speakers and methods that were well worth heeding, and no doubt from this meeting much benefit was received.

British Columbia Fruit and Produce Exchange Reorganizes—Expected Increase in Ham and Bacon—Western Grain Movement.

EDMONTON.

Feb.16.—Trade in Edmonton is beginning to revive owing to the milder weather of the last two weeks thus enabling the farmers to get into town with their produce and considerable trading was done. During the severe cold snap of the previous month business was almost at a standstill. Very little produce came into town and fresh eggs were almost unattainable. What few there were were sold at from fifty to sixty cents. Potatoes have been selling from seventy-five cents to a dollar a bushel. Since the milder weather has been with us fresh laid eggs have been coming in a little more plentiful and prices quoted are forty and forty-five cents. Cased eggs shipped in from down east are quoted at thirty-five cents.

The local wholesale houses report business very good as the big fur traders from the north are in town refitting for next season's operations. Their business is a big item running well into the thousands.

Some of the big G.T.P. contractors are in town getting ready for their work when spring opens, to the west of us on the sections unfinished between here and the mountains. They intend taking large quantities of supplies to last them through the summer as the nearest outfits will not be less than one hundred miles away from here. After the snow and ice leaves it would be practically an impossibility to get freight supplies out to their camps over the almost impassable sloughs and trails.

CALGARY.

Feb. 12.—The western grain movement is by far the principal topic here at present. During last week a convention was held in Calgary to discuss ways and means of furthering the interests of the grain business with a view to shipping westwards instead of eastward, as has formerly been the case. Premier Rutherford presided, and there were present representatives from Vancouver, New Westminster, Victoria and all points throughout Alberta, including a large and influential body of Calgary's foremost business men. The convention created great interest, and all the discussions were of a practical and friendly nature, each speaker being fully alive to the advantages to be gained by shipping the export grain from Alberta and Western Saskatchewan via the Pacific coast. At the present time Vancouver is without elevator accommodation, without which it is not possible to expeditiously handle and load grain into vessels in large quantities. It is expected, however, that the erection of at least one elevator will be undertaken this year, as those most interested hope to be ready to handle this season's crop. The stimulus that will be given to the grain-producing and shipping industries will be immense, as the rail haul to Vancouver from Alberta and Western Saskatchewan is less than half the distance that it is to Fort William. The C.P.R. have already given a rate that lands the grain at Liverpool, via the coast, equal to the present rate via Fort William, and it is confidently expected that in the near future a still lower rate will obtain via Vancouver and the Pacific. This advantage in rate should prove of direct benefit to the producer, all of which will tend to place these western grain growing areas in the most favorable position. It has now been fully demonstrated that the fall wheat lands of Alberta are capable of growing larger crops of superior quality than any other lands in the world; a somewhat broad statement, but nevertheless, results have proven such to be the case. The American farmer, quick to realize a good thing, is eagerly buying up these famous wheat lands and is bringing large areas under cultivation. The Canadian Pacific Irrigation & Colonization Co. are selling tens of thousands of acres of irrigated lands lying east of Calgary. In most cases these lands are being disposed of to actual settlers. It is expected that the spring will see a great movement of farmers from the middle and western states to central and southern Alberta.

As Calgary is the business and distributing centre for a vast territory including the great winter wheat lands, its advantageous position will be appreciated. As a wholesale and distributing centre, Calgary is to-day second only to Winnipeg and Vancouver. The city has a population of 25,000 progressive and industrious people, who are all justly proud of their home city and firm believers in the future of the Great West and Calgary particularly.

VANCOUVER.

Feb. 16.—There is an old saying that hen's teeth are scarce, and eggs are just about as scarce just now on the local market. There are practically none of that kind that are laid in this vicinity, and few from the outside. The Eastern stock has been cleared out, and some Californias are offered, but these are quoted by jobbers at 50c. Retailers are very slow in buying. As noted previously, the local supply may be augmented at any time with a breath of warm weather, and the price would be ten or fifteen cents cheaper than the California article, with the quality A1. The consequence would be that the latter would remain unsold and be a total loss. Eggs, therefore, are not in demand any more than can be helped.

Word has been passed to the retailers that there will be an increase in the prices of ham and bacon shortly, following the increased figures for dressed hogs, which are now nearly 25 per cent. dearer in the Chicago markets.

Locally, the ham and bacon situation is most interesting. The Swift people, who bought out the Griffin Company, has had almost absolute control of the market for a long time past. Their Swift premium has a call that nothing else can displace, with the result that either the manufacturers or the wholesalers are aware of it, to the detriment of the retailer, For instance, Swifts have been sold with heavy wrapping paper and heavy cord, these accessories being charged at the same rate per pound as the bacon. This is an overcharge pure and simple, and a loss to the dealer. If complaint has been made, it has passed unheeded, for if customers called for Swift Premium, that they had to have. But there is beginning to be a change in the aspect of things. The Morrell Company and the National Packing Company are getting in on the local trade, and as the sympathy is with them, everything possible is done to swing orders to their goods. From them, hams and bacon can be bought either in paper or unwrapped, and in short everything is done to secure trade. A good line of hams and bacon is put on by the B. Wilson Company, of Victoria, which is coming in for a share of the business.

The bill became law in the local legislature this week which will allow Live Stock, Dairy and Creamery Associations power to establish and supervise egg and poultry stations and to operate cold storage plants for all kinds of farm produce. This bill was introduced by W. H. Hayward, member for one of the Vancouver Island constituencies. It is not improbable that different associations in the older settled districts, or where there are agriculturists, will take advantage of it, and secure better prices for produce of various kinds.

A. S. Parkin, manager of Flavelle's wholesale produce establishment at Lindsay, Ont., is visiting his brother, W. H. Parkin, North Vancouver. He and his wife will spend a month here.

The Nanaimo Creamery Association reports a dividend of 6 per cent. The total revenue was $27,430.85, 72,713 pounds of butter having been sold. The new officers are : President, E. Quennell ; vice-president, R. Malpass ; secretary-treasurer, Jos. Randle ; directors, E. Quesnell, R. Malpass, J. Randle, J. Robson, John Thomas and Chas. Donner.

R. G. How, of Kelowna, has sold out his confectionery and refreshment business to Alf. McLellan, and has returned to Saskatchewan.

At the second annual convention of the Fruit and Produce Exchange of British Columbia, held at Revelstoke, the concern was practically reorganized, and started on a new career of usefulness in facilitating the interests of the fruit grower. One sentiment which found unanimous expression was that the future of the fruit industry in this province depended on a strict adherence to the principle of co-operation amongst the fruit growers, the transportation companies and the wholesalers interested in the business. Those who attended were: W. B. Robertson, Revelstoke ; C. E. Handcock, Enderby ; C. Ericson, Malakwa ; J. Arnot, Chilliwack ; Maxwell Smith, R. Robertson, O. H. Robertson, Vancouver ; A. J. C. Clarence, Peachland ; J. Wilson, Revelstoke ; J. Johnstone, Nelson ; H. Morrison, McPherson Fruit Company, Winnipeg. There were also present the following representatives of the Dominion Express Company; R. Helme, superintendent, Vancouver ; M. Lee, Vancouver, and E. Smith, Nelson. In addition addresses were delivered at a banquet by Mayor Lindmark, Judge Forin, Nelson ; Joseph Martin, K.C., Vancouver, and others. Among other matters appertaining to the future plans of the transportation companies, it was stated that proper facilities would be provided at different points in the Okanagan, whereby carload lots may be loaded in the cars and carried by barge to the place of transshipment,to be in operation during the coming season. It was also stated that the C.P.R. contemplated the erection of cold storage accommodations at Okanagan Landing, so that fruit may be properly cooled before being shipped. The officers elected were: President, James Johnstone, Nelson ; vice-president, A. J. C. Clarence, Peachland ; secretary-manager, L. M. Hagar, Revelstoke ; executive, J. Johnstone, A. J. C. Clarence, C. B. Hume, L. M. Hagar, H. E. R. Smythe, W. B. Robertson, the last three of Revelstoke ; directors, H. Puckle, Victoria ; P. Wilson, Chilliwack; W. T. Slavin, Kamloops, H. E. R. Smythe and C. B. Hume, Revelstoke; C. H. Cordy, Summerland; E. E. Handcock, Enderby ; J. L. Vicary, Peachland; E. W. Mutch, Penticton.

ELMVALE GROCER'S SUCCESS.

About one year ago James Hill, who had been in the baking business in Richmond Hill, where he had been successful, sold out and removed to Elmvale and opened a general store. Mr. Hill has been very successful in his new venture, securing an excellent trade among the town people and also the farmers of the surrounding country.

Last summer he erected a fine new brick store, twenty-nine feet frontage by 65 deep. This has been beautifully fitted up with counters and shelving of the latest design. A handsome silent salesman has been placed across the centre space of the store.

The shelves are filled with very select lines of dry goods and groceries suitable to the trade of the town and vicinity.

PERSONAL NOTES.

W. S. Greening, of Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., Toronto, left last Sunday for a six weeks' trip to the old country. He accompanied his sister, who is to be married in Paris within a couple of weeks.

Mr. Russell, manager of the Georgian Bay Lumber Co's store, at Waubaushene, was in Toronto on business last week.

Wm. Meen, assistant manager of Minto Bros., Toronto, is recovering from an attack of illness which he contracted while in the silver country in northern Ontario.

Martin W. Plunkett, grocer, Orillia, was in Toronto last week attending the Mendelssohn choir concerts.

Robert Williams, formerly with Swan Bros., has accepted a position with H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, as city traveler.

How Guelph Merchants Collect Bad Debts

Retail Merchants of the Royal City Have Unique Plan—They Pay An Official Collector an Annual Salary — "Dead Beats" Are Cornered—Importance of United Effort Illustrated.

By Stanley Nicholson.

It was last June that the official collector system was established in Guelph. The Retail Merchants' Association there, after a lot of work and discussion, brought out their new idea. Their object was originally to appoint a collector to act as an official of their association, and to be recognized as such. They foresaw the advantage there would be in it, even in the saving of collection fees alone, and believed, that rather than let their neighbors see a recognized collector calling periodically at their homes, many of their delinquent customers would pay up. They finally decided that it would be better to have their officer paid a salary than a commission and selected for the position, in the person of an ex-storekeeper, D. A. Scroggie. They made a bargain with him to take over the work of drumming up their bad accounts for $700 a year. This amount, with the rent of the collector's office in the heart of the city, telephone fees, stationery, and other expenses, amounting in all to about $900, they decided to raise by taxing the merchant who would reap the benefit of the scheme.

Each Merchant's Share.

A Collection Committee was appointed, consisting of the president of the association, F. Waters; the secretary, H. O. Occomore; G. B. Ryan, a dry goods man, and J. A. McCrea, a grocer. They got together and drew up a list of the eighty odd merchants who belonged to the association, assessing each man what they believed was a fair amount, or a fair share of the collector's expenses. Their assessments ranged from $5 to $15 per year, according to the size of the firms that belonged, and the amount of business done by them. When this list was drawn up it was presented at a meeting of the association, and all the merchants who were satisfied with their assessment on the list, signed their names opposite their respective amounts. Some of the merchants did not at first think a great deal of the idea, and believed there was little to be gained by it. Enough fell in line, however, to make the thing go, and in a very short time the rest saw the advantage of it and began to fall in line. The scheme is now working with such success that the life of the delinquent in the Royal City is anything but a bed of roses.

The Black List Plan.

The official collector of the association was not very long getting acquainted with the slow pay people of the city. While by no means the most welcome visitor at their homes, he was undoubtedly one of the most persistent callers they had. Rather than have him making official calls at their homes every week or so, many people who could not be persuaded by lawyer's letters or threats of suits to settle, settled with the "pesky collector," so as to be rid for ever of him. All kinds and conditions of accounts began to come in as if the merchants all possessed magic magnets and could simply pull the money out. When asked if the money had come in to such an extent as to pay the cost of the collector, President Waters very emphatically stated that in many cases the merchants in the past few months which, after all, was only a trial, had received over ten times the amount they paid annually in fees—money that they had thought it was absolutely impossible to collect. But this is by no means the strong point of the plan.

The collector at the end of the first month, in addition to a report of the collections he had made, submitted a list to each merchant of all the "dead beats" in the city. This list was a revelation. It showed not only how much money "Mr. Dead Beat" owed, but in how many different stores he had big old accounts, so old in many cases that they were getting very grey. Then, the merchants saw really where they were at. They realized then why some customers had all at once started to deal very largely in their stores in spite of the fact that they lived in opposite parts of the city. They saw through some wonderfully touching hard-luck stories that they had heard, in a manner that set them thinking, and thinking hard. They awoke and were mighty glad of it. Nor were they alone surprised. Our friend, the enemy, got a few rather rude shocks during the next few weeks also.

When one of these smiling, affable women would come into the store on which she happened to be sponging at that particular time, and with a superfluity of excuses, would ask to have the matter of five or six dollars' worth of goods added to her "little bill," the merchant would quickly look her up on the list, and, finding that she had a dozen or so more "little bills" of $20 or $30 with other merchants around town, politely but sternly refused her any more credit. The woman, of course, would assume an attitude of indignation.

"Why, the idea! One would think, sir, that I was a dishonest person who tried to get out of paying accounts. I assure you, Mr. ———, you will not be troubled selling me anything again." And she would go in her assumed "hoity-toity" mood and, perhaps, try some other store with much the same result.

It Worked Fine.

Then she would wonder how they "got wise," until in a day or so she would answer a ring at her door to meet, not a boy from the bank with a draft, or a collector from one of the stores where she owed, but the official collector of the association, not with one, but with all her local accounts. Then in a few brief, well chosen words it would all be explained to her why she could no longer work the "pay-you-next-week-bluff," or tell with such good effect her touching tale of the temporary financial stringency. The collector would explain to her the black list system and the beauty of it in dealing with forgetful people. After several calls of this sort on the part of the tactful and persistent official the simple lesson of honesty, so long neglected, is generally learned to very good advantage, backed up as it is with the stern object lesson of the "black list." She finds that the only way to get off that list is to pay her way off it, and she generally begins to pay. It is surprising how honest she gets all at once. Sometimes, when the amounts involved have been large, the families have decided to leave town, but the watchful collector keeps his eye on the moving van, and already in Guelph several parties who contemplated leaving the city have been met at the station and finally persuaded to stay a while and make a few sundry settlements. The collections alone make the scheme a paying one, but the black list feature of it is what does the merchant the most good. It warns him not to let the bad ones get any further in on the wrong side of his ledger. If there was not a single collection made the black list scheme alone would pay the merchants for the expense involved.

Wilson Freres, merchants, Montreal, have dissolved.

The store that tolerates loafers will not have to tolerate customers as much as another. You can't keep all visitors out, but there should be a sharp line drawn between loafing and visiting.

The best way that you can invest a little money to the advantage of your business is to pay it out for trade and advertising journals. In them you get other merchants' best ideas with the deadwood thrown out.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Montreal February 18, 1909.

Fruits—Declined slightly.
Vegetables—Advanced in some lines.
Furs—Fox, fisher and lynx advanced.
Butter—Easier.
Eggs—Declined slightly.
Provisions—Weaker undertone to market, owing to decline in live hogs.

Trade is reported as good for this season of the year, and orders are coming in fairly well from country points. There are obvious signs of a spirit of optimism in all quarters, and even as early as this the opening of navigation is being looked forward to as a turning point.

Few changes have taken place during the week. Shorts are scarce and a strong undertone has developed in the market. Bran continues strong also. Vegetables coming from Florida and other Southern points are a little stronger owing to a slight frost there.

Molasses continues to hold its firm position. Butter is a shade weaker, and cheese is firm. Eggs are in good demand, and the market is depending on new laids, which are plentiful, and pickled, as storage stock is exhausted. The feature of the provision market is the recent decline in live hogs, which have been soaring lately. The fur market is strong and fox, fisher and lynx are scarce. Fruits are a shade weaker in some lines, especially oranges. Other lines are the same as last quoted.

SUGAR—There is a fairly good demand at the recent decline. The market presents no new features this week.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—The demand for canned fish is good. Canned fruits and vegetables are selling well this week. Canned meats are also going much better than for some time.

TORONTO.—Demand keeps up for general lines of canned goods, and there is a firmer tone about the market. Tomatoes, especially, are called for, and while no price changes have taken place all vegetable lines show a tightening up. Tomatoes are not so plentiful as they were a week ago. Fish lines are expected to be much in demand with the near approach to the Lenten season, and fruits, particularly apples, though this week quiet, are anticipated to be again much asked for.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—
Rice—Firmer.
Beans—Advance in primary markets.
Sugar—Decline in U. S.
Canned Tomatoes—Good demand.

Toronto, February 18, 1909.

Sugar is again the interesting feature of the grocery market, and while no price changes are noted here, there have been two declines in New York during the week, each of ten points. In consequence trading is quiet and an easier tendency prevails. No immediate change is anticipated, though if one occurs it will be for lower prices.

Rice has firmed up a little, but has not at all affected trading. Beans, too, have advanced in the centres of production, and for small quantities a little higher price is asked, though for fair quantities price quoted last week holds good.

Generally good trading is being done, all the houses reporting splendid orders.

SUGAR—The quotations of a week ago still rule. During the week New York reports a drop of 20 points due to a greater supply than was estimated. This decline has made trading locally pretty quiet, and in consequence an easier tendency prevails.

Mr. Mackenzie was with Park Blackwell for five years and represented Swift & Co. for four years throughout the West. Mr. Thayer was with Gowans, Kent for four years, and later also with Swift & Co.

WESTERN CANADA RESOURCES.

A gentleman who called at the Toronto office of the Grocer this week and who has travelled through Manitoba and other western provinces states that the story of the resources of the west has not half been told.

"You hear people who have been there telling of their experiences and they talk about nothing besides wheat. Why, the fish and cattle-raising industries out there are developing in a wonderful manner.

"The land, too, can produce things besides wheat. Once while I was driving through a Manitoba field," he remarked, "where there were strawberries growing you could see strawberry juice running down the spokes of the buggy-wheels."

EXCITEMENT IN WHEAT CIRCLES

Prices High and Trading Active—Ontario Wants Western Oats—Work of Railway Commission in Assisting Farmers—Big Convention for Calgary—The Situation in the West.

The Western Viewpoint, by our Special Correspondent.

Winnipeg, Feb. 16.—The wheat market has been a centre of interest this week; prices have ruled high, and trading has been extremely active. Receipts have been very light all week, with a keen demand for cash wheat and few offerings, indeed almost every car that comes in has been sold ahead. Eastern millers have been after contract wheat, and there has been some speculative trading, but the bulk of the business has been straight export. May wheat sold at $1.07¼ with $1.07⅜ asked on Thursday. Friday being a holiday in all the American markets trading was somewhat dull in Winnipeg, and there was a slight reaction but it made a strong close. As the weeks pass and Patten continues to hold on to his long line the interest certainly deepens. It now seems pretty well assured that the farmers who have wheat are holding it for higher prices. Of course, in view of the price of Chicago, Winnipeg wheat looks cheap. That Argentine surplus will be less than expected and that there is serious damage to American winter wheat seems now pretty well assured. There is one thing about the Patten corner and it is this; it must be a phenomenal price that will pull him through with a profit, as much of his wheat has been bought at such high figures that there is practically no profit in it at the present time.

It looks as if from now until the struggle is over that it will be a time of more or less, usually more, excitement in wheat circles. From time to time during the past week the excitement in the Winnipeg pit has been intense, some of the brokers coming out with their coats nearly pulled off their backs.

Interest in Oats.

One feature of the week has been the steady increase of interest in oats. For months oats have been dead as a door nail but suddenly interest has awakened and a demand from Ontario for feed, and also an export demand has sprung up. Some of the strength is no doubt due to the reported damage to the Argentine corn crop by locusts, which sent the American corn market up with a jump. Flax continues very strong, and there are rumors to the effect that considerable western Canadian flax has been shipped to or bought for shipment to Duluth.

Winnipeg has been very much given up to curling during the week and the men in Scotch bonnets and with brooms in their hands are very much in evidence. The attendance is the largest since the visit of the Scottish curlers, six years ago.

This week the cheap rates will be open to visitors as well as curlers, and the agricultural interests have taken advantage of the lower rates to arrange a series of important conventions and a Provincial Seed Grain Fair in connection with the Agricultural College. At this convention great prominence will be given to dairy interests, and a demonstration will be given of the use of milking machines. It has always been felt in the West that if milking machines could be successfully operated and were not too costly, that their use would practically solve the greatest difficulty in securing the advance of dairying. The women of the West have not time to milk and the hired man who is willing to milk is a rara avis indeed. This is always one of the stock objections to dairying.

Prominence will also be given to forestry and horticulture, and a very interesting series of meetings has been arranged for the discussion of household science. Altogether it promises to be quite a gala week at the M.A.C.

Wholesalers report all lines of business very quiet at present, excepting spring goods, but with one accord they predict an exceptionally heavy spring trade.

Judge Mabee Firm.

The Railway Commission has completed its work in Winnipeg for the present and departed westward after one of the most successful sittings in its history. It is the first lengthened sitting held here by Judge Mabee, and he has certainly created a most favorable impression. The smoothest of corporation lawyers have found it quite impossible to cloud the issue before him, and he left none in doubt as to his sympathy with the farmers in many of their grievances. He was especially strong on the loss suffered by farmers on account of the railway companies not fencing their tracks.

The jobbers and business men generally are still "chewing the cud" over the "standardization of freight rates" according to Hartwell's schedule, which has been printed in all the papers here. The question comes up for final adjustment later, but it is evident Chairman Mabee favors the Hartwell plan.

The report of the Tax Commission is still taxing the public mind—if one may be pardoned so feeble a pun—and citizens are indulging in a veritable epidemic of letters to the daily papers.

Calgary is to have, during February or the first week in March, the monster lumber convention of the age. Delegates will be there from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and the object of the convention, in plain terms, is to pool interests and advance the price of lumber. Of course, the lumbermen deny loudly anything in the nature of a combine, and declare, with their hands upon their hearts, that the present cutting system is ruining trade and driving them out of business. They assert loudly that though the price of lumber will jump, the unanimity that will follow will greatly benefit business in general. The men who have already tendered on large building contracts are watching the result of this convention with anxious eyes. There is no manner of doubt that any heavy advance in lumber will at once curtail building operations, which up to the present time have promised to exceed the past two seasons.

There threatens to be a suspension of the letting of building contracts where much lumber is involved until this convention is over.

Wheat Rate to Liverpool.

Another thing that will no doubt be discussed at this convention will be the movement of wheat west to the Pacific, and the movement of lumber east. The Canadian Pacific have made a rate from Alberta to Liverpool of 45c on wheat, but dealers say that at this figure they cannot do business, as the additional cost of sacking, the additional interest on money for the longer period in transit and the additional insurance for the more dangerous passage round the Horn does away with all profit. The railway company have not announced publicly, but some of their prominent officials have stated privately that could they be assured of lumber to fill their cars on the return trip they could make a still lower rate. This question of wheat to Britain via Vancouver is certainly making quite a stir, and several exporting houses have had bids and inquiries from the Old Country firms for wheat shipped that way. So far as I can ascertain no shipments of importance have been made up to date.—H.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 9 a.m. Thursday, February 18, 1909.)

Bonspiel week brought to the city not only the devotees of the "roarin' game," but also a great many merchants from outside points, and the wholesale establishments have been keeping open house, most of their travelers being in from the country to entertain their customers.

Business prospects continue to improve and the volume of trade is steadily increasing. Collections are improving and the outlook has seldom been better at this season of the year.

IMPERIAL EVAPORATED CREAM

Does it not stand to reason that a cream put up in what is generally known—according to reports we received from the Government—as Canada's finest dairying district would possess greater merit than others?

Certainly!

Well, why not stock Imperial Evaporated Cream, and make it your leader?

Imperial Brand is put up in just this district, and for that reason, other things being equal, we claim it is unparalleled.

Try a sample case, and see if your customers will not appreciate it.

INFERIOR TIN PLATE USED

Some Causes of Fermentation in Canned Goods Over Which Canner Has No Control—Why Cans Cannot be Filled—Different Sizes of Tins and What They Should Contain.

"The old fashioned tin plate used for making cans was far superior to the kind used in these days," was a remark of an experienced Ontario canner to the Grocer a few days ago. This gentleman is one who has been in the business for a number of years and he gave some information very profitable to grocers and wholesalers and those not familiar with the canning industry.

He says that in recent years the tin supplied canners has been imperfect. He has made particular observations in this respect with a magnifying glass and has actually found rust oozing from the plate not covered with tin. There should, he said, be a larger amount of tin and the covering should be more perfect.

Some of the Results.

Gradually as the plate becomes rusted the can blows, the air gets inside and the goods ferment.

"We buy the cans in good faith," remarked the canner, "and it can be no fault of ours, if from this cause, fermentation sets in. The acid, whether malic or apple, comes in contact with the steel plate and is thus more trying than air as a hole is eaten through and the goods ferment."

Hard to Fill Cans.

The Grocer's informant also explained how difficult a matter it is for canners to fill up the cans. In putting on the lid solder is used and it has, of course, to be heated. It is absolutely necessary that the hot solder, or in fact anything hot, should be kept away from the contents of the can. In this way it is impossible to fill a can on a level with the brim as the goods must not be burned.

"While, therefore, a can cannot be actually full, it can be nearly so," he added.

Discolored Goods.

The discoloring of the contents of a can often occurs, but here again the canner is blamed for something over which he has no control.

"Flux is an acid used to assist in making solder; can makers use it in the solder on the seam of the can and sometimes this gets a grip on the tin, adhering to it. When the goods, whether fruit or vegetable, are placed inside they are discolored by this acid and we get the blame.

"Canners are probably responsible for a good many sins," he declared, "but there is a great deal credited to us over which we have no control."

Various Sizes of Cans.

In general use there are four kinds of cans. These are commonly known as No. 1, 2, 3 and 9. The No. 1 can should contain twelve liquid ounces; No. 2, twenty-four; No. 3, thirty-six, and No. 9 one hundred and eight. The latter is the gallon can.

The No. 2 can is the one used principally for corn while tomatoes are usually put up in the No. 3. The latter weighs about six ounces.

When the Grocer inquired regarded the relative sizes of the United States and Canadian No. 3 tin, the canner replied, "Ask the grocers themselves if they have ever noticed a difference."

Regarding the nature of the market, tomatoes are the feature, generally speaking. Just at the present time the market in gallon apples is better than it has been for a time.

TOMATOES AND LETTUCE.

Iowa Farmer Gets Phenomenal Results Growing These Vegetables.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 16.—The most sensational disclosure to agriculturists has just been made by Francis Sestier, of Des Moines, a young man who has made $18,000 worth of permanent improvements on a thirty-two acre farm in the last seven years and paid for it all from the product of the soil. It is a demonstration of what application will do.

Francis Sestier is the son of a French stonecutter, who came to Des Moines in 1875 to work on the construction of the State Capitol. But stonecutting is unhealthy business, and one day he determined to quit it. He bought a farm within sight of the golden dome of the State house he had helped construct and struggled along for years, paying off the mortgages and at the same time raised a family. Seven years ago he died and his son Francis took the active management. It is he who has worked the miracle of the soil.

He has turned his farm into a truck garden, which is now said to be the finest truck farm west of the Mississippi River. The beauty of his success is that, unlike truck gardeners of the East, he does not have to spend great sums of money for fertilization. During all these years his fertilization has not cost him more than fifty cents an acre a year.

Mr. Sestier by his management is making his farm yield a gross income of $300 or $400 an acre. Like every successful man, Mr. Sestier can handle some things better than others. Tomatoes seem to be his favorite crop. He introduced the method of raising tomatoes on poles and plants 3,000 vines to the acre, getting a yield of 750 bushels of perfect fruit that brings the highest price on the market. He makes as much as $2,500 on lettuce in a year. Such figures for a thirty-two acre farm in Iowa are sensational, to say the least, especially when they are made to come by the son of a French stone mason who knew nothing of agriculture and who never attended an agricultural college.

The demonstration of Mr. Sestier of the truck value of Iowa land is threatening to turn the tide of corn and hog raising in Iowa to that of truck raising, for Iowa, unlike Texas and the Western States, is close to market for all these goods. The soil here has been demonstrated to be rich in such products. Corn raisers think they have done well to get a yield of $12 to the acre.

COFFEE AND TEA DUTY.

United States Grocers Opposed to It—Great Activity in Spot Market.

The leading wholesale grocers of the United States express themselves as being opposed to the advisability of a duty on tea and coffee. A large Chicago house says of the proposal: "At that time"—when the Spanish war tax on tea was imposed—"the theories were advanced that 10c. per pound duty would not work a hardship to the consumer, that importers could not afford to import low grade teas, that the consumer would get better teas, that a duty would cause the market to drop in China and Japan and that the foreign growers would absorb one half of the duty. All of these theories proved wrong."

The proposal to impose the tax has had the effect of making importers, commission brokers and wholesale and retail dealers, including the 350,000 grocers of the United States who purchase tea in large quantities or a few packages at a time, are beginning to take notice. Altogether the situation is a novel one. Merchants who have been in the trade for thirty years and more are unable to recall its parallel. All last season's crop has gone practically into consumption. There are no fresh supplies to be had until May and June. If there is to be a tax on tea it will take effect on the new crop's supplies about July and August. Virtually there can be no stock of tea till then. Country buyers who are looking for tea entering duty free cannot get it from importers. Boston and Chicago hesitated about believing in the shortage of tea at the end of last year. New York bought up their stocks and now large shipments are being made to Chicago and other points in the West at advanced prices.

COMPENSATION FOR LOSS.

During the present sitting of the House of Commons at Ottawa, a bill was introduced by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, to amend the Post Office Act regarding compensation for lost registered letters and parcels and is therefore of interest to all business men.

We have now two kinds of registered letters—the international and the domestic. At the last congress of the International Postal Union held at Rome three years ago, it was decided that when a registered letter or parcel sent from abroad was lost in the country to which it was addressed the postal authorities of the country should compensate the sender or, at the request of the sender the addressee, to the extent of fifty francs.

Canada has adhered to that regulation. The amendment to the act which Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux proposes is that the Canadian postal authorities shall compensate for the loss of a registered parcel or letter to a certain extent, while the parcel or letter is being transmitted from one party to another within Canada itself. In other words the postal authorities will do for Canadian people what they are now doing for foreigners.

The Fruit and Corn Growing Interests

What has Been Accomplished by Recent Conventions and Institutes in the Development of these Industries—The Increased Revenue Therefrom is Practically all Spent Among Local Merchants—Some Interesting Figures as to the Augmented Productiveness of the Land by Improved, Practical Methods.

The inter-dependent relations of the farmer and the business man are becoming better understood and the good work carried on by the Ontario Department of Agriculture in the line of practical instruction, judging competitions and timely talks by experts, is being appreciated and taken advantage of by fruit growers, vegetable raisers, corn growers, stock breeders and those interested in bees, horticulture, floriculture and gardening.

Whenever possible these conventions and institutes are being conducted under the district officer and, where there is no district office, then the Farmers' Institute have taken the matter in hand, and the Department has sent the most progressive and experienced men at its command. Every additional dollar that the farmer, fruit grower or stock breeder can make out of his line of enterprise means, as has frequently been pointed out in these columns, increased prosperity and business for the grocer the hardwareman, the dry goods merchant, etc. The more, that a farmer can get out of the soil or its products, the more evident, will be individual and collective thrift. In The Canadian Grocer last week appeared a review of the work, which is being undertaken by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, whose operations are only limited by its means but, with the funds at its disposal, under the direction of C. C. James, Deputy Minister, much has been accomplished and so encouraging have been the attendance and the interest, that more is being planned.

Fruit Institutes Conducted.

This week there was held at Beamsville and Stony Creek fruit institutes, the former being conducted on Tuesday and Wednesday and the latter on Wednesday and Thursday. The attendance at both was large and the number of young men and boys present was particularly gratifying. The fact that they took full advantage of the short course in fruit growing, augurs well for the future of that industry. The gatherings were held under the auspices of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, the Provincial Fruit Growers' Association, the Lincoln Farmers' Institute, and the Wentworth Farmers' Institute. The speakers at Beamsville were H. S. Peart of Jordan Harbor who spoke on "Orchard Management and Cover Crops," W. C. McCalla, of St. Catharines, on "Spraying," and L. Caesar, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, on "Fungus Diseases and Insect Pests." A. W. Peart, of Burlington, gave an address on "Pruning and Grafting," and J. P. Carey, of Toronto, and R. Thompson, of St. Catharines, on "Packing Packages and Marketing."

The speakers also addressed the meetings at Stony Creek on practically the same topics, including "Drainage" and "Co-operation."

It has been demonstrated during the past season in many sections of the province that fruit growing is one of the most profitable lines of agriculture, and the men who are following improved methods are being reimbursed many times over for the extra trouble and expense involved. The fruit growers, great and small, assembled at the special gatherings where they were afforded an opportunity of instruction near their homes. Wentworth and Lincoln counties are pre-eminently the thriving and largest fruit growing districts in the province and the courses were taken full advantage of. The lectures and practical work were of assistance and value to not only the experienced grower, but to the young men who took an active interest in the proceedings and in the discussions. The success of the gatherings was such that it is understood there will be undertaken similar work in other localities. The operations of the Agricultural Deparment of the province are not, however, confined to any one line, but are broad and comprehensive in scope and character.

The Corn Convention.

There was conducted at Essex last week the first Corn Growers' convention and exhibition ever held in Canada. It lasted four days and the results were of the most substantial nature, so much so that the association will apply for incorporation. People from all over Essex and Kent assembled in large numbers to take in the practical work. These two counties raise over half the total amount of corn in Ontario. The figures obtained from the Department of Agriculture for the year 1907 show that the value of the corn raised in Essex county was $1,672,000, and in Kent county $1,439,000, representing some 11,000,000 bushels in all. There were under cultivation 161,000 acres of corn in these two counties, and the amount realized was $3,111,000, out of $6,220,000 received for this cereal in the whole province.

It was pointed out that an increase of one bushel per acre would mean an average about 161,000 more bushels in Essex and Kent alone. Recent discoveries have indicated that, if proper methods of selection are practised, a gain of five or more bushels on the average per acre may be expected, which will materially add to the amount of money in circulation in the district, and the augmented revenue of the farmers will be practically all spent among the local merchants.

Addresses on "The Preparation and the Cultivation of the Soil for Corn," "Seed Corn Judging," "Field Competition with Corn," "How to Judge and Select Seed Corn," and "Experimental Work with Corn in Ontario," were given by Prof. Klink, of Macdonald College; Prof. Zavitz, of the O.A.C.; Dr. J. W. Brien, of Essex; C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and others.

Prof. Klink, of Macdonald College conducted an informal conference on the points to be considered in selecting a good seed ear. His talk was fully illustrated by the use of many seed ears, and by means of large charts, which enabled his audience to see and appreciate the points discussed. He expressed the opinion that the Lake Erie counties were capable of producing a large part of the seed corn required in Canada. His faith in the possibilities of these counties had led him to come to Essex, not to teach the farmers to grow corn, but to talk the situation over with them and acquaint them with the requirements of the farmers of Ontario and Quebec in the matter of seed corn. The exhibit, he said, was the finest he had ever seen outside the corn belt, and would prove a revelation to the average Canadian. "If," continued the professor, "the Immigration Department of Ottawa wishes to advertise Canada in the corn states of the middle west, it cannot do better than to send a representative to the Corn Growers' convention at Essex."

Entries and Exhibitors.

For the exhibition prizes of $5, $3 and $2 were given for the best ten ears in each of ten classes, and so much interest was taken in this department that there were 295 entries from 113 exhibitors.

The Colonization Department of Ontario has purchased the prize samples of corn shown for use in their immigration office in London, Eng.

The convention took the form of a school class during the morning session, when 150 farmers and farmers' sons were seated around tables scoring corn, according to instructions.

Some Prize Winners.

The judging competition for farmers and farmers' sons was won by Alvin

Bunn, of Ruthven, with Fred Ure, of Sandwich South, second, and J. H. Coatsworth, of Gosfield South, third. The prize for the best single ear of corn in the exhibition was won by J. H. Coatsworth, of Gosfield South.

There is no reason why Kent and Essex counties should not produce all the seed corn required in the Dominion, and the convention will, no doubt, do much good along these lines. Another convention will be held next year, so successful was the one conducted last week.

The Ontario Corn Growers' Association was organized with the following officers:

President—J. O. Duke, Olinda.

First Vice-President—Harrison Smith, Ruthven.

Second Vice-President—Pat Morentette, Ojibway.

Secretary—A. McKenny, Essex.

Treasurer—Harry Coatsworth, Kingsville.

A LIVE GENERAL MERCHANT.

St. Mary's Man Interested in the Progress of His Native Town.

R. Dickson, general merchant at St. Mary's and Thedford, Ontario, was in Toronto this week on one of his periodical business visits. Mr. Dickson is a man much interested in the affairs of the community in which he resides and it is through his instrumentality that the Hydro-Electric Commission has decided to extent its operations to St. Mary's, which will also be the terminus.

Improved methods in agriculture and in dairying are always advocated by Mr. Dickson. He urges his views upon the farmers whenever he has the opportunity, and seeks to make them more economical in their labors. While in Europe a few years ago he took particular observations regarding the farming and dairying methods in Belgium. He says that in spite of the fact that there is a direct tax of $22 per acre there the methods are so economical that farmers there can produce more butter than Canadian dairymen in corresponding conditions.

Mr. Dickson tells of some interesting episodes regarding the late Timothy Eaton. The latter used to keep store across the street from Mr. Dickson in St. Mary's, and occasionally during the early part of the day Mr. Eaton would come over and help him pack butter. He returned the compliment.

LARGEST BISCUIT AND CONFECTIONERY FACTORY.

London, Ontario, proudly lays claim to being the home of the largest biscuit and confectionery factory in Canada.

The growth of this factory from a small shop 12 feet by 18 feet, to its present enormous size has been one of the most remarkable in the history of Canadian manufacturing annals.

Fifty-one years ago McCormick's biscuits were unknown. To-day their famous quality is known and appreciated in every Canadian town from the Atlantic to the Pacific. And large numbers of our American cousins who have visited Canada have found McCormick's Jersey cream sodas so superior to the American crackers that they have made arrangements to procure them through their grocers in the States.

McCormick's attribute the wonderful growth of their business solely to the high quality of their products. For surety of purity and quality of materials they carry matters to the extreme. They even employ a chemist (the only biscuit factory that does) to analyze all ingredients and see that they conform to their standards of purity and quality. If not found satisfactory they are rejected.

The visitor to McCormick's factory is always amazed at the perfection of the manufacturing system. McCormick's biscuits are baked, packed, labeled, sealed and ready for shipment in about one hour from the time the dough leaves the mixing room. To make biscuits like McCormick's requires a lifetime's experience and the employment of skilled bakers, plus the use of the best materials and the most modern and expensive biscuit-making machinery, in the world.

But McCormick's don't stop at making superior biscuits. They are aggressive advertisers. This year their advertising campaign is the largest ever undertaken by a Canadian biscuit manufacturer. They believe in assisting the grocers in every possible way to keep their products moving rapidly. We believe the consumer who gets McCormick's biscuits as they are made today will be an enthusiastic advertiser for their biscuits and for the grocer who handles them. We feel confident that, any grocer who makes a specialty of McCormick's will be largely benefitted. Not only will brisk advertising be done for McCormick's Jersey cream sodas, but several new lines will be exploited, such as Lemon Cream, Thin Arrowroot and McCormick's Fancy Cream Sodas.

SPECIAL EXEMPTION STAMPS.

These Must Be Secured for Patent Medicine Bottles After April 1st.

Retail grocers are again reminded of the fact that the Patent Medicine Act comes into force on April 1st of this year. For supplies on hand grocers will be obliged to secure a "special exemption stamp," which will have to be pasted on the bottles, etc. These stamps can be secured at the mere nominal price of two or three cents for a hundred, from the Inland Revenue Department at Ottawa.

To deal in patent medicines after the first of April grocers must secure a certificate. If this is not attended to there is the liability of a fine following the neglect. This refers, of course, to remedies advertised for internal use.

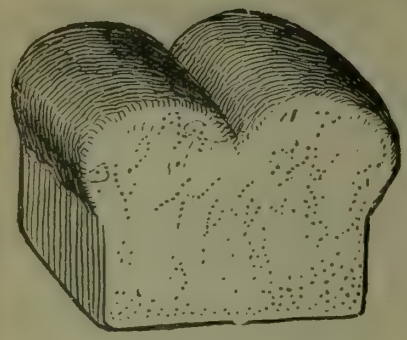
WINDOW DRESSING.

The freest kind of advertising is the store window.

Do not crowd a window.

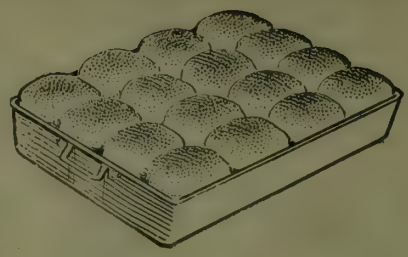
Display one line at a time.

Avoid dull monotony.



Change your window not less than once a week.

Keep your windows clean.



Be original; produce designs that will hold people's attention.

Show seasonable goods only.

Whenever possible put mechanical motion or something animate in the window.

The biggest and best Canadian Flour Advertising Campaign has just commenced in the papers.

Grocers who handle Purity Flour will receive the benefit.

Does Advertising Appeal to You?

It ought to. By process of reasoning does it not also appeal strongly to you that goods that are advertised steadily year after year must be profitable to handle? : : : :

Also that they must be good goods or the advertising would only serve to make their deficiencies known. : : : :

We are increasing our advertising appropriation steadily year after year. It's reasonable to suppose that it pays us. Likewise it pays those who handle "Purity Flour."

Increase your reputation by handling "Purity," the flour of quality, and please your customers by having it always in stock for them when they ask for it as they surely will.

JERSEY CREAM SODAS

and hundreds of varieties of Fancy Sweet Biscuits and Confectionery

Established in 1858 by T. McCormick in a very small shop, about 12 by 18 feet.

Now, look at the picture of the largest biscuit and candy factory in Canada, owned and managed by his three sons.

The factory is also the most modern on this continent—is thoroughly ventilated and kept scrupulously clean.

Pre-eminently the best

McCormick's Biscuits are made from Best Blended Flour, First Quality June Creamery Butter, Fresh, Sweet, Whole Milk, Pure Sugar, etc.

All materials are analysed by an expert chemist and therefore McCormick's are in a position to guarantee the Purity and Quality of their biscuits.

No other Biscuit Factory in Canada employs a chemist to insure wholesomeness of its biscuits.

Continental Reputation.

Great numbers of discriminating American women-visitors to Canada have pronounced McCormick's Jersey Cream Sodas vastly superior to the American crackers. They have even insisted on the factory shipping a supply to their grocers, stating that they were willing to pay the duty if, by so doing, they could enjoy such a luxury.

We have appreciated the confidence and assistance of the Grocery trade in Canada in placing our biscuits before the consumers and hope still further to merit your approval in our present efforts to assist your sales of our biscuits by advertising them extensively amongst the consumers. We hope you will keep on hand a good supply of

Montreal, February 18, 1909.

Cheese is displaying a strong feeling this week, owing to better demand from the Old Country. Both colored and white is going forward to English houses. This is encouraging, in view of the fact that there are fairly liberal supplies being offered from New Zealand. Reports from England state that stocks there are diminishing and consumption is increasing. This, however, is not altogether the reason that Canadian stock is going well, but because it has established itself in public favor, and the Englishmen seem willing to have it, even when the price is decidedly high. From what can be learned, a rise in the English market is not improbable, as holders are firm in their demands. The price, however, remains the same as a week ago. Locally prices rule 12½c to 13c for finest Westerns, and 12⅜c to 12½c for Easterns. Receipts for the season since May 1, 1908, to February 13, were 1,956,090 boxes, against 2,053,760 boxes for the corresponding period of last year.

The butter market is in a peculiar position, as various prices which are wide apart are being quoted, and there seems to be a general lack of uniformity in this respect. This is due to the many qualities which are offering. Some dealers think that butter will arrive in ample quantities to supply all demands, while others think that stocks are being reduced so fast that a pinch later on is inevitable. In view of all this it is interesting to know that the cows are in much better shape this year, and, consequently, a much larger yield can be looked for. There has been plenty of feed this year, a lack of which at this same time last year gave the butter outlook a serious aspect. Locally butter is quoted at 25c for fall creamery, winter creamery at 23c to 24c, dairy in tubs at 20c and rolls at 21c. Receipts since May 1 have been 417,525 packages, against 411,658 packages for the same period of last year.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

Toronto, February 18, 1909.

Without any reason further than that such is the case, live hogs are quoted f.o.b. in the country about 50 to 60c per 100 lower than last week. The fact of the matter is evident, as stated last week, that the supply of hogs is not sufficient to meet the requirements of all the packing houses, and in consequence it is a game of who wins—the farmers or packers. Whenever the price reaches a point which suits the farmers in come the hogs, but as soon as the packers drop prices, the receipts drop accordingly. Dressed hogs this week to butchers sell for $9.50 to $10 per 100 weight, and by all appearance, good prices will rule for some time to come.

Owing to the excellence of our bacon, the rapid increase in its consumption is remarkable. Many will remember the difference of the present mild cured bacon and the strong salted cured meats which were used years ago. The packing houses are now doing for the farmers in the bacon line what the creamery does for them in the butter line. The result of producing better qualities is larger consumption, and consequently better prices for the farmers, and better prices for the farmers means prosperity to the country.

The butter market is still suffering from the large accumulations of poor butter, which can only be sold for baking purposes, at reduced prices. Good butter, although in good demand, follows the downward tendency of the inferior, and is also from one to two cents lower this week.

Eggs are about 2 cents cheaper, and receipts of new laid eggs are fair and of better quality. The held stock is very light, and if there should be a long spell of good winter weather there might be what sometimes has happened, an egg famine, with very high prices, before the fresh supply will be sufficient to meet the demand.

PROVISION MARKETS

MONTREAL.

The provision market is weaker in tone, although no changes in prices have occurred yet. This fact is due to the freer arrival of hogs, and a consequent reduction of prices.

BUTTER—Butter on the whole is about 2c a lb. lower. In the following quotations is an explanation of what is meant by "Farmers' separater butter," and "choice dairy prints." It may be that some which is sold as the former was not made by the separater process, and some of the latter may, but the distinguishing line is drawn from the fact that the one is shipped direct by the farmer to the city, whereas the other is taken by the farmer to his country store and mixed lots made by different farmers sent in by the storekeeper. Out of these mixed lots is picked out the choice dairy prints. The class called "farmers' separater butter" is invariably better than the other. This may be owing to two reasons. The best butter makers will not sell their butter to the stores at the same price which is paid for all, and therefore they ship direct. Another reason is that good and bad butter being packed together become tainted with each other and as well absorb the odors from the many articles kept in a store.

BUTTER—The dairy butter market is very weak. In fact the bottom seems to have fallen out of it. Supplies are liberal and the quality is complained of by the buyers. For No. 1 the price is 18c f.o.b., Winnipeg; for No. 2, 14c to 15c.

EGGS—Practically speaking there are no eggs on the market. Country stores are unable to supply any for the city buyers and owing to the egg famine in the East there are no supplies coming from Ontario. Canadian storage stock (what there is of it) is selling to the trade at 36 cents per dozen, and American at 40 cents.

CAUSE OF MOLDY BUTTER.

Moldy butter is something that grocers do not care to handle. "Mold" is a term applied to a large group of very small plants. These plants are found growing on the damp surface of almost any substance which contains animal or vegetable matter. They are propagated by very small and very light spores, which are formed in enormous numbers and are so light that they are carried about by the slightest movement of the air. While they grow more rapidly at high temperatures, molds are not so sensitive to cold as many other plants, and they will grow even in refrigerators held at near the freezing point. In addition to food and proper temperature, a supply of air is absolutely necessary to their growth.

When molds grow on butter they not only give it an unsightly appearance, but bring about changes in its composition which seriously affect the flavor. Moldy butter is very common, especially in the summer, and is a source of great annoyance and loss to butter dealers. Mold spores are so well distributed that it is impossible to secure tubs, boxes or liners entirely free from contamination. If the wood is well seasoned and is stored in a dry place these spores will not germinate, but if the tubs or boxes are made from imperfectly seasoned lumber or become damp through improper storage, the spores will germinate and the contamination will be very much increased.

Moldy butter comes from tubs contaminated before they are packed, and is not due to moldy refrigerators. Conditions which cause moldy refrigerators would favor the growth of mold on the inside of packed tubs, but the contamination for the most part must come before the tubs are filled.

The trouble from moldy tubs may be decreased by using only well-seasoned tubs, storing them in a dry place before using and in a good refrigerator after filling. Since, however, it is not always possible to fulfill these conditions, some additional measures become necessary. These usually take the form of killing the molds on the tub by heating or by treating with an antiseptic. Tubs are frequently steamed before packing, but while this is of some benefit, it is not always effectual. Soaking in cold brine, hot brine or brine with the addition of a small amount of formalin has been recommended. A more recent method is to coat the inside of the tub with a layer of paraffin.

THE FLOUR AND CEREAL MARKETS

Advance in the Price of Flour in Ontario—Good Demand for Cereals in View of Expected Advance.

As was anticipated in last week's Grocer, the price of flour has advanced. The extent is 20 cents per barrel, and it is considered that this is a low advance when the present price of wheat is thought of. The expectations are that flour will rise to still more advanced prices soon. If wheat prices keep on soaring as they have been recently another rise in flour will be the result.

The demand for rolled wheat and rolled oats has been good, but there have been no changes in prices.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—Flour prices are well maintained at the recent decline, and in view of the strong attitude of the wheat market, may be looked to for an advance. Local conditions have been responsible for the recent drop, and cannot be taken as a true reflection of the market.

TORONTO.

FLOUR—Last Saturday Ontario millers advanced the price of flour of all kinds 20 cents per barrel. This was of course due to the high prices of wheat. In view of the soaring of wheat prices, the advance in flour seems to be small and it will not be a surprise if another raise is announced in the no distant future. There is little call for export flour at present, but the Mexican demand for wheat still goes on to some extent.

DOING BUSINESS IN CANADA.

The Wayne Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of washboards and washing machines, St. Louis, U.S.A., have now been in existence for some 50 years in the washing machine line and 3 years in the washboard line. They have a capacity of 500 doz. washboards per day and 25 doz. washing machines. The company is now doing a rather extensive business in Canada.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Carveth & Company, Montreal, who are agents for Lovatt & Lovatt, makers of Langley ware, are introducing to the Canadian trade, with marked success, this line of coffee pots, teapots and chocolate pots. Langley ware is thoroughly vitrified, fired at a terrific degree of heat, and impervious to all acids. It is made entirely with leadless glaze, so there is no danger of lead poison. Its extreme hardness and density gives Langley ware remarkable durability, strength and wholesomeness, and for the infusion of tea or coffee is not equalled by any other variety of pot. The heat retaining properties of these pots is marvelous, and makes them even more popular with the consumer. The pots are made with or without percolators. The cooking ware made at the Langley Mills, England, are of equally high repute, and are likely to meet with similar success on this market.—advt.

In this week's Grocer S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal and Toronto, call the attention of the grocery trade to the fact that there is a great deal of adulteration going on in the grocery trade to-day, and they warn the grocer who cares for his reputation to be careful not to stock up with so-called pure spices which are anything but pure. They call attention to the number of years they have been in business, 64, and are proud to state that their name and their brands have always stood for highest purity in spices. Their Prince of Wales Brand is their leading line, and this brand they guarantee to be an absolutely pure, unadulterated line of spices—advt.

RESULTS OF ONE MAN'S ENERGY

Merchant Restores to Village the Business it Once Enjoyed, but Later Lost—United With the Farmers—Introduction of Modern Methods and Personal Progressiveness.

An interesting story of how a village lost its progressiveness and business influence and how it was brought back to the position it formerly occupied in the eyes of the surrounding neighborhood by the efforts of one man, is linked with the banquet which was given by A. Kirkpatrick, merchant and grain dealer, at a small place known as Lefroy, Ont. His guests were about 50 farmers from the neighborhood who have shared with him the success which his foresight and ability brought to the whole neighborhood.

Lefroy had once enjoyed a business such as was common in many other places of the same size. It was the centre of a large country trade and the farmers left considerable money with the small stores, which did not have to cope with city houses.

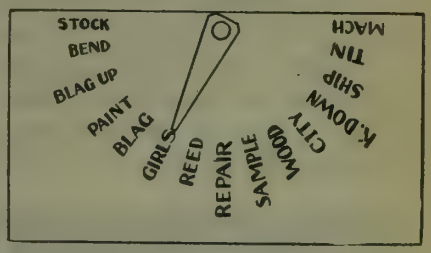
But credits became long-standing and prices high. The area of trade was likewise broadened, with the result that business in Lefroy suffered and gradually the place lost its activity and the people lost hope of ever regaining their former prestige.

The Work of a Single Man.

It was then that Mr. Kirkpatrick stepped into the breach and by his aggressiveness eclipsed the business conditions that had formerly existed. He introduced modern methods into the country store, giving it the tone of those which are found in busy towns; he cultivated the good will of those whose custom he sought, and he introduced a system of unity with the farmers. By uniting his efforts with those of his customers, a modern elevator was erected for the handling of the surplus grain of the neighborhood.

The outcome of continued co-operation has been the forming of a farmers' market which those present at the banquet stated was the best for farmers' produce along fifty miles of railway.

Keep Up With the Times.



What has been done at Lefroy is an evidence of what may be done in other places. The old time village store with its old time methods is a thing of the past, but a dealer who will adapt himself to the changed circumstances, who will take a real interest in his surroundings, can do what has been done in this case—change a dead corner into a place of activity and public benefit.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

Hugh Blain, of Eby-Blain, has denied a rumor that he was a candidate for the position of collector of customs in Toronto. "I have my business to look after," said Mr. Blain, "and the position in no wise interests me."

TRANSFER CARDS.

In the Gendron Mfg. Co., Toronto, the elevator man does most of the transferring from one flat to another. He devised a scheme to facilitate the quick transportation of material. When a truck is loaded in one department it is taken to the elevator. At the side of the elevator are hanging a number of tin plates, painted white, with the names of the various departments printed on them. One of these plates is shown in the illustration.

Transfer Card.

A workman hangs one of these transfer cards on the truck turning the arrow to the name of the department to which it is to be delivered. The elevator man looks at the card, hangs it on the nail so it may be used again and takes the truck to the proper department. This scheme is found to greatly facilitate the handling of loads of material and besides saves the time of the workmen.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Some Oranges Decline in Price—Messina Lemons at New York—New Cabbage Arrive on the Market—Fish Trade Brisker.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—The green fruit market is easier in many lines, among which are California navels, which have shaded off 25c. Valencia's are 25c cheaper, also bitter oranges. Lemons, in spite of the Messina disaster, are weaker. Bananas have firmed up slightly. Florida oranges are also stronger, owing to smaller supplies. Other lines are the same as when last reported. Trade locally has been fairly good.

VEGETABLES—This market has indulged in an upward movement during the week. This in a measure is due to slight frosts in Florida, and other shipping points. New beets are on the market at $3 a crate, and new cabbage at $4 per barrel. California cauliflowers are now arriving in single and double crates at $2.50 and $5 respectively. Sweet potatoes, owing to good supply, are cheaper by 50c. Other lines are unchanged.

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—California navels are arriving in large quantities and of excellent quality. One day during the week there were 20 cars on the track, all of which were readily picked up, mostly by Toronto buyers, only a few cars going to outside towns. The first cargo of Messina lemons shipped from Catania by the only surviving shipper of Messina, has reached New York and part of which will reach Toronto this week. This boat also contains 2,200 cases of bitter or marmalade oranges. Some Valencia oranges, via Liverpool, have just arrived. Some Cuban oranges are still in the market, but the Mexicans are off. Prices of oranges weakened on account of the large receipts, but almost immediately stiffened up again when a few days of light receipts followed.

VEGETABLES—The vegetable market looks summerlike, with new cabbage, carrots, beets, parsley, lettuce, green peppers, celery, egg plants, cucumbers, potatoes, etc., in good quantities. Potatoes are still without any change in price. The receipts are regular and quite sufficient to meet the demand.

Business is steady and entirely free from any speculative feeling.

FISH—The fish trade is brisk and satisfactory. Scarcely anything is handled now but frozen stock, which was held in refrigerators. No fresh caught fish of any kind are on the market. With a good demand now and Lent close at hand, prices will likely be stiffer.

What are "Sealshipt" Oysters?

They are the product of the finest beds—sealed in air-tight steel cans as soon as tonged, with ice around the outside of the can but not touching the oysters. When you open them they are all solid meats—no water to bloat, bleach and soften them. The natural oyster flavor is all there—piquant and appetizing in taste, smell and appearance.

Does it pay to handle ordinary tub oysters—of questionable cleanliness, purity or freshness when you can get "Sealshipt"?

"Sealshipt" Oysters will give you increased trade among the class of customers you most desire to have come into your store.

MOTTO MEANT MODERATION

"Live and Let Live" Printed on Windows of Grocery Store—The Proprietor Originated it When he Was in Undertaking Business—Finds it of a Double Benefit to Him.

"Live and Let Live." This is a motto used by a retail grocer, which he claims, has proved most beneficial to him from the standpoint of its advertising characteristics, as well as from the significance it bears to one who thinks.

The originator of the device is E. Armitage, proprietor of a grocery store at 443 Parliament Street, Toronto. The peculiarity of it is that he instituted it some years ago when he was engaged in the furniture and undertaking business. One might be disposed to think that a motto such as "Live and Let Live" printed in large letters on the plate glass windows of an undertaking establishment would not be particularly conducive to advertising the business. But on second thought it will be observed that an undertaker has little to do with the departure of beings from this world and that his motto must have some other significance.

In His Younger Days.

Mr. Armitage is now a pretty old man, but has apparently some years of life before him yet. When young he was a grocery clerk in stores in various places in Ontario, including Schomberg, Tottenham, Newmarket and Sault Ste. Marie. He, therefore, learned the grocery business pretty thoroughly, but did not stick at it all his life.

For seven years he was engaged in business for himself in Schomberg, as a furniture dealer and undertaker. It was there he originated the motto above referred to, and he considered it so successful that he decided to use it in his grocery store in Toronto.

On the Delivery Wagon.

Mr. Armitage's store is on a street corner and on the two front plate glass windows as well as on the side one he has his motto printed. In fact, he makes a feature of it as the device is also carried on the delivery wagon together with the name. People call his establishment "The Live and Let Live Store," and often, too, in preference to "Armitage's Store," and therein he gets an advertisement. Everybody wants to know, of course, where it is and what it means and in the explanation lies the chief benefit.

At Moderate Prices.

In informing The Grocer representative the exact intent of the motto, Mr. Armitage stated that it meant he sold goods at a moderate profit in order to live himself, thereby allowing his customers to purchase at moderate prices which would not oppress them. They were, therefore, figuratively speaking, "allowed to live."

Often Mr. Armitage has been asked by new customers coming into the store what the statement meant. He was then in a position to tell them, without appearing particularly anxious, by simply answering the question in a courteous manner. He conveyed the idea to the public he wanted to, not on his own initiative, but because the public desired to know.

Short Time in Present Stand.

It was only about five months ago since Mr. Armitage took hold of the business where he is now located and he already finds his business has grown greatly and that it is still growing. He attributes a great deal of his success so far to his motto on the window, and has no intention of having it erased.

A "cash trade" is another of his store mottos, but this one has no visible appearance. He finds he loses a little custom by not extending credit, but he believes he is better off in the end. Some half dozen of his customers pay every Saturday night, and this he considers the same as cash.

Trade at the present time is considered fairly good by Mr. Armitage. One article comparatively new in the grocery line which he sells considerable of is charcoal and coke. This is done up in 10-cent paper sacks, and is bought extensively by those who have fireplaces in their residences.

Mr. Armitage is not one of those who complain of dull business. He takes things philosophically and does not grumble.

FRUIT CROP OUTLOOK.

Continuance of Mild Weather With Frost Intervening Will be Disastrous.

A. McNeil, chief of the fruit division in the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, upon request, has supplied The Grocer with some interesting information on the outlook for the fruit crop in Canada in 1909. He says in his communication, dated February 12th, that the present open weather is likely to injure fruit trees and small fruit plantations, but it is difficult to say whether the injury will be serious or not.

"The absence of snow and the probability of severe frost yet may very seriously shorten the crop of small fruit, particularly strawberries. Up to the present time, however, we can speak only as a matter of conjecture. No one can estimate the damage, if any, that has been done up to the present time.

The damage to tree fruit is, so far, not serious. Nevertheless, peach buds have been injured, but if favorable weather intervenes for the next two months no great loss in crop may result. If the weather of the last few weeks continues through March and April, there will be every prospect that the fruit buds will be seriously injured by the frost. Some of them even now are showing slight symptoms of swelling, but not sufficient to harm them if there is no further unseasonable warm spell.

It does not seem likely that there will be any serious loss from winter-killing, and no serious depredations from mice have been reported so far. Up to date, we can speak of the weather as having been fairly favorable for fruit, though the weather conditions have placed the fruit plantations in the way of being somewhat more easily injured by frosts than usual."

John R. Gill and S. Allan, Norwich, were each fined $50 in police court last week, for selling cider containing more than 2½ per cent. alcohol.

One Reason Why Brunswick Brand Sea Foods are of Superior Quality.

Our own boats, in charge of our own men, expert judges of fish quality and fish values, make daily trips to the famous fishing grounds on the Atlantic coast and there personally select the finest fish, to be packed under Brunswick Brand. The traps, or weirs, where the best fish suitable for packing are caught, AND THESE ONLY receive our attention, and even then we often deem it advisable, for quality's sake, to make a selection.

Therefore, to start with, the goods "in their raw state" are the best obtainable.

It is UP TO US to pack them correctly.

WE DO.

THE GROCER'S ENCYCLOPEDIA

Some Facts About Camphor—Where it Comes From and How it is Obtained—The World Wants More Than 12,000,000 Pounds Annually — Recent Increase in Production.

CAMPHOR—This is a white, translucent, crystalline substance occurring in the wood and bark of the laurel tree from which it is obtained by distillation with steam and subsequent sublimation. It melts at 350 dg.F. and boils at 500 dg.F. It has a strong characteristic odor and a peculiar cooling aromatic taste. It dissolves to a slight extent in water and freely in alcohol or ether. Small shavings of it exhibit lively motions when thrown upon a water-surface that is absolutely free from oily matter.

Camphor is a familiar substance about the household on account of its use for protecting furs and woolens from the attacks of moths and other insects. It is also employed in the manufacture of celluloid and various explosives. The chemistry of camphor is very complicated and numerous substances are known to resemble it closely, and yet differ from it in certain particulars.

Where Camphor Comes From.

From the far east including Japan, China and the island of Formosa comes the great portion of camphor. The Canadian Trade Commissioner located at Yokahama, in giving some statistics on the quantity produced in the east says that the total amount of camphor exported last year from January to September last year was about 2,059,506 lbs. valued at $894,386, in comparison with an export of about 3,456,121 lbs., valued at $2,152,105 for the corresponding period of 1907. The price of camphor averaged $83 per 133 lbs. in 1907, and was sold last year at $57.50, showing a depreciation in value of nearly one-third in comparison with the market price in 1907.

This unfavorable condition has been partly brought about by the general depreciation in the money markets of the world; but the main reason for this rapid decline in the value is, says the trade commissioner, on account of the manufacture of artificial camphor and other substitutes for the Formosan camphor, and also the development of the camphor industry in Southern China.

The steady development of camphor and other industries for which camphor was principally used, and the abnormal increase in the price of the Formosan variety after the establishment of the government monopoly gave an impetus to the growth of the China camphor and the improvement in the manufacture of artificial or synthetic camphor.

Rapid Growth of Manufacture.

Previous to the creation of the Japanese government monopoly of camphor, which took place in 1899, the Japanese authorities apparently thought that the growth of the camphor-wood and the development of the camphor industry would be confined almost altogether to the island of Formosa. The sudden increase in the price in the Western world gave a great impetus to the camphor industry in the island of Japan, which up to that time the authorities apparently thought had been almost entirely exhausted. The whole output of camphor in Japan proper was only about 100,000 lbs. before the monopoly was created in respect to the Formosan camphor. The output in Japan increased to about 2,667,000 lbs in 1902, and it then became necessary to extend the monopoly which was then existing in regard to Formosan camphor to the island of Japan also.

The increase in the value of this tropical product in Japan was perfectly natural when it was believed that the supply was limited, and there was a steady increase in the demand. The world required a supply equal to eleven million or twelve million pounds annually, and the entire output of Japan and Formosa did not exceed seven million pounds.

Stimulant for China.

The enormous increase in the price of genuine camphor furnished the main cause for an increase in the cultivation of the product in China, and for the development of the artificial industry in Europe. Up to 1904, the distillation of camphor in China did not exceed more than 266,700 lbs., which was scarcely enough to cover the domestic demand; but since then the conditions have altogether changed, as the output of camphor from China in 1907 was about 2,800,000 lbs.

Such a sudden expansion of the growth of the natural camphor in China has greatly affected the government monopolized product in Japan, and this, together with the manufacture of artificial camphor seems to have completely demoralized the value of the Japanese monopoly.

Leaves and Twigs Used.

Another innovation, which should largely increase the production of camphor, is the process of extracting it from leaves and twigs, instead of from the trunks of the trees, as has been the case hitherto. The quality thus obtained is said to be in no way inferior to that produced from the matured trees. For this purpose the Japanese Government is encouraging the laying out of camphor plantations, the advantage of this process being that profits are realizable in the fourth year after trees are planted, and increase annually. It is estimated that about 2lb. weight of camphor can be obtained from 100 lb. of leaves, and that after the fourth year 120 lb. can be obtained from 2½ acres of plantation. This quantity is doubled after the eighth year. The supply of raw material should thus be largely increased, but there is difficulty in finding a sufficient number of qualified workmen, as the process of distilling and manufacturing requires considerable skill and experience. Steps are, however, being taken to meet this difficulty, as well as to improve the stills, in order to further increase the output.

BOVRIL CO. SEEK INJUNCTION.

Claim Others Have Supplied Customers With Substitute for Their Product.

The Bovril Co. through Greenshields, Greenshields & Langnedoc, last Wednesday applied in the Superior Court for a writ of interlocutory injuction against Metrakos Bros., K. Gambites and a score of others on the ground that the defendants have for years past sold and supplied to their customers preparations that were not Bovril, as a substitute for the article manufactured by the Bovril Co.

Among other allegations, the petitioners set forth that they have advertised their product extensively, and have spent very large sums of money therein, with the result that their product has become universally and favorably known under the name of "Bovril."

That the respondents have for a number of years palmed off and substituted, and are palming off and substituting upon their customers and public a substance or preparation manufactured and placed upon the market by certain firms as being "Bovril," the whole to the great loss and damage of the petitioners which, for the purpose of the present action, they reduce to the sum of $5,000.

Worms in Horses and All Live Stock

The eradication of worms from horses and other animals is one of the most striking features of Molassine Meal, and is proof of its unique properties. When

is used regularly—although it is quite free from arsenic or drugs—in consequence of its antiseptic properties, all foul or putrid matter is evacuated, worms cannot live, and are naturally expelled.

A food which has effects like this must command the attention of all persons interested in the feeding of horses and cattle.

Canned Fruits and Vegetables Absolutely Pure

All our Canned Fruits and Vegetables are absolutely pure. The preservation is accomplished solely by sterilization, this being the cheapest as well as the safest method of processing.

We not only guarantee our Canned Fruits and Vegetables to be preserved solely by sterilization, but we further guarantee that all our Fruits and Vegetables are canned when they are best fitted for table use.

Quality is of the greatest importance in Canned Goods, and owing to it being impossible to tell quality until the can is opened, consumers should be very particular as to the brands they purchase.

It has always been the policy of the Management of the Canadian Canners, Limited, to work for Quality.

The buyer of a can of goods with the Canadian Canners' Label, knows that he is running no risks. The quality is guaranteed by a responsible, reliable company.

Why buy inferior goods even if at lower prices only to perhaps incur the ill-will of your customers?

If you secure a name for handling nothing but reliable goods you are on the high road to success.

REMEMBER THE BRANDS :—

Simcoe, "Lynnvalley," "Auto"; Aylmer, "Canada First," "Log Cabin"; Bowlby's "Horseshoe"; Lalor's "Grand River," "Kent"; Delhi, "Maple Leaf"; Boulter's "Lion," "Little Chief," "Thistle"; Lakeport, "White Rose," etc.

CANADIAN CANNERS, Limited

Proof in Every Can

Advertising to Grocers

Manufacturers whose goods are sold by retail grocers and who are not reaching grocers as systematically and as effectively as they are consumers are making it hard for consumers to get their goods when it is possible to make it easy. Those who are not taking advantage of the best way to reach grocers with given sums are giving money away to somebody. Those who are reaching grocers now, through some other method than the trade press, are spending more than they have to.

It is impossible for the manufacturer to reach grocers right without using the trade press. Manufacturers who are not doing it are going around the block to get to the house next door, simply because they are not posted or because somebody has misled them. No manufacturer knows what trade paper advertising to grocers can do until he has done it right—it has not been done right by those who think it valueless. To-day every manufacturer can do it right. The Grocery and Allied Trade Press of America, which has just been organized, consists of practically all the trade papers which reach grocers and general storekeepers all over the United States. These papers reach over 150,000 retail grocers. Manufacturers can advertise in a quarter page in each issue of every one of them for a year for about $6,000. No manufacturer can talk to this many grocers this often any other way for less than five times this sum. It would cost him $40,000 to send them a postal card. These papers are published exclusively in the interests of the retailers. This means that they are the logical avenue for manufacturers to reach retailers.—Tea and Coffee Trade Journal, February.

London Grocers at the Banquet Board

More Than a Hundred Competitors Unite as Friends at Annual Festival of the Retail Grocers' Association—Merry Songs and Bright Speeches Pass Away Some Pleasant Hours—Canada's Resources Enumerated—Neglect of Government in Aiding Merchants—Provincial Grocers' Association Proposed, and Desired by London Grocers—Wholesalers and Manufacturers Present.

(Special Staff Correspondence.)

BANQUET BREEZES

Canadians are going to cut a great swath in this continent in the future.—E. B. Escott.

There are more working men in London who own their homes than in any other city in Canada. —Mayor Stevely.

The man who is always offering bargains will soon have nobody but bargain hunters coming into his store.—E. J. Ryan.

We should amalgamate with the grocers of Toronto, Hamilton and other places and meet once a year. in convention.—R. J. Donaghy.

Traveling is older than the hills —it began in Eden and the first traveler was a woman.—F. E. Tobias.

You are setting an example to the grocery trade of the world; you can sit down beside your competitor and call him friend.—H. Gilbert Nobbs.

Modern traveling is an evolution of our own times; it is a development of commerce and it has come to stay.—Wm. Turnbull.

I often wonder at your equanimity when I see from time to time legislation enacted to unfairly coerce and hamper you to the inconvenience of the public.— Col. A. M. Smith.

London, Feb. 23.—Occasionally does it occur that a hundred or more business men of a city mingle together in social intercourse about a common banquet board, but seldom indeed it is that one finds so many representatives of a single trade assemble as friends yet competitors as the merry company of grocers who graced the dining hall of the City Hotel of London last week. It was the occasion of the second annual banquet of the Retail Grocers' Association of the Forest City, it being held on Wednesday night, February the 17th, and from every standpoint it was a brilliant success. The association, representing, as it does, practically the entire grocery trade of the city, is looked upon with pride by all the business men; it not only brings business benefits to its members, but creates a feeling of harmony among competitors which is to be eulogized wherever found—and the city nestling on the banks of the Thames is a splendid concrete example.

As visitors present expressed themselves, it was simply wonderful to see more than a hundred grocers unite as friends about the festive table—and good fellows every one of them, too. It served to show that life is something more than an incessant drudgery and that keen competitors in business during the day can meet as friends when once the lock in the door is turned.

Everybody present enjoyed themselves. In fact, it could not have been otherwise. President Shaw, with his genial smile that would not vacate the premises cordially greeted his brothers-in-the-trade and guests and all were made to feel at home.

THOS. SHAW,

The Diplomatic President of the London Retail Grocers' Association, Who Presided as Toast Master.

The banquet plans had been carefully prepared by the officers, executive and special committees, and everything "went merry as a marriage bell." R. J. Donaghy, chairman of the reception committee, with Cyril Hayes, the youthful but energetic secretary, and Treasurer E. J. Ryan, were valuable lieutenants of the president in receiving the guests and they deserve a great deal of credit. The musical portion of the evening's programme was a delightful one, including numerous selections from Tony Vitas' orchestra which were greatly appreciated. Harold Watson presided at the piano and performed the difficult task of accompanying the orchestra and soloists.

Addresses of an educative, humorous and patriotic nature were given by members of the association and their guests, including Mayor Stevely, and these, together with the songs that punctuated them made everybody enjoy every minute of an evening which sped away all too quickly. Cares, if there were any, were laid aside, and good-fellowship and merriment reigned supreme. The menu, like the menu card, was an elaborate one and the manner in which the good things on the table disappeared bore ample testimony not only to their quality, but as well to the appetites of the company, which took some time to be worn off. The menu card was printed and presented by Holbrooks Limited, whose representative at the banquet was H. Gilbert Nobbs.

Therefore, in a word, it may be said that harmony, good fellowship, good management, a splendid supper and a delightful programme all combined to make the affair such a success that it will remain fresh in the memories of those fortunate enough to be present for years to come.

Men Behind the Gun.

The officers and executive of the London Retail Grocers' Association through whose energy the banquet was arranged are:

President—Thomas Shaw.

Vice-President—John Diprose.

Second Vice-President—Garfield McCormick.

Treasurer—E. J. Ryan.

Secretary—Cyril Hayes.

Executive—E. S. Linnell. Wm. T. Mullins, James Wilkey, R. A. Ross, H. S. Marshall, P. H. Ranahan and R. J. Donaghy.

The Toast List.

The health of the King was loyally drunk and this was the beginning of the end of the evening's enjoyment. President Shaw, when he arose to introduce the various toasts, was greeted by prolonged applause. It gave him great pleasure to see so many of the retail grocers of the Forest City in attendance at this the second annual banquet. It was a great credit indeed to the grocery trade to see such an assemblage of representatives meeting in common fellowship. He welcomed the members of the wholesale trade, the travelers and the manufacturers, intimating the good feeling shown by the uniting and mingling of all in the same banquet hall, and he expressed the desire that results beneficial to all would ensue.

A cablegram expressing greetings from Holbrooks, Limited, London, Eng., and regrets at not being able to be present from M. Masuret, E, Masuret, S, Screaton, C. Tune, C. Mountjoy and W. Nichol were read by the secretary, Cyril Hayes.

The Wealth of Canada.

In response to the toast to "Canada," which was drunk amid much enthusiasm, T. B. Escott, of T. B. Escott & Co. wholesale grocers, London, gave many interesting statistics showing the marvelous wealth and vastness of the Dominion. In introducing his address, he referred to the pleasure it gave him to be present, particularly because he himself was an old grocer.

JOHN DIPROSE,

Vice-President of the Association and Vice-Toastmaster at the Banquet.

"Grocers' and grocery travelers' company is the best I can be in," he remarked, amid applause, "and as I have here both, it is a pleasure to join with you on this festive occasion."

In replying to the toast to Canada, he had undertaken a large subject when the country's great extent was taken into consideration. It is nearly as large as the Continent of Europe, and when we consider the many nations there we begin to wonder. We are almost a continent of our own with many natural advantages. Our waterways modelled by nature's own hand, stretch almost from coast to coast, and we can travel 6,000 miles by boat with a break of only some hundred and fifty miles. We have the largest fresh water lake in the world and yet only 3½ per cent. of our entire domain is water. Canada has the finest and best water power in the world and her fisheries last year totalled over $26,000,000, with an export of more than $12,000,000, and which gave employment to 88,000 men.

The vastness of the mineral wealth of Canada is as yet unknown. In 1906 the total production amounted to $80,000,000, and we are told that no more than one-tenth our mineral fields have yet been explored. Canada has the largest silver mines in the world, having in the last thirteen months paid $5,000,000 in dividends. Nickel, asbestos, corundum and coal are found in abundance. We have the largest forests in the world; these occupy some 1,600,000 square miles and in this respect no nation in the world can approach Canada. The wealth standing aloft in them is inestimable, the United States only have one-third the forests we have.

A Government Mistake.

The Government has set apart 20,000,000 acres as reserves, but it has made a mistake in allowing so much of our forests to be cut out in blocks and distributed to individuals.

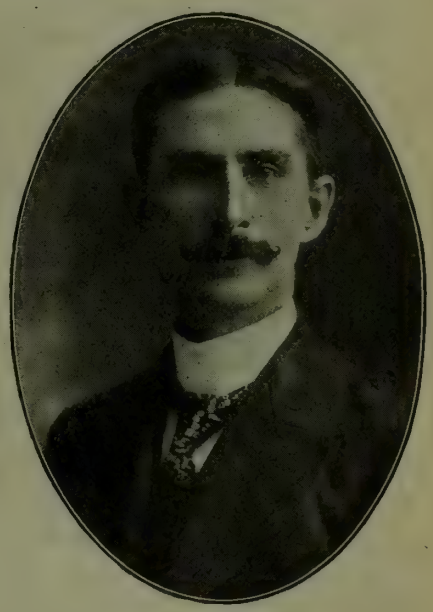
Canada's wheat fields, we are told comprise some 171,000,000 acres, with only about 6,000,000 under cultivation. If all were under cultivation, yielding on an average of 10 bushels, which is a low estimate, it would mean 1,710,000,000 bushels, representing an enormous sum of money.

"Considerable talk has been heard as to the future policy which Canada will pursue towards England, but," said Mr. Escott, "you can rest assured that we will always remain loyal to the Motherland, and we can if necessary in time of war, supply her with the wheat she requires and we can build a fleet to protect it on its passage across the ocean."

Twenty-five years ago the whole of the Northwest had only twenty-five head of cattle and now she can boast of 1,500 000 head, the exports in 1908 amounting to more than $12,000,000. Great Britain, is, of course, our best customer.

Canadian manufacturies have also made an enormous increase. We have now more than 15,000 establishments, large and small, and during the last five years alone about thirty different and new classes of manufacturies have been added. The sign of progress is surely written across our country.

November of this year will be the centenary of the foundation of the steamboat in Canada. Advancement along this line has been wonderful and Mr. Escott jocularly remarked at this juncture that in a hundred years from now "we" should be going to the north pole in balloons or air ships—and Mr. Escott has now at least passed the half-century mark himself.



"Canadians are going to cut a great swath in this continent in the future, just the same as we have done in the past; we have the climate and the resources and we have the men with the iron wills who will subdue all opposition."

Mr. Escott enumerated the importance of Canada from its railway, steamboat, banking, emigration and educational standpoints, giving statistics illustrating that we have much to feel proud of. His address in its every sentence brought forward surprising facts and left much food for thought among the assembled business men.

Masters Barr and Mullins, two juveniles, sang a duet and sang it so well they were called upon for an encore number, which they gracefully gave.

The Mercantile Interests.

The duty of responding to the toast "Our Mercantile Interests" fell upon Col. A. M. Smith, of A. M. Smith & Co., wholesale grocers, London.

E. J. RYAN,

Treasurer of the Association and a Firm Believer in Its Usefulness.

It gave him great pleasure to be present as a guest of such an important association and to meet so many old friends about the banquet board.

"I have been asked," he said, "to say a few words on the subject—"The Mercantile Interests." The mercantile interests of this country are very important, second only to the agricultural. Notwithstanding the passive neglect and active discouragement of all the Governments, the mercantile interests are prospering and will prosper because they are absolutely necessary to the welfare of the country."

When a new country was being settled, first comes the farmer, and very soon after the store, they cannot do without it; later on and far behind come one by one the other interests. He often wondered at the equanimity of merchants when he saw from time to time legislation enacted to meet the wishes of and in favor of the various other interests, but any legislation which applied specially to the merchants was always enacted to unfairly coerce and hamper them to the inconvenience of the public, and the enactments were so worded that no one could interpret them.

Something to Think Over.

"Should you not let the Governments realize that the influence of the mercantile community is not a negligible quantity?" he asked. "But your attitude towards that subject is perhaps on a par with your attitude towards the all-important subject of making a living. While on the one hand, I see the members of all the other interests, professions, trades, etc., endeavoring to get the highest possible remuneration for their services, on the other hand I see the members of your branch of the mercantile community endeavoring to find how little they can induce the people to pay them for their services; sometimes succeeding in inducing the public to pay so little as hardly to cover the necessary postages. Again, I sometimes stand astounded at the generosity of the retail merchants in the matter of undue credit. These subjects deserve careful thought.

Commerce he added, has always been the enricher of nations. It may be safely said that agriculture is not the paramount interest of Great Britain, as it is of Canada, but that Britain's greatness has been built up by manufacturing, trade and commerce. By those interests the United Kingdom, a mere speck on the map, has made herself the greatest nation on the face of the globe and has built up the most stupendous foreign trade in manufactures ever known in the history of the world.

"We are told," said Col. Smith, "that the United Kingdom imports three-quarters, more or less, of her principal foods, and here I would like to say a few words with great earnestness, I would say, 'Let no Canadian move so much as a feather's weight of influence towards inducing any British Government to put clogs on the wheels of that magnificent trade, or to impose taxes on the cheapest food of their poorest people, for the purpose of putting a few more dollars into the pockets of the prosperous Canadian farmers;' the farmers neither ask nor desire it; the Canadian Government does not ask it and has no idea of giving the imaginary 'Quid pro quo.' Let each country regulate her mercantile policy to suit herself and in case of any measure proving unsatisfactory it may be changed without involving these countries in dangerous misunderstandings."

A vocal solo by Edward Webster followed, and as the singer possesses a splendid voice his selection was encored and he also had to respond with another.

Hospitality of the Grocer.

All then filled their glasses and drank to the health of "Our Manufacturers," the first responder being H. Gilbert Nobbs, manager in Canada and the United States for Holbrooks, Limited, of England.

"In inviting the manufacturers to participate in this magnificent banquet you have once more exhibited that hospitality which every traveler knows exists among you," said Mr. Nobbs. "We have been with you as part and parcel of your business—to assist you in supplying the household needs to the general public. We appreciate your invitation and welcome, as our visit here has the effect of broadening our ideas and giving us a greater pleasure in doing business."

In Canada Mr. Nobbs had noticed that the retail grocers worked on a much more friendly basis than in England. There seemed to be a desire on their parts to work more in harmony with the wholesalers and manufacturers. He congratulated the grocers on their splendid organization and upon the existence of such a friendly feeling among them.

CYRIL HAYES,

One of the Bright Workers of the Association as Secretary, Though as Yet in His Teens.

Competitor Yet Friend.

"You are setting an example," he said, "to the grocery trade of the world; you can sit down beside your competitor and call him 'friend'. You are unselfish and you have busy men amongst you giving up part of their time in doing what they can to better the retail trade. I know of places where grocers keep open until midnight and call that living, where they cut prices and work individually. Here you feed and you flourish."

Mr. Nobbs again remarked that the manufacturers highly appreciated the honor conferred on them by the London Retail Grocers' Association in inviting them to their annual banquet, and congratulated those in charge for its splendid success.

Robert Wallace, the Toasted Corn Flakes' London representative, also replied to this toast. He offered his thanks for the welcome he received, and it was a revelation to him to know that so many grocers in London could be gotten together in one banquet hall.

"That such a number could possibly assemble is certainly a surprise to me," he concluded.

Another vocal solo was rendered, this time by M. McKeough, who soon became a favorite with the merry company. His Irish dialect found ready listeners and when he gave "Harrigan" as an encore everybody felt like singing the chorus, and everybody enjoyed it.

Toast to Trade Journal.

Toastmaster Shaw proposed the health of "Our Trade Journal," which was briefly responded to by the editor of The Canadian Grocer. He advocated the organization of a Provincial Grocers' Association similar to what the Ontario hardware men enjoy, and which they represent as being successful beyond their expectations. Over in the United States each State had its individual grocers' organization, and all of these were affiliated with the National Association, which contained some 350,000 members and which had become a force in the affairs relative to the grocery trade of the country across the border. The Division Court Act was something now attracting the attention of many grocers, and with a provincial organization the grocers would have some weight in presenting their views to the Legislature requesting desired changes. This would be but one of many benefits that might be derived.

From the size of the London Grocers' Association, from its enthusiasm for its work, and from what he had learned concerning its aggressiveness he considered that it should take the lead in getting other associations interested in the movement with a view to the formation of a provincial organization. He had with him the copy of a motion passed by the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association referring to the matter and which was read as follows:—

C. W. Clark, Mover.
J. S. Bond, Seconder.

We, the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association assembled, send to the London Retail Grocers' Association our greetings and wish them every success at the banquet.

We also approve of any effort made toward a provincial organization, and promise our aid and co-operation.

J. C. BEAUMONT, Secretary.
February 15, 1909.

The above motion was received with applause, showing the interest the Forest City men take in the proposal.

A solo by Percy Spence followed, and as occurred with the vocalists that preceded him, his song was appreciated and he had to sing again.

They Love Them Still.

When the toast to "Our Travelers" was announced everybody tipped their glasses to the health of the "Knights of the Grip," the first to respond being Wm. Turnbull, of Edward Adams & Co., wholesale grocers, of London. He thanked the grocers for the manner in which the travelers had been treated, remarking humorously that "with all our faults you love us still."

He recalled to memory the time when he first went on the road, remarking that traveling was in reality an evolution of our own time. It was, however, a development of commerce and it had come to stay. The retail merchants have to have the traveler come around and sell him the goods and the merchants themselves understood this. The merchant now recognizes the advantage of the man on the road, not merely because he sells him goods, but on account of the information regarding the trade that he brings with him.

"The traveler is pretty well tied up," said Mr. Turnbull, "he has two masters to serve—his customer and his employer."

There were many who did not realize the extent of the grocery trade in London and he pointed out that annually about $1,500,000 worth of business was turned over. Goods from all countries of the world, and fish from every sea come under the eye of the grocer—and his business is therefore important. He did not like to hear the grocer condemn his own trade and asked them all to remember that it took time to educate the people. Concluding, he hoped the good feeling manifested at the banquet would always exist between the traveler and the trade.

Woman the First Traveler.

The response to the toast to the travelers was augmented by F. E. Tobias, whose witty speech proved one of the features of the evening.

"I see at the head of this menu card: 'Let him be sure to leave other men their turn to speak,' and gentlemen, that's my introduction."

Next he took issue with Mr. Turnbull concerning the latter's statement that traveling was a development of modern times.

"My opinion, after deep research," he said," is that traveling is older than the hills—it began in Eden and the first was a woman named Eve. It is a common belief that the first article of commerce was an apple, but I think it was a lemon, for at any rate Adam raised 'Cain' about it when he got 'Able'."

Continuing in this humorous vein Mr. Tobias believed there were two styles of traveling—the ancient and modern. He himself would like to be classed as the "modern antique." There are the new travelers and old liars and he could not be called either.

He thanked the association for their kindness and appreciated the invitation to be at the banquet.

"While I don't want to be considered a beggar," he added, "if you have another next year, don't forget yours truly." He finished his address by a dramatic presentation of Ella Wheeler Wilcox's poem, "The Commercial Traveler."

Joseph Boyd, traveler for Red Rose Tea, expressed his thanks to the grocers of London for the privilege of spending such a pleasant evening, and assured them of the harmonious feeling the travelers held towards them.

Very appropriately Chas. H. Earle, a young traveler for the Atlantic Fish Co., was next called upon for a solo. As he possesses a splendid voice and facile expression, he, too, was heard again, as well as later on in the evening, when nothing would satisfy the delighted company except a triple response to loud applause.

Are Loyal Londoners.

London grocers are all loyal to their city, judging from the reception given His Worship Mayor Stevely when he entered the dining hall, and again when he arose to reply to the toast to "The City of London." He appreciated the hearty manner in which the toast was drunk, because there was nothing nearer or dearer to them all than their native home. He was pleased to be present on the occasion of the grocers' banquet and humorously remarked that had he the privilege of arranging the dates of all the banquets he attended he would not have to eat at home at all.

Refers to Hardware Convention.

Mayor Stevely is a hardware man and in touching upon the proposed provincial organization referred to the hardwaremen's convention held recently in Hamilton, which had been a splendid success and a great benefit to Hamilton as well as to members of the hardware trade. He had invited the convention to London for next year.

His Worship gave an interesting account of the advance London had made and was making in the commercial and educational arenas. He said that more working men own their homes in London than in any other city in Canada.

"There is no room for knockers," he declared, "we want boosters."

T. Ranahan, another of the entertainers, contributed a solo, which was appreciated by the audience; an encore was demanded and responded to.

To the Retail Grocers.

Vice toastmaster John Diprose proposed the next toast—"The Retail Grocers' Association of London"—which was replied to by E. J. Ryan, the treasurer, and R. J. Donaghy, of the executive.

"This toast is perhaps the most important one on the list," said Mr. Ryan. "We have practically every retail grocer in the city on our membership list and our organization has brought them all together where they can talk over business matters as friends and not as bitter opponents. A few years ago the grocers used to outbid each other every day on the market but things are different now. We can, nevertheless, do a great deal more by turning out to the meetings.

"We have, of course, our faults; we occasionally have some black sheep who remain away from the fold instead of attending meetings and lending their assistance. If mistakes are sometimes made, do not blame the officers. Our president has worked hard and done everything possible to make matters run smoothly.

Bargain Hunters Only.

"I never could understand," continued Mr. Ryan, "why some grocers always wanted to undersell his fellow merchants; one man cannot do all the business, and when prices are cut it does away with the profit, whereas if they are not there is plenty of room for all to do a nice business and make some money. The man who is always offering bargains will soon have nobody but bargain hunters coming into his store."

As an example of fair dealing with one another Mr. Ryan referred to the biscuit manufacturers. They fight their battles on the merits of their goods, and grocers should do the same.

He complimented President Shaw and Secretary Hayes on the good work they were doing in increasing the membership. The association was also doing a good work in getting after the hucksters and peddlers. It was not considered that the present license of $30 for the latter to do business was enough and at the last meeting a deputation had been appointed to wait on the city council to have it further increased.

Replies to One's Thoughts.

Mr. Ryan paid a compliment to The Grocer when he said: "I would ask every retail merchant here to read the Canadian Grocer. It answers questions without being asked."

It was also the duty, he said, of every grocer if he wished to further the interests of the trade, to attend the meetings of the association and not to criticise what was done when they were not present. If they did this they would be not only doing themselves some good but the trade at large.

Favors Large Organization.

In his reply to the toast Mr. Donaghy said he appreciated the honor of having been chosen among so many to speak, and also the honor of having the travelers present at the banquet. He urged better attendance at the regular meetings, as everybody could be accommodated. Knockers were not wanted, but what was desired was boosters to come out regularly and attend the sessions.

The association was responsible for the Wednesday afternoon closing arrangement in June, July and August; it produced harmony between themselves and the wholesaler so that now trade was going through the proper channels.

One thing that should be discouraged was the 20-pound bags of sugar, and even the 100-pound bags of sugar should be likewise treated.

"The London grocers want the credit for causing Sir Wm. Macdonald to reduce the price of tobacco," said Mr. Donaghy.

"Last autumn we told him we were making a profit of 11 per cent. when it cost us 20 per cent. to do business. It started him thinking and he lowered the price—that's something the London association has done.

Mr. Donaghy strongly favored the formation of a Provincial Grocers' Association similar to the National Association across the border.

"We should amalgamate," he said, "with the grocers of Toronto and Hamilton and other places, meet once a year, talk over our grievances and have papers read by well informed men of the trade."

His remarks, judging by the applause, met with the approval of the members.

To the Ladies.

A well rendered solo by Clyde Nopper followed, giving W. H. McK. Millman an opportunity to recall to memory some of his thoughts regarding "The Ladies," whose healths were most heartily drunk. Mr. Millman championed their cause by paying numerous pretty compliments to them all of which seemed to be endorsed by the entire company.

Chas. Earle again responded to the call for a song and with "Brannigan's Pup" as an introduction he had to follow up with two more before the appetites of his audience could be even partly satiated.

A Word from the Guests.

On behalf of the guests Chas. McGuire, representing the Queen City Oil Co., and Jas. McDougall, of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co., referred to the good fellowship existing among the members of the trade.

"In holding these banquets," said the latter, "you get better acquainted and you become more sociable with one another. We go through the world but once and men should aim at something higher than the almighty dollar. Let us be able to say when we go to our offices that we go anticipating a business day of pleasure."

He thought the wholesalers of London could do nothing better than to follow the example of the retailers and hold a banquet for the sake of getting a better knowledge of one another.

Clem Garvey, another guest, referred to the pleasure it gave him to be there. Wholesaler and retailer did not meet often enough, he thought, in order to derive every benefit possible. With the sign of prosperity in London better times could be looked forward to, and he hoped that the association would continue to prosper in the future.

The speeches ended, the singing of God Save the King brought to a conclusion an evening of profit and pleasure that will not soon be forgotten by the Retail Grocers' Association of the Forest City.

Grocers and Their Guests.

Those in attendance at the banquet were:—George Armstrong, Phil. C. Powell, Frank A. McCormick, James S. McDougall, Robert Wallace, T. B. Escott, Thomas Shaw, Wm. Turnbull, H. Gilbert Nobbs, John Marr, Wm. Gorman, Harry Ranahan, A. McPherson, J. A. McFarlane, C. W. Summers, C. W. McGuire, A. M. Masuret, W. H. McK. Millman, W. C. Falls, Clem Garvey, C. H. Earle, N. R. Post-Banquet Remarks.

To the King—God bless the great white Prince of Peace.

There was no trouble in sight—therefore the Colonel was there.

One manufacturer at least gave plenty of "sauce" to the banqueters.

President Tom Shaw's genial smile had everybody hypnotized, judging from the manner in which they enjoyed themselves.

There was nothing "hayesy" about the banquet, although Cyril is the secretary—except, of course, "My Lady Nicotine."

The speaker who said that a woman was the first traveler was probably right; he might have added—she was the cause of it all.

Vice-Toastmaster John Diprose kept strict order at the other end of the hall.

"Brannigan's Pup" was the only dog that passed the guard at the door; but he was a very welcome canine.

The glad hand was extended to everybody by R. J. Donaghy, the chairman of the reception committee.

For a sugar story that was only a dream, ask Jas. McDougall.

"Oh, Garfield, Garfield, did that chicken see you dressing!" was whispered in the ear of one of the vice-presidents.

Robert Wallace, might appropriately have been the "toast" master at the banquet.

Deep Ryan pie with treasury cream was conspicuous on the menu card.

Charlie Earle can catch more than fish. He caught the ears of the company with his catchy songs.

McKinley Millman can certainly be recognized as an authority when the fair sex are in question. He talked about them for 30 minutes, more or less, and had not even one disparaging word to say of them.

NEW BILL OF LADING.

Limiting Liability of Vessels for Short Weight—Discussed by Corn Exchange.

A meeting of the Committee of Management of the Montreal Corn Exchange Association was held last week to consider the new bill of lading adopted by the owners of all Canadian grain carrying vessels for use on grain cargoes from Port Arthur and Fort William during the coming season. This is the bill of lading limiting the liability of the vessels for short weight in cargo at the point of out-turn, which the shipping people declared was necessitated by the lax methods of weighing at the ports of shipment, and which they were unable to rectify in spite of numerous complaints to the Government.

A report was presented by President Jos. Quintal, of the Corn Exchange, and Alex. McFee, in which they set forth that they had attended the annual meeting of the Dominion Marine Association at Ottawa last week, and made fruitless efforts to induce the association not to put the new bill of lading into force this season. The report set forth that the Dominion Marine Association had refused to recede from its present position with regard to the new bill of lading, but that it had promised to assist the shippers of grain by every means possible in endeavoring to secure a remedy which would decrease or remove the present discrepancies in the weighing of grain cargoes

No action was taken by the Corn Exchange Committee in the matter, but it was decided in the meantime to exchange views with grain men at Winnipeg and see what further could be done.

Jos. Quintal presided over the meeting, and the other members present were:—A. Y. Chaplin, E. S. Jaques, Paul B. Earle, J. J. Norris and Alex. McFee.

NEW WINNIPEG AGENCIES.

W. H. Escott has recently been appointed agent for Winnipeg and West for the Quaker Oats Co., and for J. W. Windsor, Montreal. For the latter he will specialize on Balmoral jam. Business prospects in the West are exceedingly bright for this year and many manufacturers are looking for good representatives.

HEARTS OF WHEAT OFFICERS.

Officers were elected on Friday, Feb. 19th. of Hearts of Wheat Company, Limited, one of the most recent additions to the cereal enterprises in Canada. The meeting was held at the office Scott Street, Toronto. The officers elected were: N. H. Stevens, president; J. J. Dyer, vice-president; B. H. Blakeslee, managing director; Wm. Junor, secretary-treasurer, and J. A. Walker, K.C., solicitor.

THE COFFEE MEN AROUSED

Report Circulated to Effect that Coffee is Being Stored in Canada to be Hurried Across Border in Case of Tariff Change—Canada Supposed to be Receiving Abnormal Supplies From Brazil Via England—Views of Canadian Coffee Men.

An announcement of a somewhat sensational character is made in the New York Journal of Commerce of February 17th, referring to conditions supposed to be existing whereby Brazilian coffee is shipped in large quantities to Canada via London and stored in this country in order to be in readiness to be hurried across the border into the United States should any change in the tariff occur there. In view of this report a number of widely known Canadian coffee men were requested and have given interviews to the Grocer on this question which is now causing considerable interest on the other side.

The Journal of Commerce says:

"Another report of distinct interest in the first hand coffee trade was that a movement on a large scale had been begun to ship coffee from London to Canada, storing it in the Dominion, so that it can be rushed into this country at a moment's notice in the event of prompt action being required. Coffee is on the free list in Canada if imported direct from the country of production or if imported indirectly through bonded warehouses in the United Kingdom. This coffee will therefore come under the latter provision. It has not yet been possible to secure specific confirmation of the Canadian reports. According to stories which have been circulated in the West Side grocery trade within the past few days from across the Canadian border, the interests which are most vitally interested in valorization and in having the Ways and Means Committee of Congress place coffee under substantial protection are working an interesting coup through the ports of Canada. According to these stories, the large importations of coffee into Canada—far beyond the normal necessities of the country—have been a matter of comment and discussion for the past two or three weeks. Investigation there, according to the reports in question, tends to indicate that much of it is being stored in warehouses for the account of American consignees, or parties representing them. The trade has reasoned out that it is merely a plan to take hasty and secret advantage of the pending coffee tariff in this country in case the Ways and Means Committee decides to recommend such a duty. If the goods were entered directly at any American port, the purpose would be evident at a glance, whereas entry in Canada would disarm suspicion. The goods already stored—no figures are given, but the amount is understood to be large—could be rushed across the American line within twenty-four hours of the enactment of a duty by Congress or in the advance of such enactment if it was practically assured.

Montreal Men's Views.

Mr. Anderson, of Chase & Sanborn, Montreal, stated that he thought there was nothing whatever in the report and that such a scheme was too much of a gamble to be entertained seriously.

Mr. Halford of S. T. Nishimura & Co. stated that he had heard nothing of such a movement.

The Montreal manager of Thos. Wood & Co. said he knew nothing of such a thing happening and it appeared to him to be rather a dangerous undertaking financially.

Herron, Leblanc Ltd. disclaimed any knowledge of such a move.

Mr. Reilly of the Amrita Tea Co. knew nothing of it before stating it was the first time it had been brought to his attention.

What Toronto Men Say.

In speaking to Geo. Musson & Co., Woodley Musson stated it was a feasible plan alright, but that he had heard nothing about it. He could readily see the reason why such a course might be followed, but thought that Montreal would be the more likely place for storing the coffee. That city would be a handy distributing point for Canada as well. Extra freight charges to Toronto and other inland ports would, he considered, prevent shipments being brought so far, whereas Halifax and other maritime cities would be too far distant for distribution in Canada. He had, however heard nothing about the condition of affairs as alleged in the Journal of Commerce.

"We know absolutely nothing about it," said T. B. Greening of the Pure Gold Co. "I saw the article to which you refer in the Journal of Commerce, and we have written to England and New York to try and obtain more particulars about it. I rather think, however, it has been greatly exaggerated."

HAS SODA WATER FOUNTAIN

Oakville Grocery Store Also Carries Fine Line of Confections—Equipped in Modern Fashion—Flowers for Decorations—A Bright, Clean and Attractive Interior.

A first glance at the picture of the interior of J. L. Hewson's grocery store at Oakville, Ont., reveals that it belongs to a man who has modern ideas in store equipment. It is roomy and bright, clean and attractive, and equipped in up-to-date fashion. The general impression is that it is a well built store and one well looked after, and a second glance does not make one's opinion differ. It is 55 feet in length and 27 feet wide.

At the rear, in one corner will be observed the office, with a glass front, and a door leading to the storeroom at the rear.

On a marble-covered counter just outside the office is a handsome soda water fountain and the picture of it certainly denotes cleanliness. Mr. Hewson states that the introduction of the fountain has proved a profitable investment.

Carries Confectionery.

Next to this counter is a confectionery show-case with swinging glass shelves, and from the appearance of the interior, Mr. Hewson carries a fine line of goods. Shelves to the rear of this, containing bottled goods, make that side of the store rather attractive. Fruit and vegetables are arranged in conspicuous places on the floor.

On the opposite side and to the rear sample breakfast package goods occupy the shelves and towards the front other package and canned goods are displayed. The counters are so clean they reflect as a mirror the articles on them.

Floral Decorations.

In the matter of store decorations Mr. Hewson has some tasty ideas. On the one side will be observed a beautiful fern on the showcase on the counter, and on the other a pretty flower beside the soda water fountain. Flowers are almost always appreciated and particularly so by the ladies who come into the store.

Oakville has electric light and Mr. Hewson, it will be noticed, uses it in his store. No stoves appear in the store to attract the dirt, but instead it is heated by furnace and hot air registers.

On the whole Mr. Hewson has a store of which he may well feel proud and one from which others may easily secure some good ideas.

CANNED FOODS INSPECTORS.

Those Who are Acting for the Government and Their Salaries.

Under the Meat and Canned Foods Act of Canada inspectors are appointed by the government not for particular provinces, their services being available for the whole Dominion as they may be required. This comes under the Department of Agriculture and the inspectors at present serving in Ontario under the Act and their salaries are as follows :

Bone, D. R., V.S., $900 ; Brown, Dennis, $900 ; Brownridge, G. S., V.S, $1,200 ; Bruce, E. A., V.S., $1,300 ; Dickinson, S. S., V.S., $1,200 ; Edgecome, J., $900 ; Edgett, C. FOR MONTREAL ONLY.

We regret that it was erroneously stated in our issue of Jan. 29th, that S. T. Nishimura & Co. had been appointed sole agents for the sale of Rowley, Davies & Co.'s Java teas for the whole of the Dominion, which should have read for Montreal, instead of the Dominion. Stuart Watson & Co., Winnipeg, are agents there, as well as in the west.

SCOTT, THE MASTER MERCHANT

Proprietor of General Store in Village on the Prairie a Leader Among His Class—Provides Rest Rooms for Men and Women and Stables for the Farmers' Horses—Believes in Service and Advertising.

By Thos. Dreier, in American Paint and Oil Dealer.

Right at the start, in Bro. Clark's magazine for retail merchants, I want to burn a little incense before George E. Scott, unquestionably the most advanced and most successful country merchant of modern times. In the little village of Prairie Farm, in Northern Wisconsin, six miles from a railroad, Scott has built a store the like of which can be seen nowhere else. Thirty thousand dollars was its cost, and it was built in the centre of a three-acre plot of ground upon which many hundreds of dollars were spent in landscape gardening. The store itself resembles a California mission, and one looking at it would take it to be a library or some college building. Yet it is "just a country store"—a place where men and women and children are sold the necessities, and a few of the luxuries, of life. Scott preaches his business gospel from this text: "Quality of Goods and Excellence of Service." To him the mail order bugaboo does not exist. He gives satisfaction. And, you know, the merchant who wraps every article in satisfaction most certainly makes of each customer a link in an endless chain for the bringing of more customers. In the Scott store is to be found a stock that is fresh and clean and up to date. Special rooms are provided for customers, in which the women may lie down and rest after their long drive across the prairie, and where the men may gather and talk as men sometimes like to talk. In the women's room is found hot and cold water, towels, books and magazines, couches, easy-chairs—everything that is needed for the comfort of those hard-working women of the farms. The store itself is airy and light and clean. No posters desecrate its walls. Its floors are always clean. Behind the store is a barn in which the teams of all customers are sheltered free of cost. Around the store are no posts to which unthinking farmers may tie their beasts in the winter cold.

Guide to Customers.

And the result of all this is that Scott gets the trade and is making money. He finds it pays big dividends in dollars and cents, not to mention the satisfaction which comes to a man who is engaged in doing certain work better than it was ever done before. Scott has been sent to the legislature year after year without a single vote registered in opposition. What a record for a successful business man! To his customers he is a guide, philosopher and friend. To him they tell their troubles, and from him they get help. There is much more I might say about Scott and his work. But this hint will serve for the present. Let country merchants and city merchants everywhere learn the lesson that Scott teaches so successfully. Let them all learn that the only reason mail order houses succeed is because there is a need for them. If country merchants can serve their customers better than mail order houses can serve them, and if they advertise so that the home folks may know of this service, the mail order houses will be forced to quit. Let us not fear to look this matter squarely in the face. The mail order houses have not all the good on their side. Neither have the smaller merchants. Both can improve. The question before us then is: Will the merchants improve enough to overcome the lead which the mail order houses have undeniably secured? Scott did. Scott won and is winning. "SERVICE"—in this sign he is conquering.

TO AMEND PHARMACY ACT.

Bill in Legislature Would Allow Merchants to Sell Household Remedies.

A bill has been introduced in the Ontario Legislature which if it becomes law will remove a restriction on the retail grocers enacted through the influence of the druggists. P. H. Bowyer, M.P.P. for East Kent, has brought in the bill which is in the form of an amendment to the Pharmacy Act, and is intended to give rural store-keepers the right to sell "harmless household remedies."

Formerly all but qualified druggists were prohibited from selling poisons, and later a change was made to include all drugs and medicinal remedies. During the past year an agent of the Ontario Pharmacal Association has traveled throughout the country enforcing the Act, and this has resulted in the fining of several country shopkeepers $25 and costs for the sale of a few cents worth of some harmless remedy such as quinine or salts. Storekeepers promptly discontinued carrying even the simplest things, and to-day Mr. Bowyer says farmers are compelled to drive ten or twelve miles to a drug store for anything they may want. His bill is aimed at correcting this, and he states that he has several druggists behind him as support.

TRADE NOTES.

John Shaw, grocer, Goderich, has sold to W. Hern.

The Wylie Milling Co., Almonte, recently sustained loss by fire.

T. Briscoe & Co., general merchants, Earlton, has sold his business.

F. G. Woolnough, grocer, Niagara Falls, has sold to J. S. Baxter.

Alphonse Gratton, grocer, Toronto, advertises his business at 1642 Queen St. for sale.

James E. Montgomery, grocer and butcher, Toronto, has sold his Dundas St. business to Harry McClement.

T. E. Morrow, of Jarvis, Ont., writes the Grocer that as he has been in the grocery business continuously since 1875 he believes he is entitled to a rest and contemplates selling his business.

SUCCESS FROM SERVICE.

The reader's attention is directed to a column in the news section of this issue referring to the methods by which George E. Scott, known as the master merchant, is making a success of the retail business in a country store. He has advanced ideas of serving the public who come to his store and, in fact, he bases all his success upon service.

The inclinations of the farmers and their wives have been particularly studied. A special room has been provided for the women who at their leisure may lie down for a rest after their lengthy drives, or use the bathroom, books, magazines and easy-chairs. Another room is set apart for the men. At the rear of the store the proprietor has erected a barn where the farmers can shelter their horses free of cost.

Quality of goods and excellence of service, is the motto of Scott, who cares nothing for the mail order houses. He declares that if country merchants can serve their customers better than the mail order houses, and if they advertise for the benefit of those living in their community, the mail order houses will be forced to quit.

The idea of providing rooms of rest in connection with a retail store for those who come from a distance is not a new one. The Grocer has advocated from time to time this scheme as one which would certainly bring results, and the experience of Scott in his country store in the western prairie has substantiated our contentions. For a retail business in a small town, village or even out in the country the proposition is one deserving of more than a passing thought.

IMPORTANCE OF CAREFULNESS.

Statistics gathered in connection with fires which occurred in the United States during last year indicate that out of eleven thousand fires almost 23 per cent. were caused through carelessness. Of this percentage more than half is attributed to the careless use of matches.

Business men cannot emphasize too much the importance of carefulness upon their clerks. A thorough training in the necessity for the development of this trait in one's character may often mean dollars and cents to the merchant. A business destroyed by fire frequently means the entire destruction of that business, and the financial ruin of the proprietor.

Impress upon clerks and all store assistants the importance of taking pains to prevent fires and develop it in yourselves. If necessary placards calling attention to this should be placed in a conspicuous position in the stores.

CHINESE PIGS.

At the recent annual meeting of the Peninsular & Oriental Steam Navigation Company, the chairman announced that it was intended this year to introduce Chinese pigs into Great Britain. The company looked forward with hopes to this trade as they believed they would be carrying these pigs in thousands by means of refrigeration. If this hope is realized it means that the already extensive shipments of the poorer classes of pigs to the British markets will be augmented. There will always be a good market for the best in Great Britain but it seems unfortunate that with the exception of certain fancy brands Canadian bacon is not able to compete with Irish or Danish. There is, of course, no reason why it should not, except the failure of Canadians to turn out what the market requires. Not many years ago the Canadian would not sell a pig until it was hog fat; now he is going to the other extreme and selling before the animal is fit. During the past year some excuse was to be found for falling off in quality in the shortage of milk flow, and the generally high prices of feed, but it is a not altogether good excuse. Farmers might as well make up their minds that if they desire to hold and increase their market they must improve their quality. All should know what a bacon pig is, and how to raise it. They are not living up to their ability because they think they see quick and easy money at turning out cheap goods. When it comes to cheap goods they cannot compete with the Chinamen, despite the long carriage the latter have to pay for. If Canada is going to hold its export trade they must aim at placing on the British market only high-class goods. The Canadian cheese maker recognized this fact and now the Canadian product is held in high esteem there. It will be more profitable to the Canadian shipper to recognize this fact now rather than later on.

THE ONLY REMEDY.

In his reply to the toast to the Mercantile Interests at the banquet of the London Retail Grocers' Association last week, Col. A. M. Smith, a wholesaler of the Forest City, made some statements which deserve thought. He intimated the passive neglect of the governments in advancing the mercantile interests and wondered at the silence of merchants as they saw from time to time legislation being enacted in favor of other interests, but if anything was done particularly for them it was usually enacted to unfairly confine them to the inconvenience of the public. The enactments were usually so worded that no one could interpret them.

Certainly with such existing conditions, the grocers of the provinces should let the governments realize their influence and their importance in the mercantile arena which is second only to that of agriculture.

Col. Smith also remarked that generally the attitude of the grocers towards the subject was perhaps on a par with their attitude towards the all-important question of making a living. He saw that the members of all other interests, professions and trades were endeavoring to get the highest possible remuneration for their services and this stood out prominently when he observed how the members of the grocer's branch of the mercantile community seemed to be endeavoring to see how little they could induce the people to pay them for their services.

The only remedy for such a condition of affairs is unity. An individual grocer can have no influence with a government. Strength of members to force home a point is absolutely necessary to overcome grievances and unless the grocers are organized their single efforts can have no avail. The London Association recognizes this and they now work in harmony when any concession is desired from the city council, and the members of that body have to consider their requests.

Eggs 65 Cents at the Coast—New Officers of Victoria Retail Grocers' Exchange—Regina Wholesale Firm Hold Annual Meeting—Good Quality of Eastern Butter in Vancouver—Calgary Potato Situation.

CALGARY.

February 23.—Potatoes are a feature in this market at present. It does not often occur that potatoes have to be brought in here from the East, but Calgary dealers are now securing supplies at Winnipeg, and it is reported that already some thirty-five cars have been purchased there for shipment to Calgary. Every year large shipments of potatoes are brought in here from Ashcroft and Okanagan in British Columbia. This is not because they are not grown in Alberta. as, usually, they are grown in very large quantities. Many of our people, however, prefer the B. C. potato on account of its being drier. However, this year there is a shortage, as, owing to the somewhat extremely cold weather experienced in British Columbia this winter, many pits of potatoes were frost-bitten, thereby rendering them risky stock to handle. The price of these Eastern potatoes will necessarily be high upon arrival here. The retail price to-day is Alberta's $1.20 and British Columbia's $1.80 per bushel. The local market is well supplied with all other vegetables at usual winter prices, and California celery is now arriving in fine condition. In fresh fruits the market is well supplied with oranges, lemons, apples, bananas, etc., prices being reasonable for the season. Fresh butter and eggs are becoming more plentiful, the former retailing at 30c per lb.; eggs, strictly fresh, 50c per dozen.

In general grocery lines trade is fairly active, and dealers look forward to a steady improvement and a largely increased business as spring approaches.

California dried fruits are largely used in this territory, and we are now approaching the season of greatest consumption. As prices have declined very considerably during the past year, the thousands of consumers of this staple will be benefited. It may be interesting to your readers to know that the jobbers of Calgary, during the year 1908, disposed of over 1,000,000 pounds of California dried fruits, prunes, peaches, apricots, and seeded raisins being the greatest in demand, with a fair proportion of pears, pitted plums, egg plums, and nectarines. This is exclusive of all Mediterranean fruits and Eastern evaporated apples, which are also largely consumed here. At some future date figures showing the approximate number of cars of fresh fruits consumed annually in the district supplied from Calgary will be furnished.

REGINA.

February. 23.—The wholesale grocery firm of Cameron & Heap held their annual meeting on Saturday, January 23. In addition to the local shareholders the following were present from Kenora: W. G. Cameron, L. Johnson, N. Schnarr and G. Pagon. The retiring officers were unanimously re-elected as follows. President, M. K. Heap; vice-president, J. T. Andrews; secretary-treasurer and manager, S, C. Burton. The business for the past year has been satisfactory. The firm is now well established here and each month shows a good increase over the corresponding month of the previous year. In the evening a banquet was held at the King's Hotel at which, in addition to the shareholders, all the employes of the firm were present. The present traveling staff of the firm is composed of W. C. Jones, R. A. Wright, and C. McCreary.

The marriage took place last week of Miss Helen Pope, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pope, Lorne Street, to S. C. Burton, manager of Cameron & Heap's wholesale grocery here. The ceremony was performed in Winnipeg, where Mr. and Mrs. Pope and Mr, and Mrs. Burton are at the present time.

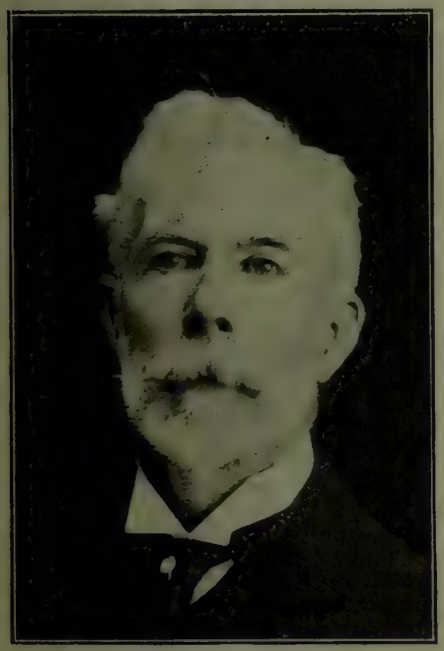
VANCOUVER.

February 23.—The local grocery features centre in butter and eggs. The egg situation is the one talk, and dealers are wondering who, if any, will be caught. It is a game that has to be very carefully played. Everyone is apprehensive that a sudden influx of local eggs will catch some of the commission men with Kansas stock on hand. There are no eastern eggs on the market, and the importations from Kansas are dribbling in in partial carload lots. Some are selling at 45 and others at 40, but the demand is good. Retailers, like the wholesale dealers, are also loath to stock up, consequently not many eggs are to be found in any one particular place. Californias are coming in, but not in large numbers. After a long rest it is expected that British Columbia hens will be wakening up with the Spring and getting down to work. Certainly their efforts will be appreciated, for standard eggs have been missing for a long time.

Local butter is not quite up to the high mark of excellence that it generally is. At this time of year cold storage butter is placed on the market and although the quality is unmistakably poorer there is no change in the price built up by the good butter of the summer time. It is held for 40c, but there was some talk this week of one of the creameries bringing down the price 5c. Australian butter is here at 32c, but since the quality in the past couple of years has not been quite up to the mark, grocers are slow in handling it. Some refrain altogether. Eastern butter comes at 30c. There is a distinct difference in the keeping qualities of eastern butter and the local in cold storage. What is the cause of this has not yet been ascertained. The local butter once it has been frozen hard comes out with a taste not exactly rank, but somewhat off. On the other hand, when eastern butter comes out of the cold it is firm and nice. Whether the difference is due to the food the cows receive in this country, or in the making, it is hard to say.

The first consignment of canned milk has been turned out by the new company in New Westminster, under the name of the B.C. Clover Brand. This is not the venture in the condensed milk line on the Fraser River, and those interested are wondering what the outcome will be. Some years ago, a factory started at Mission, and went along first rate for a time. The present company purchased the plant at New Westminster, after a long idleness. The management has had experience in the business in Washington State and ought to be able to produce an article that will go.

The death took place at New Westminster on Tuesday evening of James Rae, who for over twenty years kept a grocery store in that city. About five months ago he gave up business, going into the customs office.



The Vancouver Prince Rupert Meat Company has absorbed the business of the Cromwell Ormsby Company, of this city. This latter company was established but a few months ago, and as it handled the product of the Swift house at Edmonton it was reported that this was one of the Swift stores in connection with the movement to try and secure some of the trade in the province held by P. Burns & Co. F. T. Cromwell, the leader of the firm, has had trouble with his eyes and has just returned from Chicago, where he went for treatment. An assignment was made last week, since he will not be able to conduct the business. The Vancouver Prince Rupert Meat Company is composed of all the large ranchers in the Ashcroft-Kamloops district, including such men as Thomas Ellis, Price Ellison, M.P., Ex-Governor Cornwall, Senator Bostock, Hon. C. A. Semlin, Joseph Guichon and William Fortune. The company now has thirteen branches, eight in Vancouver, one in New Westminster, three in Victoria and one in Prince Rupert.

The herring season closed in Nanaimo to-day, and the Japanese, who have a monopoly of the business, declare that they have put up 20,000 tons. From a rough estimate, the figure is placed at 15,000 tons, though it may be that this figure will be exceeded. There is perhaps 5,000 tons in stock, and constant shipments have been made during the past few weeks. Every effort was made to catch as many fish as possible before the season closed, and these are now being cured. There is a disposition to lament the fact that the Japs have a monopoly of the business, but they do not make a great deal out of the trade. The market is altogether in Japan, the price having been as low as $15 per ton this year. After expenses have been made perhaps $2 a ton has been realized. The local transportation companies get the best part of the business.

VICTORIA.

Feb. 23.—The annual meeting of the Retail Grocers' Exchange was held Wednesday evening the 10th inst. There was a large attendance and the greatest harmony prevailed. The treasurer's report showed a successful year financially, with a substantial balance in hand to start this year with. The following officers were elected: E. J. Wall, of the Windsor Grocery Co., president; F. Carne, vice-president; T. Redding, treasurer, and S. J. Heald, P. H. Havinson, and S. Greenhalgh, the three directors. T. S. Futcher continues as secretary.

THOS. S. FUTCHER,
Secretary of the Victoria Retail Grocers' Exchange.

Mr. Wall's election as president was unanimous. He has been longer in business than any of his competitors and his genial manners and reliability have secured him many friends.

The Windsor Grocery Co. has a large and modern store including a spirit department and the proprietors are making a success of the business by paying especial attention to the wants of their customers.

Eggs are away up in price, being 65c a doz. The supply from the East seems to have completely failed. The market is demoralized and unless milder weather induces the hens to "get busy" there may be a further advance in the near future.

The last lot of pineapples from Hawaii are of exceptionally good quality and bring from 25 to 60 cents each.

Advices lately received predicted an advance in flour; we have suddenly had an alteration in the opposite direction; one particular brand is retailed at $1.75 per bag and one firm has even made a price of $1.70. The day before everyone was getting $2.00! Something seems to be wrong somewhere and a few days will probably tell what it is.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

February 23.—A number of the wholesale grocery stores on the North and South market wharves were flooded on Saturday last by the high tides which rose to a height of from one-half to almost two feet of water on the wharf. The warehouses of Thomas Gorman, Andrew Malcolm and Elmore & Mullin grocers, were flooded and some damage was also done in John Sealy's fish warehouse. Thomas Gorman suffered the heaviest damage among the grocers. Most of the merchants, when the water commenced to rise so high, moved their goods above the level reached by the flood. Spring tides, together with a strong southeast wind, were responsible for the unusual conditions.

A mild sensation was created on Friday last by the announcement that W. H. Downie, a clerk in the office of T. S. Simms & Co., brush and broom manufacturers, had been choked into unconsciousness while alone in the office at the noon hour, and the company's payroll, some $1,200, had been stolen. The police were notified and after inquiries suspicion centred on Downie, and a search of the office during his absence revealed the missing money hidden in his desk. His arrest followed Friday evening and the case is now before the courts. The police hold the theory that Downie schemed to throw suspicion on someone else by feigning unconsciousness after having secured the money.

Business has been rather quiet during the past week. Ontario flours advanced 10c a barrel on Thursday last, but Manitobas are unchanged up to the present. The dealers are, however, looking for an advance in this line as well. In the produce market butter and potatoes are a little easier. Dry cod and pickled herring are reported scarce, but no change in quotations is yet reported.

Charles D. Trueman, wholesale grocer and commission merchant, who was reported as being in financial difficulties has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, to Charles E. Macmichal, broker, and Henry H. Pickett, barrister. A meting of the creditors is called for Friday, Feb. 26, for the appointment of inspectors and giving directions with reference to the disposal of the estate. At a meeting held last week the committee appointed to look into affairs reported that the assets amounted to $8,142, with direct liabilities, $4,482. The Bank of British North America estimated that it would rank for $5,000, making a total liability of $9,482. The debtor offered to pay 13 cents cash and further payments of nine cents at intervals of six, twelve and eighteen months, making a total of 40 cents in all, but the offer was declined and Mr. Trueman asked to make an assignment.

A number of St. John men, principally retail grocers of this city, are applying to the Provincial Government for incorporation as the Empire Chemical Company with a capital stock of $13,000. The objects of the company are to manufacture and deal in drugs and druggists' specialties of all kinds. The names of the merchants interested are: Herbert G. Currie, merchant; W. Leslie Seely, grocer; Harry G. Martin, grocer; Frederick A. Young, merchant; James A. Cooper, grocer; Orland S. Dykeman, grocer; George W. Colwell, grocer; Israel E. Smith, grocer; David W. White, grocer; Melvin T. Gibbons, grocer; Frank S. Purdy, grocer; Frank T. Coleman, grocer, and John W. Rose, grocer, St, John.

The annual general meeting of the Phillips & White Co., manufacturing confectioners, was held on Monday Feb. 15, when the following board of directors were elected: J. Fraser Gregory, president; J. B. Keenan, vice-president; T. J. Phillips, manager; F. E. Williams and T. J. Durick.

Owing to rough weather in the Bay of Fundy lobsters have been very scarce and high for the past couple of weeks.

The grocery trade is represented in speed skating events by Walter (Happy) Evans, a clerk employed with H. G. McBeath, the retail grocer, on Charlotte Street. Evans is entered for the championship races for the Maritime Provinces in Halifax, and in a series for the championship of St. John he has won the half-mile event and in the 440 yards he lost to Fred Logan, former world's champion. In this latter race Evans fell while close on the leader. Two events—the 220 yards and 1 mile races are yet to be skated. There are four or five contestants in the series.

Seed fairs are to be held in Woodstock, March 18, and in Chatham, March 19. W. H. Woodworth, a fruit grower, of Berwick, N.S., is to speak at Woodstock. The annual meeting of the Farmers' and Dairymen's Association is to be held in Fredericton on March 17 and 18.

GEORGETOWN, P.E.I.

February 23. — Business conditions generally are very much improved. The excellent sleighing is quite a big stimulus to trade. A few grocers are always complaining, but the general information is to the effect that business is quite satisfactory for this season of the year. The wholesale houses also report business good. Collections are proportionately satisfactory.

The principal feature of the week is the rapid advance in the price of pork. Buyers are paying as high as eight and three-quarter cents for first-class hogs. This certainly is an unprecedented price and should make the farmers sit up and think.

A. Maclean & Co. have added to their general stock of groceries a complete line of fresh, salt and smoked fish, also oysters—the United States goods. In conversation with this firm, The Grocer is pleased with the information that their sales of those goods have far exceeded their expectations.

W. A. Johnstone, Montague Bridge is making a specialty of choice smoked ham. Mr. Johnstone is a firm believer in the trade-pulling effect of strong advertising with prices conspicuous.

The smelt and eel business is about over for this season. Quite a quantity were shipped to Toronto, owing chiefly to the unsatisfactory returns made from New York and Boston.

The following are the average market prices throughout the island: White oats, 38c; black oats, 40c; hides, 7c; pressed hay, $8 and $9; loose hay. $8.

The supply of molasses is quite low here. Some fancy Barbadoes is to be had in Charlottetown at 40c per gallon. It will be quite a time yet before any cargoes come here direct. In the meantime grocers who are low in this commodity will have to sell it at a very small margin of profit, as the consumer is very slow to grasp the necessity for an advance.

In a recent issue of The Grocer there was a sentence which contained some excellent advice, "Weigh, count, measure and gauge everything you buy."

George Poole, proprietor of W. A. Poole & Co., Lower Montague, has returned from St. John, where he went to meet Mrs. Poole, who has been spending some months in western Canada and United States.

A large contingent of biscuit and confectionery travelers have been doing the island. The quantity of confectionery consumed amongst our 100,000 inhabitants is enormous. Whether other salesmen find business good or slow those knights of the grip always have full order books on their P. E. Island trip.

L. A. Haszard, Charlottetown, a new grocer, is showing his wisdom by using some space in the local papers. He does not crowd his ads., emphasizing one thing at a time.

Beer & Goff, Charlottetown, are having a special sale of orange marmalade. They advertise one pound glass jars at 15c each or $1.70 per dozen.

MONTREAL.

February 23.—The license commissioners have cancelled the licenses of five grocers in different parts of the city, who were guilty of selling liquor by the glass. The following transfers were granted: D. Spector, 120 St. Lawrence St., to Carrie Aronson, wife of Max Gross, E. Lesperance, 1310 St. Lawrence St. to G. Thouin.

The price of charcoal has been boosted, and the poor are feeling keenly the rise in the price of this fuel. It now costs ten cents a bag. Last month it was possible to purchase three bags for a quarter. The Montreal needy, who use large quantities do not like the new rate. Complaints are being made at many retail stores, but the grocers are powerless as the price has been advanced by the manufacturers. The principal wholesale firm in Montreal is the Standard Chemical Co. They stated that they had simply lowered the price in June, to 75 cents a dozen bags, to stimulate the demand. In winter there was no need to stimulate the demand, the cold weather did this, therefore the price of charcoal was raised to make money. Previously the commodity was being sold without profit. The company did not wish to run another out of business. It was simply following out a policy of its own.

COL. A. L. LABELLE,

Manager of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. for Quebec, Elected President of Hunting Club, Chapleau.

"We wish to take exception to the statement made recently before a meeting of the Montreal Produce Merchants' Association that a butter factory could be equipped with a Pasteurizing plant for about $150," said H. A. Hodgson of Hodgson Bros. & Rowson, recently.

"That statement is misleading and unfair to the proprietor of the butter factory, on the ground that it will retard, more than anything else, the introduction and adoption of this very necessary improvement in our butter trade, from the fact that the proprietor will not be able to obtain from his patrons an increased price for the manufacture of butter, and consequently he will do all in his power to belittle and delay the adoption of pasteurizing, whereas, if a plain statement of the real conditions were made, that is, the cost of making the changes and buying of the machinery, as well as the necessity of employing better and more experienced labor, also the extra fuel and time, the patrons of his factory would then feel the necessity of increasing his remuneration, in which case he would become an interested worker to this end.

"From careful inquiries made by us, we are convinced that an outlay of at least $300 would be necessary to properly equip the ordinary factory. The interest on this money, with extra labor, fuel, etc., would make it necessary in order to clear the butter maker, that he should be paid at least ¼c more per pound. The result of this charge would, however, be an increased price for the butter, so treated, and we are satisfied the trade generally would be willing to pay at least ½c per pound more for butter properly pasteurized. We also wish to caution both butter maker and patron, that the butter must be properly and scientifically pasteurized, and that no makeshift machinery or workmanship will accomplish this purpose.

"The butter trade of this country has been decreasing of late years, other countries obtaining as much as two cents per pound more for their butter. Something must be done, and that immediately, if we wish to retain our present trade, but if done, and done well, there is no reason to suppose that inside of three years we should not command as good prices as any other country, which would mean a gain of about $600,000 to come into this country, which is now lost to it annually."

The Committee of Management of the Corn Exchange Association, held a meeting yesterday, to discuss the new bill of lading adopted by the owners of all Canadian grain carrying vessels, for use on grain cargoes from Port Arthur and Fort William, during the coming season. The new bill of lading limits the liability of the vessels for short weight in cargo, at the point of outturn, which the shipping people declared was necessitated by the lax methods of weighing at the ports of shipment, and which they were unwilling to rectify, in spite of numerous complaints to the Government. No action was taken by the Exchange Committee other than hearing a report made by Joseph Quintal, president, on his annual visit at the Dominion Marine Association, which refused to change its present attitude on the subject. In the meantime the Corn Exchange Association, will exchange views with the Winnipeg Association. Joseph Quintal presided over the meeting and the other members present were A. Y. Chaplin, E. S. Jacques, Paul B. Earle, J. J. Norris and Alex. McFee.

The buyers in Montreal during the past week were :

R. H. Beaulieu, Chicoutimi, Que.; Aug. Beausoliel, Terrebonne, Que.; George Beausoliel, Terrebonne, Que.; P. S. Hardy, Granby, Que.; J. A. Lanctot, St. Isidore, Que.; F. X. Leblanc, St. Jude, Que.; Arthur Brossard, Laprairie, Que.; Chas. Briere, Terrebonne, Que.; G. Dumontet, Brosseau, Que.; Alex. Beaulieu, St. Elizabeth, Que.; C. Barrette, Joliette, Que.

HALIFAX.

February 23.—Wholesalers report that there is quite an improvement in some lines and fruit and vegetables are in good demand. Collections are fair and on the whole trade appears to be in a satisfactory condition. There was a slight improvement this week in the receipts of apples, and they found a ready sale. They were in small lots, and not sufficient for the local dealers. Stocks held in the country (that is outside of the speculators) are very low, and therefore no material change in the prices is looked for. It is reported here that late shipments to the British market have netted much lower prices than formerly, and if this should be confirmed, it will materially affect the prices here. No. 1 apples are quoted at $5 per barrel. Oranges are somewhat easier this week, being quoted at $4.50 to $5 per barrel for selected stock. The stocks of onions are getting low, and a rise in the price has been made. They are now $1.50 per bag, an advance of 25c. American onions are quoted at 3c per pound. Flour is also a little higher, there being an advance of 15c per barrel in Ontario patents. The receipts of eggs are very limited. Owing to the difficulties of navigation very few eggs are being shipped from P. E. Island.

John Connolly, grocer, of Sydney St., Charlottetown, died last week. He was 38 years of age, and had successfully conducted business in that city, his death having caused universal regret among his many friends. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, and the C.M. B.A., holding the office of treasurer in the first-mentioned organization.

The firm of Mackenzie Bros., who have conducted a grocery and provision business on Townsend Street, Sydney, for the past eight years, has been dissolved by mutual consent, D. A. Mackenzie taking over the business.

The annual meeting of the Stanley Bridge Dairying Co. was held at Stanley Bridge, P.E.I., last week. The secretary's report showed that 1,700,038 pounds of milk were received last season, from which was manufactured 159,698 pounds of cheese. The total amount received from the sale of the cheese was $19,036.14. Walter Simpson was elected president, and Miller Fife, vice-president.

With the approach of the Lenten season there is an improvement in the fish markets, both as regards the demand and the prices. Shipments to the United States markets are heavier, particularly pickled fish, such as mackerel. The price of this brand of Nova Scotia fish has also advanced. Lobsters are scarce owing to the slackness of the catch, the stormy weather preventing the fishermen from attending their traps. There is not much change in the price of dry cod fish, but the demand is increasing and an advance is looked for.

William H. Stimpson, a Halifax business man, who for more than half a century was engaged in the grocery trade in Halifax, died this week. In 1853 he was a member of the grocery firm of Lordby & Stimpson who did business at the corner of George and Barrington Streets. This firm conducted a very large business in those days, being one of the leading grocery firms of the city. The firm closed out its business some years ago, Mr. Stimpson retiring from active work. The other partner, Mr. Lordby still survives.

LONDON.

February 24.—E. J. Ryan, treasurer of the Retail Grocers' Association, made a strong point in the course of his very sensible speech at the big banquet on the night of the 17th inst., when in urging the 120 grocers present to subscribe for their trade paper, The Canadian Grocer, he said: "It answers questions without their being asked." That is a point which London and other grocers who subscribe for The Grocer have long since recognized; but Mr. Ryan's remarks were intended for such men in the trade as may happen not to know from experience how valuable the paper published solely in their interests really is. Experience here in London, and it is doubtless the same in other places, shows that the grocer who once takes The Canadian Grocer feels he cannot do without it, that it is absolutely indispensable to his business. No man knows this better than Mr. Ryan, and hence in his zeal for the welfare of the trade generally he feels it a duty to sound the praises of "our trade paper." as he calls it, whenever opportunity offers. The up-to-date grocer looks for that paper every week with even a keener interest than does the politician for his morning paper when Parliament is in session. He knows that he can rely on finding something there that will prove of advantage in a business way. It may be some pointer in an editorial which will open up to him a new line of thought that will suggest changes in his plans, the carrying out of which means certain profit. Or perhaps it is a hint on advertising, on window dressing or store arrangement that never occurred to him, but which he can see at a glance is well worth taking advantage of. The market reports he knows from experience can be relied on, that they afford him a foreknowledge that stands him in good stead when adding to his stock. The advertisements are of interest and often of profit, for where would a grocer look for what he seeks if not in his own trade paper? As a medium for bringing buyer and seller together those in the trade naturally regard The Canadian Grocer as without an equal. This is what Mr. Ryan meant when he said, "The Canadian Grocer answers questions without their being asked." Mr. Ryan, in his speech voiced the views of all who, like himself, properly appreciate The Canadian Grocer, and his words should be taken to heart by those who have not yet learned the lesson he would teach them. Finally, what Mr, Ryan says is of importance to wholesaler as well as retailer, to every man, in fact, who deals in groceries, and his words of wisdom should be kept in mind by all.

Wholesalers report trade very fair, with prospects of the best. Sugars both raw and refined, are a little easier. All qualities of tea are very firm. The coffee market is rising, with a good deal of speculation in Rios and Santos.

E. L. Liddicoatt, grocer, Dundas St. East, has sold his stock, store and all to the Dominion Bank a sub-branch of which will be established in the place.

C. L. Mountjoy, chief clerk in the grocery store of E. J. Ryan, and who was to have sung at the grocers' banquet, is laid up in Victoria hospital with an attack of pleurisy. He is recovering, however.

GALT.

February 24.—Business in Galt has been brisk during the past fortnight, and travelers passing through report the same condition of affairs elsewhere in Western Ontario. The future looks exceptionally promising, at least so far as Galt is concerned. There is every indication that with the coming of spring trade will open up better than before. The factories are all running full time and that air of prosperity which has been sadly missed during the last two years is again being evidenced. The winter has been safely passed and with the opening up of the building season business in Galt will without the shadow of a doubt be better than ever before. This applies to all lines.

Whether or not it was the statement in the Grocer from the Galt correspondent that influenced them, is not known, but at any rate the local grocers laid in a stock of real good apples. Where they came from is a mystery, but at any rate they were sold as rapidly as they could be procured. It goes to show that with proper care the average apples all the year round.

The clerks in Sloans have formed a hockey team and big things were expected from the organization, but unfortunately their promising career was nipped in the bud by a defeat at the hands of the shoe clerks.

The Retail Merchants' Association of Preston are holding regular meetings and the organization is booming. On the other hand, the association in Galt is never heard of. Maybe it is only the lull before the storm.

Miss Susie Coxhead, of Sloan's staff, is holidaying at her home in Milton.

"Bob" Percy, of Radigan's grocery, is down and out for the time being with an attack of "grip."

The remarks made by Dr. Dickson, of Central Church, on a Sunday evening, are attracting considerable attention among the business men and clerks in Galt. The reverend gentleman was speaking on "Our Saturdays," and in the course of his discourse he said, referring to preparations for the proper observance of Sunday: "Of course our workingmen have an advantage in this respect. They have a half holiday on Saturday, which, if they choose to use it in that manner, can be spent in preparing for the proper observance of Sunday. I do not see why all others should not have a half holiday as well. Those employed in stores, whose business often keeps them until a late hour on Saturday night, should be set free in order that they might enjoy the same privilege as the workingman." Dr. Dickson referred to the Golden Rule in this connection. Workingmen were always anxious to get concessions for themselves. The Golden Rule said: "Do unto others as you would they would do unto you," and perhaps if Galt business men let it be understood that business was to be done within certain hours the people would do their shopping within those hours, and then the employees would be set free and have a favorable opportunity for that preparation which is necessary for the right observance of the Lord's Day.

Oranges are much in demand and an excellent quality of the fruit is being offered.

GUELPH.

February 24.—Chas. Smye, traveler for Balfour, Smye & Co., of Hamilton, is to branch out in a new line next week in Guelph. He is to be an end man for one night in the Guelph Amateur Minstrels.

The firm of J. A. McCrae & Son report the sale of one ton of dates in one day, which is certainly a big one for a retail store.

R. J. McCrae spent Monday in Toronto on a buying expedition.

The Guelph Co-operative Association is advertising a large banquet for Tuesday night.

The Imperial Biscuit Co.'s factory was broken into last Sunday and a pail of candies was taken, but the boy who did it was very glad to return the loot after eating a few—not on account of the quality of the candies but because of his stomach not being able to hold them all.

Saturday was a good day in the grocery stores after the good market. There was a great demand for butter and eggs, which ran the price up a little, but the scarcity on the market helped the stores to get rid of a lot of surplus stock. Potatoes still keep from 50c to 60c a bag, while good Spy apples are scarce.

The O'Mara store had a well-dressed window on Saturday, which drew a lot of attention. It consisted of dressed pigeons, a thoroughbred hog and a beautiful display of turkeys and chickens. The window was a great credit to the enterprise of Mr. Barber, the manager.

INGERSOLL.

February 24.—C. H. Crawford, who upwards of a year ago disposed of his flour and feed business here to Grieve & Daniel, and subsequently accepted a situation as traveling salesman for a Toronto seed firm, has decided to re-engage in business. He will locate at Salford Village, about five miles south of here, which is in the heart of a magnificent agricultural section. Mr. Crawford is now having his buildings erected, and he will likely be ready for business in the course of a few weeks. His business will be practically the same as the one he formerly conducted here.

A PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

Trout Creek, Ont.,
Jan. 26th, 1909.

The Canadian Grocer, Toronto, Ont.

Gentlemen,—Kindly permit us to enclose the sum of $2.00 as subscription for the GROCER for 1909. We find your paper both pleasing and instructive, as well as being a practical help financially, which makes it a very profitable investment. Yours truly,

B. F. QUINLAN & CO.

Notwithstanding the reports to the contrary last fall, potatoes are seemingly very plentiful at the present time. It is understood that the demand is anything but keen among the dealers, in fact, the market in this respect may be said to show a very indifferent tendency. From what can be learned, many farmers who had a successful crop of potatoes did not attempt to market them before the winter set in, but placed them in their cellars with the expectation of receiving increased prices later on. The yield, generally, however, was so abundant, that they apparently miscalculated. Seventy-five cents per bag was the ruling figure this fall and this is the price at the present time. On Saturday a couple of loads, comprising probably thirty or forty bags were offered for sale on the market and 75 cents per bag was the higest price asked. From what can be learned in regard to the situation, it is doubtful if this price will be exceeded as reports from the neighboring districts are to the effect that potatoes are plentiful, and it is a well-known fact that many of the merchants have a large supply in their cellars.

ST. THOMAS.

February 24.—Saturday's markets were both well patronized and the supplies offered were quickly disposed of. The few grocers who put in an appearance after the by-law regulation of 10 o'clock found a bare market and did not get an opportunity to purchase. Fresh eggs sold for 25c doz., and butter 28c lb. The grocers sold dairy butter for 25c lb. Fowl were very scarce and the people had to go to the butcher shops for their supplies. Vegetables are becoming scarce, likewise, and the few cabbage offered were sold at 10c per head. Potatoes were plentiful, and sold at from 80c to 90c per bag. Apples of inferior quality brought 30c per peck.

The fees recently collected by the lessee of the privileges on the West End market do not warrant its renewal for 1909, and in that event it will be a free market, and that being a fact the grocers will again have the privilege of patronizing it at any hour. No doubt the result following such a condition of affairs will be that the Horton, or East End market, will be a free market once more.

KINGSTON.

February 24.—A great many merchants bought lemons at $2.50, anticipating an advance, owing to the destruction of so many at Messina, but they still sell for $2.50. A fruit man states that next year would show a different price, as the effects of the disaster would then be felt.

An immense gas tank was built in Kingston about a year ago, which now leaks, and the contractor may be held liable, so some of our council think.

The Cereals Limited, manufacturers of Orange Meat, intend extending their business. They expect to handle grain in their big elevators. Their prospectus is out asking capitalists to buy stock.

Owing to the snow drifts few farmers care to venture out and small markets are the result. Business is somewhat at a standstill, but the tide will turn for people must eat and drink.

A particular brand of soups are being introduced here and demonstrated and are being appreciated this cold weather.

Mrs. Webster was demonstrating in cocoa for 10 days in James Redden & Co.'s fine store on Princess St., and worked up quite a sale. She is now at one of Gilbert's stores, continuing the work. Everyone enjoys a cup of cocoa on a cold day and it makes one wish his throat was a foot long when swallowing it. It tastes fine and Mrs. Webster knows how to make it.

F. L. Gleeson, of the staff of The Grocer, is visiting here in the interests of that widely-read trade journal. We hope success will attend his efforts and make him go away feeling happy and whistling. "For they are Jolly Good Fellows."

Our esteemed W. H. Graham is sending out circulars saying he is representing S. Carsley & Co., Montreal.

HAMILTON.

February 24.—The ice question is one that is worrying the grocers hereabouts just now. Owing to the very mild weather a sufficient thickness of ice has not formed on the bay—and as the season is so far advanced, it is doubtful if any will be procured here. Various projects are being discussed, one of which is bringing it from Lake Simcoe, and another to start a Limited Company and make artificial ice. Ald. Guy, of the Rogers Coal Co., has been interesting himself in the matter, but no information has been handed out as yet.

The Hamilton grocers who attended the Brantford grocers banquet were delighted with their trip. They thoroughly enjoyed the hospitality of their Brantford brethren and incidentally worked off an overflow of eloquence and oratory. some of the gems of the evening were the speeches of Bay Hill and Ald. Forth. James Main chaperoned the "bunch" and all had a good time.

The grocers here are pleased to hear that the Ontario legislature have taken up the question of law reform and are likely to deal with it vigorously.

The Division Court act relative to the collection of small debts is one of the most important matters from the grocer's point of view. It has been considered in their meetings here by the hour and it would be good policy on the part of those who have the matter in hand to secure a deputation of Hamilton grocers to go with them, when they state their case to the Hon. Mr. Foy.

The trade here have been very well satisfied with the appointment of Mr. C. H. Peebles as clerk of the Division Court, he being an old grocer, and an honorary member of the Association as well.

Lent has opened here with a good demand for fish. The fish men say trade never was better and while most grocers handle only smoked or salt fish, some of them are making arrangements to put in fresh fish as a sideline.

CHATHAM.

February 24.—The board of trade held a largely attended meeting last Tuesday evening, chiefly for the discussion of the city electric light plant. The securing of a new asylum and of the proposed new bi-lingual school for Chatham was also discussed. Local manufacturers strongly objected to a new ruling of the water commissioners, requiring meters on factory services. A project was also urged to interest adjacent townships in the construction of municipal telephone lines, having headquarters in Chatham. This is a project of considerable interest to merchants, since the construction of rural telephone lines with headquarters in outside points particularly in Blenheim, has had a tendency to steer trade away from Chatham, to a certain extent.

On Friday evening the annual board of trade banquet was held, about 175 being present. Hugh Guthrie, M.P., of Guelph delivered an address on "The Last Great West."

A conference was held here last week between local net fishermen and representatives of the Angler's Associations of London and Chatham, with a view to reaching a basis of agreement on which the former could secure net licenses in the Thames. No agreement was reached, however. A strongly signed petition is being forwarded to the Provincial Government, protesting against the re-issue of net licenses.

E. R. Snook has a couple of attractive window displays this week. A small side window is given up to a handsome jelly display, while the main window has a tea display, made up of red and blue packages, built into an arch.

Bradley & Son's grocery stores celebrated their tenth anniversary last week, the local branch quoting some special prices for an anniversary sale on Friday and Saturday.

G. A. Trudell of Prairie Siding has sold his general store to C. M. Curtis of Northwood.

The account in last week's Grocer of the novel debt collecting method pursued by Guelph merchants will probably be read with interest by local merchants. In this city the Retail Merchant's Association has a list of delinquent debtors which hasn't been revised, "since the Lord knows when." The executive found it extremely difficult to induce merchants to send in the names of delinquents or to assist in revising the list. The only collection method in use was the sending out of the customary notices, which sometimes did the trick, and sometimes didn't. The fact that only a comparatively small number of merchants have latterly co-operated in keeping the black list up-to-date has tended to render it rather ineffective.

Incidentally, if the Guelph merchants will send down a copy of the original recipe used by them in inducing one another to "get together," it will be cheerfully welcomed by the organization enthusiasts of this city.

Chatham millers are paying $1 for wheat, standard. As a result of the high price and difficulty of procuring wheat, flour has been advanced 10c per cwt. The hog market last Saturday was weaker, prices quoted being $6.25 live and $8.25 dressed.

A set of scales have been installed in the city market, and are being quite liberally patronized by the buying public. Hitherto, poultry has been sold by the fowl, rather than by the pound ; but the installation of the scales may lead to selling by weight.

The practically entire failure of the ice harvest in this vicinity is now certain, and the prospect is that the coming summer will put a kink in butter and other perishables. The variable weather is at fault, zero never having lasted long enough to produce ice of the required thickness. One cutting was taken off the city sedimentation basin, which supplies household purposes ; and last week cutting was started on the river, but did not go far, the Maple City Creamery nearly losing a valuable horse in the process. Considerable ice was cut at Rondeau, but this will not be available for Chatham. Ice will have to be imported at high prices, with the result that a jump in the price of perishables and ice cream is probable.

Harry Agnew, who has had charge of C. A. Mayhew's bakery at Thamesville for the past two years, has taken a position in Stratford.

Geo. Colville, formerly of Toronto, has taken a post as head baker with Wm. Evans, Wallaceburg.

BRANDY CHOCOLATE CASES.

Judge Bazin, Montreal, rendered judgment last week in the brandy chocolate cases. There were in all thirty-one cases before the court, on the charge of having sold liquor without a license, and in every case the defendant was found guilty and fined $50 and costs.

In Toronto, too, the License Department of the Ontario government is getting after those who sell brandy in chocolates. R. Burger, 92 Yonge street, has been summoned to answer the charge of selling liquor without a license.

HOCKEY LEAGUE ENDED.

The Tillson Silverware Goes to H. P. Eckardt & Co.'s Team—Through Season Without a Loss.

The hockey season of the Wholesale Grocers' League of Toronto is once again a thing of the past with the honors this year perching on the banners of the H. P. Eckardt & Co's. team. Bert Brown's boys went through the season without a single defeat and therefore come in for the coveted silverware, known as the Tillson Trophy, and emblematic of the league championship for one year. It was donated some five years ago by the Tillson Oat Co. of Tillsonburg, and for three successive years was won by the Brokers team. Last winter the T. Kinnear Co.'s team captured the honors.

H. P. Eckardt Co's. team was closely followed by Jas. Lumber's sextette, which lost but a single game and that to the champions by a single goal.

The last game of the winners was played on Friday night, Feb. 12th. At half time there was no score and when the final whistle blew each had notched a goal. In ten minutes overtime H. P. Eckardt & Co.'s team succeeded alone in finding the nets, and that was but a minute or two before time was called. The teams were :

H. P. Eckardt & Co.—Goal, Russell Joyce ; Point, Geo. Wilkinson ; cover point, B. Brown ; centre, Alf. Thompson ; left wing, Frank Wilkinson ; right wing, Arthur Cowan.

Referee—Art. Anglin.

The final standing of the teams is :

TRADE NOTES.

R. Stirling, 980 Bathurst St., Toronto, has sold to Mr. Elmes.

Jas. A. Benson, of Benson Bros., retail grocers, Guelph, was in Toronto this week and made a friendly visit to the office of the Canadian Grocer.

G. E. Carveth, of Carveth & Co., Montreal, was in Toronto and Hamilton this week, calling on the trade. Carveth & Co. are sole agents for Canada of Lovatt & Lovatt's Langley ware.

Montreal, Feb. 25, 1909.

Orders for spring shipments have been coming in very freely during the week, and other obvious signs of the nearness of spring are apparent. Travelers returning from the country state that stocks there are exceedingly low, and dealers- seem to be waking up to the fact that they are going to be short of spring goods if they do not cover their requirements soon.

The advance of flour is the chief feature of the market this week. As has been stated previously, the decline of the market was due to local conditions, which have been lately modified, therefore the market has gone back to its logical level.

The egg market is slightly easier, having declined 2c for new laid receipts. The market is entirely bare of pickled, and storage stock. Receipts from western points are large, which have depressed the price. Butter has weakened, owing to desire of holders to unload. Receipts of creamery are light, Beans and peas are unchanged. The cheese market remains firm. Stocks for export are getting into small compass, and slightly higher prices are looked for. Live and dressed hogs continue firm on small supply.

The demand for comb honey has been good during the week. Demand for sugar is moderate. The molasses market during the week displayed no new features. Barbadoes continues strong, owing to small supplies. The tea trade in the country, is fairly good, but in the city is decidedly quiet. Other lines are practically as last quoted.

TEA—Demand in the country is fairly good for all lines, but city trade is dull. Reports from the primary market regarding the future of the Calcutta and Colombo market states that:

As regards future supplies, the position has scarcely shown any change; the reported shipments to London from both Calcutta and Colombo at present, bear the same relation to last year's figures as they did a month ago; and as the month's deliveries for both home consumption and export show an increase of quite a million pounds, the position has become relatively stronger than it was at the end of December. Importers evidently feel confidence in the market, judging by the firm attitude shown in refusing to sell below brokers' valuations, and the statistical position appears to warrant the belief that on the average, prices should be well maintained during the remainder of the present season.

COFFEE—A rumor gained considerable currency that large shipments of coffee were being stored in Canada, in order that they might be easily shipped to the United States, in case the proposed legislation, to put a duty on coffee should become probable. This, however, is generally denied by the large coffee men here. Locally trade is good at unchanged figures.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—There is a good demand for fruits, vegetables and fish. Other lines are neglected.

TORONTO—The canned goods market here represents a fair demand. An authority states that a good clean up in supplies is anticipated. The price of peas is well maintained and these goods are stated to be rather scarce. One broker says that corn is not over abundant either.

R. A. Smith, Newmarket, and T. S. Ford, Mitchell, Ont., retail grocers, were callers on Toronto wholesalers during the week.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Advance In New York of 10c.

Beans—Good export demand.

Dried Fruits—Selling well.

Evaporated Apples—Demand is fair.

Toronto, February 25, 1909.

Sugar is again the interesting factor in this market. Although no change in prices has occurred since last week's quotations yet from the advance of yesterday of 10c in New York should one occur it would not be unexpected. The demand is good. Raws have made four advances since they reached the low figure a short time ago.

There is a firm undertone to the bean market on account of the demand from the newly opened districts of the north as well as the demand from the United States where beans are represented as being rather scarce. Some Canadian beans are being exported to New York.

In the dried fruit market trade is fairly brisk. The cheaper dried fruits are expected on the market within a couple of weeks' time.

There is a noticeable scarcity of peas in the canned goods market and prices are well maintained.

Business on the whole has been steady with little change from the conditions existing a week ago.

SUGAR—The sugar situation is still interesting, conditions pointing to an advance here following an advance of 10c. made by the refiners American Howell & Arbuckle in New York which took place on Wednesday. The market is strong. Raws have made no less than four advances totalling 3-16 of a cent a lb. from the recent lowest figure.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 9 a.m. Thursday, February 25, 1909.)

Trade continues to improve and the outlook is very bright indeed. The volume of business for the first two months of the year is very greatly in excess of the business done in the first two months of 1908. Local competition in some lines reducing profits to a minimum and in some instances causing actual loss, is the only disturbing factor in the situation. Country dealers are buying freely and payments are being met very satisfactorily.

EGGS—The egg famine is not so severe as it was and some small supplies are coming in from country points. Lower prices are in sight. Local dealers are offering from 30c to 35c per dozen for country eggs, subject to candling.

Progressive Port Elgin Grocers

Members of the Trade Doing Profitable Business—Hilker & Co., the Oldest Firm, the Founder Being the Father of the Town—Young Grocers Getting Along Well—Brush and Broom Factory an Important Establishment—Credit System Being Wiped Out.

There's a town up in Bruce County of which the citizens are more than ordinarily proud, and it's Port Elgin. During the recent spell of tight money Port Elgin came through far better than most places of like size in the Province, and now this year the people there are looking forward with a great deal of hopefulness. Getting away from the business aspect just for a moment, it may be said that Port Elgin is noted for its cleanliness. The place was well laid out, the streets are wide and level, almost every street has granolithic walks, and the residences partake of a degree of comfort and cheerfulness that is refreshing to see. The homes for the most part are neat, tidy places showing that few of the owners are very wealthy but none of them very poor.

Of course the blue waters of Lake Huron are on one side of the town, but while that expanse can hardly bring as much trade as a farming tract, nature has in part made up for that deficiency by prodigal gifts in the surrounding townships of Arran, Elderslie, Saugeen and Bruce. Here are agricultural lands as good as any in Ontario. The lake sand has given way to a rich clay loam in these townships, while owning the land are intelligent Scotch farmers, with here and there a sprinkling of industrious, cash-paying Germans. All of this, of course, is of material advantage to Port Elgin.

PORT ELGIN PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Profitable for Farmers.

While an excellent surrounding country is of immense advantage to any town, perhaps the mainstay of Port Elgin is its brush and broom factory. Readers of The Canadian Grocer will be familiar with the name of Stevens-Hepner Co. Limited, a firm of some years standing and the out-growth of Port Elgin's oldest industry. This firm employs about two hundred hands the year round while their products, brooms and brushes, are found in groceries from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Some idea of the benefit this firm is to the surrounding country may be obtained when it is stated that in two months of this year the firm paid $10,000 to farmers for hardwood logs. All of this was strictly cash.

A Street in Port Elgin a Couple of We eks Ago. Showing Portion of Brush and Broom Factory.

Coming directly to the grocery trade it may be said that the town is well supplied, though each store is doing well and the majority of them have been in business for many years. Hilker & Co. is the oldest firm, and the founder, the late Henry Hilker, was the first man in the town. His son is now head of the business which is a general store with one side devoted to groceries. Besides being an up-to-date business man Mr. Hilker has taken an active part in municipal affairs and last year was County Warden.

Neil McGillivray has two stores, both of which handle groceries. Mr. McGillivray is one of the town's shrewdest business men and his stores have customers of many years standing. Two other general stores carrying heavy grocery lines are those of D. Geddes and Falconer Bros. Mr. Geddes is an experienced business man, who also likes municipal affairs and who is now Town Clerk.

Young Men in Business.

The firm of Falconer Bros. is composed of two hustling young men who broke into the trade about five years ago, and who have done well. Some people call them extremists in the use of printers' ink, but they think it pays. Henry Ebert, a thrifty German, has two stores, one of which is devoted almost exclusively to groceries, and which has a large following of steady customers.

J. M. Wells follows along the same line though on a smaller scale. One of the neatest and cleanest grocery counters in the place is that of James George & Son, the head of which firm is one of Port Elgin's oldest residents. This firm is of course of old standing though its patronage was probably never as great as at present. All told the town has a splendid grocery service with an increasing number of cash sales each year. In a few years it is expected that the credit system in Port Elgin will be entirely wiped out.

Last year the town obtained a splendid Carnegie Library at a cost of $8,000. Besides the advantages of free reading there are lecture rooms in the building and in every way it is looked upon as a model for a small town. This building was formally opened a few weeks ago by Rev. W. A. Bradley, B.A., president of the Library Association of Ontario, who stated that for the money Port Elgin had anything in Ontario "beaten to a finish" so far as Library Buildings are concerned. In conclusion it may be said that Port Elgin is well served by a neat, clean, weekly newspaper, The Times.

MAKING HIS MARK.

Emil Chaput Admitted to Partnership in One of Canada's Largest Grocery Houses.

Many young men, with parents glad to grant their every request, would take life as it came and enjoy the pleasures and privileges that would be theirs, because of the success of those who had gone before them. But these are not the young men who are the coming heads of Canada's large commercial enterprises, nor are they the men who have been toiling unheard of for the past ten years.

EMIL CHAPUT,

Who Has Risen Rapidly From Packer to Partner in the Firm.

Emil Chaput is a young Canadian who has not been heard of very much until within the past three years. He is only 28 anyway, and perhaps is not expecting to cause much of a disturbance for some years yet, but it is to his credit that the big men in the grocery trade have been watching his progress during the past couple of years.

He has just made his first splash, having been taken into partnership with Charles and Armand Chaput, L. E. Geoffrion and F. Prudhomme, who form the personnel of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., the Montreal wholesale grocers.

Five years ago Emil secured a job in the packing room of the firm of which his father is the senior member, and his grandfather one of the founders. He soon learned how to handle a broom, and in short order was promoted to the shipping department, and gradually worked himself up until he is at present in the buying department, being assistant to manager Geoffrion. He was at one time going to be a doctor, and as a preliminary took a course at St. Mary's College, but business appealed to him more and medicine lost a bright young man.

Mr. Chaput is very popular around town, belonging to several clubs and societies. He possesses a fine singing voice, and is generally a good fellow. He will do things if he keeps on.

Arch. Hutchinson, of the St. Lawrence Starch Co., Ltd., Port Credit, who has been visiting Scotland during the past month, has returned home. The trip seems to have been a beneficial one from the health point of view.

AID FOR FISHING INDUSTRY

Department of Marine and Fisheries to Have Special Committee to Suggest Changes—What Government has Recently Done—Fish go to United States and Back to Canada.

Steps that have recently been taken by the Dominion Government to advance the fish industry in Canada have been greatly appreciated by all those interested in this special line. There is, however, room for improvement and the Department of Marine and Fisheries have promised a special committee to deal with the situation.

The first step in the endeavor to direct into Canada a certain portion of the Maritime trade in fresh salt-water fish was inaugurated last year by the department. The general complaint among shippers had been that inasmuch as transportation facilities were considered inferior to those of the United States, both as regards regularity and price of shipments, which gave the market of Montreal as a distributing centre to the New England ports of shipment they were unable to compete against the United States market. With a view to ameliorating if possible these conditions the Department of Marine and Fisheries a year ago procured a vote of $25,000 and initiated the refrigerator car service over the Intercolonial railway. One day each week a refrigerator car attached to a fast freight left Halifax with its consignment of fresh fish due at Montreal in 56 hours.

Dealers Advocated Service.

The service commenced in September, 1907, with results gratifying, though limited. The department guaranteed that the earnings would be at least two-thirds of those on a minimum carload of 20,000 lbs. The dealers contended, however, that nothing short of an express service would enable the shippers and themselves to extend satisfactorily the business, so that an arrangement was entered into with the Intercolonial railway by which a refrigerator car was attached to the Maritime express leaving Halifax and Mulgrave each week for the carriage of fresh fish, the department undertaking that the earnings by this car would not be less than $200 per trip.

Express Service Finally Adopted.

As, however, this service received little patronage, after four trips had been made it was withdrawn, and return was made to the fast freight service of the previous year, which has been run all season. But urgent representations continued for a daily express service, and in order to exhaust all available means in the way of transportation facilities the Department of Marine and Fisheries consented, in order to complete the season beginning on the 5th of September and ending on the 30th November, of last year, to an arrangement being made with the two express companies by which they would collect two-thirds of the ordinary express charges from the shipper and consignee of all shipments of fresh fish from the Atlantic coast to points in Quebec and Ontario, and the other third from the Department of Marine and Fisheries. Thus a daily express was placed at the disposal of that department at the rate of $1 per 100 pounds from Halifax to Montreal and relatively to all other points. As the service ceased at the end of November full details of its results are not yet in; but most gratifying reports have been given by the shippers.

The weekly service now enjoyed from Halifax to Montreal is 26c per 100 lbs. in carload lots. In connection with this it may be explained that the arrangements with the Intercolonial railway contemplated a minimum carload of 20,000 lbs. of fresh fish. When this amount was forwarded on any one trip the rate charged by the railroad was 26 cents per 100 lbs., but if less than this amount was consigned on a trip the rate was 35 cents per 100 pounds, the net weight of the fish being considered. Refrigerator cars with ice bunkers at either end are capable of carrying in the vicinity of 30,000 lbs., but should the carload be above the minimum the rates would be just the same. The Department of Marine and Fisheries assumes the responsibility of supplying the ice.

The express rate from Boston to Montreal is 80 cents per 100 lbs., but as there is also an import duty of 1 cent per lb., the cost of delivering fresh fish in Montreal from Boston is $1.80 per 100 lbs., as against $1 per 100 lbs. from Halifax.

As to specific results attending these efforts towards stimulating trade inland, it has not yet been possible to obtain figures indicating the resultant increase.

A Special Committee.

During the present session of Parliament discussion arose on how the fishing industry of Canada could be encouraged, especially the promoting of the conveyance of Canadian fish to the Canadian consumer direct, instead of having it shipped to the United States and then re-shipped to Canada, thus paying two customs duties.

In speaking of the industry in Nova Scotia in the House one of the members from that province said that existing conditions were responsible for many young men leaving the fishing villages in Nova Scotia. In many of the settlements along the seaboard there was but one mail delivery a week. The people were cut off from telegraph and telephone connections, and all modern conveniences. Another thing that discouraged Canadian fishermen, he said, was the failure of the Dominion Government to enforce the rights of Canada as against the fishermen from the United States. The latter fished in broad daylight within the three-mile limit. A United States vessel loaded with mackerel was once caught within the three-mile limit, and after being detained for one week at Halifax escaped with a fine of $400. Either the ship, he said, should have been released or it should have been confiscated.

Another member called attention to the singular fact that fish caught in the Maritime Provinces went to the United States, and a part of it was then re-imported to Canada. This meant that the people of Montreal paid something like $8,000 a week in the way of customs duty and extra railway freight rates. Why could not the fish caught in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, he asked, come directly to Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto?

Hon. Mr. Brodeur on behalf of the Government, promised the appointment of a committee to consider the matter of aiding the Canadian fisheries.

Referring to the fish trade in Canada the weekly report of the Department of Trade and Commerce says:

The Canadian share of the trade varies with the salmon catch in British Columbia. In 1905 the imports from Canada amounted to $270,660; last year they were $181,830. The total value of imported fish, preserved in tins, and dried and salted, is $1,718,070. Canada, however, supplied on an average but one-tenth of the amount imported. If the herring, the mackerel and other fishes of the Maritime Provinces were put up in tins, as they are put up in Scotland, Canada ought to secure a much larger share of the trade. It seems to be an anomaly that the United Kingdom, which has to depend upon importations for so large a proportion of its food, should be able to ship to Australia nearly three times the value of the tinned fish that Canada is able to send, and the United States two and a half times as much. There would seem to be a field for the extension of the Canadian trade in this direction.

The work of encouraging the fisheries of the east is an important one, and should be assisted in by the fishermen, canners, packers and shippers of the Maritime Provinces.

ENJOYING WELL-EARNED TRIP.

E. D. Smith, the widely known nurseryman and fruiterer of Winona, Ont., who left recently with his wife and daughter for England, will enjoy a three months complete rest. He has been a very busy man and for two successive terms represented Wentworth in the House of Commons. He has also taken a very active part in looking after his farms, nurseries, jam factory, etc. Mr. Smith is also president and chief stockholder in the Beamsville Preserving Company, and this is the first holiday he has had for many years.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Montreal, February 25, 1909.

The cheese situation remains firm. Stocks for export purposes are getting into small compass, with the result that slightly higher prices are looked for. Colored cheese is in particularly good demand. In England, reports state that cheese is going steadily into consumption at firm prices. The Englishmen are aware of the fact that, what cheese there is in Canada, will be absorbed for home requirements, therefore they are not surprised at the firm condition of the market. The reports in commenting on the present year's make of cheese, which is a short one, states that it is expected, the make for 1909 will be much increased, as it is known, that Canadian cows have wintered much better this year, than last. Considering the competition that Canadian cheese has had to encounter, in the competition of the New Zealand product, the price of the former has kept up wonderfully well. Locally finest Westerns are being quoted 12¾ to 13c and Eastern's at 12⅜ to 12½c. Receipts for the season since May 1, 1908 have been 1,958,150 boxes, against 2,053,770 boxes for the corresponding period of last year.

The butter market is lower again, due to the fact that holders are getting anxious, and are beginning to unload their stocks. There is an opinion held in some quarters, that stocks are larger than was supposed. Receipts of creamery are light, and there may be higher prices later on, if supplies run short. It is difficult to estimate stock, as nearly every little dealer in the country, is carrying butter of some sort. Reports from England state that the market is displaying a distinctly firm tone, and a rise is anticipated soon. Supplies arriving from Australia, and other exporting countries, are showing a distinct falling off. Small supplies seem to be the rule, and not the exception, at all points in Great Britain. It is stated that supplies are completely wiped up in Glasgow, and Cardiff is in much the same position. Locally prices rule for Fall creamery 23c and Winter creamery is quoted at 22c. Receipts for the season since May 1 have been 418,004 packages, against 413,148 packages for the same period of last year.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

Toronto, February 25, 1909.

The provision situation from a packer's standpoint is discouraging. The great difficulty arises from the fact that there are not enough hogs raised by the farmers to keep the packers supplied. For some reason there is only about one-third the quantity of hogs raised now that were raised a few years ago, and on the other hand there are far more packing houses. Live hogs this week are for $6.25 to $6.50 f.o.b. in the country, and dressed to butchers in the city for $9.50 to $9.75 per 100 lbs.

Butter is again a little lower with the usual complaint that a large quantity of it is, not good. There has probably been some neglect in looking after this branch of our agricultural industries, as it is a well known fact that our butter was much better made some years ago.

Fresh eggs are coming in freely and are lower. The held stock is practically all sold, and the new laid will all be required to meet the demand and prices are not likely to be much lower for some time.

Cheese is firm with light stocks on hand.

Poultry is practically out of season.

"OLEO" IN A SECRET CHAMBER

Detectives in Montreal Claim they Have Unearthed a Mystery of Long Standing —Maximum Fine for Manufacture is $400—Product Said to Have Been Sold as Creamery Butter.

Montreal, February 24.—On the charge of illegally manufacturing oleomargarine, G. Dumais was last week summoned to appear before Judge Choquet, the charge being preferred by D. M. McPherson, Inspector of Dairy Products for the Dominion.

J. J. Costigan, Inspector of Food for the Inland Revenue Department, has been at work on the case for some time, and recently the matter was placed in the hands of the Thiel Detective Service. As a result of the evidence secured, Mr. McPherson, Mr. Costigan and E. R. Carrington, the manager of the Thiel service, paid a visit to the building partly occupied by Demers and Clouthier, on Cote St. Paul Road, on Saturday, and there seizures were made. Their story is that Mr. Dumais was the proprietor of that portion or the business carried on in the building in what turned out to be a secret chamber, and difficult to discover. All the ingredients for the illegal manufacture of oleomargarine were found and a plant capable of turning out fifty-six pound boxes, or about three thousand pounds a day, was discovered in the secret portion of the premises. In another part there were one hundred barrels which had contained oil shipped from the Armours of Chicago. There were seven full barrels, while a large quantity of beef fat, salad oil, cotton seed oil, colorings, etc., were also there.

As Creamery Butter.

Most of the product turned out from the building, it is claimed, has been shipped in the direction of Quebec, and sold as creamery butter. Quebec city has eaten an immense quantity of it. It is only a short time since a man confessed judgment in Quebec, to having sold the "oleo," and the fact that he confessed judgment prevented the inspectors finding out where he obtained the stuff. They kept at work, however, and their success apparently came on Saturday.

The building in which the oleomargarine was manufactured is situated on the Cote St. Paul road, on the banks of the Lachine Canal. No one to look at it would imagine that anything eatable could come from within its wooden walls, but, still less would one think so after a view of the interior.

The firm are general dealers in hides, tallow, etc., and though it was supposed that they were manufacturing oleomargarine government inspectors, during their many visits, failed to see any signs of a factory for this purpose.

Secret Leaks Out.

Detectives were set to work and after weeks of careful watching they claim the secret was discovered and on Saturday a seizure was made of a tub of oleomargarine and much of the paraphernalia required for its manufacture.

After the detection of the scheme adopted for the purpose of throwing the inspectors off their guard there could be little doubt that there was a genius at the bottom of it all. For half an hour the building was searched until finally it was found that beyond the elevator shaft on the second floor there was a room. How to get into it was a mystery. A closer search showed that there was a secret pulley behind a partition and when the rope was pulled it released a bolt on the other side of the door so that by walking over the elevator trap door, an opening was obtained to the room opposite, which up to this time, no inspector would have ever thought of looking for. Then through a long room and the door of the manufacturing room is found.

Wholesale Manufacture.

This room is stated to be fitted up in a manner which suggests that the firm has been manufacturing oleomargarine by the thousands of pounds. There is an immense boiler in which the fat is rendered, the churn, coolers, coloring machine, and to add to the evidence secured by the officers there is a large tub of the manufactured article.

What the Law Says.

The criminal code as applied to the case is as follows :

"No oleomargarine, butterine or other substitutes for butter, manufactured from any other animal substance other than milk, shall be manufactured in Canada, or sold therein, and every person, who contravenes the provisions of this act in any manner whatsoever shall incur a penalty not exceeding four hundred dollars and not less than two hundred dollars, and in default of payment shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months and not less than three months."

In passing this law the Government did not do so with the belief that a good substitute for butter could not be made, but with the intention of protecting the name of Canada as a butter producing country.

A few days ago a dealer in Quebec was fined $500 for selling the product. It is stated that the proprietor will confess judgment and that he will pay the maximum fine.

NEW COMPANIES.

The J. H. Pelletier & Cie., Sherbrooke, Que., has been given a Dominion charter to carry on the business of manufacturers of and dealers in syrups and acquire and take over as a going concern the business at present carried on in the City of Sherbrooke under the name of J. H. Pelletier & Cie. (Registered), and also the right to manufacture and sell certain syrups manufactured by the firm above-mentioned. The capital stock is twenty thousand dollars, divided into four hundred shares of fifty dollars, and the chief place of business of the company will be at the City of Sherbrooke.

Hayden & Hamilton, general merchants, Hagersville, Ont., has sold to G. W. Hamilton.

Quality Always Wins!

That "Gillett's Goods" are the best is the general verdict of the housekeepers of Canada. They have stood the test of time—the true test of quality.

THE FLOUR AND CEREAL MARKETS

Flour Market Restless, Decline and Advance in a Week—Present Prices Very Firm—Rolled Oats and Oatmeal go up 10 Cents.

The restless condition of the flour market is the feature this week. Since the last quotation in the Toronto markets there was a decline and shortly after an advance which means two advances and one decline in two weeks. The cause of the decline is stated to have been a run between two large milling companies, but on account of the price of wheat which has been steadily advancing the figures simply had to go back to where they were with the prospects of another advance in the near future. The Winnipeg wheat market never was so strong in some time and prices in the Old Country are also advancing.

Rolled oats and oatmeal on the Toronto market have advanced 10 cents since last week's quotations. One cereal authority stated that there was likely to be another advance in view of the high price of oats and that the present price warranted a 25 cent advance on prices as at present quoted. February business has been good.

Shorts seem to be scarce as well as bran.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—The flour market has gone back to its old level, as before the recent decline. As was intimated last week local conditions were responsible for the drop, and could in no way reflect the wheat market, which is strong and advancing.

TORONTO.

FLOUR—The flour market has been very uneasy during the past couple of weeks, when an advance, a decline and later another advance took place. The first advance was noted in last week's Grocer, but since then the price went down. It could not be held there, however, on account of the high price of wheat and millers were practically forced to come back where they were. The present prices are well maintained, and one miller stated that "we are on the eve of another advance."

GOOD MACARONI YEAR.

C. H. Catelli Co. Hold Annual Meeting and Re-Elect Old Officers.

The annual meeting of the C. H. Catelli Co., of Montreal, macaroni and vermicelli manufacturers, was held Feb. 19. The old board, consisting of C. H. Catelli, president; H. Laporte, vice-president, and A. P. Frigon, T. Bastien, S D. Vallieres and C. E. Martin, directors were re-elected. The report of the year was read and showed that despite the financial depression, the year had been highly satisfactory in every respect. The new factory is equipped with the latest styled machinery, which Mr, Cattelli recently purchased in Europe, which, in addition to a new and highly hygienic process of drying, introduced lately in the manufacture, makes this factory a little ahead of its old world rivals.

TRAVELER BECOMES WHOLESALER.

A new wholesale grocery establishment has been opened in Fredericton, N.B., by J. D. Palmer, formerly of G. E. Barbour Co. of that city.

Mr. Palmer, who has been making his home there for upwards of a year, was for twelve years a traveling representative of the Barbour Company and since the incorporation of the company has been a stockholder. Some time ago he gave up his position and has since been arranging for opening business in St. John, and lately he withdrew his interest in the Barbour Company.

Most of the time Mr. Palmer will be on the road and he will soon have a commercial man also traveling for him.

In speaking of his reason for selecting Fredericton for opening his business, Mr. Palmer said: "Fredericton is undoubtedly one of the best distributing centres in New Brunswick for provincial trade, and especially for the steadily increasing trade of northern New Brunswick.

Mr. Palmer has his premises fitted with all modern appointments.

OUR EGGS AND POULTRY IN BRITAIN.

Canadian Supply Diminishing—Russia and Danish Eggs in England.

(By J. B. Jackson.)

The wholesale value of eggs and poultry consumed in the United Kingdom last year was over £20,000,000, two-fifths of the produce being imported. The figure of consumption is an estimate, and more accurate facts may be obtained in future, as poultry is now being included in the annual census of the Board of Agriculture. The Irish Department have already gathered statistics which reveal the striking fact that the Irish poultry industry stands second amongst agricultural exports, cattle ranking first. Eggs and poultry sent out of Ireland exceed dairy products in value by nearly £100,000, and are equal in value to pigs, bacon, horses and sheep combined.

Demand Met by Home Production.

Though the English demand for poultry and eggs has grown rapidly, it is, apparently, being met more and more by home produce, as the number of eggs imported last year was nearly 200,000,000 less than in 1903, when the import reached its maximum. The total last year was 2,185,000,000, of which nearly a half came from Russia and a quarter from Denmark.

The average import value of Russian eggs was 7s. 1d. per 120 ; of Danish, 9s. 3d., the best average from any country except those from Canada, which were 9s. 10d. per 120. The supply from Canada is gradually diminishing, only one imported egg in 300 now coming from the Dominion.

Taken all round, imported eggs have grown steadily in value from an average of 5s. 10d. per great hundred in 1903 to 7s. 10d. in 1908. Part of the increase is due to enhanced demand, but no small share of it has been brought about by better organization and methods of marketing in the United Kingdom.

Russia Contributes One-Third.

The annual value of imported poultry has steadily increased, and now approaches £1,000,000. Russia contributed last year over one-third of the total, and with the exception of £35,000 from 'other countries,' all the remainder came from France, Belgium and the United States. Formerly the United States occupied the dominant position now taken by Russia, and it would appear from information received that the great improvement of quality by fattening to meet the requirements of the English market, has led to a much greater demand for these birds in the United States and enhanced prices.

NOVA SCOTIA FRUIT.

One shipper in Nova Scotia has during the past season shipped about 5,000 barrels of apples from Auburn, N.S. Some of these went as far south as South Africa and others as far west as Calgary. He has also shipped 13 carloads of cranberries. As the cars average 250 barrels, this was a total of 3,250 barrels. At $5.00 a barrel this represents a value of $16,259.

DEATH OF TOBACCO COMPANY ORGANIZER.

Sir Frederick Wills, organizer of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland, Limited, died in Cannes, France, yesterday of heart disease. He was born in 1838 and was created a baronet in 1897. He was graduated from Magdalen College, at Oxford, and was well known as a sportsman. His widow, three sons and three daughters survive him.

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—Apples are scarce, and prices are firm, with a good demand. California navel oranges are from 15c to 25c a box higher, with an upward tendency. Bitter oranges for marmalade are plentiful, and of good quality. The first shipment of Messina lemons since the earthquake has arrived, and they are selling at $3 a box. Strawberries are firm at 60c to 65c a box.

B. Follina, of the firm of Fratelli Follina, fruit exporters, Palermo, Sicily, spent a few days in Toronto this week and made arrangements with W. B. Stringer to represent them in Canada. He is now in New York, but will meet Mr. Stringer in Montreal again this week to make further arrangements to handle their fruit in that city.

While Messina lemons will be off the market for some time, the same lemons are now shipped from Palermo, which is only one hour's run farther away from the lemon-growing district, and they will be called Palermo lemons, from the fact that they are shipped from that point.

Mr. Follina states the unfortunate fact that 90 per cent, of all the fruit exporters of Messina were killed in the earthquake, and also a large number of owners of lemon orchards who had their residences in Messina. The stock of lemons in Messina at the time of the earthquake is estimated at 300,000 boxes, out of which about 3,000 were saved. Besides this loss, the owners of large orchards were killed, large quantities of fruit were left on the trees, and allowed to become over-ripe and useless.

Although this quantity may seem large, it is, after all, a very small percentage of the enormous quantity grown there and, of course, has a very light effect on the value of the lemons. Very few oranges come from Sicily at present, except the bitter oranges, and these grow wild and are only used for marmalade.

VEGETABLES—Full lines of all kinds of vegetables are on the market, which gives it a summerlike appearance, but as soon as prices are mentioned, the summer idea disappears and the fact is realized that we are still in February. Potatoes have been without the slightest change for a good many weeks; the quality is exceptionally good, and the demand well supplied.

FISH—The fish dealers were all hustling and wearing smiles this week. The fish business has never been so satisfactory. The quality of the fish is splendid, the demand is good and everything connected with the fish trade seems to be satisfactory. One of the jobbers pointing to the stocks ready to go out, expressed it in his own way thus: "It's awful, we hardly know which way to turn; you see meat is pretty high and the people are beginning to find out that fish are cheaper." With Lent at hand, the demand is expected to increase, but the stock on hand is supposed to be sufficient to satisfy all the requirements.

The "Know-How" That Helps Brunswick Brand Quality.

Having to start with, the finest fish procurable is not in itself sufficient to guarantee the grocer a perfect sea food.

The firm must know just how to pack the fish properly.

That's it—the "know-how." Solve the secret of scientific and sanitary packing, and, with fine fish, other things being equal, the packer can make good.

Not every packer "knows how." We do. Not every packer makes good. We do. Hence the perfection of BRUNSWICK BRAND SEA FOODS. It took us years to learn, but we have succeeded.

CHEESE FOR THE HOME MARKET

President and General Manager of an Ontario Cheese Factory Tells Why, in His Opinion, Some Culled Cheese Are Used for Home Consumption—Modern Cool Curing Rooms Necessary.

C. B. Meyers, president and general manager of the cheese factory at Bayside, Ont., writes the Grocer on the question of the quality of the supply of home-made Canadian cheese for home consumption. This question was dealt with some time ago by J. A. Ruddick, chief dairy commissioner for Canada, in this journal and was read with interest by grocers. Mr. Meyers says :—

My attention has been called to an article in the Canadian Grocer, regarding the supplying of the Canadian home market with the cull cheese of the factories. In reply I will say in regard to the Bayside factory—the factory I represent as president and general manager—we have never sold any cull cheese to any grocer for the simple reason that since I have been in charge we have nothing but the finest cheese to offer and have sold almost solely for export trade. I might say, however, I have seen cheese offered for sale by retail men that was of a very poor quality. They were culls pure and simple and poorly cured and if put on the public market for export trade they would not bring five cents per pound. I was informed that the same cheese had cost the grocer more than the price goods of the finest quality were selling for on any cheese board in Ontario.

Such practice if allowed to continue must act as a very poor inducement to the expansion of the home consumption of that splendid article of food—the Canadian cheese.

In regard to my own business I must say I have sold very few cheese to the grocery trade until last year. Up to the year 1906 we had the usual curing room and a first class one at that, with cement floors and a splendid sanitary plant but in spite of all we could do, the temperature would rise from 75 to 85 degrees in the middle of summer, and any one knows who is at all familiar with the business that the cheese maker would have to cook his curd longer and salt heavier on account of the heat.

An Everlasting Cheese.

The result would be a dry crumbly cheese and one that would carry to the end of the earth and last for an indefinite period, but would not be very enticing to the appetite of a human being. In the fall of 1906, Messrs. Publow and Ruddick came to our factory and explained to us the advantages of the cool curing process in cheese making with the result that in the winter of 1906 and 1907 we equipped our factory as they recommended. In regard to the local trade we have sold to that but very few cheese for the reason that what we had were pretty hard and dry and would not be a very good advertisement. But as we are situated only five miles from Trenton and six from Belleville, occasionally someone would get one of our cheese, and although they found no fault they did not seem very anxious about getting a supply all the time. I might say here, that we did not care about the local trade as our maker was satisfying the export demand. We were getting the top prices on Belleville Board and had had no cuts for inferior cheese since our present maker had been in charge. This is his eleventh year.

Cool Curing Effect.

In the season of 1907 we had our first experience with the modern cool curing room. Our maker made a much softer cheese and one that did not require as much salt—in fact he tried to make September quality all the time. A few of the local grocers began to get a cheese now and then, the same as in other years and they told me they found they could sell twice as much as the kind they had formerly received from us. The result was that in 1908 I sold several times as many as the year before. In fact I kept several retailers supplied for the entire year. Now as we salesmen are paid by the year to sell on the cheese Boards of the country we do not try to cultivate the home trade to any extent. That trade we leave to those unfortunates who have either a poor maker or bad flavors in his make and cannot sell on the Board at top prices. And I take it that it must be the superior class of cheese for our home trade that brought about such an unlooked for demand for our goods. In conclusion I must say that from what the grocers who have dealt with us tell me, that, if grocers would be more careful where they purchase their supplies and secure them only from factories with up-to-date plants—and there are plenty of them—they would have a better flavored and a moister class of cheese. It would be better for themselves by creating a larger demand and thereby creating a much larger home market for the products of one of our main industries—the cheese industry of Canada.

A LARGE LEMON.

In a hot house in Cape Breton a lemon of an unusually large size was picked recently. It measured fully 10 inches in circumference and was a healthy looking specimen. A curious circumstance is that the tree was grown from an orange pip and the lemon tree afterwards grafted on.

PEACH CROP NOT A FAILURE.

A correspondent from Winona, Ont., in reference to the recent startling reports about the failure of the 1909 peach crop, owing to the peculiar weather, writes the Canadian Grocer : "I think the newspapers must keep the type standing all the time and use such misleading rumors about this time every year and also after a cold day in June. Growers here declare that if half the buds were really killed there would be more than enough left, and the peach fruit is of a far better quality when the yield is not too numerous."

THE GROCER'S ENCYCLOPEDIA

The Manufacture of Malt Vinegar and Why it is Best for Table Use—Made From Barley Malt—Spurious Vinegars on the Market—Canada Manufactures Some.

MALT VINEGAR.—Every household has its vinegar supply and every housekeeper knows there are different kinds of vinegar used. But everybody does not appreciate why certain kinds of vinegar are used at times in preference to others.

Malt vinegar, made from barley malt, is one of the most important, and every grocer should know something about its manufacture, as it is the one widely used for the table. Why it is best for such should be known by all salesmen.

The developments of recent years in cereal food products have scientifically demonstrated that the malting of cereals gives them a most healthful effect upon the digestive organs of the human system.

The malting of grain signifies the artificial doing of that which nature does in reproducing grain of its species. The process consists of first steeping the grains in vats of water, to extract from them the impurities attached to the hulls, after which the water is run off and the grain is spread upon floors of tile, where it soon begins to germinate in the same manner as when planted in the soil. As soon as the germ or root sprout develops, its further growth is checked, and at the same time the germs are kept intact by an intricate drying process, through which all moisture is gradually exhausted.

When thoroughly dry, the grain becomes known as malt, and is ready for brewing, which is the process of developing the extract from the starch and the germ which the malted grain contains.

Malt Extract.

In brewing the malt, after being crushed, is again placed in vats, where, mixed with water and subjected to heat, the starch, acted upon by the germ, is converted into a sweet liquid called "wort" or malt extract.

Up to this point the process is the same for making the malt extracts so generally recommended by physicians, as for making malt vinegar. Beyond this point the similarity of treatment ceases; and as we have only to do with vinegar, we will discuss the treatment of malt extract from a vinegar standpoint only.

In preparing malt extract for transformation into vinegar, all albuminous matters are first removed by boiling, after which alcohol is developed from the sugar contained in it by fermentation. When the process of fermentation is complete, the liquid is drawn off into air-tight vats; here an after-fermentation and the precipitation of all yeasty matters take place; the fermented liquid remaining in these vats for several months before being carried to refining tanks.

The next step is to the generators for the development of its natural acidity, which is brought about by the contact of the liquid with oxygen contained in the air. After this process the liquid must again pass through the refining and clearing tanks, finally coming out a bright, clear, brown vinegar.

In malting barley, a very agreeable aroma develops, which is retained through all the subsequent processes, and which finally serves to give finished malt vinegar its fine, aromatic flavor in which quality, as well as purity and wholesomeness, it is notably superior.

Age is Required.

In common with all other vinegars, malt vinegar requires age, and until it has been stored for at least one year it is not considered good for use.

It is known to the trade that the market has many spurious vinegars, some of them dangerous to the health. The grocer should make it a point to see that he gets the kind he pays for, and he therefore can be certain as to quality and can make the quality a strong selling point.

Although Canada has some ten or dozen vinegar manufacturing establishments not all of these manufacture malt vinegar.

IN A NEW STORE.

M. L. Fingland, grocer, of Brampton, has moved into a fine new store across the way from his old stand. He has fitted it with the most modern fixtures and put in a plate glass front, making it in every way a thoroughly up-to-date store. In addition to his fine stock of quality groceries and fruits Mr. Fingland has added a stock of boots and shoes. He has the good wishes of a large circle of friends in his new venture.

H. Laporte, of Laporte Martin & Co., Montreal, called at the Toronto office of the Grocer during the week. He was on a business trip through Ontario to Chicago and other United States cities.

Talking to the Point

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS get right down to the point at issue If you want something, say so in a few well-chosen words. Readers like that sort of straight-from-the-shoulder-talk, and that is the reason why condensed ads are so productive of the best kind of results.

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS are always noticed. They are read by wide-awake, intelligent grocers, who are on the look-out for favorable opportunities to fill their requirements.

TRY A CONDENSED AD IN THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Mr. Grocer——

Do you want to make money—here is a chance—to make it easily, quickly, and lots of it—Do you for any reason wish to take up this very profitable line—That will net you a good income, as well as increase your sales in other lines—If you do read this. Every housekeeper dreads ironing day, especially so when she has a lot of shirt-waists, men's shirts, collars, cuffs, etc. to iron, she always wants to obtain a high grade finish, equal to first class laundries. She of course asks the grocer for advice—in return he offers her the common wax—She knows it is impossible to do good work with common wax—So she walks away—one customer lost.

Now where she can procure an article of this merit—that reduces ironing time by half—reduces labor to a minimum—adds to the finish of clothes—and makes ironing a day of pleasure—There she is sure to do her buying—and leave her order for other things. The Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner is used in more than a million homes, read what users say.—

Chicago, Jan. 4th, 1909

To whom it may concern,—

Some time ago I tried the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner, and was so pleased with the work it did, that I recommend it highly and advise every women who wants to make her work easy, to try the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner and be convinced of its good work.

Respectfully yours
Mrs. T. Ohmes, D.S.C.L.O.T.M., 937 W. Adams St.

Mr. Grocer

The eradication of worms from horses and other animals is one of the most striking features of Molassine Meal, and is proof of its unique properties. When is used regularly—although it is quite free from arsenic or drugs—in consequence of its antiseptic properties, all foul or putrid matter is evacuated, worms cannot live, and are naturally expelled.

A food which has effects like this must command the attention of all persons interested in the feeding of horses and cattle.

WHY YOU SHOULD SELL

MATHIEU'S SYRUP
of Tar and Cod Liver Oil

REASON NO. 1

Nine out of every ten people when troubled with a cough or cold call for Mathieu's Syrup.

Hence there is no time wasted in selling it. It almost sells itself. This is the result of its exceptional curative properties in all chest and throat complaints—backed up by good advertising.

This advertising consists of

1. Our newspaper campaign.
2. One person recommending it to another, and probably telling him that he got it at your store.
3. Dealers who know a good article when they see it and gladly recommend it to their customers and friends.

Let us have an order from you to-day.

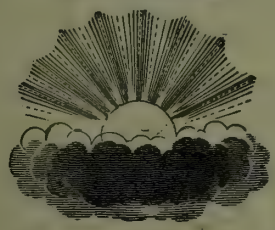
BULK VERSUS PACKET

If you are still depending on the old-fashioned stock of bulk teas, you are in the same position as the man who climbs ten flights of stairs when there is an elevator in the building.



You are not only like him—losing time—which is money – but you are losing the benefits derived from pushing a high-class tea like which is not only a great convenience, but more profitable. No loss in weighing, no exposure to dust or air, no deterioration in flavor, no loss in interest, no freight to pay. Instead of carrying a large stock of bulk tea, is it not much better to carry a small well-assorted stock of "SALADA" in Black, Green and Mixed? Remember, that besides loss in interest, every tea of whatever growth loses at least one cent per pound every six months in quality, as all teas deteriorate with age.

"Salad, Edible and Cooking Oils"

WINTER PRESSED

"Sun Burst" Reg'd.

"Non-Pareil" Reg'd.

To know these oils is to stock them. The finest substitute for lard on the market. Guaranteed under the Pure Food Act.

We carry a stock and will be pleased to send you samples, with prices.

You will find our oils a good proposition all the way, owing to the number of uses to which they can be put.

Mr. Grocer——

Do you want to make money—here is a chance—to make it easily, quickly, and lots of it—Do you for any reason wish to take up this very profitable line—That will net you a good income, as well as increase your sales in other lines—If you do read this. Every housekeeper dreads ironing day, especially so when she has a lot of shirt-waists, men's shirts, collars, cuffs, etc. to iron, she always wants to obtain a high grade finish, equal to first class laundries. She of course asks the grocer for advice—in return he offers her the common wax—She knows it is impossible to do good work with common wax—So she walks away—one customer lost.

Now where she can procure an article of this merit—that reduces ironing time by half—reduces labor to a minimum—adds to the finish of clothes—and makes ironing a day of pleasure—There she is sure to do her buying—and leave her order for other things. The Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner is used in more than a million homes, read what users say —

To whom it may concern,—

Some time ago I tried the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner, and was so pleased with the work it did, that I recommend it highly and advise every women who wants to make her work easy, to try the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner and be convinced of its good work.

Respectfully yours
Mrs. T. Ohmes, D.S.C.L.O.T.M., 937 W. Adams St.

Mr. Grocer

We do not want you to order until you have convinced yourself of the merits of our Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner—Send us your name and address and jobber you do business with and we will send you one free of charge so that you may try it yourself and be convinced—Is this fair enough?

$1.00 Sold $25 Worth of Groceries

It was a thirty-mile trip to town and the instructions of Mrs. Smith to husband John were to get a dollar's worth of Windsor Salt at the grocer's—naturally husband John secured his entire list of groceries at the store that was stocked with "Windsor." He spent twenty-five dollars in that particular store.

The reason why Mrs. Smith was determined to have Windsor Salt was and is plainly evident—its uniform excellence, purity, whiteness and dryness. It pays to sell the salt that helps to sell other goods in the store.

What To Do in the Month of March

Push Canned Vegetables and Fruit—Fish for Lenten Season—Confectionery and Flowers—Maple Products—Window and Interior Displays.

There are three grocery lines that should make good sellers in March — canned goods, fish and maple products —and these lines should be pushed, and pushed hard.

Although the month of March makes one think of spring, as a rule this month is still held fast in the grip of winter. It would be well for the grocer who keeps his eye on his business to take into account both the thoughts of the general community and the actual state of the weather as it exists during this month by anticipating his future wants and catering to the present needs of his customers. He will then find that one fits in with the other, and when followed up will be beneficial to himself and profitable to his business.

If the grocer with his business always uppermost in his mind takes a survey of his store he will see some lines of goods that should be pushed now to make room for more seasonable goods in a few weeks' time. For instance, there are a number of lines of canned goods very good sellers during the winter time, but tapering off into almost nothing as the warm weather advances. One of the first lines to be hit by the change of weather is vegetables. The great majority of consumers prefer to have fresh and green vegetables to the canned variety—always, of course, taking into consideration the matter of price. One of the great reasons why canned goods have jumped into demand of late years is because the price placed on the goods has been low, thus enabling all classes of the community to have articles of food even when out of season. The canner buys his vegetables, fruit and other stock when it is most advantageous to do so, and he gives the benefit of his advantageous position to the grocer and the consumer. The canner, too, shows and proves that his goods are pure, and the enactments of the pure food law serve to place a guarantee on his wares. The grocer should learn a lesson from the canner and place his goods when he finds he can do so advantageously. March, then, should be a canned goods month.

Other Goods to Display.

Vegetables, fruit and fish should be brought to the front and introduced to the customer, shown to the consumer and displayed before the buying public. And anyway the grocer does not want to carry over any old season's stock. Canned vegetables go pretty well with a dinner during the cold days when the appetite is keen, and make a fine accompaniment for meats and other solids. They can be served in a great variety of ways, and the grocer should acquaint himself with these ways so as to be able to tell his customer all about them. Canned fruit for dessert, too, is just the thing now. The housewife did not put down so much preserves last year owing to the high price of fruit, and what she did preserve has gone by this time. So bring to the front canned vegetables and fruit, and prepare for the fresh lines a few weeks hence.

Lenten Season Here.

The lenten season has arrived and the grocer knows that Lent and fish go together, but he should know further that fish and Lent and March go together this year. A number of grocers, and they are increasing every year, now carry fresh, frozen and smoked fish during the seasons they are in demand and they, of course, are in a good position to pick up trade. But if you are a grocer and do not handle fresh lines there are the canned fish, which are packed in all varieties. Acquaint yourself with the names of them and tell your customers the good points of each.

There is another class of goods that might be included in the March selling list, and that is cereals, particularly the lines adapted for cooking and heating. The ready-prepared cereals are wanted the year round and it is advisable to carry them in stock at all times, but a good warm breakfast of cereals goes fine on a chilly morning and will have a call that is entirely absent in the summer time.

Make the interior and window displays harmonize with the season and put prominently forward the seasonable lines you are selling. Shelf displays of canned and package goods can easily be made very attractive, as they lend themselves readily to almost any scheme, and a continually changing window picture of the various lines you are pushing will help out your plan wonderfully.

A neat Lenten window display was made last year by a grocer in one of the smaller cities. The background was formed of a fish-net held at the top by corks, while a border of wall paper, showing a series of sea and fishing scenes topped off the whole. The floor of the window was taken up with a series of display shelves with groupings of various kinds of tinned fish thereon, each group labelled with a neat card showing a picture of the fish in its native element and the name underneath. The centre-piece was a card set on the top shelf of the stand bearing the motto, "What shall we eat during Lent?" The front of the window had for a border a variety of the various packs of sardines, each carefully labelled. Now that was a Lenten window of a fine class and while there were a great number of fish lines shown there was no crowding, and simplicity ruled over all, although much thought must have been given to the scheme beforehand.

Such a window might serve as a first week's display during March for any grocer. The second might be devoted to canned vegetables; the third to fruits, and the fourth to maple goods, which will about then be arriving on the market. But above all, do not crowd your displays. Better by far show one line in a simple way than place a heterogeneous mass of goods in an elaborate display, for while the latter may make a fine picture and will undoubtedly attract attention, the effect will be forgotten before the observer has gone a block. Not so the other. Observe next time you enter an art gallery whether the most admirers are before the elaborate gaudy picture or the simple rustic scene with something human about it. Be simple and you will be effective.

Confectionery Needed.

There is one particular line, too, that is more and more being carried by grocers, and that should be carried by every grocer—and that is confectionery. How many really first class confectionery stores are there in your town; and how many people demand first class confectionery. Figure this question out and decide for yourself whether or not it is well to add confectionery, not as a side line, but as a regular department. Now is a good time to begin. The Easter season is just ahead and a nice display of a few varieties of choice candies should attract attention. Go light at first. Rome was not built in a day. Nearly everybody these days is from Missouri, and you will have to show them you have the goods before they will be tempted to buy.

Flowers, too, might be worth while. In an article such as this it is impossible to dogmatize. The best the writer can do is to suggest. There are, however, in many of the larger centres, florists who are willing to sell potted and cut flowers on a commission basis. The loss is nil in such cases and an added attractiveness is given to the store and the stock by the use of flowers.

Fish, vegetables, fruit, confectionery, cereals and flowers should be good lines to push during March.

WESTERN SOAP SITUATION.

United States Manufacturers Hanging on to Fancy Soap Market.

With the consolidation by purchase of the soap works at Calgary by a soap making company of Winnipeg and Vancouver, there seems to be an inclination on the part of the company to control the soap market of Western Canada. While United States manufacturers have lost ground in laundry soaps to these Western Canada soap makers, the former are still holding on to the fancy soap trade, and, of course, do not desire to see such a valuable market go by.

In looking over statistics referring to the soap importations of Japan, it is observed that very little Canadian soap is sent to that country. There seems to be no reason why a trade in soap between Japan and this country cannot be worked up with profit.

John Edward Jones writes on the Canadian Soap Trade referring particularly to the consolidation as follows:

This organization on the part of this Canadian concern evidences a purpose to control the soap market of Western Canada. For a long time—in fact, since the last customs tariff of Canada went into effect—United States soaps have found a decreasing market in Western Canada. This is true more especially of the laundry soaps, which have found it impossible to pay a duty of 1 cent per pound and compete with the Canadian product. The result is that the United States made laundry soap has practically been shut out of Canada.

Taking advantage of the liberal advertisement which made special products of the United States popular, the Canadian soap manufacturers have duplicated the article and made material inroads into the business of Western Canada.

Fancy Soap Market.

A most determined effort was made to control the laundry-soap business and this has succeeded. Considerable difficulty, however, has been found in controlling the market for fancy soaps, and the well-known brands of United States manufacture still enjoy a good sale, although it is by no means commensurate with the situation, as the company in question is also proving a strong competitor in this line.

Before the consolidation of these companies the local concern experienced difficulty in obtaining a sufficient supply of raw material. It, therefore, went into the markets of the United States and imported large quantities of rough grease, which comes in free of duty. Quite a vigorous protest was entered during the early part of 1908 by one of the American manufacturers that tallow was being purchased in the Western part of the United States and sent into Canada free of duty. Samples of the material were sent to the Dominion chemist, who ruled in favor of the importer. The new company has a capitalization of $2,000,000, and, for the present, will confine its efforts to the Western market before undertaking any advertising campaign for export business.

NEW COMPANIES.

The Kinburn Cheese and Butter Association is a new company formed with a provincial charter to manufacture and sell cheese and butter. The provisional directors of the corporation are George Arthur Murphy, Thomas Harris Armstrong, John Francis Neil, James Thomas O'Neil, Richard Groves, David Croskery, Thomas Geddes, John Robert Cavanagh and Thomas Armstrong, all of Fitzroy township, Carleton county.

DISPLAY SEASONABLE GOODS

Now is the Time to Advertise Canned Goods, Cereals, Jams and Jellies—Objects Desired in Dressing a Window—Grocers Invited to Send Photographs.

The present is a splendid time for the displaying of canned goods as the season for the purchase of these is here. Window-dressers should have little trouble in making an attractive, simple display of these on account of the facility with which they can be handled.

Here is one simple and effective arrangement: In the centre of the window pile up tomatoes in a triangular shape. On one side of the centre pile say cherries and on the other plums having both of these arranged in triangular forms. Neatly made price cards can be easily placed in each pile without deterioriating from the effect.

The cans arranged in concave or convex style will often lend a more effective tinge to the display.

One window dresser using this style commanded the attention of the passers-by when he carved out a "man" which he stood up on the central pile of cans placing in his uplifted hand a show card bearing the phrase, "Is well put up." To manufacture the man he has given the following advice:

Take a can of tomatoes and then cut cover nearly out. Empty the can and turn the cover up marking the face with black ink or paint. Make the arms and legs out of box board. The arms should be arranged so that the tin can be tacked on end to hold the can up.

Arrange the body so that the arms and legs can be attached. Saw short pieces of wood and stuff can full, then drive a wedge in the centre and nail on the arms and legs. Now extend a stick from legs to floor and nail fast.

Seasonable Goods.

Grocers should always remember that a window display, to be effective, must show the right goods at the appropriate season and must show them in a proper manner. This, in principle, is the whole secret of window dressing. With all these things taken into consideration and successfully worked out, the display will attract the right sort of attention and will therefore be profitable.

It need hardly be impressed upon the retail grocer that, with a neat window display, the interior of his store should conform in neatness with the display shown from without, or that the grocer should be prepared to make good all the things which the passers-by are led to expect they will find in the store. A grocery store window display is designed to appeal to the primal instinct of humanity—one in which the eye has usually a good deal to do in making up one's mind whether to buy or not to buy.

In the construction, both of window and interior displays, the quality of suggestiveness should be taken into consideration. Displays, therefore, which suggest to the mind of the customer things that are palatable and appropriate, but which he might not of himself think to order, may be accounted successful. Everyone must realize, with a little thought, that his immediate cares are usually so engrossing that he gives as little attention as possible to the routine part of his life.

A writer on the Art and Science of Window Dressing says of this particular feature of display that it is necessary and proper, for the more the routine actions which become habitual, the more time can be given to things which require thought and attention. Now, it is the part of the grocer, in his line, and of every other merchant, according to his business, to do the thinking for his customers up to a certain point. Not that he must say to Mrs. Smith, "Madam, you want sauerkraut to-day; you don't want pickles," but, if he wants to sell sauerkraut or pickles, to have them where Mrs. Smith can see them neatly displayed, either in the the window or inside the store.

Attention in Smaller Places.

In large cities it should not be much trouble to get retailers to thinking about the importance of the proper display of their goods, for they have so many examples of successful firms all around them that make this one of the leading features of their business. But the merchant in the smaller places has some excuse for laxity in this respect, for he has not the force of constant example to remind him. Human nature, however, is the same everywhere, and a good window will be likely to pull as well propotionately in a small town as in a big one.

For variety the grocer could, without much trouble, get up a few displays showing the origin and various stages of manufacture of some of the lines he carries. Some of the ordinary things, even, would attract favorable attention. For instance, if he is pushing a certain flour, a bundle of wheat in one end of the window, next, a sack of grain ready for the mill, then the different flours, such as graham, whole wheat and fine white flour in their order could be shown with appropriately labeled cards. He might add some of the cereals made from wheat. Other goods could be treated in the same way from time to time, with appropriate backgrounds, cards and announcements. Such displays always attract attention and create comment. They get people interested and stimulate thought.

Retail grocers are cordially invited to send us photographs of their most successful windows that we may select some to reproduce and comment on from time to time.

February is a good month in which to display canned goods, cereals, jams, jellies and preserves.

WASHBOARD TRADE.

N. A. Jones is traveling through Canada in the interests of the Wayne Manufacturing Company, St. Louis, one of the largest manufacturers of washboards and washing machines in the United States. He reports meeting with good success. In some sections of the Dominion this company has already worked up a satisfactory trade.

Development of the Fruit Industry

British Columbia Becoming Important Factor in the Raising of Apples of High Quality—Had Splendid Exhibit at Big Spokane Show—Unity Among Growers, Transportation Companies and Wholesalers Desired.

Nelson, B.C., March 3.—Canada is rapidly becoming a prominent fruit-producing country and there is no doubt she has a bright future in this industry. British Columbia, with its genial climate has, during the past year or so, been attracting attention from various quarters in view of the splendid quality and the abundance of its fruit.

Probably the best advertisement that fruit from this province ever received was at the National Apple Show recently held in Spokane, when the Kelowna exhibit carried away prizes which aggregated $4,423. That was, indeed, a great testimonial to the worth of the apples of this province. There were only forty boxes in the entire Kelowna exhibit. The climate, the soil and the touch of frost which the apples receive in British Columbia give them the color the flavor and the firm juicy body which cannot be obtained where like conditions do not prevail. The apple is a hardy fruit that reaches its greatest perfection in a climate where there is some snow and frost, which imparts to it a flavor that is absent from it where produced in a zone where the sunshine is almost perpetual and where Jack Frost is given but little opportunity of showing what he can do when it comes to turning out a perfect apple.

An Enormous Enterprise.

British Columbia carried off more prizes for the amount of fruit shown than any other district represented. Dominion Fruit Inspector, Maxwell Smith, considers that the promoters of the Spokane Apple Show are entitled to unstinted praise for the splendid manner in which they carried the stupendous enterprise to a successful issue and their treatment of visitors from the north of the international boundary line was courteous and considerate in the extreme.

Mr. Smith comments on the excellent manner in which the British Columbia fruits were display by F. R. E. DeHart, as they have brought to this province honors which other districts might have won but neglected to seize the opportunity of doing so.

Advance of the Industry.

In an address given recently by Martin Burrell, M.P., for Gale-Cariboo, some interesting information of the development of the fruit industry in British Columbia was given.

He told of the history of fruit growing in British Columbia, from the planting of the first fruit tree in 1849, by James Douglas, chief factor of the Hudson's Bay Company, and afterwards Governor of the Crown Colony, up to the present tremendous development with 75,000 acres in orchard, a great deal of it under immigration. The first shipment to outside markets was made in 1897. In 1902, the province produced 2,000 tons of fruit, in 1904, 3,000 tons, valued at $250,000, and in 1908, over $1,000,000 worth, which was marketed not merely in the Northwest and Great Britain, but in far-off Australia. Mr. Burrell said that the development of the fruit industry in British Columbia was only at its beginning, because, aside from the fact that there was much ground still to be planted, only 10 per cent. of the area thus far planted was now in bearing.

A Portion of Apple Show Held at Spokane, in Which British Columbia Won Nearly $5,000 Worth of Prizes.—From Canadian Horticulturist.

On the Mountain Slopes.

He explained the general features of the climate of British Columbia, showing that while the presence of the coast range, and, further inland, the Selkirk, was to produce areas of heavy precipitation through drawing the moisture from the clouds driven in from the Pacific, there was, between these ranges, a great valley country which might be called semi-arid and for the best utilization of which irrigation was necessary. He showed that experience had proven that fruit could be grown much higher up on the mountain slopes than had at first been supposed. Grand Forks was 1,700 feet above sea level, and was the centre of a splendid fruit-raising district. He explained how the progress of the art of horticulture made it possible to produce excellent results with far less water supply than was at first deemed necessary, so that, with a given expenditure on irrigation works, fruit cultivation might be extended over an immense area.

Continuing, he referred to the prizes won by British Columbia fruit in competition with the very best that could be produced elsewhere. At the great show of the Pacific Coast Fruit Growers' Association, at which the best growers of Oregon and Washington were represented, British Columbia took the hundred-dollar gold medal for the best five cases. And at the first great national apple show, held at Spokane, which was attended by buyers not only from all over the United States, but from Europe as well, one valley in British Columbia, which took there a small exhibit, won $4,500 worth of prizes, and took also the cup for the best individual apple, in color, texture and quality in the whole exhibition. At the Royal Horticultural Society's Exhibition in England, where the judges were the most critical in the world, for six consecutive years British Columbia had captured the gold medal.

No. 1 Fruit.

One great advantage enjoyed by the fruit growers of British Columbia was the high percentage of No. 1 fruit produced by the orchards. Mr. Burrell said that, in a British orchard, not more than 10 per cent. of the fruit would average first class. In Ontario a liberal estimate would be from 30 to 50 per cent. He believed he was absolutely safe in saying that the percentage in British Columbia would be not less than 70 per cent. In his own orchard he had found as high as 95 per cent. grade No. 1 fruit.

Thus, it will be seen that this province to the west is becoming a factor in the fruit market, and more will be heard of it in the next few years to come.

Proper facilities for transportation are in order and are announced to be provided at Okanagan Landing, Koloma and other Okanagan Lake points whereby carload lots may be loaded in the cars and carried by barge to landings for trans-shipment. One sentiment which finds a unanimous expression is that the future success of the fruit industry in British Columbia depends on a strict adherence to the principle of unity among the growers, the transportation companies and wholesalers interested in the business.

BERLIN ON A SATURDAY.

One of the Most Lively Markets in the Country—Some Good Grocers There.

Between six and seven o'clock on a Saturday morning the sweet slumbers of the citizens of Berlin, Ont., are aroused by the pouring in of the farmers with their produce to their weekly market, and a short time after, the sidewalk is full of people with baskets on their way to bring their week's supply. An almost endless variety of things is brought there by the farmers, who have their own rented space to display their goods, and who are there every Saturday, rain or shine, winter or summer, the year in and the year out.

This market is unique in many respects. If it is not the best and largest market in Canada, there is certainly a greater variety of goods brought out by the farmers than in any other place in Canada. Here you see sausages made of the best meat, and prepared in many different ways. Cheese of every description from "Schmear Kase" to the best "Cheddar." There is butter of excellent quality and poultry, cleaned and drawn, ready for the pot. By 9 o'clock the most of the stuff is sold and at 10 o'clock they are all away; the town people have their supplies, and the farmers are crowding the stores to spend part of the money they secure for their produce, and by noon they have all left the town, and many of them are at home for dinner.

Grocers in Berlin.

After the rush is over a call is made on a number of the grocers in the town. They were all well pleased on Saturday with the business they had done during the morning's rush and were ready to open their stores for the benefit of the "Canadian Grocer."

Dunke & Co.

Mr. Dunke was raised on a farm on the outskirts of the town, and started in business 22 years ago. He does a large business and has the confidence of the people of the town, which is proven by the fact that he has been elected alderman during the last four years. This firm gets a good portion of the farmer's trade as well as a good share of the town. The clerks are all hustlers and no other are employed.

R. Weber & Co.

This firm is immediately opposite the market and catches a large part of the farmer's trade. During the forenoon of every Saturday they employ eight clerks to handle the crowds. In this store was noticed a lady clerk who was a favorite with the customers, and who is active and seems to be very attentive to her work.

Beck and Shell.

This is a good store. The two members of the firm are young active men, who with three clerks do a large business, and are doing well.

A. S. Hallman.

The special feature of this business is farmers' produce, meats, sausages, headcheese, etc. The proprietor has been in business for a long time and has the confidence of his customers.

Metcalfe Bros.

This firm certainly deserves great credit, for the excellent condition of their store. It is 165 ft. deep with basement and three flats, every part of it is as clean as a pin, and everything is in perfect order. They have built up their extensive business on high-class goods and on good service, and are constantly improving their methods to further the interests of the business, and to meet the most particular fancies of the people. Cleanliness is the one great feature in the management of this remarkable store. They roast and grind their own coffee, blend their own teas, and manufacture their own candy. The public is invited to inspect every part of their store and see for themselves how carefully and clearly everything is handled and prepared. This firm has demonstrated the fact that success depends not so much in selling cheap as it does on clean goods and good service.

TAKING BUSINESS LIFE EASILY.

Complexity of Social Conditions—Life Not Being Lived Naturally.

By Janius B. Remensnyder.

That the great Teacher knew men well, their weaknesses and their needs, is remarkably shown by this counsel: "Behold the fowls of the air; for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?"—Matt. vi., 26.

He had noted the anxiety written in their faces. Their duties, their burdens, their responsibilities, weighed down the uplift of their hearts.

And how much more He would have observed the same aspect to-day! Life then was simple and free compared with the present. Social conditions have grown so complex that it is hard to keep from being under stress. If one looks at the multitudes of persons he meets on our streets, every one seems in a hurry, as if bearing a strain. Life is not being lived easily and naturally, but under a pressure—almost painfully. Even the faces of the young reveal this severe conception of life.

Now Christ considered this a distorted, needless and unhappy thing. And so He calls men to look at the freedom and blithesome joy of the carolling birds—so much wiser in their simplicity than they in all their anxious forethought and strain. How, then, can we avoid this error and take life easily and naturally?

Love your work. Do not think that every one else has an easier calling than you have. Most of us have found the labor fitted to our hand, and, remembering that work is life's chief business, we should take delight in it. Throw away all ambition beyond that of doing your day's work well.

Exercise neighborliness, feel kindly to your brother man, show an interest in his success, live and let live, find pleasure in love and interest in others. It is our selfishness that accounts for much of our stress. Were we satisfied with our portion instead of cherishing a grasping spirit, we would find life a far less thorny road. He who takes time to do a kindly action lightens his own task and illumes his own face.

Recreation Desirable.

Again, have some innocent recreation. It is the greatest error to confound religion with abstinence and austerity. The Church has never made the mistake of opposing harmless pleasures. Those Christian people who have done so have sadly misrepresented it.

Never worry over evils to come. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Far more troubles are suffered in imagination than in reality. Let us hope for the best instead of dreading the worst. Never bear more than one trouble at a time. Some people bear three kinds—all they have had, all they have now and all they expect to have. Let us not, then, suffer from imaginary sorrows.

And when troubles do come bear them patiently. Patience is as a case of armor around the heart, which deadens the blows inflicted on it. Impatience not only strips off the covering but lays bare the very quick in all its sensitiveness of nerve. To bear evils with patience extracts from them their sharpest thorns and gathers from them the sweetest graces of temper.

But the chief means of taking life easily is that to which the Master here points us. It is the lesson taught by the birds. They are by no means idle. They work from morning until night. But their activity is without care. Their life is free, joyous, unburdened by anxiety—a gladsome flight, a ceaseless song. "And yet your Heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?" Let us, then, have faith in God. Let us do our work and trust the rest to Him.

The Use of Benzoate a Burning Question

Unknown New York Man Issues Sensational Circular Referring to Advertising Campaign Carried on Against Use of Foods Containing This Preservative—Calls it a "Dishonest" and "Despicable" Method—No Canned Goods Need Benzoate of Soda.

New York, March 3.—An attack on the senational advertising of foods contained in a circular which has been sent to retail grocers is causing much comment here just now. The benzoate of soda war has broken out afresh, but Dr. Wiley is not the central figure in this new crusade. It is between the two camps of the preserving industry and has advertising as its chief casus belli.

Within a few days past this sensational circular has been distributed among the retail grocers of New York city and probably the United States. Who wrote it or whence it came is not known, but it has evidently struck a popular chord among the retailers and indicates that "the trodden worm will turn" when sufficiently "trodden." All the interests heretofore known to favor the use of benzoate of soda profess to be surprised at the circular and disclaim any knowledge as to who is its sponsor, though they frankly admit that it covers the ground from their standpoint admirably. The circular reads as follows with names omitted :

BROTHER GROCER.

An attempt is now being made by the —— Co., of ——, to destroy and render valueless millions and millions of dollars of food products, preserved with benzoate of soda, now the property of grocers throughout the United States, by false and misleading advertisements in the magazines and leading papers throughout the country.

The United States Government legalizes manufacturers of certain food products to use benzoate of soda when they indicate it on their label ; notwithstanding this fact, the —— Co. persists in announcing to the public that the United States Government has officially declared in a bulletin against benzoate of soda, and more than this, falsely leads the public to believe that it is a poison, when in reality it is naturally found in foods.

The opinion of the wholesale and retail grocers as well as all fair-minded merchants independent of the food industry is this : "That never in the history of trade and commerce has there been such a dishonest and more despicable method of advertising propaganda as is now conducted by the —— Co., ——. The truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, the facts as they are : The United States Government allows the use of benzoate of soda in certain food products, and furthermore the Referee Board of Chemists, composed of the most scientific and eminent men in the United States, and appointed by President Roosevelt to make a thorough investigation of the benzoate of soda question, has rendered its report, which conclusively proves that benzoate of soda as now used in certain food products is a wholesome substance and not injurious to health thus settling now and forever the benzoate of soda controversy. It may also be said that the use of benzoate of soda in food products not quickly consumed after opening and liable to spoilage is a blessing in disguise, thus preventing ptomaine poisoning and intestinal disorders, which often result in death.

Brother grocer, these are the facts and it is for you to say whether the —— Co., of —— is to say to your customers that your food products containing benzoate of soda are unfit for human consumption, thus rendering your property valueless.

A Burning Question.

Ever since benzoate became a subject of scientific controversy in the food question, food producers have been divided into two camps, some who claimed it was essential for the economical production of certain foods not hermetically sealed and those who did not use it.

When Dr. Wiley issued his dictum against benzoate the latter class seized upon it for its practical advertising value, and several firms, especially of late, have been carrying on extensive campaigns of education directed toward the consumer, claiming that goods which contained benzoate of soda were poisonous, that the Government had said so and had condemned their use. Incidentally, the gospel was preached to the effect that anything which contained benzoate of soda was made of waste, cannery slop and similar revolting ingredients, a fact which the trade claimed was only remotely truthful. It was clearly designed to create a prejudice against anything containing benzoate and in favor of the few manufacturers who did not make use of it.

Here is a part of an advertisement, printed in the Pittsburg "Leader" of February 15, indicating the character of the claims set forth against some food manufacturers who use benzoate :

MURDERERS.

A number of manufacturers of strictly pure, high grade foods have effected an organization to secure their own protection from the vilest kind of competition to which they have been subjected.

This organization represents a combined capital of millions of dollars.

It will expose the graft there is in the manufacture of food frauds.

It will open the eyes of the people to where they are being robbed and swindled by the meanest kind of deception.

It will open to the world and bring into view conditions existing in hundreds of food factories worse than Upton Sinclair ever pictured in "Packing Town."

Another force is awakening—the force of public opinion.

The manufacturer of impure or poisoned foods is virtually a murderer.

If the consumer will insist on patronizing the merchants who sell pure food stuffs and will religiously insist on passing the door of the man who foists upon him adulterated, chemically poisoned garbage, for which he charges good money, the pure food question will regulate itself.

The "Leader" is compiling a list of those manufacturers and dealers who make and sell pure foods.

The above is a fair type of the advertising against which the circular is a protest. Unquestionably it has inflamed the public and caused a scare which the grocery trade believes is not only unjust to them but grievously misleading to the public. That it has injured, the demand, not only for competing brands, but of the goods of the few manufacturers who issued it, is the testimony of retailers in various parts of the country.

Not on Its Merits.

About a month ago these few manufacturers at the behest of a Chicago newspaper man of sensational tendencies met in this city and organized an association nominally in the interests of purity in foods. The trade, and especially the opposite camp, regarded this as another bit of the publicity campaign in favor of certain preferred brands and against the users of benzoate. The moral effect of this campaign was such as to prime the public against anything which did not agree with Dr. Wiley, however honest. Even the decision of the Referee Board—a body of scientists of eminent standing—was received with a storm of protest, probably stirred up in some measure by this advertising campaign. At least, the trade has so regarded it and even disinterested, grocery circles have deplored alike the assaults on Dr. Wiley and the Referee Board, clearly caused by misapprehension of the issue and fed by a partisanship quite foreign to the real issues at stake. The benzoate question was being tried on grounds of prejudice, as the grocery trade saw it, rather than on its merits.

Again, as the great bulk of ketchup, preserves, jams, jellies, pie fillers, salt fish, condiments, etc., on the grocers' shelves are made with benzoate and as the trade has never been fully satisfied with the keeping qualities of goods not containing it this campaign was regarded as confiscatory. If the consumer was to be set against goods with benzoate, it meant that large stocks of goods were being jeopardized and rendered unsalable. This has been the cause of considerable bitterness in the trade, especially among retailers, who felt it directly. This fact, probably well known to the writer of the circular, very likely prompted its issuance.

No Benzoate in Canned Goods.

Unfortunately there goes with the public misinformation as to food products a confusion between canned goods and preserved goods. Canned goods which are hermetically sealed and sterilized do not contain benzoate of soda. It is unnecessary and always was. They are entirely apart from the class of goods which use benzoate. Still the prejudice, wherever it has set in, has hurt canned goods as much as the others. This fact led the canners at their recent Louisville convention to promote a bureau for setting the public right on these facts. It is understood that the preserving interests are planning a similar campaign. Salesmen in both lines report that retailers are completely at sea on the issue of wholesome goods and do not dare buy anything till the atmosphere clears. Trade is well nigh at a standstill, even on the goods whose manufacturers started the trouble.

DEATH OF AN EDITOR.

Edward S. Judge, Developer of Canning Industry Passes Away.

Those who were acquainted with Edward S. Judge, for many years managing editor of the Trade, a trade journal published in Baltimore, chiefly in the interests of the canned goods business, will learn with deep regret of his death which occurred on Wednesday, Feb. 17, from paralysis.

He was extensively known through his connection with the growth and development of the canning industry. He plunged in at once to encourage a spirit of co-operation, fraternity and unity, and set about to draw the units into compact. Largely through his efforts the Canned Goods Exchange, the first of its kind in the country, was formed and pushed to success. Through its influence a uniform size of can was adopted and standards of quality were established.

He was one of the originators and founders of the Western Packers Canned Goods Association, and, as with the Exchange, was secretary of it for some years. He planted and cultivated this seed of harmony among the members of the business until to-day the entire business has been drawn into close relationship, although the number of canning establishments runs into the thousands.

You are in business to stay. The sale you make to a customer to-day is not all there is to it. You want that customer to come back and you know how to treat him so that he will.

The man who is busy always has time for a little more. It's the man who thinks he is the busiest on earth that never has a moment to spare. That's because the latter is generally a fusser.

FARMERS ORGANIZING CLUBS

Meetings Held Every Month and Various Subjects Discussed—More Fruit Institutes Conducted with Successful Results—How the Good Work of the Department of Agriculture is Being Extended.

The good work of the Agricultural Department of Ontario in holding various conventions and institutes in different lines is not confined to any one section of the province. Recently fruit institutes were conducted at Beamsville and Stoney Creek, which were largely attended and from which much practical benefit was derived that cannot fail to be of the greatest help to all fruit growers in Lincoln and Wentworth. These two counties are perhaps the largest fruit-growing centres in the province when peaches and grapes are taken into consideration.

The farmers of Prince Edward and Hastings counties are great apple raisers and some of the finest apple orchards in Ontario are to be found there. Last week a fruit institute was conducted at Trenton, at which many persons were present, particularly the young men. The meetings, which were held on Wednesday and Thursday, were valuable to all interested in successful orcharding. The discussions on orchard problems were unusually instructive, and much timely information was secured.

The speakers were: A. McNeill, Chief of Fruit Division, Ottawa; A. W. Peart, Burlington, Ont.; D. Johnson, Forest, Ont.; H. S. Peart, B.S.A., of the Jordan Harbor Station; L. Caesar, Demonstrator in Entomology, O.A.C., Guelph; J. P. Carey, Toronto, and R. M. Winslow, Picton, Ont.

Farmers Forming Clubs.

The effective work of the Agricultural Department is seen in the fact that farmers are now forming clubs for the consideration of topics of mutual interest. Farmers' Institutes, of course, are organized in practically every county, but they hold only one or two meetings a year and cover a wide territory, but with the clubs now under way, gatherings are held more frequently—at least once a month. The membership does not extend over more than one township or portion thereof. The social life of the community is thus promoted and neighbors come in close contact with one another in studying special matters of local interest, which will doubtless result in increased crops and more intelligent and progressive management of farms. This means more money in the pockets of the farmer and more for the grocer, the hardwareman and the dry goods merchant.

As affording an indication of how these clubs are managed and what subjects they discuss, a correspondent from Sidney Township, Hastings County, writes The Canadian Grocer as follows: "The Farmers' Club at Gilbert's school house met in their first regular meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 10. The subjects discussed were the growing of peas and corn for the canning factory, and the value of ice on the farm. The former was introduced by W. E. Vanderwater, who gave a very interesting address. The latter was introduced by G. Cummings, after which nearly every one present expressed their views on both subjects. The Farmers' Club is fast becoming popular, and if rightly carried on cannot help but prove beneficial to those who attend. This club meets on the Wednesday on or before the full moon in each month, and all interested are invited to become members.

NOT CIDER AT ALL.

Dyes, Chlorides and Sulphates Are Said to Be Used—Industry Might Be Made Profitable.

Ottawa, March 3.—A bulletin on cider issued by the Dominion analysts shows that of 62 samples examined, many contained salicylic, while others were colored with dyes and contained chlorides and sulphates.

The analyst expresses the opinion that either a real cider industry does not exist in Canada or that no one is looking after its interests. Some of the cider sold, it is pointed out, is not cider at all.

The report also says the manufacture of cider in Canada has not received the attention it deserves. The apple crop is stated as 18,626,186 bushels for 1901, and the manufacture of cider under proper conditions may become a great industry in Canada.

That the world's market is not fully supplied appears from the fact that dried apple cores and parings are regularly shipped from the United States to France to be used in the manufacture of a low quality of cider.

The manufacturers' point of view may, of course, be different from this. There should, however, be a desire on their part to produce nothing but the best results as there appears to be a good future for the industry. In France, according to official estimates, A. Gaulin, of Havre, finds that the French cider crop in 1908 amounted to 445,750,932 gallons, against 72,805,000 gallons in 1907, and 574,634,000 gallons in 1906. The consul adds:

The average production for the decade from 1898 to 1907 was 420,871,000 gallons. The figures for 1907 were the lowest on record, and considerable quantities of foreign apples had to be imported in order to make up the deficiency. Last year's apple crop was especially abundant in the Normandy district, and large exports of cider apples have been made to Germany.

AFTER SHORT-WEIGHT GOODS.

The pure food inspectors of the Department of Agriculture of the United States have started an active crusade against shippers who have been sending out goods which did not tally with the labels or the invoices.

One of the most important seizures of short-weight goods was that of cheese, a flagrant violator of full weight, the records showing that a large consignment will have to stand trial before a Federal judge on charges of misrepresentation as to avoirdupois contents.

Other classes of goods came under the inspection of the Department and did not stand the test that is imposed as to short weight and the shippers must stand trial for violating the section of the pure law calling for correct contents on interstate shipments where there is a label attached to the package.

EVIL OF MAKING POOR BUTTER

Large Quantities of It Seem to Be Accumulating—Is the Government Lax in Looking After the Situation?

By M. Moyer.

My business during the last three months brought me in contact with a butter dealer in Toronto, and in examining the quality of the butter, and also by forming my opinion from the reports of the wholesale merchants, I am satisfied, that on the whole the butter is not as well made as it was some years ago, and that a much larger percentage of it is practically unfit for table use. Over 25 years ago, as a country store keeper, I started a crusade against the enormous loss sustained by our country through the careless way our butter was made, and the unfair, unbusinesslike way it was handled.

Through this agitation, creameries were started, and the government when this state of affairs was laid before them spent a great deal of money, through "traveling dairies," and through the efforts of the agricultural college in assisting to improve the entire system. The effects of this was soon felt and the quality of our butter improved.

Here we are, twenty-five years after such an experience with tons of butter unfit for human food. Well may we ask "What is the matter and also who is to blame?" The farmer got all the assistance and protection he could ask for, and for this the consuming public have a right to expect fair play and fair treatment.

Just a few days ago it was reported that oleomargerine was illegally manufactured in this country. This law against it was passed in order to protect and encourage good butter making, and the consuming public did not object to it. They expected the farmers would give them good butter. To-day this oleomargerine, in my opinion, is more desirable, more healthful and of better flavor than a large quantity of the butter made in this country. I ask is this a fair deal? Will the consuming public submit to the fact that they are not allowed to buy a better and a cheaper article, if the farmers will not respect a privilege given them, by providing the butter consumers desire. Are the farmers alone to blame? Has the government neglected to do its duty, or are the merchants to blame for encouraging and keeping up the ruinous custom of buying the butter from all the farmers at the same price, whether it is good or bad? I am not, by any means, advocating the manufacture of oleomargerine or any other substitute for butter, but when farmers are going to Ottawa to request the government to enact laws against combines, I think the people who are not farmers have a right to buy substitutes if the farmers will not supply them with the butter they require.

With the improved facilities and the better knowledge of the science of butter-making, there is no excuse for the large quantity of poor butter which is on the market at the present time. During the last several years, the demand for butter was good, prices were high, and almost anything would sell, and through the pernicious and unbusinesslike custom of the storekeepers paying the same price for all qualities, allowed the farmers to become careless. The people are taxed to keep up government officials, farmers' institutes, and other means, to secure good results for them, and when under all these precautions a large portion of our dairy products are unfit for food, then the charge of neglect must be laid on those whose duty it is to look after this matter.

We have on the market, creamery prints, creamery solids, farmers' separator butter, dairy prints, choice dairy prints ordinary, tubs and large rolls. Why all these different lines and qualities, when all are the product of the innocent cow which is the only excusable factor in the whole cycle. Creamery butter is made in creameries where it is made by the best process, for all the farmers who are patrons. This butter, as a rule is the most reliable, but also suffers more or less through careless feeding and handling before it reaches the creamery.

The "Farmers Separator butter" is butter which is not necessarily made from cream taken from the milk by a separator, but is made by good butter makers, wrapped and labelled in 1-lb prints and shipped direct to the city, and sold on its merits, and which are generally equal and often superior to creamery. All the rest comes in mixed lots from the country stores, the best being picked out and goes as choice dairy prints, the next as ordinary dairy prints, and the balance whether in 1 lb. prints or in any other shape, color or flavor as large rolls, and it is particularly to this class I wish to call the attention of all who are concerned. This low grade, to a very large extent governs the market, and like some other evils, to the injury of all. The better the butter, the more is used by the people, and therefore every pound of poor butter has a tendency to diminish the quantity consumed, and lessen the demand. The accumulation of this inferior butter which must be sold at a very low figure, is invariably followed by a drop in all kinds of butter. Through the carelessness therefore of some of the farmers, the unbusinesslike handling by the merchants, and the neglect on the part of the government officials, a large portion of our dairy product is wasted and lost. The dairy industry has therefore reached a point, where in the interests of all, immediate measures should be taken to improve this unsatisfactory state of affairs.

NOVA SCOTIA FRUIT OUTLOOK.

Weather in Eastern Province Has Done Little Damage So Far.

By M. G. DeWolfe.

As requested, I am sending you a short account of the present outlook for fruit in the Cornwallis and Annapolis Valleys.

The winter has been mild, with not much snow, and a good many changes. February has brought some cold weather and a number of sleet storms. At present writing, Feb. 24, the outlook is fine. Trees have come through so far in good shape and fruit buds look well. The sleet storms seem to have done good, and the open season has not injured the trees, but, of course, there is time yet to change present conditions. No trees have had any damage done to them in this locality, for seldom do we suffer much from winter-killing in the Valley.

So far I should think the weather has been all right and there should be a good apple yield this season. The absence of snow may affect the crop of small fruits but it is too soon to know. Fruit growers are in good heart and think the season of 1909 will show splendid results. A great many will enlarge their orchards.

One, however, does not know what March or April may bring in the weather line, but as a rule little damage is ever done at that time.

The orchards in the Valley are so situated that they escape many of the winter troubles that come to other sections of the Dominion.

It is quite a new departure to see a trade journal so much interested in the farmers as is The Canadian Grocer, but it is along the right lines, as business men should get more in touch with the tillers of the soil.

Taken as a whole, the fruit outlook for this section is all right, and there is no cause for complaint.

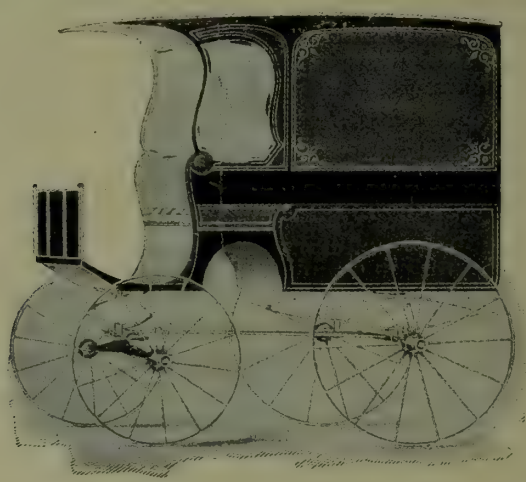
THE PRICE OF BROOMS.

The Weekly Journal-Gazette, published in Mattoon, Ill., U.S.A., says of the proposed advance in brooms:

That the price of house brooms will be advanced another five cents each within a few weeks is the predictions made by a number of broom manufacturers from the east, who passed through Mattoon Sunday. The price on the commodity was raised this amount a few months ago because of the higher prices brought by broom-corn from the field.

The broom men will attend the big national convention which is being held in Chicago.

GROCERS PREDOMINATE.



Chicago, March 3.—Roy Cunningham, of Belvidere, Ills., is the only farmer on the Standard Oil re-trial jury, which was completed in United States District Judge Anderson's court to-day. The preponderance of agriculturists on the first panel of veniremen caused its dismissal at the request of the defence. Attorney John S. Miller vividly remembering that it was a farmers' jury, which made possible Judge Landis' fine of $29,240,000. Mr. Cunningham's companions in the jury box include nine grocers, a mechanic and a live stock dealer.

How St. Mary's Merchants Save Money

General Parcel Delivery System Adds About $300 Yearly to Profits of Each—One Man Has Contract for Delivery for Whole Town—Divides it Into Four Wards for Systematic Purposes—Expense of Maintaining Horse Eliminated—Advantages Told of by Merchants Themselves.

St. Mary's, March 4.—Merchants in the Town of St. Mary's have been enjoying for the past four years a "general parcel delivery," which has proven such a benefit that nothing could induce them to discontinue it. Peculiarly enough this is the only feature of the business of the retail merchants in this town in which they are united and there is no reason why the advantages derived from this co-operation should not be an example for a closer union and better acquaintance.

Some ten or twelve years ago St. Mary's had a Grocers' Association, but, it is claimed, that price cutting proved its undoing at that time. But even without any organized association and simply by a mutual agreement among themselves the merchants of this town have been able to reduce their former expenses for delivery one-half. Here is something that should make retailers, at least, in such towns as St. Mary's, being to think. Where delivering has to be done, is it sound business sense that it should cost twice as much money and much more worry than necessary? No business man would say so.

The Familiar Looking Delivery Vehicle Which St. Mary's Merchants Don't Have to buy.

Inception of the System.

It was about four years ago that the general parcel delivery was first thought of here. The town was divided into four wards so that system could be used in the deliveries. One man took the contract for the whole four, allowing one wagon for each, so that four horses and the same number of wagons were all that were necessary to attend to the work.

For such a job there were plenty of boys to be found to undertake it, and the contractor hires four of them, who, in a short time, know all the people in the various wards. One deliverer takes one ward, and there is no confusion. The drivers are responsible for all goods once they leave the stores, so that carefulness necessarily becomes their motto. This is, of course, understood by the man who has the delivery contract, as well as his employes, so that merchants, who, prior to the institution of the scheme in St. Mary's, lost much by goods going astray, have now none of that expense to bear.

How Contractor is Paid.

At the present time James Moore, a farmer on a small farm just outside the limits of "The Stone Town," has the contract. He takes it yearly so that at the end of every twelve months it has to be renewed. He hires four boys to do the work, and he supplies the outfits. The merchants pay him according to the amount of business they do, so that a sort of "sliding scale" is used in settling up their delivery charges.

The contract, although taken for a year, is not paid for yearly, but at the end of each week each merchant is charged with the amount representing the work the deliverers have done for him. The cost runs from 75 cents to a dollar per day, which is easily one-half what it would be if each retail merchant had to maintain his own private outfit and pay his own driver.

Four Deliveries.

Each day the delivery men make four trips to their respective wards. In the morning the wagons or sleighs, according to the season, leave the business centre of the town at nine and eleven o'clock, and in the afternoon at three and five o'clock.

These hours are known to everybody in the town and often the telephone rings with the inquiry: "Am I in time to catch this delivery?" Probably a negative answer may be given and the good housewife who knows the regulations remarks good-naturedly: "Well, send it with the next, please."

Everybody knows what's what, and they willingly abide by the rules of the retail merchants and drivers. An exception is, of course, made with Saturday night, when at nine o'clock an extra delivery is made.

Advantages to Merchants.

In conversation with a Grocer representative as to how the system worked out, J. F. Pickard, of Pickard & Fleming, grocers, said: "We pay about a dollar a day for our delivery, but if we had to hire a boy it would cost us two dollars at least. Why we could not hire a boy able to do the work for less than a dollar at the least. Then we would have our stable to keep up, our feed to pay for, a horse and delivery wagon to purchase occasionally, the horse to shoe and harness to buy, and the usual wear and tear of things to maintain. We find the deliveries are more prompt; the people were educated to the system at once and know just when the wagons left for the various wards. We don't experience any loss if the goods go astray, as the man who has the contract guarantees to make good for any mistakes. We would certainly not care to go back to the former system."

J. M. Adam, another St. Mary's grocer, has nothing but words of praise for the general parcel delivery system. "It just saves me about a dollar a day," he remarked, "and I'm quite satisfied."

Other merchants of the town speak along similar lines, so that there can be no doubt as to the efficiency of the system here.

Money Saved Each Year.

Mr. Moore, who has the contract, conducts a profitable business, too. With the facilities he is provided with by being a farmer, he can run the delivery business with comparatively little expense, and, therefore, can afford to charge the merchants a moderate sum and still make some money. His delivery conveyances also carry parcels for those who are not interested in the system, and thereby something extra is made. Different colored cards are used to hang in the windows for the four wards, so the work altogether is carried on systematically.

As one merchant expressed himself, there seems no reason why other towns of similar proportions to St. Mary's do not establish the general parcel delivery system. The saving of a dollar a day means more than $300 a year, and this should be something worth while considering. Supposing there are a hundred merchants in a town, that means a saving to them of the big sum of $30,000 per year. Not only that, but there is the elimination of the worry caused by customers complaining of slow deliveries and the extra labor accompanying the work when attended to privately.

NEW PATENT MEDICINE ACT

Fee of One Dollar Charged for Each Certificate of Registration.

The attention of the retail merchants of the Dominion is again called to the new Patent Medicine Act, which comes into effect on April 1. The chief provisions of the Act are as follows:

Every manufacturer or importer of proprietary or patent medicines, as well as every agent of a manufacturer or importer, must procure annually from the Minister of Inland Revenue, before offering any medicine for sale, a numbered certificate of registration as a manufacturer or importer of proprietary or patent medicines. In applying for registration every manufacturer, importer, or agent must specify the medicines which he intends to manufacture or import. A fee of $1 is charged for each certificate of registration.

All proprietary and patent medicines must be put up in packages or bottles having on the label or wrapper, in conspicuous characters, the name and number under which the medicine is registered, with the words "The Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act," and also the manufacturer's name and address. In the case of firms whose chief place of business is not in Canada, the name of the Canadian agent shall be filed with the Minister of Inland Revenue.

Section 7 of the act reads as follows:

1. No proprietary or patent medicine shall be manufactured, imported, exposed, sold, or offered for sale;

(a) If it contains cocaine or any of its salts or preparations;

(b) If it contains alcohol in excess of the amount required as a solvent or preservative, or does not contain sufficient medication to prevent its use as an alcoholic beverage;

(c) If it contains any drug which is included in the schedule to the act, but the name of which is not conspicuously printed on, and an inseparable part of, the label and wrapper of the bottle, box, or other container: Provided, that every manufacturer or importer of or agent for the sale of any medicine containing any of the drugs mentioned in the schedule may, when applying for a certificate of registration for any medicine, transmit to the Minister an affidavit specifying such drug and the proportion of it contained in the mixture and dose, and the Minister may thereupon grant a certificate of registration for such medicine without the printing of the name of the said drug upon the label and wrapper if it appears to the Minister that the proportion of the drug used is not dangerous to health.

2. The burden of proof that the provisions of this section have been observed shall rest upon the person or company manufacturing, importing, selling, or offering for sale such patent or proprietary medicine.

The distribution of samples of proprietary or patent medicines from door to door in a public place or by mail is prohibited. This does not apply to the distribution of samples among retail dealers.

THE TRAVELER'S DREAM.

A little room in a little hotel,
In a little country town,
On a little bed with a musty smell
A man was lying down.

A great big man with a great big snore—
For he lay on his back, you see—
And a peaceful look on his face he wore,
For sound asleep was he.

In his dreams what marvelous trips he made,
What heaps of stuff he sold!
And nobody failed, and everyone paid,
And his orders were good as gold.

He smiled, and smothered a scornful laugh
When his fellow-commercials blowed,
For he knew no other had sold the half
Of what his order-book showed.

He got this letter from home one day:
"Dear Sir,—We've no fitter term
To use in your case than simply to say,
Henceforth you are one of the firm."

And a glorious change this made in his life,
He now from the road withdrew,
And, really, soon got to know his wife,
His son, and his daughter, too.

But with a thump—bang—whang—thump—bang! again,
The "boots" had knocked at the door:
"It's very near time for the 6.10 train!"
And the Commercial's dream was o'er.

HAMILTON TRAVELERS' DANCE.

Hamilton, March 3.—The Hotel Royal on Friday evening last was the scene of a night of gaiety when the travelers assembled to enjoy themselves in the tripping of the light fantastic. A large number were present, and a few pleasant hours were speeded away. The president of the Travelers' Association, E. J. Fenwick, and the treasurer, G. C. Austin, worked strenuously to make the function a delightful one and success attended their efforts.

Invitations had been sent out to friends in Toronto, London, Elmira, Guelph, Tavistock and other places, and visitors from these were present. The patronesses were: Mrs. W. H. Dean, Mrs. E. J. Fenwick, Mrs. Arthur Hatch, Mrs. John Lennox, Mrs. G. M. McGregor, Mrs. C. C. Smye, Mrs. Fred. T. Smye, Mrs. John Stoneman, Mrs. H. G. Wright, Mrs. E. O. Zimmerman.

BRANTFORD NOTES.

This city in the course of a couple of years with the present lines and when the projected lines are completed, will be a veritable "Hub" in the matter of radials. The most important from a local trade standpoint which is now projected, is from Brantford to Port Dover. From Brantford the line will run through Mount Pleasant, Boston, Townsend Centre, Waterford, Bloomsburg, Simcoe and Port Dover. This line it is estimated would serve 34,000 people. The work of extending the lines in this city is being followed by great interest.

Mr. Lloyd, clerk at J. Peachy's, is spending a few days in Toronto.

E. Patterson, Market Street, is progressing favorably after his severe illness, being able to sit up part of the day.

February is reported as being a very fair month for trade in comparison with other years. There is very little skilled labor out of employment this year. One grocer, who has been doing some advertising, reported a very large increase over the amount done last year. The Saturday market possessed no new features, prices being practically the same, except potatoes, which seem very plentiful.

PERSONAL NOTES.

James Chipperfield, for nine years with the Woodstock Wagon Co., Woodstock, Ont., has become managing director of Richards Pure Soap Co.

ALBERTA GOVERNMENT PORK PACKING PLANT.

Experiments in government and municipal ownership seem to be increasingly popular in the West. Manitoba and Alberta have recently bought out the Bell Telephone systems in those Provinces and they are being operated under government control. Edmonton owns and operates its own street railway system and Alberta has for some time operated a system of government creameries.

The latest move of this character is the announcement that the Province of Alberta is to establish a government owned and operated pork packing plant. The proposal seems to be popular in Alberta. It has been introduced by the Liberal Government and a fortnight or more ago was made a plank in the platform of the Conservative opposition.

But favorable as this policy seems to be in the Province of Alberta at the present time its wisdom may well be doubted.

Surely there is some limit to the scope of Government industrial activity and consequent competition with private individuals and corporations. A telephone system is a natural monopoly but a pork packing plant is not.

Consequently many people who may see no special objection to the experiment of government ownership and operation of a telephone system purchased from its owners may well doubt the wisdom of government competition with the pork packers.

One of the strongest packing houses on the continent has recently established a large packing plant in Edmonton and has invested a large sum of money in the enterprise. Is this tendency of the Province of Alberta to establish competitive industrial enterprises likely to encourage the investment of outside capital in that Province?

Alberta wants industries and this is a consideration which should not be overlooked when it is proposed to extend the scope of government ownership.

"TELEPHONE" COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS.

No class of men are keener for business than commercial travelers. In season and out of season; rough weather and mild weather; early in the morning and late at night, they are eager to do business and to take orders.

There are, unfortunately, exceptions to this rule. The other day a commercial traveler reached a certain town during a storm. As he did not like stormy weather he utilized the telephone in his efforts to get orders. He represented a firm that manufactured a line of goods in which there is a great deal of competition and did not get any orders. He did not deserve to get them. A lazy man never deserves success of any kind.

A telephone is useful in many ways, but is a poor order-getting medium. It eliminates personality, and personality counts for a great deal in salesmanship.

Don't be a "telephone" traveler.

LONDON GROCERS' BANQUET.

London grocers are keen on the organization of a provincial association judging from their approval of the remarks of R. J. Donaghy, one of their number who responded to a toast at their recent banquet. The grocers of that city are now well united and are reaping the benefits of their association. They are, or many of them at least, anxious to see an Ontario Grocers' Association embracing members of the trade from all parts of the province similar to the hardwaremen's association. Not until then will they become a positive force in the enactment of laws relative to retail grocers.

Mayor Stevely of London is a believer in associations of this kind from the remarks he made in reference to the success of the recent convention in Hamilton of hardwaremen. It needs a few enthusiastic men in the trade to get their heads together and see that the grocers too become organized. Individual views on the advisability of forming such an association will be gladly received by The Grocer for publication.

The good fellowship existing among the London grocers was particularly noticeable at the banquet and that characteristic can be attributed to nothing but the association. Working in harmony is to be commended wherever met with and especially so where the workers are keen competitors in business.

TIME FOR A CHANGE.

A correspondent writing to the Grocer from Winona, Ont., states that contrary to newspaper reports the peach crop of the Niagara district is not a failure. Even if some of the buds were destroyed there would be plenty left and with fewer buds the peach fruit would be of a better quality.

It seems that every year about this time the daily press exploit the idea that the fruit crop has been destroyed when later it often turns out to be better than ever. This pernicious habit of publishing false reports can do no good to the fruit industry and makes men miscalculate their business. It is certainly time this type of the daily paper was destroyed as the fruit crop is so frequently represented to be.

Reports from Nova Scotia, as will be seen in this issue, indicate that the fruit crop outlook down by the sea is favorable, and should no extremely cold weather interfere the crop will undoubtedly be a good one.

DO AS YOU SAY.

Over in Germany there exists a law which prohibits a merchant holding a removal sale unless he actually intends to remove. Similarly no merchant can advertise "selling below cost" or "clearing out sale" unless these things are actually his intentions. If he states his goods are to be sold below the cost an officer of the law may demand his invoices and determine whether he does so or not. A fire sale cannot be held unless there has been a fire.

The law protects the consumer in this respect which appears to be the proper course to pursue. A similar law might well be enacted in Canada with good results, for most merchants know how often sales of the above description are advertised when it is impossible for them to take place. When goods are stated to be sold at less than the invoice price, or when a selling out sale is advertised they should be carried out to the letter. It is certainly advisable for the consumers to know exactly what they are doing and with such a law such a condition would follow and the majority of the merchants who are not accustomed to these periodical "selling out" sales would be much benefitted.

THE PEANUT SITUATION.

Each year witnesses the firmer establishment of the peanut in popular favor, and an increase in its sphere of usefulness. There was a time, when it was seen most frequently, at baseball matches, and in the "gods" of popular theatres. This however, still remains a field, over which, the peanut reigns in undisputed sovereignty, but in addition to this, it is now combined with other products, and made into a butter which is much in vogue for sandwiches. Peanut butter has undoubtedly come to stay, not altogether from the fact, that it is very delectable, but is also a highly nourishing food. The Canadian market for peanuts is supplied by Spain, France, Africa, India and the United States. About eighty per cent. comes from the United States which includes the Virginian and Spanish varieties, the latter being much richer in oil. A few peanuts also come from Japan. The great market of the world for this article, however, is Marseilles in France where peanuts are used very extensively for producing oil.

Practically all the peanut butter consumed in Canada is also manufactured here.

The peanuts of the above mentioned countries all possess some distinguishing features. The greatest difference, however, is observable between the Virginian product, and the rest, which are very similar to one another. The Virginian nut is larger, and the pod generally contains more nut meats than the others. The Japan nut is also large and poor in oil. The nuts from France Spain, Africa and India are comparatively small, and have a much thinner shell. It would require too fine a judgment to say which was the best, as they may each possess certain qualities which render them specially valuable for certain specific purposes. All kinds are at the present time enjoying a wide sale and the market presents bright prospects.

HOUSEHOLD REMEDIES.

One of the best arguments for the necessity of a Provincial Retail Grocers' Association can be seen in the Pharmacy Act. By this act only qualified druggists were allowed to sell poisons, and later a change was made to include all drugs and medicinal remedies. It has resulted in the fine of several country storekeepers who had sold a few cents worth of some harmless remedy.

Merchants were compelled to discontinue handling even quinine, salts, etc., greatly to the inconvenience of those residing in the community who had often to drive miles to be supplied with these things.

There is no reason why storekeepers should not sell such remedies as mentioned, and it is simply a case of uniting in a Provincial body to demand their rights.

THE BENEFITS OF BACKBONE.

As will be observed in correspondence from Chatham, Ont., in this issue the merchants of that town are much interested at present in the securing of a system to collect bad accounts and also in the price-cutting question. The story of how Guelph merchants look after the delinquents, which appeared in the Grocer recently has received much attention and may probably form a basis upon which the Chatham retailers will work.

In connection with price cutting the remarks of Peter Cunningham are worthy of note. He pointed out how he had refused to drop one cent off the prices quoted to customers who claimed they could secure cheaper goods elsewhere. He allowed them to leave the store first and found that eventually they returned and accepted his figures. He had backbone enough to refuse to lower his selling price and in the end came out ahead.

A TIP TO MERCHANTS.

The progressive town of St. Mary's in Western Ontario, with its three thousand five hundred of a population, has learned a lesson in economy which has saved to each, yearly, between two and three hundred dollars. It is the running of a general parcel delivery system which was established some four years ago and which has now become "part and parcel" of the merchants' business.

As explained in the news columns of this issue the business men of St. Mary's are highly pleased with the system and on no consideration would they relinquish it.

Mental mathematics show that if each merchant saves a dollar a day, that means about three hundred dollars yearly which is a saving af thirty thousand for a hundred merchants. If this vast sum can be saved annually by the merchants of a town by uniting only on one particular line, much better advantages should certainly follow from a closer unity.

There is no reason why merchants of any town in the Dominion the size of St. Mary's cannot do the same providing they get their heads together. A general parcel delivery is something that can be established with no expense. All that is required is a man who will undertake the contract and merchants who will stand by him.

WOMAN'S WISDOM.

There are many grocers to-day throughout the Dominion who are making successes of their businesses, principally because they have the assistance of their wives. Probably few of them appreciate this, nevertheless it is true. It needs a diplomatic business head to look after the various characteristics of the scores and hundreds of people who call at a store from month to month, and the women who are usually gentle and courteous to all are the diplomats.

They take particular pains to see that their customers are thoroughly satisfied. They look after the comfort of the babies who are brought into the store with their mothers, and which means a great deal to the latter. They sympathize with their customers in times of trouble and bereavement as only women can. Anything new introduced into the store is first tested by the wives of the grocers, and when they come behind the counters they speak with authority and are thus often able to make sales where the husbands would fail.

Recently a grocer in an Ontario city remarked that "no man who had any sense would be in the grocery business." This grocer, contrary to what one would expect from his statement, has made a fairly good success, but it is a fact that his wife was the cause. There are many grocers in business to-day, and making profit, too, who would not be where they are if it wasn't for their wives.

BUSINESS MAXIMS.

By Plato, Jr.

He who would be a successful grocery clerk must have "ginger."

Love for his vocation is the "spice of life" for the man behind the counter.

The clerk who is not quick to wait on customers will have to wait a long time for success.

Customers ignore stores in which discourteous salesmen are present.

Read your customers if you would learn their whims and wants.

He who would win in business must first win the good-will of his customers.

A Winning Fight from Poverty to Wealth

Former Ontario Man Makes Good in Business in the West—First Venture a Grocery Store—Sells it for Team of Mules—Starts Without a Dollar and Gets Married When $2,000 in Debt—Becomes Mayor of Edmonton and a Western Millionaire—What Pluck Will Do.

Starting out in the world with not a dollar to his name and worse than that, getting married when he was $2,000 in the hole and eventually becoming a western millionaire sounds more like a romance than an actual fact. Such, however, was the experience of a Cannington, Ont., boy who finally rounded up a fortune in the West and became Mayor of the City of Edmonton.

This is certainly a record that one seldom meets with and represents what a man with a purpose and a will to carry it out, can do.

John M. McDougall is the man and his first business venture was a grocery store which he sold for a team of mules. Millionaires in the West have usually interesting histories and this is very true of John McDougall, who, as the name implies, might be of Scotch parentage. His fight from poverty to wealth was a bold one, but he had the nerve to succeed and he did.

Without a Dollar.

There was a time when this man, whose home in Edmonton is one of the most luxurious in the West, had not a dollar to his name and when he was married he was no less than $2,000 in debt. There is no more popular citizen in Edmonton to-day than this shrewd business man, who has made one of the best mayors in the city's history. Civic finances and the general administration were looked after by a master hand, say those who know, and system took the place of confusion.

Like many of the other pioneers who have made good in the great West country, he was an Ontario man, coming from Cannington. When he first heard the call of the West, back in 1873, he was in Collingwood. It was a long way to Winnipeg in those days, much longer than now. After he had reached Thunder Bay (now Port Arthur) it took no less than twenty-eight days for the party to which he belonged to complete the journey to Winnipeg, a distance of about 400 miles. They traveled partly by wagon, by boats, and on foot. Arriving in Winnipeg with no money in his pocket, young McDougall had to work at whatever odd jobs presented themselves. Though there was little doing, he managed to earn enough to spend the winter at Kildonan College (now Manitoba University) where he continued his education.

His ambition was always to make a fortune for himself and place himself at the top of the commercial world. To this end he was never content when on salary; and spent years of unremunerative struggle as a small trader rather than make a comfortable living as another man's subordinate. He declined various positions which offered little chance of advancement, although he badly needed the money they would bring him.

Becomes a Grocer.

A grocery store was his first venture and unfortunately turned out badly, as his partner, who was furnishing the capital, found himself unable to meet the obligations he had assumed, and McDougall was left alone to face the storm. He weathered the summer all right, and finished it out of debt, but he had no capital to secure supplies for the winter. When a man named Robertson offered him a pair of mules and outfit and a little cash for his business, he was promptly taken up, though McDougall did not know what he would do with the mules. An opportunity presented itself to him to trade the mules for some sawlogs, and he then sold the logs to the Government bridge contractor, and was a few dollars ahead.

Just at this time he heard the great stories that were coming in from the plains. Buying a team of ponies and carts, with some goods for trading purposes, he started out as a free-trader on the plains, in company with a couple of others. At Fort Carleton he disposed of his goods to the Indians, getting in return a fine lot of buffalo robes and furs, and returned to Winnipeg.

Man Versus Blizzard.

Setting out again, his party was caught in a premature blizzard, and for days they fought with the storm and snow for their lives. They had to abandon their carts and make runners for sleighs out of the roots of trees. Their boots hurt so terribly that they had to throw them away, and to tie their feet up in bacon sacks. From a small Hudson Bay post in the Touchwood hills they purchased mocassins and gloves of skin, and hay which they sewed up between the blankets to make light mattresses. The ponies from first to last made their own way.

When speaking of these ponies, Mr. McDougall said recently with a deep note of regret and feeling:

"Ah, those little ponies! They deserve a monument for the part they played in the pioneer days, the help they gave to the men who came into the country and the hardships they endured in giving it. No other horses would have stood it. Snow was drink to them, and they merely pawed up the snow to get at their food, and they could find a trail when a man couldn't."

Coal Oil Expensive.

On Christmas eve, after being out in the storm since October 20th, they reached Prince Albert, and wintered there. McDougall opened a trading store in a small log house. During that winter the subject of this sketch found time to read Shakespeare through from cover to cover, and most of the reading was done by firelight, for coal oil was $3 a gallon, and people in those days had to do without such luxuries.

A year later Mr. McDougall came to Edmonton for the first time on a trading trip, and the following summer went back to Cannington, where he married Miss Amey, and took her west with him. He looked upon himself as an established free trader of the West at that time, though he was $2,000 in debt.

A Storekeeper Again.

He chose Edmonton for his home, and opened a store on Jasper St. east. In 1880 he entered into partnership with Stewart and Bannerman in the business of trading and outfitting, and the day soon came when both the original members of the firm dropped out, and he was sole owner. Some time since he took Dick Secord into partnership, and the firm was known as McDougall & Secord, until Mr. McDougall decided in 1907 that he was well enough off to be able to retire from active business life, and let others do their share of building up that hustling Albertan capital city.

PERSONAL NOTES.

A. E. Eardley, grocer, Fredericton, N.B., is a candidate for Queen's Ward for the city council.

The consumption of canned milk among the Chinese is on the increase. In 1907 there were 257,300 dozens of tins imported into China, and of these 12,140 dozens went from Canada.

An enthusiastic motorist, Wm. Dobie, president E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, was in the midst of his fellow-members of the Ontario Motor League at the first annual banquet held at the King Edward Hotel, Feb. 24. Mr. Dobie is president of the league and officiated as chairman at the banquet. At the banquet among the speakers were Hon. Adam Beck, Hon. Thos. Crawford, Hon. A. B. Morine and Mayor Oliver.

APPLICATION TURNED DOWN

No Average Demurrage Plan for Dominion Merchants and Shippers.

A decision which has just been handed down by Commissioner D'Arcy Scott, assistant chairman of the Railway Commission, refusing an application by the Wallaceburg Sugar Company, of Wallaceburg, Ont., for an order establishing in Canada what is generally known as the Average Demurrage Plan, in connection with the penalization of consignees for delay in unloading cars has generally interested merchants and shippers.

Under the rules of the Canadian Car Service Bureau 48 hours are allowed for the unloading of a car, and a penalty of $1 a day is payable for any time beyond that period that the car remains loaded, the idea being to remove the danger of car shortage.

Under the average system, which prevails in Michigan, if a car is unloaded in less than 48 hours, the difference is credited to the consignee, and set off against any excess time that may occur in the unloading of other cars. This system the Wallaceburg people wished to have introduced into Canada, or at least applied to their own case, as they are brought into competition with houses doing similar business in Michigan, which adjoins that part of Ontario in which their works are situated. D. A. Gordon, manager of the Wallaceburg Company, argued that while they could regulate the number of cars ordered from the farmers who supply the raw material, they could not regulate the delivery of these cars by the railway, with the result that shipments often came together so closely that their unloading facilities were inadequate to the demands made on them. In this way considerable demurrage costs were liable to be occasioned.

In his judgment Commissioner Scott pointed out that in the case of exceptional conditions in which the consignee was not at fault no demurrage could be charged for time in excess of 48 hours necessary for the unloading of cars. These rules are interpreted not by the railway companies interested, but by the Canadian Car Service Bureau, and Mr. Duval, the manager of the bureau, swore that any decision in such a case was made as favorable to the consignee as was consistent with the rules. Mr. Duval added that the idea of demurrage was not so much to get money for the railways as to secure the quick return of the cars. The sum of $1 a day obtained for demurrage was only one-third of the earning capacity of the car, and it was not to the advantage of the railways to have their cars lying idle even when this money was being received from the consignee.

"In my opinion," says Commissioner Scott in his finding, "the Average System might have the effect of making a consignee dilatory about unloading so long as he had free time to his credit, and if he had not free time to his credit the circumstances would be the same as they are under the present rules.

"The intention is that, under the Car Service Rules each car shall be dealt with by itself, and without reference to movements of other cars. This insures equal treatment of the smaller shipper or consignee with the larger one. But, if the Average Plan were in force, I can well see that an injustice would be done the small dealer. Suppose a dealer with a large capacity for storage received 50 cars of merchandise, which, under the Rules, he has 50 days to unload, and unloaded them all the first day. He would then have fifty days to his credit. The next day, he and a small competitor each received one car. The small competitor would have to unload in two days or be penalized, while the other could hold his car for fifty days free time, which might prove to be a very material advantage. It may be said that this is an extreme case. It doubtless is, but it shows how the Average Demurrage Plan might work out unless there were limitations upon it. Mr. Gordon suggested that the system might be adopted for those in his line of business only. I do not think it would be advisable at this early date to start making exceptions to the general principles laid down in the Car Service order, which has not yet been in effect for three years. These principles are, in my opinion, sound, and should not be interfered with."

The application was dismissed.

The Wayne Manufacturing Co., St. Louis, U.S.A., manufacturers of washboards, etc., in a circular issued to their customers, strongly denounce the statements of competitors that they are to sell out their business and announce that they have no connection with any trust in the United States nor will they ever permit such a connection to exist.

H. Wiese, superintendent Wallaceburg Sugar Co., inspected the company's newly acquired plant at Berlin last week. Mr. Wiese, who formerly was superintendent of a sugar refinery in Tangermunde, Germany, is an experienced refiner. According to his view improvements to the value of $100,000 will be made in the plant. Contracts for over 1,000 acres of sugar beets have already been closed with the farmers in the county of Waterloo.

Provisions Displayed in Silent Salesmen of R. A. Gould's Store, Pembroke, Ont

The interior of the grocery store of R. A. Gould, Pembroke, Ont., presents a new idea to retailers in the trade. That is the use of silent salesmen for the display of meats, provisions, etc. In the one are observed cheese, butter and lard, and in the other ham, bacon, canned soups, all attractively arranged and presenting the goods to advantage.

Mr. Gould's whole store is, in fact, neatly equipped, as the picture indicates. Biscuits and breakfast foods in packages occupy the top shelves, while the canned and bottled goods are shown below.

POINTERS—

Rolled Oats—Advanced.
Bran—Advanced.
Flour—Advanced.
Fruits—Slightly Easier.
Butter—Declined.

Montreal, March 4, 1909.

The past week was a fairly satisfactory one. Wholesalers report a good volume of business, made up of smaller orders, but this is considered rather favorable than otherwise, as accounts are met more promptly than they are when buying is on a large scale. Travelers report improving conditions in the country, and state that prospects for the coming summer are very good. The butter market continues weak, but it is thought, the price has gone about as low as it is likely to go for some time. Receipts of fresh made stock are not large, consequently fall stock is being largely drawn upon. Fresh rolls are coming in freely.

Cheese remains firm, and unchanged. Receipts of new laid eggs are quite large from Ontario points. Prices will probably keep fairly steady, as demand is good owing to Lenten season. Owing to the continued upward tendency of prices of wheat, of late, at both Canadian and American centres, a stronger feeling has developed in the market for spring wheat grades of flour, and the local millers, have advanced prices 20c a barrel and 10c in another case.

The market for hogs both live and dressed, is firm. Poultry remains scarce, and prices are firm. Fruits are if anything a shade easier. Bran and rolled oats are both stronger this week. Other lines remain unchanged.

SUGAR—The sugar market is the same as last quoted, and demand remains fair.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—Canned vegetables are in excellent demand, also canned fruits and fish. Meats are indifferently enquired for.

TORONTO—At the present time there is a good demand for fruits, including apples, peaches and blueberries. In fact, none of the fruits appear to be standing in the market and a general clean up is anticipated. Peas will likely be short. Other vegetables are moving fairly well but canned meats are quiet. The Canned Goods Trade, of Baltimore, in commenting on the situation, says:

"The market condition of canned goods for the past week has not varied greatly from the preceding weeks, but if one seeks a concensus of opinions on it he will find when he is through that he has a Jacob's Coat, so varied are the colorings given it. No two men regard it in the same light, but the pessimistic spirit has held sway so long that almost all, if not all, opinions are tinged with it. We know of houses that have reported week after week "No business doing," "The market is dead," "Demand has ceased entirely," and so on, and yet when an increase in the office force is noted and commented upon they are at a loss for an explanation. Such is, however, the actual case as come under our personal observation. And it is not an isolated case. If the reports of most dealers in canned goods, as well as the canners themselves, were taken literally, there is every reason to believe that the whole office force would be given a holiday, but we have not noticed any forces reduced, much less entirely suspended.

"The answer to this problem is that the orders have been more numerous, we can even say been more frequently repeated, than was formerly the custom, and this has made additional work, although the total sales, figured in a number of cases, is below an average. The whole story is told when we say that jobbers seem to prefer coming early and often for small lots, rather than filling their wants at one good throw."

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Advance anticipated.
Seeded Raisins—A small decline.
Evaporated Apples—Good demand.
Canned Fruits—Sale is fair.
Peas—Shortage expected.

Toronto, March 4.

Wholesale merchants are optimistic as to business conditions during the coming year. They think the year will be a good one and that the financial depression of the past couple of seasons will have a good effect on the country at large. It will make people more careful. Business during the present month is fair but collections are reported somewhat slow.

The sugar market is again interesting. No change has occurred since last week but an advance is anticipated at any time. A large United States refinery has raised the price this week. The cause is said to be due to the reported bad weather conditions in the West Indies.

An easing off in seeded raisins is apparent but there is a good demand for dried peaches and evaporated apples and fair demands for other dried fruits. A shortage in canned peas is anticipated.

The opening up of the new silver districts of the north have been a good stimulus to trade. A representative of a local wholesale house who has been up north says that there are some 60 or 70 cars of goods at Charlton awaiting to be unloaded to be teamed to the Gow Ganda district—a distance of 50 miles. Some trouble is expected if spring were to open up in a hurry, as it would be almost impossible to get goods through such a country in wet weather.

SUGAR—According to local advices there is every indication of an advance in the price of sugar. On Wednesday of this week announcement was made by the Federal refinery of the United States of an advance of 10 points. The cause of this is said to be due to a report of bad weather conditions in the West Indies where the raw crop is causing alarm. The raw market is firm and strong prices prevail. Holders of raws, according to a local broker, will not sell believing the market will advance. Locally, the sugar demand is somewhat quiet.

TEA—A cable received on Tuesday from Colombo by a local broker stated that the market was strong at full prices for teas of quality, indicating a good demand. There is no doubt, said another broker, that flavory teas will be later coming on the Colombo market this year than in some years past. Lateness in the season is attributed as the cause.

COFFEE AND COCOA—There is no lessening in the coffee demand. About the only thing new in the situation is the increased export duty from Brazil which is now enforced. This extra duty was to be enforced when the exports had reached the 9,000,000 mark during the season, the duty to be placed on the balance of the crop. The primary market in coffee is weaker. Inquiries regarding the alleged bringing into Canada of coffee eventually for the United States do not find any foundation to the rumor.

A reported scarcity in the cocoa crop in Trinidad has caused the market in cocoa beans to advance slightly, but no changes have occurred in the manufactured material.

DRIED FRUITS—In this market seeded raisins have eased off a little in price during the week. Prunes are selling well and apricots fairly well. Cooking figs are in good demand and dried peaches are particularly good sellers. Peaches are cheaper than they have been for years and 20 cases are now selling to one formerly. The prices in these have also eased off.

PORK PACKING IN ALBERTA

The Government to Own and Control Big Establishment—A Much-talked-of Question by Western People—Price of Wheat Going up Has no Effect on Flour.

Winnipeg, March 2.—Another week's markets have come to an end and still the price of wheat soars. May wheat closed Saturday, Feb. 27, at $1.13½ or 4½ over the close of the previous Saturday and 10½ higher than it was at the first of February. Trading has been active all week; there has been much buying for export. There has been some active speculative buying and taking profits also and it is currently rumored that one of the most successful speculators of the week has been Hon. R. P. Roblin, premier of Manitoba. He is variously credited with a clean up of from $75,000 to $100,000 for the week.

There has certainly been a lot of money made in wheat this week. The advance in prices has brought about a noticeable increase of receipts and for the last few days they have been running about double what they were at the same date last year. This rather disposes of the theory that there was no more wheat in the country or rather that there was very little more.

One of the rather surprising things is that with the rapid advance in the price of wheat there has been no corresponding advance in the price of flour up to date, although prices have advanced in the east. Mills are all running full time and millers report a fair domestic demand and a moderate export inquiry.

Apart from the interest taken in wheat there has been little to mark the week.

The Legislature is in session and the two parties continue to belabor each other day after day with short intervals of attending to the country's business.

Monopoly Not Necessary.

The Grain Growers' Associations of Manitoba have presented a gigantic petition asking for the Government ownership of interior elevators and claiming that it is not necessary for the Government to have a monopoly in order to go into the business.

In the meantime companies with Dominion charters are quietly going ahead making preparations for a big season of elevator building.

The indications are that the British America Elevator Company will erect between 50 and 60 elevators in the Canadian West this year. It is known for a fact that they have placed orders for the machinery for a large number.

Alberta Pork Packing Report.

The commission appointed by the Alberta Legislature to inquire into the whole question of the wisdom of the Government establishing pork packing industries reported last week. The report is rather an interesting one, the commission appearing to have gone into the matter with very considerable thoroughness. Among the leading recommendations made were that the Government should erect a hog packing plant with a capacity of 300 hogs per day when a sufficient number of farmers were prepared to guarantee at least 50,000 per year to a plant. That the management take in the farmer's hog and pay for them up to 2-3 of the estimated value, and then at regular intervals when sufficient time has elapsed to place the product on the market, pay the producer the balance of the full value less the cost of curing and marketing, and a sum sufficient to pay local working expenses, also less one fourth of a cent per pound live weight to be applied for the creation of a fund for the purpose of paying back to the Government the original investment and interest and at the same time to allow shares to each patron equal to the amount paid into this fund by the assessment of the one-fourth of a cent per pound on his product.

In the matter of freight rates it was recommended that the total of all freight rates paid on the railways be subdivided and charged equally against each pound of pork supplied, and there be regular shipping days and that each patron bind himself to give all the hogs which he wishes to dispose of for packing to the plant, and failing to do so that he be subject to a fine not exceeding $2 per hog. The Legislature has not yet disposed of the report. The distance of Alberta from large markets and the desirability of placing the roughage of their farm on the market in the most concrete form together with the increased easy way with which pork can be raised in Alberta owing to the increase in butter making has led to the packing question being a very live one indeed.

Since then Alberta Legislature accepted and to some extent acted upon the report of the packing commission, there being an appropriation of $50,000 in the estimates for the erection of the first plant.

The working out of this attempt of Government ownership will be watched with very keen interest all over the West.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 9 a.m. Thursday, March 4, 1909.)

Business continues to improve, the volume of sales each month showing a big increase over the corresponding month last year. New lines are being introduced by Eastern and foreign manufacturers through local agents and brokers showing that there is unlimited confidence in the immediate future of this market. Strong, and in some cases foolish, competition among local wholesale houses furnishes the only disturbing factor in the local business situation.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—The decline in raisins predicted in these columns a month ago has been announced. It is due to a war in California between the growers' association and the selling agents. BROOMS—Owing to the advance in broom corn all brooms have been advanced 25 cents per dozen.

CANNED GOODS—Canned peas are very scarce and local supplies are nearly exhausted. Owing to the low prices on the local market this winter there has been a heavy demand. The price is likely to be advanced, but there has been no general agreement as yet among the local wholesalers.

BUTTER—The market is extremely dull. Manitoba creamery is jobbing locally at 25 cents per lb. although in some cases as high as 26 cents has been obtained recently. Some purchases have been made on the basis of 24 cents. The top heavy condition of the Eastern market is not without its effect here and prices of creamery are likely to be lower.

Owing to the absence of outside demand the dairy butter market is also very weak. The prevailing price for round lots is 15c to 15½c. f.o.b. Winnipeg. The butter now being shipped is fodder goods and the quality is not all that might be desired. With the approach of spring the old storage stocks must be cleared out and the price is not unlikely to recede further.

EGGS—For some little time the local market has been supplied with stock from the south, principally from Minneapolis and other points in Minnesota. With milder weather, prices are likely to slump heavily during the present month. Sales are being made to the retail trade at 29c. to 30c per dozen. Arrivals of Manitoba stock are almost nil.

TAX ON TRAVELERS.

This Has Been Eliminated in Prince Edward Island—Still in Force in British Columbia.

A Bill has been passed by the provincial government of Prince Edward Island repealing the tax on commercial travelers which yielded a revenue of about $8,000 annually. The tax on travelers amounted to a yearly fee of $20. The opposition offered no objection to the measure. Although this bill was passed last week it will take effect from Jan. 1st last.

There was considerable unfavorable comment, according to a despatch from Charlottetown, from the mainland press and the passing of the measure did not tend to make the Island popular with the large business houses.

The government has, however, pursued the proper course in repealing the tax so that Prince Edward Island can stand on the same footing as most of the other provinces of the Dominion.

There is no tax imposed in New Brunswick, while in Nova Scotia there is no provincial law imposing a tax or fee, but power is vested in most of the incorporated towns to impose such a tax. Neither Ontario nor Quebec assess the traveler and the same may be said of Manitoba and the other western provinces with the exception of British Columbia.

In British Columbia no commercial traveler, agent or other person not being a resident of the province can solicit orders for goods to be imported into the province without a license therefor and paying the prescribed fee. Every commercial traveler soliciting orders for liquors or cigars, or both, to be imported into British Columbia must pay a license of $100 every six months. For those soliciting orders for any other kind of goods, wares or merchandise for importation the fee is $50 for every six months.

It is time the far western province was falling in line too and eliminating the tax on the commercial man and no doubt it will soon come to this.

Eastern Oysters to Be Planted at Pacific Coast—Eggs Scarce in Edmonton—Cash System Favorable in Calgary—New Fruit Company Being Formed.

VANCOUVER.

March 2.—A new fruit company, to operate on a large scale, has been organized to do business in this city. It is the Hunter, MacMicking Company, the manager being T. J. Hunter, who has been treasurer of the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association. W. J. C. Hunter, the secretary of the Association, has resigned and will also be one of the active members. The company is capitalized for $35,000 and will compete directly with Oscar Brown & Company and F. R. Stewart & Company, who have had practically a monopoly of the wholesale fruit business here. Present premises will be in the basement of the Leckie building, at the corner of Cambie and Water Streets, but an option has been secured on the new Cottrell building on Water Street, which will give five storeys for business purposes, when completed.

The day is now past when Brown & Company and Stewart & Company will be the exclusive handlers of bananas in this city. They have enjoyed that privilege for some time, but a short while ago there was a dispute with the big distributors in Seattle, following which the Puget Sound people shipped in carload lots to the small dealers here. The two big firms were the only ones that received single carload lots, and the small dealers get together and bring in a car among them. For a few week's past, there have been no bananas, as the quality of those being shipped in was so poor that they were dropped for a while. Now, however, they are back again.

Local apples are being cleared up, and the price has advanced, the wholesale quotations being $175 and $2 per box. Apples are coming in from Washington State.

The spring drop in the price of eggs has taken place. Large supplies are coming in from Kansas and California, the former being quoted at 26c by jobbers and the latter at 30. There are only a few local eggs offering as yet, the price of these being placed at 40c.

Butter, too, is down, the figure being 35c. An explanation is given of the poor quality of butter since the cold snap. It is stated that it got frozen then, and in some instances was thawed out and frozen again, with the result that the quality was greatly deteriorated.

James Roy will succeed W. J. C. Hunter as secretary of the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association. Mr. Roy has been an employee of the Telephone Company.

One of the best know commercial travelers in the west, Richard J. Smardon, is dead after a lingering illness. He was traveler for the Royal Soap Company, of this city, and resided here. He was 41 years of age. Not only will he be missed in Vancouver and throughout the province, in which for 15 years he has been a resident, but by a host of friends including the knights of the grip from Vancouver to Montreal. He was formerly a resident of the latter city, being a son of Richard Smardon, a retired wholesale merchant. His wife, to whom he was married about two years ago, survives him.

At the annual meeting of the Board of Trade of New Westminster, H. Ryall brought up the question of a wholesale grocery business for that city. The wholesale houses on the lower mainland are located in Vancouver, but New Westminster with its growth is stretching out for more business, and merchants there are of the opinion that the stores of that city and immediate district should be supplied from New Westminster. The matter has been brought up on a previous occasion, but nothing came of it.

Special displays are being made of the product of the Chilliwack Canning and Preserving Company, a large amount of cherries, plums, apples, having been brought to the city. They compare very favorably with the eastern canned goods.

Capt. Williams, of the West Coast Fishing Company, owners of the oyster beds at Esquimalt, will go east in March to purchase ten carloads of oysters to plant in the beds to increase the supply. There is a very large demand in all the coast cities for the product of the Esquimalt beds, and although there are 2,500,000 now there, the amount planted will be greatly in excess of the quantity usually laid out. It is found that by bringing out the oysters when they are small, the freight is much less than when they are large. More can be put in a barrel, and the growth here is very rapid. The business is a profitable one, and oyster companies are actively at work at Esquimalt on Vancouver Island, at Boundary Bay, south of the Fraser river on the mainland, and across the border.

Lanning, Fawcett & Wilson are incorporated with a capital of $40,000, to take over the general store business of Marshall, Smith & Company, at Ladner.

CALGARY.

March 3.—During the past few days the weather has turned extremely mild here, and both the wholesale and retail dealers report a steady improvement in business.

In the produce market prices are slightly easier. Fresh eggs are more plentiful and are to-day retailing at 45c to 50c per dozen; fresh butter is still high, retailing at 30c to 35c; B.C. spuds are down to $1.60 per bushel, and Albertas are more plentiful at $1.20. Green apples are scarce, and to-day's retail price is $2.50 per box for spies.

The question has often been asked, "Will Calgary become a meat-packing centre?" and present indications are significant of the fact that it will in the very near future be a very important one. P. Burns & Co. have for many years operated an abattoir and cold storage plant of large capacity, many of their products being used locally and throughout Alberta, but the greater portion is shipped west to British Columbia. It is reported that the Morris Company, of Chicago, have acquired the abattoir and retail stores of the Dominion Meat Co., and that it is the intention to largely increase the capacity of the abattoir, which plant is situated some two miles northeast of the city. Some years ago the Swift Co., of Chicago, acquired the packing business of J. Y. Griffin & Co., Winnipeg, along with their branch houses throughout Western Canada, one of which is situated here in Calgary. While the Dominion Meat Co. is said to have sold to Morris, there is a rumor that Swift & Co. are the real buyers. With their immense plant at Edmonton, together with the Calgary abattoir and distributing stores throughout Alberta and British Columbia, this company seems to be preparing to take care of a good portion of the rapidly-increasing meat business.

A great change is being wrought at the present time throughout the West from credit to cash system. Many retail grocery stores in Calgary are to-day doing a strictly cash business, and the public are beginning to realize that it pays to patronize the cash stores on account of the better values given. Competition in the grocery line is very keen, and the credit man will shortly find it difficult to do a profitable trade in the face of the attractive prices offered by the up-to-date cash stores. There are, of course, several large grocery stores which do a large credit business, but the cash trade is what the merchants seem eager to secure and the proportion of credit business is becoming less every year.

EDMONTON.

March 3.—The fine, almost springlike weather of the past two weeks has been a great stimulus to business. More homesteaders have been coming into town lately to replenish their supplies. Some of the most traveled roads are being worn rather thin on account of the soft weather and several teams have been using wheels. The Stoney Plain trail is especially bad owing to the heavy freighting over it to the G.T.R. camps located there and further west.

Even if the weather has been mild it doesn't seem to influence the hens of the surrounding country to "loosen up" on their eggs to any great extent. Very few fresh laids have been coming in. Prices quoted on strictly fresh are fifty cents and on fresh local case eggs forty-five. Butter is not so plentiful as it was but no noticeable advance has been reported yet. Choice dairy and creamery retails at thirty-five cents.

A group of three stores, all frame buildings, will be built as soon as the weather permits at the corner of 7th St. and Jasper Ave. on the premises now occupied by Chas. Hall, grocer and confectioner, who will move his present stock across the street into the store formerly occupied by Cook's Meat Market, while the new building is being erected, and on completion of the same he will resume business at his old stand.

Abbott & Smart, grocers, flour and feed merchants, Namayo Ave., are erecting a one-storey warehouse in the rear of their store, twenty-five by fifty-six feet, to hold their stock of flour and feed.

Potatoes are still very scarce. A little more have been brought in this last week owing to the mild weather. Prices quoted are ninety-five cents and a dollar a bushel and promise to be higher.

Apples are getting scarcer every day. About all the merchants have to offer are Ben Davis', selling at $2 and $2.25 a box.

Very little wheat has been brought into town lately, farmers holding back for a higher market. This last week the local mills have had to pay an advance of three and four cents a bushel—and very little to be had at that—consequently they have been forced to advance their prices on flour. The Alberta Milling Co. advanced five cents on all grades and the Campbell and Otterwell Mill ten cents per cwt.

HALIFAX.

March 2.—The bottom seems to have dropped out of the butter market, and the predictions made by jobbers last autumn, and which appeared in The Grocer, are coming true. Dairy butter of good quality can be bought cheaper now than last November, and this situation is considered unusual, but not surprising. The fact is now quite plain that in some parts of the province large quantities of butter were held back in anticipation of higher prices, and these failing to materialize the stock was marketed. Some dealers who handle only small quantities of butter have recently received as many as one hundred tubs in one shipment. These tubs range from 20 to 30 pounds, and it gives some idea of the quantities of the butter coming in. Of course all these tubs do not contain first-class butter, but the most of it is of fair quality, and the price ranges from 22c to 24c. Creamery butter in prints is in good demand and the price keeps up. There is only a limited quantity coming on the market and it is quoted at 28c and 30c.

The fish markets are now very active, the demand for fresh fish being very heavy. The catch of lobsters is small owing to the rough weather, and the price is advancing. There is a good demand for fish from the American market. Very few Prince Edward Island are arriving owing to the interruptions to navigation.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Dairy Association of Prince Edward Island was held last week. The reports showed that the industry is steadily regaining its lost ground. The milk supplied to the forty-six factories was three million pounds more than the previous year. The gross value of the cheese produced was $300,000, and of butter $102,000, an increase of $39,000. Adding the above amounts to the value of the product of the home dairies the total value of the dairy output will be about one million dollars.

The merchants of the leading cities of Portugal and Spain have come to an agreement to recommend legislation prohibiting the importation of fish from any of the ports of Newfoundland in the event of a prohibitory statute by the Government of Newfoundland barring the importing of wines, etc., into the colony. At a public meeting of the merchants held at Oporto, Portugal, it was unanimously agreed that if Newfoundland passes an act prohibiting the importation of wine and liquors, that the Minister of the Foreign Department be asked to place a prohibitive duty on Newfoundland fish entering the ports of Portugal, or that favorable tariff concessions be granted to other fish supplying countries. The wine growers of Spain met at Cadiz and took similar action. Resolutions were passed asking that the duty be increased on all goods entering Spanish ports from Newfoundland. Such action on the part of these countries would seriously affect the fish trade of Newfoundland. Spain and Portugal import annually about four hundred thousand quintals of fish, valued at over a million and a half dollars. They buy about one-third of the total catch of Newfoundland.

Fresh laid eggs are scarce just at present and they are quoted at 30c per dozen. The demand is not very heavy. Case eggs are selling from 25c to 27c, and the demand is better, this stock being used for cooking purposes. As soon as milder weather sets in it is expected that the receipts will increase and the price drop.

ST. JOHN.

March 3.—Business was quiet in grocery circles last week. Manitoba and Ontario flours advanced 15 cents a barrel, and oatmeal advanced 25 cents a barrel, but otherwise the markets are unchanged. January and February are always looked upon as quiet months and this year has been no exception. It is expected that the present month will show some improvement. With the advent of the Lenten season, several of the retail grocers have displayed enterprise in dressing their windows with shredded codfish, bloaters, smoked herring and similar seasonable goods, with excellent results.

The usual spring crop of aldermanic candidates is being talked of and several men well known in the grocery trade are mentioned as aspirants for civic honors. In Victoria Ward, Alderman Pickett has announced his intention of retiring and two grocerymen are in the field as his successors. They are Wellington Green, of Winter Street, and R. R. Patchell, of Stanley Street. Both have opposed Alderman Pickett in previous elections, but this year it looks as if they would fight it out between themselves. In Brooks Ward a strong body of ratepayers are trying to induce Israel E. Smith to oppose Alderman Baxter. Mr. Smith has not yet decided whether he will enter into the contest or not, but his friends say he will. He conducts a grocery on Union Street, west end, and, like the Victoria Ward aspirants, was a candidate on a previous occasion. Harry G. Smith, grocer, of Winslow Street, west end, has been in the field for some time as an opponent to Alderman Boskin, who is also a grocer, and Mr. Smith says he has a good organization and feels confident of the result. James Patterson, the wholesale fish merchant of South Wharf, is mentioned as likely to oppose Alderman Christie in Wellington Ward, and George A. Troop, proprietor of Troop's Vinegar Works, is said to be preparing to contest Sydney Ward against Alderman Lewis. Alderman Vanwart, the Charlotte Street grocer, and meat dealer, who has ably presided over the Safety Board for the past few years, is to be opposed by Frank L. Potts, auctioneer, who unsuccessfully tried to oust him last year. Mayor Bullock is likely to be returned by acclamation. Elections are held in April.

Harry W. Dykeman, who has been conducting a grocery business at the corner of Orange and Sydney Streets, has purchased the business lately conducted by Charles B. Adams at the corner of St. James and Germain Streets. Mr. Dykeman is a young man who was a clerk for McPherson Bros. for a number of years, and he should make a success of his new venture.

W. C. Cross, manager of Hall & Fairweather, wholesale grocers, and Theodore H. Estabrooks, the "Red Rose tea man," left on Monday, accompanied by their wives, for a trip to Bermuda.

Arthur P. Hazen and John Jackson have been appointed inspectors in the matter of C. D. Trueman, wholesale grocer, who recently assigned. At a meeting held last week it was decided to dispose of the stock by auction on Tuesday, March 9.

In a fire at Bathurst, N.B., on February 23, the general store of Simon Holdengraber was completely destroyed, his loss being in the vicinity of $10,000, with no insurance.

Harry G. Smith, the west end grocer, purchased a very handsome stallion last week at the sale of Kentucky thoroughbreds, conducted by the local government. He paid $575 for the animal.

MONTREAL.

March 4.—A meeting was held at the City Hall last week to discuss prospects of an annual exhibition being established in Montreal, as at Toronto and other Canadian cities. Senator Beique presided and there were also present ex-Mayor R. Wilson-Smith, ex-Mayor Ekers, Henry Miles and Messrs. Ross, Calelli and Ald. L. A. Lapointe.

Speaking of the necessity of holding annual exhibitions in Montreal, ex-Mayor Wilson-Smith said that he was convinced that they would do much to advance the city's progress. They would attract very many visitors to the city, and would be beneficial in other ways. As for the financial aspect of the matter, the city would not lose anything by guaranteeing the bonds of the Exhibition Company to the amount of $600,000. In the first place, the city would have a first mortgage on the lands, buildings, etc., of the company; this would guarantee the corporation against any loss. In addition to this, there would be founded a sinking fund which would eventually pay off the entire amount in question. In fact, the city was guaranteed in every way against loss. Ex-Mayor Ekers said that the Quebec Legislature was willing to advance $25,000 towards the project; while the Dominion Government would give $50,000. While it was true that exhibitions in the past had not been a financial success in Montreal, there was no reason for thinking that the venture, now that the city was so large, would not be all that could be desired. He was convinced that exhibitions would greatly advance the progress of the city. Ald. Lapointe stated he was in favor of exhibitions in the city, and he hoped the Legislature would not object to the city borrowing the amount in question. Other members of the Exhibition Committee agreed with the views. It was finally decided that every effort should be made to get the Legislature to look favorably on the big undertaking.

Chausse & Co., 322 Notre Dame St. East, Montreal, have been appointed Canadian agents for the Kentucky Refining Company, Louisville, succeeding J. M. Brayley. The firm possesses large cellars at 17 St. Gabriel Street, and will be in a position to give prompt attention to all orders in consequence of their ability to carry a good stock in Montreal. D. L. Macdonald will look after the trade for the firm in this line.

J. Russell Murray, Montreal, has been appointed agent for H. Collings & Co., London, Eng., East Indies spice dealers, and for H. S. Holt & Co., Japan, who are dealers in products of the island country.

The Carsley Food Fair came to a close last Saturday, after a successful month's run.

The Shredded Wheat Co. are demonstrating at Wilder's, on St. Catherine Street. They have a miniature factory in operation in the window.

Fraser, Viger & Co. are conducting their annual orange drive.

Joseph Leroux, a large boned half-breed trapper, who has spent the last few years in the Hudson Bay region, visited the city last week from northern trapping country and reports that there is an unusually good catch of the more expensive varieties of fur-bearing animals in the Bay section this season.

"Big Joe," as Mr. Leroux is familiarly called by his associates, arrived at Selkirk, Man., a week ago, after a 1,100 mile trip overland from Fort Churchill by dog sled with a collection of furs worth several thousands of dollars. The lakes and trails are in fine condition this winter, and the long trip can be made in 22 days with a two-day rest at Norway House. Large catches made by Hudson Bay Company and independent trappers are arriving daily at Selkirk, where the nearest railway communication is to be had, and every catch shows a large percentage of the high-priced varieties. The black fox, whose skin is valued at from $700 to $900, is much in evidence this season, says "Big Joe," while other fur-bearing animals which have seemed in other years to be diminishing have made their appearance in large numbers. The winter has been ideal for trapping right into the Arctic Circle.

E. J. Clayburn, of Memphis, Tenn., who has been visiting Montreal, in speaking of the tea and coffee business in the United States, stated that the U.S. lead the world in the consumption of coffee and cocoa, while she holds third rank among the nations in her imports of tea. He stated that the habit of coffee drinking had increased.

BELLEVILLE.

March 3.—Without an exception every grocer in this city handles confectionery to a greater or less extent. Some of the leading grocers pay special attention to this department, among them being Wallbridge & Clarke, W. T. Paterson, A. J. McCrodan, John Harker and J. C. Hanley & Co. In these stores the very choicest brands can be found, and your correspondent was informed that the confectionery department was a necessary as well as profitable part of the business. Many of the other grocery stores who cater principally to the farming trade, handle only the coarser grades of candies on which they claim there is little profit, but they have to handle these for the benefit of their customers. Mr. Harker devotes considerable room to this department, which is in full charge of his daughter, and he pronounces the investment a profitable one.

James Hanley, senior member of the firm of J. C. Hanley & Co., sustained a painful accident a short time ago, which will confine him to the house for some time. He had just stepped out of his house when he slipped on a piece of ice. A physician was called, when it was found that he had fractured a bone in his left ankle.

This city has been very fortunate this winter in having such a small amount of destitution reported, there having been no special appeals made for charity as has been the case in former years.

There were also fewer men out of employment.

The ice harvest now being taken out of the Bay of Quinte is the largest and best for years. Last summer there was a regular ice famine, but there is no likelihood of a repetition the coming summer. Many merchants this year are putting in their own private supply.

Recent callers on the trade were: John Hodge, the pioneer traveler, representing White Swan spices and cereals; B. McPherson, the McCormick Biscuit Works; J. P. Morrison, Royal and Cleveland's Baking Powder; Mr. Shields, Quaker Oats; G. S. Dunn, of G. S. Dunn & Co., Hamilton; A. W. Cope, Sugars & Canners, Ltd., Montreal; Sam Meyers, Imperial Tobacco Co., Montreal; Mr. Stephenson, Sunlight Soap; D. Moody, of the Alpha Chemical Co., Berlin, and R. Neil, of the J. Bruce Payne Co., Granby, Que. The latter was one of the judges at the big carnival held here recently.

BRANTFORD.

March 3.—From time to time several different schemes have been tried in this city to get after the "dead beat." Some paid well for a time others did not meet with much success, especially the collecting feature of them. It is some time since any article in The Grocer received more favorable comment among the grocers in this city than the article in last week's issue, relating to the methods of collecting bad debts in vogue at Guelph. Many expressed a desire to see a similar system here, and at the regular meeting of the association last evening this was one of the main topics of discussion. After considerable discussion it was thought that the scheme was a very practical one, and while no definite action was taken, the officers will endeavor to obtain all the information they can so that in the near future some definite action will be taken to put the thing on a systematic basis, and make the path of the "dead beat" anything but pleasant in this city.

A daring robbery took place at Hartley's grocery store one night recently at the corner of Nelson and West Streets. The entrance to the store was made by breaking in a window. There were enough groceries stolen to keep a large-sized family for a month, and a large quantity of meat, ham, and tobacco also disappeared, as well as one dollar's worth of coppers. The police were notified and next morning William Stevens was arrested in connection with the burglary. One of the police dropped in a local hotel and saw Stevens paying for a drink in coppers. The officer at once placed suspicion in his direction and a search of the house revealed part of the stolen goods. He was later sentenced to six months in jail by Magistrate Livingston.

BERLIN.

March 3.—An industry which promises to become an extensive one in this section within the next few years is that of tobacco culture. Last year several Waterloo County farmers each planted several acres of tobacco and so successful was the experiment that this year they are increasing the acreage and other farmers are following their example. The demand is such that tobacco growing cannot fail to prove profitable, it having been demonstrated that it can be successfully cultivated. It was only under pressure that the farmers who did so last year tried the experiment, but now that success is assured and having in mind the enormous quantities of the raw leaf annually, imported from the United States, it would seem a reasonable prediction to make that within the course of a few years tobacco raising will have attained enormous proportions throughout Western Ontario.

Another turn in affairs which promises to better the agricultural interests in this and adjacent counties is the recent purchase of the plant of the defunct Ontario Sugar Co., by the owners of the Wallaceburg Sugar Co., which will mean the revival of sugar beet growing, which was found to be very profitable for the farmers before the Ontario Sugar Co. fell on evil days.

Practically every grocer in town has fallen into line in the liberal use of printers' ink, particularly for the weekly Thursday "Bargain Day." One concern uses three full columns in both the local dailies every Wednesday to advertise their bargains for Thursday, and they are particular to carry out to the letter everything they advertise, and the same applies to the others who are not such liberal space users. The result is that Thursday is beginning to rival Saturday as the busy day of the week in Berlin.

LINDSAY.

March 3.—The wheat market has been a centre of interest in this town and vicinity. Being situated in the midst of an excellent farming community, the farmers come to Lindsay to obtain market reports, that is, those who do not take the daily papers. On Tuesday last flour advanced ten cents per cwt. The best grades are now selling at $2,90 and $3.10. Is it any wonder the tiller of the soil chuckles to himself and feels grateful to the weatherman for giving such ideal weather, as the roads are now in excellent condition for hauling the grain to town. The advance in flour was due to the increase in the price of wheat. Ninety-five cents per bushel is being paid for fall wheat and 90c for spring wheat, while the best Manitoba wheat costs about $1.20 per bushel laid down here.

It is gratifying to know that despite the fact that winter brings with its cold, chilly blasts a certain amount of poverty, that so far this winter the grocers of Lindsay, have been fortunate in that the collections have been good. There is no doubt that the money stringency is loosening up. Even the travelers claim that a general feeling of "better times" pervades throughout the country. Grocers are buying more extensively and this demonstrates that the people are beginning to buy more of the necessities or the luxuries of life.

The sugar market still remains firm, although a higher price is not wholly unexpected.

The grocers in town are advertising marmalade oranges for sale, and almost every grocery window in town contains large piles of this kind of fruit. Some of them loan their own slicer to their customers, and the slicer has been working overtime this week. A rather amusing story is told by one groceryman, who received a call over the 'phone the other day for the loan of his orange slicer. He politely informed the lady that some person else had it. However, when it was brought back during the day the groceryman rang up the lady again and informed her that it was now at her service. He was rather amused as well as surprised when the lady replied that it was not needed, as she had secured her husband's safety razor and had used it as an orange slicer.

The districts surrounding Lindsay give forth abundant potatoe crops, and a carload, or several, can be picked up as a rule almost any time. Especially is the Manvers township district noted for its excellent quality and quantity of potatoes. The other day a large wholesale dealer, all the way from Indianapolis, dropped into town in search of "murphies." He stated that he shipped back to Indianapolis on an average of one carload of potatoes per day. He also buys sweet potatoes. J. E. Adams, of Adams Bros., stated that they would probably supply the gentleman with three carloads. At present a matter of freight rates prevented the shipment. They were, it is stated, rather excessive.

Harry Abercrombie, the "bard" of the Lindsay Midget Hockey Club, also drives the delivery rig for Graham Bros., grocers. "Cab" never misses a hockey game, and his jovial spirit puts life into the team. The Midgets are picked upon to land the championship this year.

Neil McFadgen, clerk in T. A. Fisher's store, is also a curler, and is to be found quite often in his spare moments placing his curling stones on the "T."

At present Ed. Robson, of the West-end Grocery Store, is conducting quite a beneficient and attractive advertising campaign. It proves profitable.

W. Ayres, clerk for L. A. Primeau, has returned from a pleasant holiday spent with Rochester and Toronto friends.

Wilmot F. Webster, formerly of Lindsay who has for some time been conducting a general store at Dunsford, a few miles from Lindsay, on the C.P.R., has made a splendid success at the business. Just last week he purchased the business and stock of F. E. Gordon, who has for a number of years conducted a general store business at Dunsford. T. Mc. Gordon intends moving with his family to the West.

W. B. Sparling, proprietor of the Lindsay wholesale grocery house, was again elected president of the Lindsay Board of Trade. He now enters upon his second term. Mr. Sparling is a capable and efficient man for the position. Speaking of the Board of Trade, it appears to be the same here as elsewhere, the merchants (the people directly interested) show little interest in the doings of the above organization. No town should be without a live board of trade. Among the important matters brought up for consideration were: The advisability of appointing a trade commissioner for the town; the Wniter Fair; the forming of a mutual life insurance company in the counties of Victoria and Haliburton, etc. The secretary is J. P. Donald.

At a meeting of the Winter Fair directors held recently it was decided to hold the fair next winter on Dec. 15, the week before Xmas. This decision was arrived at after the views of the merchants had been obtained. The majority thought that there was enough business Xmas week without holding a fair.

PETERBORO.

March 4.—The Stroud Tea Co. closed their branch in Peterboro on Wednesday last.

A Shredded Wheat banquet was given on Tuesday, by the ladies of the Campbellford Presbyterian church. The receipts amounted to $200, the affair being a splendid success.

It is stated among the dealers that there has been a marked falling off in the sale of picture post cards. They are being sold at a lower price than ever before. Many grocers are finding them hard to dispose of, although during the summer they proved a fair side line.

Grocers state that the Lenten trade is already strong. Codfish is in great demand besides other kinds. Cheese, honey, jams, dried fruits and canned goods are selling well.

The prices of butter and eggs have not varied to any extent during the last few weeks. Eggs however are on the decline. Butter is down to 27 and 28 cents and on Saturday was plentiful at the farmers' market. There are not many complaints from the grocers about the quality of the dairy butter the general statement being that the farmers here are turning out a good article almost entirely free from rancied tastes and odors.

This is the season when the householder avails herself of foreign fruits, which are now very little higher than our own much prized Canadian apples. Some fine samples of apricots, prunes and peaches are being sold by the grocers. E. F. Mason & Co. are making a specialty of fine marmalade oranges at 40c a dozen. Slicers are supplied free as well as a good marmalade recipe.

R. Dutton is advertising 20 pounds of granulated sugar for a dollar.

Suburban or rural stores will be allowed to sell household remedies if P. H. Bowyer's bill passes the Legislature. In the past only qualified druggists were permitted to handle poisons, drugs or any medicinal remedies. This condition has caused considerable trouble to suburban people who are not fortunate in residing near a drug store.

C. N. Brown intends to open a general store at Kawartha Park, a summer resort on Clear Lake. It is stated that the many cottagers in that vicinity will appreciate this move.

S. H. Knox & Co. have been knocking on the door of practically every merchant. Since opening the 5, 10 and 15 cent store, prices have proven a great lure to bargain hunters and business has not yet shown any signs of ebbing.

Some of the grocers are doing extra advertising to catch the lenten trade. Sea and fresh water fish, sea salmon, halibut, smelts and finnan haddie are leading the select market.

A letter from Frank O'Connor now in Gowganda, contains the following statement, "There is going to be an awful time here in the spring as there is no summer road to drive on, and the people that are coming here are going to be up against it for provisions as they are eating them as fast as they can be brought in." O'Connor and Dave and Frank Conroy were practically first on the scene, having been second to pitch their tent. They have a supply store and from all accounts are doing a good business.

Jas. R. Bell recently celebrated his fifth anniversary of opening up a grocery business.

Toronto, Ont.:

Gentlemen,—Enclosed please find P.O. Order for $2.00, being my subscription for THE CANADIAN GROCER. As you know, I have been taking this paper for a couple of years and would not like to be without it now, as I find it very interesting and instructive

Wishing you every success, I remain,

TORONTO.

March 3.—Grocers on Yonge Street who lately became city folks claim that they are entitled to city express delivery.

H. Proctor, 1948 Queen Street East, has installed some new fixtures and the place is exceptionally clean and in good shape.

Stennett Bros. will soon be in their new store.

F. H. Ross, 93 Arthur Street, has sold to Mr. Berry, who will take possession at once.

Fitzpatrick & Doane, grocers and butchers, West Toronto, have assigned to E. R. C. Clarkson.

LONDON.

March 4.—With the advent of the Lenten season fish becomes a chief article of diet and realizing that, London grocers feel it incumbent upon themselves to meet what at this season is a popular demand.

Owing to the indisposition of President Thos. Shaw, the petition of the Retail Grocers' Association for an increase in the price of peddlers' licenses was not presented at the council meeting of the city council on Monday night.

The representative of one of the cereal foods adopted a unique method of advertising his goods here last week. He induced the ladies' aid society of one of the Methodist churches to permit him to put on a spread in the Sunday school in all the dishes of which his health food formed an ingredient. The attendance was good, the spread was enjoyed by all present, the ladies netted a goodly sum, and the food man had an opportunity of demonstrating the numerous purposes to which his food can be put and of airing in a speech the many virtues of what his firm manufactures.

The ice men of London have a good harvest this winter, having their storehouses packed to their capacity.

The clerk of the city market has recently received letters from country storekeepers asking the price of butter and eggs in London. In each instance the correspondent stated that he possessed plenty of those commodities and was prepared to unload them on the London public at an opportune time. It is known that some country storekeepers have for some months been buying all the eggs the farmers had and have been storing them to unload in the early spring when prices would be very high. It will be interesting to watch how they succeed.

The price of flour was advanced 15 cents on Monday, making an increase of 25 cents per cwt. within a week.

CHATHAM.

Chatham, March 4.—The annual meeting of the Chatham branch of the Retail Merchants' Association was held on Tuesday evening last. Though the attendance was only fair, probably owing to the unfavorable weather, considerable interest was shown. The following officers were elected: President, A. D. Westman; First Vice-President, John McCorvie; Second Vice-President, T. Walter Poile; Secretary, J. W. Powers; Treasurer, J. A. Wilson. The new president took charge with an enthusiastic speech. A vote of thanks to Wm. Anderson, the retiring president, was tendered. Messrs. McCorvie and Wilson are the grocer representatives on the new executive.

The unique methods employed by the merchants of Guelph in cornering dead beats and collecting bad accounts, as detailed in a recent issue of The Canadian Grocer, was brought up for discussion by V. J. Bosworth, the William Street grocer. Mr. Bosworth read the article in toto, and the scheme was the subject of much favorable comment. "If the Retail Merchants' Association did nothing else, save merely carry a scheme of this kind to a successful issue," remarked Mr. Bosworth, "it would still amply justify its existence." V. J. Bosworth and H. G. Hodges were appointed a committee to look into the matter and report at the next meeting on a feasible system of coping with dead beats and collecting bad debts. A modification of the Guelph scheme was strongly favored.

The subject of price cutting brought forth an interesting discussion. J. A. Wilson, who introduced it, remarked that the practice was becoming widespread in the grocery trade, owing to recent keen competition. As illustrating the hardware aspect of the question, Peter Cunningham expressed the opinion that price cutting was the result more of a disposition on the part of the purchaser than on the part of the opposition dealer to crowd the price. "Today," he said, "a man walked out of my store as angry as could be because I would not give him his price. He came back in half an hour and paid what we asked him. The other day, a customer had $72 worth of material measured out before dinner. In the afternoon he said he could do better somewhere else by $5. He wanted us to name a better price and we would not do it. Just for the fun of it, I detailed a boy to watch him. That man until nearly dark was dickering at first one place and then another, and finally went home without a pound of stuff. The same man's son has been back and taken out a portion of that order. These are reasons why I say a great deal depends on us, on our being firm and not giving way to the whims of these people.

President Westman said a good, stiff backbone in the merchant was an important requisite. "The retailer ought to have his margin," he said. "As soon as he gives his margin away he must shut up shop. He is entitled to his margin and should have the manhood to get it."

A committee was appointed to arrange for an address for the next meeting, scheduled to take place on March 9. In the course of the discussions a certain disposition was shown in the direction of cutting loose from the central organization, some members questioning the value of the connection. The workings of the rule forbidding the purchase by merchants of concert tickets were also touched on. One member reported that he had saved a great deal of money in this way. Another said the rule worked well "till these people come back half an hour after I have refused them and tell me that So-and-So, who is also a member, has bought tickets." Evidently, the benefits of backbone are not fully appreciated by some merchants.

The grocery business at 168 St. Clair Street, formerly carried on by the late O. I. Dolsen, was purchased last week by Jas. A. Mackness, the store opening for business under the new management on Saturday morning. Mr. Mackness has been a resident of Chatham for the past four years, having been employed on the office staff of John Piggott & Sons, lumbermen, while outside business circles he is favorably known, being president of the Victoria Avenue Epworth League. Miss Gertrude Barthe, who has been with Mr. Dolsen for the past six months, will remain as Mr. Mackness' assistant.

Potatoes are quite plentiful just now, prices on the local market on Saturday ranging from 75c to 90c a bag. Farmers in the low lands have been compelled to open their pits on account of the high water, and plenty of potatoes with an accompanying break in price has resulted. Butter and eggs are more plentiful, selling in some cases at 24c. Live hogs brought from $6.50 to $6.75, and the highest paid for dressed hogs was $8.50.

Jas. S. Proul, of Oxford, Mich., contemplates establishing a pork packing plant at Leamington. Local men are understood to be interested also. Two parties from Hamilton are also looking over the ground, and the likelihood is that a factory will be erected in the near future.

Nelson Vanidour, formerly of Chatham, has purchased the grocery of Rus Wigle & Co. at Leamington.

Fairbairn & Doyle have decided to locate a creamery at Tilbury this season, though they may be hampered by lack of ice. They seek a lease of the old cheese factory on Young Street.

Last week burglars entered the grocery and general store of J. A. Halliday at Merlin by removing the plate glass from one of the front doors. Nothing was taken, so it is surmised the men were frightened away.

The Erie Tobacco Co., of Leamington, is taking in large quantities of tobacco at 11c and 12c a pound. This is quite a contrast to last spring, when the growers were glad to sell for as low as 3c and 4c.

Mrs. Andrew Heyward, widow of the late Andrew Heyward, passed away last Saturday morning. Her husband was for many years one of the most widely known grocers in Chatham, having come here from Morpeth about 1870. Her son, Geo. S. Heyward, who disposed of his grocery to Harry Andrew a couple of years ago, is now fortune-seeking in Prince Rupert.

J. D. Stark, the St. Clair Street grocer, has returned from a visit to Montreal, where he took in the Winter Carnival.

Raymond Watson has severed his connection with the Dresden firm of Wright & Hughes.

Representatives of the H. J. Heinz Co. are now in Leamington, and are securing contracts for cucumber pickles, cauliflowers, beans, tomatoes and other produce. Arrangements are also being made for the remodeling of the interior of the new factory building. Representatives of the company attended the Fruit and Vegetable Institute recently held at Leamington and gave addresses in line with their work.

A tobacco crop of ten or twelve million pounds is foreshadowed this year in Essex county.

BARRIE.

March 4.—The butter question here at present is causing a great deal of discussion. Outside prices are away down even in Toronto good butter can be bought from two to three cents a pound less than here, and dealers are paying 23c a pound just now. One of our larger grocers who bought very heavily before Christmas for 25c, with an object of making a couple of cents at the present time, can only get in the neighborhood of 21c.

A. G. McNabb, of Elizabeth Street, and E. Budd, of Ward Six, have both taken young men into partnership with them last week. Considering their age, they are both doing well—they each being one week old.

The merchants are now at rest in the matter of the ice question, as all local ice houses are now filled and the ice men are now shipping to outside points.

Will Buchanan left last week for Fort William. His friends wish him all kinds of success in his new field.

Mayor Vair has already got busy in the way of getting new industries for our town, and has negotiations on file for the Webber Gas Engine Company, one of the largest of its kind in the States. We know that if he is as successful in this deal as he is in business, he will succeed in putting it through.

ST. THOMAS.

March 4.—A harmonious and enthusiastic meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association was held in their hall last Tuesday evening, which resulted in the following officers being elected for this year:

President—W. C. Forbes, jeweler and optician.

Vice-President—J. A. Stewart, grocer.

Treasurer—C. A. Hammond, tobacconist.

Secretary—Lorne Pearson, grocer.

The organization of a grocers' section of the R.M.A. is expected to take place at the next regular meeting.

The ministers of customs, finance, etc., have been written by the grocers requesting that no change be made in the tariff on home-grown beet sugar and that the present duties be renewed for another term.

The grocers appreciate the additional profit made on McDonald's tobaccos owing to the recent drop in price, and which was agitated by the association.

The grocers here generally state that their business for February this year is behind last year, but the railroads are now busy and building operations promise to exceed last season.

The tenders for the collections of market fees from March 1, 1909, to March 1, 1910, were opened and awarded to the highest bidders by No. 4 Committee last Wednesday. Thos. Burtch secured St. Andrew's market for $200. and G. T. Walker, the Horton market for $510. In consequence the expectation of a free market is lost. The grocers will still be conspicuous by their absence, as the ten o'clock by-law prevents them leaving their stores, and because only the leavings or culls are then unsold.

Produce and Provisions

The cheese market is firm, and stocks are steadily growing less, with increasing prices. Colored stock is very scarce. Reports arriving from England state that stocks in London are down to 94,000 boxes. Demand there continues good with an upward tendency of the market. The supply of New Zealand stock has been fairly liberal, but it has not adversely affected the sale of Canadian stock. Receipts of cheese since May 1, up to the present have been 1,958,215 boxes, against 2,053,840 boxes for the corresponding period of last year. Prices locally rule, 12¾c to 13c for finest Westerns and 12½ to 12¾c for Easterns.

The butter market continues weak, but it is thought in Montreal that prices have gone about as low as they will for some time. Receipts of fresh made stock are not large, and consequently fall creamery is being largely drawn on. Local houses report ample supplies of fresh rolls, and the market for this line is weak. The butter market is in a peculiarly unsettled condition, many holders have become more or less frightened during the week, with the result, that they are now unloading as fast as they can. Those who are holding choice fall creamery, are, as a rule hanging onto their stock, in the expectation of getting 25c at least, which represents about the minimum figure at which they are willing to talk business. Perhaps one source of the markets weakness is the fact that much butter, which has been held here for outside account is being pressed into the market just now. From the indications it seems as though most of those familiar with the market expect to see prices remain practically where they are now. Some, however, are expecting a rise as they think the market will suddenly find itself short. Receipts since May 1 have been 419,296 packages against 414,687 packages for the same period of last year. In Montreal prices rule for finest creamery 22¾c to 23c, and dairy at 16 to 17c.

At present so far as Toronto is concerned the butter market is demoralized with entirely too much to meet the demand. As a rule, and under healthy conditions, the hog product and the dairy thrive together, but why so much butter and such a small supply of hogs at the present time? This is owing entirely to the poor quality of butter. Had the butter been carefully and well made, and consequently of good quality, much more would have been consumed, and the accumulation of bad stuff would not have occurred.

Butter is an article supposed to be on every table at every meal, but if it is not good and eatable, it will stay there, and if it stays on the tables, it will also stay in the places where it is kept for sale. It is evident and beyond a doubt, that all the butter produced would have been required to meet the demand, had the article been kept up to a respectable standard. The better butter is made, the better will be the demand, and the better prices will be paid for it. The public may be fooled for a while, but they will not continue to pay high prices for stuff they cannot eat. At present there are immense quantities of butter in the hands of dealers, which, in order to be moved, have to be sold at a loss of six to ten cents a lb.

Eggs are steady.—Old stock are all sold and the price of new laid eggs varies almost from day to day according to the weather.

The difficulty of securing the required supply of hogs still exists, and many are bought of light weight, before they are in proper condition for the market. It becomes more apparent that the supply of hogs is not sufficient to meet the great demand of home consumption which has so remarkably increased through the excellent quality of our cured meats.

BUTTER—Butter market has reached the point of demoralization which had naturally to result from conditions which prevailed for several months. It is more the quality than the quantity of butter that rules the market, and as the butter this winter was unusually bad, the consumption decreased and now the market is loaded up with a class of butter that is practically unsalable, and in consequence butter has made another drop. Farmers are entitled to good, fair prices, for their products, but when they grow careless and expect high prices for stuff which is practically unfit for human food, then they must suffer the consequences which unavoidably follow.

CURING OF CHEESE.

Jarvis Cheeseman Says Cool Curing Rooms Are Necessary for Good Results.

J. J. Parsons, Jarvis, Ont., writing to The Canadian Grocer on the cheese question, says there is no doubt in his mind regarding the truth of Chief Dairy Commissioner Ruddick's statements regarding cheese.

"Now, of course," he continues, "they may not apply to all cases, but I am satisfied he is correct in the main. There are few cool curing rooms in connection with cheese factories in Western Ontario, and the selling of cheese by the great number of factories almost directly from the tub, does not give the cool curing rooms a fair show. Where cheese is sold and shipped out so soon after making it causes carelessness on the part of some makers, because they know such cheese will be away from the factory long before any flavors, etc., may develop.

"All who know anything of the trade agree that the cheese cured in a cool curing room and held there long enough to be cured, are far superior to any others. This I know from experience. We have a plant second to none, and during the hot summer months can keep our curing room down where we want it. The result has been most satisfactory, both at home and abroad. For our own table use we put our cheese away, and do not cut it until it is a year old, when we find it excellent in every respect."

CHEESE FACTORY LICENSES.

A Move in This Direction Favored by Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association.

The question as to whether cheese factories should be licensed came up for discussion at the first meeting of the new executive of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association at Brockville recently and the affirmative side of the case met with favor. President Dargavel thought the matter should have been taken up before. The suggestion was made that no new factories should be built before the site and surroundings be first submitted to and approved by the chief instructor or some appointee of the Government. The entire committee were of the opinion that legislation should be sought prohibiting the construction of factories unless a certain number of cows are guaranteed and the site approved by official appointed for that purpose. The secretary was instructed to prepare a circular letter for distribution among a large number of dairymen in Eastern Ontario asking for their opinion as to legislation along this line.

Geo. W. Prout, wholesale produce merchant, Winnipeg, has removed from 138 Princess St. to 248 Princess St., where he has much larger warehouse accommodation.

CATALOGUES AND BOOKLETS.

Manufacturers and wholesalers are requested to send catalogues, booklets, etc., to The Grocer in order that it may be announced to the retail trade that they have been issued. Retailers in sending for catalogues referred to, should mention this paper to show they are in the trade and they should be read thoroughly by them on account of their educative value. Often they may be able to secure new ideas.

Onward Manufacturing Co.—Clearness of type, handsomely colored cuts and short, pointed talks are features of the catalogue recently issued by the Standard Computing Scale Co., Detroit, whose Ontario establishment is at Berlin. The booklet is printed in two colors, with the cuts in three, on fine paper. Each page is divided into two sections, one side giving information about the scale, and the other about the price, making it easily read and giving definite statements. This catalogue is one that can be folded and placed in the inside coat pocket.

Stevens-Hepner Company.—A comprehensive catalogue on brushes, whisks, brooms, etc., has been prepared by the Stevens-Hepner Company, of Port Elgin, Ontario. It is illustrated nicely, with cuts of the various classes of goods turned out at the establishment in Port Elgin. The catalogue is divided into six parts dealing separately with paint and varnish brushes, artist fitches, etc.; kalsomine and whitewash brushes; household and stable goods; corn brooms; whisks and toilet brushes. The various kinds of manufactured materials are illustrated with the prices, making a very handy booklet.

Kelly, Douglas & Co.—The 1909 catalogue of Kelly, Douglas & Co., Vancouver, B.C., is a most comprehensive affair. It contains 291 pages, half of which are devoted to enumerating the various articles the company deals in, while the rest are used by advertisers. The introduction to the catalogue shows splendid half-tone cuts of the officers, salesmen, etc., which lend an additional attraction to it. Sketches of each of the officers as well as the history of the company are also given. The articles for the trade are published in alphabetical order beginning with arrowroot and axle grease, etc., and ending with vinegar and washboards. In addition, there are some very useful ideas for the retail grocer and some that will serve him in good stead.

THE FLOUR AND CEREAL MARKETS

Flour Market Still Unsettled—Advances in Some Brands—Two Advances and Two Declines During Last Ten Days—Feed in Good Demand.

March 2.—The flour market during the past ten days has been very unsteady. Toronto dealers report an advance, a decline, another advance and a second decline back to former prices. This has been due to keen opposition existing and price-cutting which has the millers guessing as to what they will have to do next. The export demand from the Old Country has been good. It will be observed that the change in wheat prices has not much influence over the flour market.

During the week a good demand has existed in rolled wheat and rolled oats, the prices being firm. Bran and shorts are also called for freely.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR — Royal Household and Strong Bakers have each advanced 10c. The strained relations between the big millers still exist to some extent. Reports state that dealers are well filled up.

ROLLED OATS—The rolled oat market has advanced 30c on barrels and 15c on bags. The advance is due to the strong position of the raw market, and large demand.

FEED—The bran market continues strong, owing to active demand, and limited supply. Shorts and middlings are very firm, owing to good demand, and light stocks held. Advances in the feed market are highly probable soon.

TORONTO.

FLOUR—Although during the past week the price of flour has gone up and down and up and down again, the figures as quoted last week remain constant. Inquiry from the Old Country is good, as well as from the Maritime Provinces. This is probably due to the restless condition of the market, in view of the keen opposition among some millers.

EXPECT WAR IN CORN FLAKES.

The New York Journal of Commerce of Saturday last hints that a corn flake war may be expected, resulting from the fact that the Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake Company offered a bonus to such jobbers as would confine their sales to brands which were sold exclusively through jobbers—presumed to be aimed at "Post Toasties."

In an interview with Mr. Garretson, of the Postum Cereal Co., that gentleman stated that if any jobbers show a disposition to accept the offer so as to deal unfairly with his company, they may expect "something," just what, he does not say.

DR. WILEY MAY RESIGN.

Report of Referee Board on Benzoate of Soda Accepted.

Washington, March 3.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief government chemist, was officially over-ruled to-day in the matter of his scientific conclusions as to the alleged deleterious effects of the use of benzoate of soda in the manufacture of food products. In an official bulletin signed by Secretary Cortelyou, Secretary Straus and Secretary Wilson, the report of the Remsen Board of Scientific Experts was adopted as the future rule of action for the department in administering the food laws, and all bulletins and orders of the department will be amended to conform to the new order.

The Remsen board, of which Professor Ira Remsen, of Johns Hopkins, is president and Professors Herter, of New York, Chittenden, of Yale; Long, of Northwestern University, and Taylor, of the University of California, are members, was appointed by President Roosevelt a year ago to settle the long controversy over the use of benzoate of soda.

After nearly a year of experiments they decided the salt was harmless. Dr. Wiley threatened to resign if the board's conclusion were adopted by the department. The order was made to-day declaring that the use of benzoate of soda would be permitted in the future.

It is believed Dr. Wiley will shortly sever his connection with the bureau of chemistry.

FRUIT MEN WANT REDUCED RATES

Express Companies Claim They Cannot Accept Proposals—Conference at Hamilton—Companies Willing to Meet Shippers on Some Questions —Some Stormy Passages During Meeting.

Editor Canadian Grocer:

At a joint meeting held between the fruit growers, shippers, etc., and the express representatives at Hamilton, Feb. 25th, the shippers put up a stiff argument for a modification of the present contract, in which the express representatives admit of no liability, except in cases where gross negligence or fraud can be proved. In either case this would be an extremely difficult matter to prove and we propose to bring that matter before the notice of the Board of Railway Commissioners once more, and to ask that the express companies be made liable for loss of goods, damage, delays or misconnections in transit. There was also a stiff argument put up for reduction in rates, and a settlement of claims within thirty days and if unsettled, claims to bear interest at 8 per cent. per annum until paid.

Along these two lines the express representatives urge that they settle up claims promptly, and that there is no general desire for a reduction in rates, and that the same are not regarded as excessive over the greater part of the country.

My object in writing to you is to have this matter brought before your readers and to ask for an expression of opinion, and to have the presidents or secretaries of the Retail Growers' Associations throughout the country take this matter up and discuss it, and the result stated to the writer who is chairman of the fruit growers' committee, so that we can bring this in at the next hearing before the commissioners in rebuttal to their statement that claims are paid promptly, and that there is no general desire for a reduction in rates. I trust I need not here enlarge on the utmost importance which both these matters bear on the fruit industry and shall be glad to have your co-operation in the matter to give the same all possible publicity.

A. E. KIMMINS.

March 1, 1909.

Hamilton, March 2.—The conference held here last week between the Niagara District Fruit Growers' Association, shippers on the one hand and the express companies' representatives of Hamilton on the other proved at times somewhat stormy. A. E. Kimmins, Winona, was the chairman. J. Bryce, vice-president and general manager of the Canadian Express Company; W. Williamson, superintendent of tariffs; E. Allan, superintendent; G. W. Hickey, route agent; J. F. Bryce, assistant to the general manager; R. G. Wilson, general agent at Toronto; W. Walsh, of Toronto, and C. A. Dobson, agent at this city for the Dominion Express Company, were the representatives present.

Major Roberts, for the association, wanted to know what the companies intended to do for the fruit growers.

Mr. Bryce, speaking for the representatives of the companies, said that he did not like the demands of the fruit growers, but they had come together for the purpose of conferring with them, and to that end he asked that the proposed clauses be read separately.

The contract was then read, and Mr. Bryce took a strong objection to the changing of the existing agreement, as any alteration might be considered a discrimination.

Mr. Kimmins wanted to know who owned the Canadian Express Company, and Mr. Bryce said that most of the stock was owned by the Grand Trunk Railway. He said that the express companies have no control over the operation of the fruit trains, and it was a responsibility that the express companies were not ready or willing to accept. It was a legal point, that would have to be decided by the Railway Commission.

Shelving the Claims.

The fruit growers proceeded to go after the officials and a stormy time resulted for a while, many of the members of the association taking a crack at the officials. Some thought that the companies did all they could to shelve claims made by the growers.

The officials of the company took strong exception to these statements, especially Mr. Walsh, of the Dominion Express Company, who defied any man to prove that his company had ever shelved any reasonable claim. He said that he personally went over every claim presented to the company, and if the claim was reasonable it was promptly paid and no questions asked.

Some of the growers said that they had claims against the company which dated back some years, and they had not been able to get a settlement as yet, and some of them even went so far as to state that they had seen baskets of fruit stolen by employes of the company.

Mr. Bryce said he had no control over the private actions of the individuals. In 1907 the Canadian Express Company had 706 claims and paid out $1,638.12 on them. He would not state, however, how many other claims the company received. He charged the shippers in many instances with carelessness in the putting up of the fruit and the flimsy construction of the baskets. He said that the company had always had to keep a supply of baskets on hand at the different centres, for the purpose of putting the fruit in when the baskets became broken. Yet the fruit growers were not willing to make any acknowledgement of that fact.

In reply to Major Roberts, Mr. Bryce said that the companies would not consent to confining the settlement of claims to 30 days, and having interest accrue at 8 per cent. for all time over that period, for at the present time the contract covers all classes of merchandise and cannot be confined to fruit growers alone.

The Conference Resumed.

When the conference opened in the afternoon of the same day, the proposed clause relating to the improvement of facilities at the important shipping points was first taken up.

Captain Murchison said that a shelter was badly needed at Oakville instead of the small platform there now. Mr. Allan, one of the officials, stated that the present Grand Trunk shed was not the best in the world, but intimated that something better might be expected.

H. S. Rittenhouse, Jordan, complained of the rain coming through the roof of the shed there and running into the wagons while unloading. Mr. Bryce gave assurance to Samuel Culp that the sheds at Beamsville would be attended to. Complaints came from Grimsby, Burlington, Bronte, Lorne Park, and Carleton and it was decided to leave the matter to be settled between the two parties.

Need Extra Train.

The question of train service was next taken up. The fruit growers contended that, in the Niagara district, there should be two trains a day to pick up all the fruit. It was also suggested that the Toronto and Montreal consignments be kept separately. Mr. Allan and Mr. Bryce said that it would be too great an expense to the companies to put on two trains. This matter could be adjusted, however, if the rates be increased. The train service question was left in the hands of a committee composed of Messrs. Preston, Oughtred, Kimmins and Major Roberts. This committee will meet the officials and go into the question thoroughly.

A Troublesome Question.

The last question taken up was that of rates, and this left the fruit growers and the officials farther apart. A. E. Kimmins read the draft of rates that had been approved of at the recent meeting of the committee, as follows:

30c per 100 lbs. for 50 miles.

5 cents per 100 lbs. increase for each additional 50 miles.

20 cents per 100 lbs. from Clarkson to Toronto was also asked for.

Mr. Williamson, for the Canadian Express Company, stated that the company could not accept such terms and expect to make the business from the Niagara district pay. Even at the present time the fruit growers in the Niagara Peninsula were enjoying a better rate than is given any other district which the company covers.

Mr. Walsh, for the Dominion Express Company, said that he could not accept such terms, and Mr. Bryce stated that the fruit growers evidently did not know of the accommodation the express companies had afforded the buyers of their products at such points as Montreal and Toronto.

The conference was then brought to a close, but it is probable that something definite will be arrived at in the near future.

HE WAS a big success, was P. T. Barnum. People went to Barnum's to be tickled; they did laugh—then went away telling all their friends what a side-splitting success P. T. was. He was advertised by his loving friends, but he gave his loving friends a square deal—that's the Barnum success secret.

¶ There were cheaper shows than his—there are cheaper flours than FIVE ROSES. You have keen competition—so had he; but he gave his people something they couldn't get elsewhere, genuine satisfaction.

¶ Your neighbour may give a customer better prices, but not better value than FIVE ROSES flour. Every order you fill not only makes a lifelong customer, it makes two customers grow where only one grew before.

¶ Once you have sold FIVE ROSES and your customer discovers how really good flour can be, she not only wants it because of the exclusive FIVE ROSES goodness but she gets used to FIVE ROSES, and your opposition couldn't persuade her to use "near good" flours again—her taste is cultivated—she's "more particular."

¶ To know good flour is only half the winning; to sell FIVE ROSES the other half. The sooner you handle it the quicker you'll lay the sure foundation of a big flour trade—you'll have something "the store across the street" hasn't got!

¶ We ask you to push FIVE ROSES for its selling qualities—for the customer's confidence—the profit there's in it. Don't let the "other fellow" corner the good trade; don't let him send his order first!

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUIT—Apples are getting scarcer, and higher. Very ordinary apples sell at $5 a barrel and the best as high as $6.50. From 16 to 20 carloads of oranges are required for the Toronto market each week. The quality is excellent and prices are firm, with an upward tendency. Pineapples are arriving in good condition and change hands at $4 to $4.50 a case. Bananas are very scarce, and higher and will likely remain high for several months. Two carloads arrived but as the stock was completely sold out, these will all be readily picked at good prices.

VEGETABLES—It seems a remarkable fact that from four to five carloads of potatoes are consumed in Toronto each day and yet the price has not varied five cents a bag for several months. This year the entire demand of the city is supplied by the Ontario product, which is of exceptionally good quality. Turnips are sold at $8 per ton. Florida celery is now on the market, and the quality is splendid. The packages are about half the size of the California cases and sell at about half the price.

In their weekly bulletins or price lists which White & Co., fruit, produce and fish dealers, Toronto, are issuing each week they contain a suggested advertisement to be used by the retailer to help advertise his goods. Publicity Sells the Goods. Yet this firm believes that it should not end with the goods leaving their hands, but that the retailer should be assisted in disposing of them with a neatly worded ad., put up in concise form. If they don't use it word for word, it gives them a fresh idea each week with which to work out an ad. of their own. A great many dealers have taken up the idea and are using it to advantage in their weekly talks.—Advt.

MALT MADE VINEGAR UPHELD

Contrasted with the Acetic Acid Variety Correspondent Says it is Like Raw New Spirits Compared to Ripe Old Whisky—Says Acetic Acid Vinegar is Harmful to Health.

Editor of The Canadian Grocer :—

Dear Sir,—With reference to your recent article on the subject of vinegar made from acetic acid, we feel that this does not altogether do justice to the article known as malt vinegar, which is a product of grain, and which is recognized in the United Kingdom as the finest vinegar which can be produced. As English malt vinegars have come to the front in Canada of recent years and the consumption is rapidly increasing, we think it would be of considerable interest to the grocery trade, as well as in justice to the brewers of this class of vinegar, if further reference be made in your valuable journal and we, therefore, take the opportunity of enclosing a paper on the subject.

H. GILBERT NOBBS,
Manager Holbrooks Limited in Canada & U.S.

Toronto, March 2, 1909.

The correspondent who writes on this question in your publication of January 29th, is so palpably interested in the sale of pyroligneous acid, colored to represent a malt vinegar, that it would perhaps be as well to allow his statements to pass but for the possibility of some unwary traders being deceived by his specious arguments, and so finding themselves in difficulties with the authorities who take a kindly interest in the purity of foods, and in fair trading.

The only questions that appeal to the public and retailer alike are: (1) Is this diluted acetic acid harmful to health? (2) Is it fair dealing to sell it colored to imitate an entirely different and more expensive vinegar?

In answering the first, it is a fact that notwithstanding repeated distillations the acetic, or pyroligneous acid is never wholly freed from the empyreumatic odor and flavor which arise from the tarry matter originally distilled from the wood; and although the opinions of medical experts differ as to the effect of this on the human machine, the balance of those opinions is that it is harmful.

Vinegars Contrasted.

The contrast between this acetic acid and a malt vinegar may be likened to that between raw new spirit and a ripe old whiskey, yet alcohol is the predominating constituent of these latter, as acetic acid is of the former.

In answer to the second question, your correspondent is not content to claim a right to sell this acetic acid vinegar under its proper description, and as a water white liquid—its natural color; but, "to suit the popular fancy," that it may be colored, and then sold under the same general name as the product from malt or grapes. Here, surely, we get an immoral position, for if the "popular fancy" requires a particular color, it is by reason of that color being associated with vinegar of a definite origin—malt, cider, wine; to substitute a different article colored to match any one of these is clearly a fraud, both in intention and effect. In emphasis of this fraud the price charged for the imitation, a less costly article, is frequently as much as for the vinegar it is colored to imitate.

The fact is that the public will not have this pyroligneous acid when offered to them in all its nakedness, hence the endeavor of those interested to make out a case in favor of faking.

Vinegar from grain or fruit in its natural condition has a certain food value, by reason of the phosphates, nitrogen and extractive matters present. The food value is small certainly in the quantities in which it is consumed, but none the less it is there, whereas the pyroligneous acid has none whatever.

Contention Ridiculous.

Again, the flavor of a well made malt or wine vinegar is immeasurably superior to that of the imitation article; as well might one distill beer, add a little coloring and hop substitute to the distillate, and claim a right to sell such a concoction as beer. Indeed your correspondent virtually does so, for he argues that pyroligneous acid is better than malt vinegar because the deleterious grain extractives are not present. Transfer the argument to beer, which has more of these grain residues, and it is at once apparent how ridiculous is such a contention.

On the same lines it might be contended that turnip pulp with a few gritty "seeds" made from wood, flavored with an ether, colored with a coal tar dye, and the whole sweetened with sugar, might legitimately be handed to a customer who asked for strawberry jam.

Many instances might be added of the frauds against which legislators, whether in the Old or New Worlds, find it necessary to protect both traders and the public from the plausible arguments of manufacturers of spurious articles.

Let us hope that the regulations to such end will be strengthened rather than otherwise, and in the meantime traders can fully protect themselves by dealing with firms of undoubtedly good reputations, whether it be for vinegar, jam, butter, or any other commodity."

Mr. Grouchy will never get more than seventy-five cents' worth of work out of his help for each dollar invested. Be as pleasant to the clerks as you would have them be to you.

WANT LOWER DUTY ON EGGS.

United States Citizen Adopts Endless Chain Post Card Plan to Bring it About.

Chicago, March 3.—Believing that the removal of the duty on Canadian eggs would go far toward reducing the cost of the United States product, Arnold Brennan of this city has adopted an endless chain post card system to accomplish such an end.

The primary purpose of the endless post card system is to bring the matter forcibly to the attention of Sereno E. Payne, chairman of the ways and means committee of the lower house of congress Mr. Brennan finds room for all this on a postal card:

"Endless chain postcard; mail one to each of three acquaintances, with request that they do likewise.

"Hon. Sereno E. Payne, chairman ways and means committee, house of representatives, Washington, D.C.:

"Inasmuch as the present price of eggs (40 cents per dozen) is prohibitive to the average wage earner, I (or we) respectfully petition congress to remove the duty of 12c a dozen on Canadian eggs, in order that the New York and other eastern markets may be supplied from that source, as before the duty was imposed. Your petitioners believe that a reduction in the price of eggs would force the beef trust to reduce the price of its products."

Predicted colder weather, light receipts, and a general desire on the part of dealers to build up their holdings resulted yesterday in an advance of 3 cents in the price of eggs, quotations being elevated to 33 and 35 cents for "firsts" and "extras." There were comparatively few eggs to be had at the advance.

THE GROCER'S ENCYCLOPEDIA

The Development of the Manufacture of Maple Syrup From Its Primitive Stages—How Modern Appliances Have Aided the Industry—What Penalties May be Incurred for Making or Selling the Adulterated Article—Must be Properly Labelled.

MAPLE SYRUP AND MAPLE SUGAR—The time has once more come round when the minds of the farmers and their sons turn to thoughts of maple sugar making. This work on the farm is perhaps the most attractive of any during the year and no matter what other work is shunned everybody—even the farmers' wives and daughters—wants to get out to the woods for the sugar making.

Grocers are particularly interested in the maple industry and if possible should take a jaunt out into the country to visit a maple sugar camp in the woods and thus get more intimately acquainted with the manufacture and incidentally with some of their customers.

Rapid Development.

The maple industry is an old and long established one. It had its origin with the Aborigines of Canada—the Indians who employed only the most primitive and of course wasteful methods. Later on the early white settlers, copying, but improving on the methods of the Indians, began by making use of wooden spouts fashioned to fit the holes that they bored in the trees with an auger. The auger-hole took the place of the gouge in previous use. For receptacles, wooden troughs were roughly gouged out; some nearby basswood or pine tree furnishing the material.

The gathering was mostly done by hand or by main strength and when the sap was collected it was boiled into sugar in large iron kettles, strung sometimes three or four on a large pole. On account of the great amount of sparks falling into the boiling contents of these kettles, and the fact that it was boiled altogether in an iron vessel, the result was that the finished product was often of a very dark and uninviting appearance.

As "commercial" sugar was rather a luxury in those days and money was proportionately scarce, the maple product supplied the wants of the settlers very acceptably. But, as those who had been making it in a larger way and who sold their surplus make, began to see the possibility of making their maple bushes a source of profit and an additional revenue to their farms, they began to look about for more improved methods of handling the sap. At this point the passing away of much of the romantic part of the industry is noticeable, where the young people of the settlement were accustomed to gather around the camp fire and enjoy to the full, the fun of the old-fashioned "sugaring off."

Shanty in the Woods.

Then came the shanty or camp with its brick or stone arch and chimney and large pans and heaters, buckets of tin hung from metal spouts, more trees being tapped, gathering being done by horse and sleigh, syrup being manufactured as well as sugar. As a ready market was found for the product, the business rapidly grew until now there are in many parts in Canada, and especially in Quebec and Eastern Ontario, large sugaring camps where the sap, from in some instances 6,000 to 8,000 trees, is rapidly converted into the delicious sugar and syrup of the most beautiful and attractive appearance and flavor.

This could never have been possible without the advent of the modern and up-to-date evaporators and appliances now used. The business has lost much of the hard, toilsome work.

In the old way the sap was poured into a kettle at one end of the row and dipped from one to another, gradually becoming stronger as it reached the end of the line. To-day manufacturers have tinned spouts, tin buckets, tin gathering tanks, and storage tanks of the same material. The sap never touches wood from the time it leaves the tree. It comes into the evaporator by the force of gravitation from the storage tank and gradually working its way by means of the same force from one compartment of the machine to another until at the far end of the machine it is finished and drawn off as the pure, beautiful and delicious maple syrup.

Owing to the fact that there is only a comparatively small amount of sap over the fire and that for a short time only, the result is a much superior article both in flavor and in appearance.

Adulteration a Drawback.

The greatest drawback to the sugaring industry to-day is the adulteration of the pure product which has been resorted to by some dealers and in some instances by makers.

Maple sugar makers can never hope to compete with other manufacturers of syrup and sugar in the open market nor do they need to do so. Theirs is an altogether different and superior article. It is the maple flavor that people demand and which they ungrudgingly pay for once they are satisfied they are getting a pure and unadulterated article.

The consumer should know that it costs much more now than of old to produce a gallon of pure maple sugar; fuel, labor, camp and all necessary utensils are so much more expensive.

The total pure maple product at the present time is only some three or four pounds per head of the population. As has been stated, one great drawback to the industry is the amount of "compound" and adulterated stuff put on the market, some of which has not a drop of pure maple whatever in it but is flavored with a preparation called "Maple Flavor." With this adulterated article bridled by suitable legislation, the pure maple product as manufactured by modern means in a properly equipped sugar camp should enjoy a wider reputation and be more eagerly sought for by the consuming public, to the mutual advantage of producer, retailer and consumer.

Standard Syrup.

Standard syrup weighs 13 pounds two ounces per gallon and will register 218 to 220 degrees F. when boiling. After reaching that temperature it should be removed from the evaporator, strained through a flannel or felt strainer into a large settling can and allowed to settle for at least 48 hours. It will then be ready to put into cans or bottles for the retail trade. For wholesale trade syrup is usually put into five-gallon tin cans and wooden kegs holding from 15 to 30 gallons each.

Pure maple syrup or maple sugar is made, of course, from nothing but the sap of the sugar maple tree. If anything is added it must be labelled as a mixture or compound. H. J. Dager, food inspector for the Dominion of Canada, explained to The Canadian Grocer that it was a violation of the law to add "and contents" to a label in such small letters that the words are not readily noticed.

The Penalties.

Every grocer knows that maple syrup is often adulterated and how. One who adulterates or orders anyone else to adulterate such a food by using something injurious to the health shall for the first offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 and costs, or imprisonment for six months or both, and not less than $50 and costs; for each subsequent offence the penalty shall not exceed $1,000 and costs, or one year imprisonment or both and not less than $100 and costs. If the ingredients added are not injurious to the health but are added chiefly to increase the bulk the penalty for the first offence shall not exceed $200 and costs or three months' imprisonment and for each subsequent offence $500 and costs or six months' imprisonment or both is the maximum penalty, and the minimum $100 and costs.

Important to Retailers.

For selling or offering for sale, adulterated food injurious to the health the maximum is $200 and costs or three months in jail or both for the first offence and for each subsequent offence the fine is placed at not more than $500 and costs or six months in jail or both, and not less than $50 and costs.

If the adulteration is not injurious, the penalty imposed for selling shall not exceed $100 and costs and shall not be less than five dollars and costs. This latter, if anything, is added, must bear a notice on the label in a conspicuous place stating that such is the case.

TOBACCO IN ONTARIO.

In Fourteen Years Value of Production In Essex and Kent Amounted to Over $3,000,000.

Chatham, March 2.—The following statistics in regard to the extent of the tobacco industry in Kent and Essex for the past 14 years have been furnished by W. T. Gregory, the widely known tobacco man, and should prove of more than passing interest, as showing the amount of tobacco these two counties are producing, and the value of the industry.

From present indications the crop of 1909 will exceed that of any former year. The largest quantity was grown in 1906, but the highest price was paid in 1904.

1895—60,000 lbs. Value	$ 3,900
1896—80,000 lbs.	5,400
1897—600,000 lbs.	66,000
1898—4,750,000 lbs.	273,150
1899—2,000,000 lbs.	130,000
1900—3,250,000 lbs.	186,875
1901—2,500,000 lbs.	187,500
1902—1,500,000 lbs.	142,500
1903—3,250,000 lbs.	357,500
1904—5,500,000 lbs.	605,000
1905—6,500,000 lbs.	552,500
1906—7,500,000 lbs.	562,500
1907—3,000,000 lbs.	165,000
1908—510,000 lbs.	45,000
Total, 41,000,000 lbs.	$3,282,825

The marked drop in quantity in 1908 was due to the "big break" in price the previous year, consequent on the heavy production of 1906, when in point of productiveness the industry reached its zenith—for the time being. The industry has suffered from the same trouble which prompted the organization of the Kentucky "night riders"—uncertainty of price.

THE LAW IN GERMANY.

A merchant in Germany possessed besides his main store, a branch in another town. He advertised the sale of this branch "on account of giving up the business." As the main store was still running and intended to be kept going he was proceeded against under the law and condemned to pay a fine.

He appealed against this judgment at the Court of Rensin at Karlsruhe, and this tribunal reserved the decision of the lower court, the court holding that it was legal to advertise the sale of the limited business of the branch. It was not against the law to hold a union of interests between the main business and the branch, although the goods in both stores were the property of one and the same concern. A branch business occupied a certain independent position in that it is through its location separated from the main store, requires a separate staff and separate management, it owns and controls its own stock, appears before the public as an independent business and is looked upon by everyone not aware of its connection with any other concern, as a self-supporting business. It was natural then that such a business can undertake a disposal sale and to advertise it as such, in so far as pertains to the goods of the branch. The supplying of stock from the main store is only not allowable when same overstep the actually necessary point of assistance to the disposal sale. It is allowable to supplement the stock of the branch store with desirable and necessary goods to assist the disposition of the goods held in store at the branch.

In the case before the court there was no evidence that unnecessary goods were supplied by the main store and the judgment against the merchant cannot therefore be maintained.—From Die Kolonialwaren Wache.

NO ADULTERATED HONEY.

Production or Sale as a Compound Absolutely Prohibited.

The Department of Inland Revenue at Ottawa has issued an important circular dealing with the adulteration and sale of honey. At the present time it is represented that there is being placed on the market considerable quantities of a mixture labelled in large letters "pure honey" with the addition in small letters of the words "and contents." The contents have been determined by analysis to be nothing but invert sugar.

The following circular has been sent to The Canadian Grocer in order to acquaint the grocers of the Dominion of the law respecting the sale of the adulterated article:

"Under section 30 of "The Adulteration Act" the manufacture, sale or offering for sale in Canada of any imitation of honey or sugar honey or other substitute for honey is strictly forbidden. The provisions of section 24 of the said act respecting the use of the word 'mixture' does not apply to honey and any production or sale of this article as a compound is absolutely prohibited.

"The punishment for any offence against the provisions of section 30, above referred to, is determined by section 164 of the Criminal Code and consists in the liability to a term of imprisonment of one year."

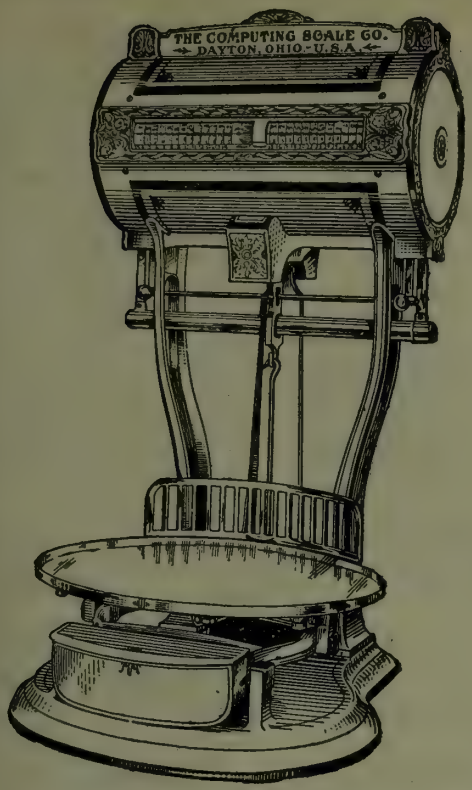
Now, what do you know about Allison?

Of course you've heard of the famous, flawless, universal Allison Coupon System. But what do you KNOW of this remarkable system in its application to your business? Here's a brief explanation.

A Man Wants Credit



You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10 — no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes.

Talking to the Point

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS get right down to the point at issue If you want something, say so in a few well-chosen words. Readers like that sort of straight-from-the-shoulder-talk, and that is the reason why condensed ads are so productive of the best kind of results.

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS are always noticed. They are read by wide-awake, intelligent grocers, who are on the look-out for favorable opportunities to fill their requirements.

IF you are looking for a side line to add to your business, there is none better than COLUMBIA GRAPHOPHONES, Double Disc Records (which means two records for a single price) and Indestructible Records (that will not break or wear out no matter how much you abuse them). The Columbia Phonograph Company is the only firm that manufactures both Disc and Cylinder Machines and Records, therefore, a Columbia dealer has the advantage over all others, as he can furnish his customers with what they want while his competitor has to sell them what he has or lose the sale, which he generally does where there is a Columbia dealer. Are Columbia goods sold in your town? If not, why not? Do you want the exclusive agency? (remember exclusive). You had better write to-day or some one else in your town will read this advertisement and beat you to it. A postal will bring catalogues and full information free. Write to-day. Do it now. TORONTO PHONOGRAPH CO., Limited, Exclusive Columbia Jobbers, 40 Melinda St., Toronto, Canada.

Worms in Horses and All Live Stock

The eradication of worms from horses and other animals is one of the most striking features of Molassine Meal, and is proof of its unique properties. When

is used regularly—although it is quite free from arsenic or drugs—in consequence of its antiseptic properties, all foul or putrid matter is evacuated, worms cannot live, and are naturally expelled.

A food which has effects like this must command the attention of all persons interested in the feeding of horses and cattle.

LITTLE HELPS or GREAT HELPS?

"Every little helps"—yes it does.

But this generation moves very rapidly; more business can be done in an hour than in a day a few years ago.

However many "little helps" a grocer may have, Great Helps are a necessity to establish and round out successful trade; and to the latter belong

WOOD'S COFFEES

Canned Where Caught

The "THISTLE" Brand of CANNED HADDIES, KIPPERED HERRINGS, and HERRING AND TOMATO SAUCE, are canned right where they are caught—at the water side. How better could you preserve the natural richness and delicate flavor of the fish ?- IMPOSSIBLE.

But that is not all, because Captain Austin has the unequalled skill of a lifetime of experience. THERE'S NO DIRT OR SLIME—NO UNCLEANLINESS TO BE FOUND IN THE "THISTLE" BRAND. The reputation of the foremost fish-curer in the country is at stake under the label of the "THISTLE" brand. Buy it and you buy the best.

—Mr. Grocer—

Do you want to make money—here is a chance—to make it easily, quickly, and lots of it—Do you for any reason wish to take up this very profitable line—That will net you a good income, as well as increase your sales in other lines—If you do read this. Every housekeeper dreads ironing day, especially so when she has a lot of shirt-waists, men's shirts, collars, cuffs, etc. to iron, she always wants to obtain a high grade finish, equal to first class laundries. She of course asks the grocer for advice—in return he offers her the common wax—She knows it is impossible to do good work with common wax—So she walks away—one customer lost.

Now where she can procure an article of this merit—that reduces ironing time by half—reduces labor to a minimum—adds to the finish of clothes—and makes ironing a day of pleasure—There she is sure to do her buying—and leave her order for other things. The Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner is used in more than a million homes, read what users say.—

Chicago, Jan. 4th, 1909

To whom it may concern,—

Some time ago I tried the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner, and was so pleased with the work it did, that I recommend it highly and advise every women who wants to make her work easy, to try the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner and be convinced of its good work.

Respectfully yours
Mrs. T. Ohmes, D.S.C.L.O.T.M., 937 W. Adams St.

Mr. Grocer

We do not want you to order until you have convinced yourself of the merits of our Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner—Send us your name and address and jobber you do business with and we will send you one free of charge so that you may try it yourself and be convinced—Is this fair enough?

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co.'s Extra STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 150 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent. of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

Importance of Unity Among Merchants

H. C. Beckett's Address at the Regular Meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association of Hamilton—Advocates Co-operation Among the Trades to Have Formed an Internal Trade Commission—What Merchants' Neglect Has Resulted in—Hamilton Grocers Favor an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association—Division Court Act and Collection of Accounts Discussed.

Hamilton, March 11.—When the grocers of any town or city realize that in uniting together they not only have the social benefits and the good feeling that should exist among all men, but that they actually save money, then they should begin to think about a closer organization. By the formation of the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association, the members of it are reaping benefits that in former years they would never have dreamed of possessing. Among these might be mentioned the abolition of the Christmas gift business and next the calendar which, to use the words of the famous Scotch singer Harry Lauder, "had become a perfect habit wi' them."

Looking at it in a broader sense, probably the fact that the grocers, though competitors, can now meet one another face to face in friendly intercourse and make each other understand that they are interested in the common welfare of all, might be considered of more importance than the pecuniary advantages obtained.

A Profitable Meeting.

Hamilton grocers meet once a month and last Thursday night was the meeting evening. The feature of it was an address by H. C. Beckett, of W. H. Gillard & Co., wholesale grocers, of this city. But the members talked over The Division Court Act, the collection of accounts, The Pharmacy Act and the proposal to form an Ontario retail grocers' association. The present meaning of The Division Court Act has proven very distasteful to merchants all over Ontario and something is expected from the present sitting of the legislature.

The idea of forming a provincial association met with much favor and President John Forth is a strong advocate of it. He promised that the executive would hold a meeting soon to discuss plans of procedure with a view to carrying out the proposal.

Have Strong Association.

Some forty members of the Hamilton Association, were in attendance at the meeting and many of them took part in the discussion. Ald John Forth, the president presided, and conducted the business in a systematic manner. That the association is growing was shown by the addition of some new members which is a regular occurrence at the meetings.

In the discussion on the law reform question J. A. McIntosh believed that something should be done by the association in this regard and he moved that a committee be appointed to take up the matter and determine what course to pursue. The committee named consisted of Jos. Kirkpatrick, Jno. O. Carpenter, J. A. McIntosh, Geo. Cann, J. M. Semmens, the President, and the secretary, M. R. Hill.

An Ontario Organization.

The editor of the Canadian Grocer was present and on being called upon suggested to the Hamilton grocers the idea of forming a provincial retail grocers' association. He believed that the grocers of Ontario would then be in a position to command attention at the legislature and remedy some of the unfair trade conditions existing at present. Laws had been enacted, such as the Pharmacy Act, detrimental to the grocers and if they were only united in a body they could see to it that they secured their rights.

He suggested that a meeting of representatives from the Hamilton, London,

JOHN FORTH,

President of the Retail Grocers' Association, Advocates Forming of a Provincial Organization.

Toronto and other Grocers' Associations be called to discuss the course to take and that any grocer in Ontario be allowed to attend.

Action to be Taken.

The President strongly advocated the forming of an Ontario Association and stated that a meeting of the executive would be called soon to see what could be done.

"We have heretofore," he said, "been united chiefly for social benefits and it is time we should do more aggressive work. If we could join with other associations we would secure their ideas and be benefited."

The association was not existing in order that the consumer would be injured, and it had no serious intentions against the wholesaler. The president then called upon H. C. Beckett for his address.

Existing Trade Conditions.

Mr. Beckett was pleased to have the opportunity to address the grocers and it occurred to him that nothing could be more beneficial to them than a discussion on existing trade conditions and suggestions as to their improvement. He spoke as follows:

It will be generally admitted by any one of ordinary intelligence that manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers, and consumers, have a common interest in encouraging and building up the trade and commerce of this country along lines of mutual fair dealing that will provide a reasonable return for the capital invested and the service rendered.

Now, what progress are we making towards solving the many perplexing problems confronting the business men of to-day, and what are the difficulties we at present labor under?

That progress has been slow we must admit, and it is largely due to the fact that most of us have selfishly and foolishly imagined that we could succeed without each other's help.

Unity Means Education.

Self-interest has made us blind to the changed conditions of trade and the necessity for higher education in commercial economics.

The neglect of the trade in uniting to study trade conditions and prevent waste and wrong, is no doubt due in a large measure to the operation of our senseless and tyrannical combines' statutes. No greater bar to the commercial prosperity of our country was ever set up than when such legislation was enacted.

The enactment of such laws, the fact that they are still in force, the fact that there is not a lawyer from the Minister of Justice down who can interpret them, is convincing evidence that it has proved nothing more than a scheme to take thousands of dollars out of the pockets of honest business men in expensive court proceedings and at the same time enable our Governments to make a grand stand play for the votes of the people by harassing the legitimate trade of this country. Political capital has been made by sacrificing the business man to party exigency.

Business Heads Wanting.

That such an unsatisfactory state of commercial affairs is permitted to exist when other interests, viz., banking, insurance, municipal, railways, professions, trades, etc., have recognized and legalized rights, can only be accounted for because our members of Parliament, as a rule, are not business men and have no opportunity of finding out the actual commercial needs of our country.

No machinery is at present available to hear the voice of the business man, and we drift along totally ignored, except to be regarded as guilty of a criminal act if two or more of us gather together and agree to some plan that will prevent loss of capital or offer some measure of protection against dishonest competition.

In conversation recently with a very prominent member of Parliament, a man of recognized ability, he frankly admitted that there should be a recognized system of order as between the manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer, and consumer, and that our commercial success depended upon safe-guarding all classes in the struggle for existence.

Daily Press Censured.

Having pointed out possible reasons for delay in united action, so far as the business man is concerned, let us look at the attitude of the press towards our manufacturing and commercial interests.

With few exceptions (and more power to the honest journalist) no effort is made to print truthful articles,—sensational articles, calculated to disturb the mind and to create unrest among the thinking masses,—that is about what we usually find.

Manufacturers are accused of combining,—wholesalers are accused of conspiring,—retailers are the victims of trade pirates, and the consumer is told and led to believe that he is being robbed. If such ideas prevail is it not time for investigation into trade matters by some tribunal absolutely free from party politics or influence?

What little attention has been given the business man in the past has been to view him with suspicion, and make it illegal for him to prevent waste and wrong. The business man's interests are sadly neglected by our legislators, and if we ever expect proper recognition it must be through our united efforts.

You must know that some members of Parliament and even cabinet ministers, hold absolutely absurd views about the operations of trade. You must know that some members of Parliament are on record as advocates of measures calculated to do much harm to the commercial needs of this country.

Harmful Legislation.

Is it not a fact that legislation is frequently introduced and sometimes becomes law, that is positively hurtful to legitimate business? The press, under present conditions, has a much greater influence with the politician than the business man has. Members of Parliament are all too easily led astray by the false statements of an irresponsible press, and consequently the business man has to contend with a serious menace. A news editor is liable to error. He is some times actuated by party bias; he frequently displays a woeful lack of knowledge on matters concerning trade but writes with such positive assurance as to the correctness of his views that it carries conviction to the minds of people who let others do the thinking for them and who are all too ready to forget that there are two sides to a question.

The trade are indebted to a few fair-minded news editors—men who are broad enough to realize the danger of roundly abusing and misrepresenting the efforts of fair-minded business men in their desire to develop the trade of the country on sound, commercial lines.

Banks and moneyed institutions are prospering and the very same men who congratulate the management on a successful and prosperous result of the year's operations, condemn and ridicule the idea of merchants and manufacturers putting their business on a reasonable and profit-paying basis. With such opposition our legislators have evidently been of the opinion that it is unwise, or perhaps to be more correct, it would be unpopular to consider any measure having for its object the betterment of those engaged in the great operations of trade throughout the country. We can hardly expect relief through the influence of the press, and it is no use quarrelling with the newspapers. To do that is to surely get the worst of it. It is generally the case at any rate.

H. C. BECKETT,
Who Delivered an Address to Hamilton Grocers on Existing Trade Conditions in Canada.

My object is to give you one of the principal reasons why the business man's interests are not safe-guarded by our legislators. They get their knowledge of commercial affairs largely from the press and not from the men engaged in trade and commerce. They forget that men devoting their lives to the study of certain branches of trade should know something of the difficulties besetting that trade, and they are not practical enough to realize that we have at present no government machinery to enlighten them.

Have you any reason to believe and feel that the mercantile interests of this country are being properly safe-guarded and investigated?

No System Existing.

What business-like system have we in force now of getting at the truth in matters concerning our commercial needs. None that you know of. Is not the trade and commerce of this country of sufficient importance to warrant intelligent legislation?

Now, we cannot expect members of Parliament to attach importance to matters that to them seem unimportant. Our members of Parliament are not to blame. They are there to represent us, and our needs are supposed to be made known through them, but, as a rule, members of Parliament have no time to study the internal economics of the business interests of this country; it would be unreasonable to expect them to. We should, therefore, suggest to them some simple method of dealing with the matter.

It is true that representations have been made to some of our cabinet ministers, but the members of the House of Commons and Senate have heard very little about it. We cannot expect a minister to advocate the cause of something he cannot see the need of and does not understand, and so no interest is taken in our affairs.

In ten years there has been no legislation advancing mercantile interests, and in view of all the circumstances we can hardly wonder at it.

Merchants and manufacturers have quietly stood by while legislation advancing other interests has been going on from time to time. Our interests have been hampered and neglected because we have made no organized effort to bring about a reform.

The need of united effort is clear because as individuals, we can have but little influence. Organized effort means power, and agitation is the way to redress.

As business men, we are neglecting our interests. We have been too much inclined to let matters drift; the changed conditions of trade have not been fully realized, and it may not yet be clear to some that there is cause for intelligent, keen interest and united action.

A General Organization Needed.

If we have reasons for uniting and those reasons are just, let us do something that may bring results. Let us advocate improvement along practical lines.

Our first duty is to get at the true state of commercial conditions. We should commence by every one of us making it his special business to interest our members in advocating the appointment of a commission of internal trade and commerce—a tribunal absolutely free from party politics—composed of men of exceptional qualifications. It is our only remedy to the discreditable, unfair, and unsatisfactory treatment of the business man.

A scientific study of the trade and commerce conditions of this country is as much a necessity as the recognition of trade unions. Trade is interdependent and if manufacturers and merchants are up against unfair conditions it reacts upon the employe.

W cannot expect our members of Parliament to study trade conditions. The task would be impossible. It must be done by men free from party influence. Their effort would be to so study trade conditions that their knowledge would enable them to recommend and decide upon methods calculated to safe-guard our internal commercial interests.

Members of Parliament would then have a reliable source of information. A permanent commission would be the business man's protection against waste and wrong consequent upon senseless and ruinous competition. Those engaged in trade would receive proper recognition. Such a tribunal would investigate trade conditions—business men would have an opportunity to be heard, and the business interests of this country would be less likely to suffer or be sacrificed for political or private ends.

When members of Parliament have not the opportunity, as a rule, of practical business experience, their judgment in such matters is usually more theoretical than practical. Practical experience in business frequently completely upsets theory.

There are many dishonest practices in business as investigation will prove. Up-to-date methods would result in the establishment of a commercial code that would not only protect honorable business men but would have a beneficial, educational, and good moral influence on the thought and conduct of the younger generation now growing up, and who will soon be taking part in the commercial future of our nation. We should think of this and endeavor to bring the boys up in a good moral, commercial atmosphere. Do not let our commercial internal affairs drift along in the expectation that in some mysterious way our needs will be provided for. Let us be practical and realize that it is only through our own efforts we can hope to receive proper recognition.

Ethics in Business.

You have heard men say it is impossible to conduct business profitably and do it honestly. Why do men say that? Why do they think so? Because they believe it is a hopeless task to raise the standard of ethics in business. I do not believe it is hopeless. I believe in keeping at it in spite of half-hearted assistance and malicious misrepresentation. Have faith in the belief that we will succeed in a just cause, as no fair or reasonable arguments can be advanced why our commercial interests must continue to be treated so lightly and indifferently. United action, co-operation, and a greater interest in trade associations will attract attention.

We take it that good government should protect the rights of its citizens in all branches of trade. If trade conditions are bad and merchants and manufacturers are suffering by reason of dishonest practices, unfair and senseless competition, all classes of the community suffer.

Trade being artificial, the success of the working man, the artizan, the merchant, the manufacturer is interdependent. If our manufacturing and mercantile interests are suffering the result is far-reaching enough to affect other classes of the community.

It must be clear, therefore, that with a proper solution and understanding there should be no antagonism between labor and capital if the interests of all are safe-guarded by a government tribunal free from politics.

No doubt the present law relating to combines became operative because it was thought that manufacturers and merchants would go beyond reasonable bounds and invade the people's rights. The effect of the law, however, has in many cases resulted in great loss of capital on the one hand, and monopoly on the other. No general good has been accomplished by it; on the contrary, much harm has resulted and the people it intended to benefit have suffered in consequence.

Internal Needs Sacrificed.

The Department of Trade and Commerce is useless so far as being of any benefit to the internal commercial needs of our country is concerned. It is apparently a department for gathering statistics of imports and exports, and looking after foreign trade. It knows nothing of internal trade. We are in sore need of government methods along progressive lines, and it would be interesting to know the cause of delay.

The business man comes in contact with trade conditions in a practical way and, therefore, there should be some practical recognized method by which the business man could make known to our legislators the real and actual conditions of trade.

Trade Associations.

We could then look for the adoption of methods that would be of real benefit to the trade of this country. One of the first moves should be the recognition by the Government of trade associations.

These collective thinking machines, easy to get at, would be available to the government in helping to solve the problems which continually arise in the changed conditions of trade, and be a means of keeping in touch with the business conditions of the country. The Government should take immediate steps to get a complete list of all trade associations and the names of their officers. When new Bills are introduced, at the first reading copies should be sent to all the accredited representatives of trade associations in Canada and to the Boards of Trade throughout Canada. Such a plan is not unreasonable or difficult to carry out. At present there is no method or regulation of keeping the trade informed.

While there has been a hesitancy on the part of some people to support any active effort of co-operation, the spirit of it is in the air, and as we get older and study conditions under which we exist, we realize there is a reason for it.

Force of United Action.

The power and importance of co-operation and united action in trade matters has been under-estimated. It is not yet fully realized that it is a work absolutely necessary to promote healthy and honorable trade conditions.

The interests of the mechanic, merchant, and manufacturer, if properly understood, are not antagonistic, but the trouble is there is practically no effort made to study and solve the problems of business that concern us, and people are inclined to hold prejudiced views.

My purpose in this talk is to create discussion. I have not told you anything you do not already know, but I have endeavored to put before you in concise and condensed form the things you do know but are apt to overlook."

The Address Appreciated.

John O. Carpenter moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Beckett for his admirable address and in seconding the motion Jos. Kirkpatrick referred to the highly educative character of it. He thought that the most active committee in any grocers' association should be the Legislative Committee whose duty it would be to present the views of the association to the representatives of parliament. We should unite, he said, and place in parliament the men whom we want but as it is, its a case of "grit" or "tory." Until that spirit is eliminated we can do little.

The president referred to Mr. Beckett's address as the "best" he had ever given the Association, and extended the thanks of the Association to him. In acknowledging them Mr. Beckett referred to the part politics plays in trade matters. "Party politics is the curse of the whole thing nowadays," he remarked. "We can't have things much worse than they are and we have a chance to better them." Some ideas of cabinet ministers were simply ridiculous and he again strongly advocated the formation of the trade commission.

The Co-operative Scheme.

Mr. McIntosh agreed with the idea of the formation of such a commission and in the course of his remarks referred to the Co-operative Bill which recently had passed the House of Commons, but was thrown out in the Senate. Wherever these concerns were introduced it was simply impossible for merchants to do business and if the grocers could have gone to the House of Commons when they were considering the bill he did not believe it would have been allowed to go through.

"There is no reason why a grocers' association in Canada should not be one of the strongest of associations," added Mr. McIntosh.

In speaking of a method of collecting accounts he thought the simplest was through the police court.

Mr. Carpenter also eulogized Mr. Beckett's address. "There is no question," he said, "that we could do much better if we were organized in a larger body."

Reads From the Grocer.

E. Leyland was pleased to think that some definite action would be taken to remedy the conditions existing in the retail trade.

"There is no doubt things are passed in parliament detrimental to retailers," he said, "and I think the retail grocers of Ontario should organize. In case questions arose in parliament affecting the retail grocers, the association should send a committee to give our views on the question. The labor men have unions and I think the grocers should too. There shouldn't be one grocer in the city of Hamilton not a member of the Association, because there are so many things arise which are to our own benefits."

Speaking of the collecting of accounts and the dead-beat problem Mr. Leyland commented on the article which appeared in the Grocer of a few weeks ago on "How Guelph Merchants Collect Bad Debts." He read the article in its entirety and remarked that the sooner the grocers get such a practical scheme, the better it will be for them.

"We've got to get right down to the black-list and you can do it if you will, just like the coal merchants of Hamilton."

Mr. Cann favored more harmony between wholesaler and retailer, and pointed some changes he considered might be brought about.

W. N. Warburton, formerly a railroad man and now a grocer, considered the idea of forming a trade commission somewhat similar to the railway commission was a good one.

Ready-Made Foods.

Secretary M. R. Hill in a strong address, humorous but probably serious, condemned the use in the homes of so many "hand-me-down, ready-made foods" which he maintained were growing in consumption. He attributed their rise to the indifference of wives who "were sent into the world to become helpmates," but instead had "made monkeys out of men." They were becoming "culinary [illegible]erates," he said. He concluded by telling a lemonade story, the lemonade in which was made from a preparation in a bottle and not from the lemon itself and by a woman too. "Either they don't know enough, or they're getting too lazy to squeeze lemons," he jocularly remarked.

Before closing the meeting the President thanked all who had assisted and urged them to put more effort into the work in the future.

"If we observed more closely the articles in The Canadian Grocer," he said "it would be better for us. We should get the ideas of others and one of the things we need more than anything else is—to trust one another."

Debate for Next Meeting.

The Hamilton association certainly intend to work in the future. At the next meeting a debate will be held on the subject, "Is the cash system detrimental to the retail grocer."

J. A. McIntosh will at the same meeting read a paper on "Canned Goods," so that a profitable time is anticipated.

Lorne E. Lyons has opened a new grocery store at Canning, N.S. He also intends carrying a line of meats.

EASTER AND THOUGHTS OF EGGS

Season Arrives for the Display of Easter Eggs in Grocers' Windows—The Lily Lends an Additional Attraction—Quantity Catches the Eye.

Now is the time when the minds of grocers turn to thoughts of the Easter trade and when seasonable window dressing becomes a very live topic between proprietor and clerk.

For ages the arrival of Good Friday and the Easter time has always been associated with eggs and every grocer who has been in the trade for a year must know that his stock of eggs will be in big demand in a couple of week's time.

Old eggs have been pretty well gotten rid of and by the coming of Easter week the good fresh variety should command attention. Everybody seems to want eggs then, and who has not seen the household, the members of which vie with one another to see who can consume the greater number? At Easter, too, most people want good fresh eggs, and a good display showing these is certainly a splendid advertisement.

An Easter Egg Window Dressed by W. H. Fielding, Guelph, Ont.

Varieties of Displays.

The dressing of a window with eggs is a work that is not difficult for the grocer to perform. A simple display attracting attention is the best result desired. The illustration on this page shows one idea that can be put into practice with little expense.

Associated with Easter, there is the Easter lily as well as the good and the window dresser who made the display has combined the two with effect. There are few human beings who do not admire flowers and the Easter lily is a particularly attractive one. The eggs as shown in the picture are not restricted so far as quantity is concerned. This was done with the idea that quantity is a big issue in so many households on an Easter Sunday. They are usually placed on the table morning, noon and night. The flower-pot imbedded in the eggs which are heaped up around it give the desired effect.

Fresh Eggs for the Window.

Care should be taken by the window dresser to see that none but fresh eggs are used in the display. If there is any sign to show that they are tainted, the prospective buyer will pass by. They must have a good appearance before they will sell.

There are, of course, scores of other methods by which Easter windows may be dressed and the ingenuity of the dresser has a wide range in which to operate.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

The firm of Laporte, Martin & Co., Ltd., Montreal, are out with cut rate prices on currants, shelled walnuts and dates of the 1907 crop, in perfect condition, which should draw the immediate attention of all shrewd buyers. Special bargains are also offered in "Keystone" canned white salmon, "Ozo" pickles and catsup. The canned fruits and vegetables of the celebrated "Soleil" Brand of the 1908 crop are in full supply and should be ordered now for immediate or future delivery. Import orders are booked now for the 1909 crop. Special values are also offered in all varieties of teas, especially those of the "Princess Louise" and "Victoria" brands.—advt.

AN ONTARIO ORGANIZATION.

Hamilton grocers are keen on the organization of an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association. At their regular meeting on Thursday night of last week, a report of which appears elsewhere in this issue, an address was given by H. C. Beckett, pointing out what the merchants of Canada have lost by not being united. He declared that legislation had been frequently introduced and sometimes became law harmful to legitimate business, and attributed the cause to the fact that business heads were lacking in parliament, and that there was no co-operation among the merchants and manufacturers.

"The need of united effort is clear," he said, "because as individuals we can have but little influence. Organized effort means power, and agitation is the way to redress. As business men we are neglecting our interests. We have been too much inclined to let matters drift; the changed conditions of trade have not been fully realized, and it may not yet be clear to some that there is cause for intelligent, keen interest and united action."

Mr. Beckett in those statements illustrates the importance of grocers getting together, not to the disadvantage of the consumer at all, but that they might obtain the benefits from legislation that rightfully belong to them. In addition to that, as President John Forth remarked, a provincial unity of the trade means the exchange of ideas among the different grocers which should be of untold benefit. The Hamilton members of the trade realize the advantages they have gained from their city organization and recognize what could be obtained if the representatives of the trade in Ontario were joined together in one big association.

In the course of his remarks, Joseph Kirkpatrick referred to the Co-operative Bill, which passed the House of Commons, but which was thrown out by the Senate. He declared that if the grocers had been united and represented the matter fairly to the House, it would never have passed it. E. Leyland also advised the formation of an Ontario Association in order that the views of the trade might be impressed upon Parliament in case legislation affecting them came up for discussion.

So far as can be learned the various grocers' associations in the province who have tasted of the benefits derived from their individual organizations, are desirous of seeing the members of the trade united under a common head for the common good of all.

INJUSTICE TO CANADA.

It is a peculiar fact that the Meat Inspection Act in Canada permits of meats being prepared for the Canadian consumer without undergoing inspection, whereas all meat that is exported must pass the critical eyes of the inspectors. The act was passed with a view to raising the standard of the Canadian product in the competition markets of the world, but it has not provided for the Canadian people themselves. It means that meat regardless of its quality can be left at home for consumption, while the choicest is sent out of the country.

This does not seem fair to the Canadian consumer, who has to take what is left. The fault must lie with the men who made the law necessitating that inspectors be appointed to see to the quality of the meat going out of the country and not looking after that which is consumed here.

CONFECTIONERY NECESSARY.

Correspondence from various representatives of The Grocer continue to show that the members of the trade are very much interested in the sale of confectionery. Each week grocers are adding to their store equipment silent salesmen for the display of fancy confectionery and the trade in this department is represented as profitable when it is carefully looked after and besides, the addition of a handsome show case lends an additional attractive appearance to any store interior.

Many of the high-class grocery stores are dealing in the best of confectionery and they claim this department has become a part of their business which they could not very well give up.

BOOST THE BOARD OF TRADE.

The importance of a Board of Trade in any town of city cannot be too highly spoken of and it should be the duty of every grocer to take an interest in its welfare and assist it in every possible way. It is a regrettable fact that merchants in many cases do not appear to realize the importance and necessity of their being identified with the Board of Trade. It is certainly displeasing to a merchant to learn that citizens of his own town are doing their trading at a distance, and that instead of buying from him or a home merchant in some other line, they are spending their money elsewhere. This being true, should not every merchant who looks to his own town for support, take off his coat, figuratively speaking, and put his shoulder to the wheel of progress?

There is an old saying, don't knock; boost. The merchant who does not take an active part in work calculated to advance the affairs of his own town is indirectly neglecting his own business for the greater advancement made by his town, the greater will be his volume of business. There are many ways in which grocers and other merchants in general can assist in this work. They should always talk up the town in which they live and identify themselves with all movements that are deserving of their support, for it is a well-known fact that the people like to go to the busiest and most-talked-of places and an increase in population spells more business for the merchant.

THE PLAGUE OF TRAVELERS.

In a recent issue of The Grocer editorial comment was made on the subject of the treatment meted out to travelers by some buyers for wholesale houses. That this petty spirit of inconsideration of others is not confined to Canada is shown by the following paragraph published in a late number of an English trade magazine.:

"A business friend in a London suburb complains to me," says the writer, "of the serious amount of time he has to spend each day in seeing travelers. I sympathize with him, and with many others in like case. The grievance is admitted. Travelers are a necessary evil, and therefore the only thing to do is to arrange a limited number of days and hours on which to see them. In some large establishments travelers are only allowed to interview buyers on two hours of two days in the week.

This is, to my thinking, too drastic a rule for general adoption, but it ought not to be difficult to arrange for a certain part of each day from Monday to Friday to be set apart for the purpose. If, furthermore, some merchants allotted the morning and others the afternoon for calls the time and convenience of the sellers, as well as the buyers, might be met. The main thing, however, is to have an appointed time and stick to it. By management and the careful handling of callers quite a number can usually be seen in an hour, but if both buyer and seller want to talk interminably the entire day will be too short for the purpose."

The idea suggested of having a certain part of each day set apart for seeing travelers is a good one, and was advocated in The Grocer in its recent editorial. Saturday, of course, being a short day, is devoted entirely to business by the buyers. All travelers will respect and do at present respect that rule.

Such a system would not be new in Canada. One of the large wholesale grocery firms in Montreal has a similar plan which works splendidly and is fair to all. The firm recognizes, of course, the necessity of doing business with the broker and manufacturing agent, and a time is set apart—between ten and twelve o'clock each day—for these men to call. The first come is first served and none can object to this rule They know exactly when to find the man they desire to see, and they always see him and are satisfied. But the idea of having a broker or manufacturer's agent delayed for an hour or more by the wholesaler cannot at all be justified.

WINTER ON THE WANE.

From the prospects at present the backbone of winter appears to be broken. We may yet, however, experience one or two frosty days, which may have a damaging effect on the fruit trees in some quarters, but up to the present reports indicate that they have not been very seriously affected.

Correspondence from Calgary in this issue states that the farmers in southern Alberta were contemplating beginning the spring operations next week, which shows that spring in that district is at hand.

In another column it is stated that the fruit trees in western Ontario have gone through the winter in good condition and with little damage, so that unless very unfavorable weather intervenes, the trees will not be damaged.

Speaking of the strawberry outlook in Prince Edward and neighboring counties, S. Edgar Master, of the Farmers' Canning Co., Bloomfield, Ont., was inclined to believe that the absence of snow for a considerable period during the winter would be harmful. He only spoke for the section in which he lived and not for the Niagara peninsula, which was the great strawberry-producing district in Ontario.

KNOW YOUR GOODS.

The attention of the retail trade is especially directed to the encyclopaedia the Grocer is running from week to week. The information on the articles referred to in this department is carefully selected and can be relied upon. Every grocer should make it a point to know everything there is to know about the goods he sells and there is no better way to do this than through the encyclopaedia of the Canadian Grocer.

Our advice to retailers is to cut these articles out each week and paste them in a specially prepared scrap-book. At the end of one year, a perfect encyclopaedia covering fifty-two varieties of goods sold by grocers will be in type. This will certainly be a valuable asset of any grocer and it doesn't cost him five cents.

PROMPT DELIVERIES.

Perhaps there is nothing in the grocery business which insures success so quickly as prompt deliveries. Numberless times a woman wants something which she has forgotten to order, in the regular way and invariably she will call up the grocer, whom she knows will be prompt in his delivery. In the smaller towns, very frequently, the man who is out hustling for orders is given one on the provision that he delivers it to the customer in time for her to prepare the midday or evening meal. If he fails to do this, he probably gets no further orders, whereas if he accomplishes the task his business in this quarter will increase. When an order-taker is making his rounds, he can judge the time necessary after he telephones in his orders to the store, then, of course, it rests with the store to get the goods put up and out on time.

Unless some special arrangement is made, these spasmodic rushes are liable to lead to disastrous confusion, but by assigning certain clerks to attend to the hurry-up calls, the matter can be accomplished quite easily. There are to-day thousands of women ordering groceries from certain stores for the sole reason that they get their goods on time. Nothing ruffles the calm of a woman so much as having to postpone her meals, owing to delay in arrival of her goods. She does not mind little discrepancies in quality nearly as much because it does not to such an extent disrupt the usual routine of her work, as does the complete absence of her goods.

All practical grocers who have taken orders and then delivered those orders themselves, know this fact. The things which a woman can say regarding the delay is sufficient to impress the importance of prompt delivery upon the memory in a lasting way. In some cases it pays to keep a boy specially to run with small orders that are wanted in a hurry. In any case to establish a reputation for prompt deliveries requires a good store organization and the proper assignment of duties, so at rush times confusion will not prevail.

MAIL ORDER CANVASSERS.

A Chicago catalogue house has organized a school of instruction for canvassers, and it is said, twelve hundred young men and ladies are to be divided up into small parties and sent into different sections. Their mission will be to visit every farmer, explain how to order by mail, and try and secure an order which it is expected will pay the expenses of this new venture.

Most likely these people will first visit the retail stores and make some purchases, procuring the merchants' sales-slip to clinch the argument they will use in comparing his goods with those sold by the catalog house. They will secure a list of future wants and try to fill them by sending special letters and circulars.

This is a new move by the enemy which retailers must prepare for and guard against. Are you ready to meet it? Have you any plan to suggest? Watch your territory. If these trained, smooth-tongued solicitors make a success in the Western States they can be looked for in Canada before long.

The only hope for the retailer is in trade organization. By acting unitedly the local spirit of country publishers and property owners can be appealed to, but acting as individual units the modern Juggernaut will soon crush out opposition.

BUSINESS MAXIMS.

The Toronto Co-operative Society Fails

Doors Locked in Both Their Stores—Where is the General Manager?—Shareholders Left With the Business on Their Hands—The Money Invested Cannot be Accounted for—Many Widows Among the Stockholders—Loose Methods Seem to Have Been Used.

Time brings forth many changes and among the most recent of special interest to the retail trade is the failure of the Toronto Co-Operative Equitable Society, which has recently been announced.

Readers of The Grocer are by this time familiar at least with a similar concern, but the Toronto which is dealt with especially on this page, may be new to many. It has, however, been operated along similar lines as the Dominion Co-Operative Association, although they are not in anyway connected, and is just as detrimental to the retail grocery trade in the vicinity in which its stores are located.

From information that can be gathered from shareholders about this Equitable Society, it is shown that its stores were closed on Saturday night Feb. 27. The stockholders blame the promoters of the affair and are probably the "sorest bunch" of people in Toronto city. The company, they say, has failed, the promoters or some of them, they declare, have their money and nothing is left them but the stores themselves and a small amount of goods. These shareholders are principally of English and Scotch descent, and who have recently come to Canada. They haven't very much money to spare and the loss of from twenty-five to seventy-five dollars means a great deal to them.

Question Without Answer.

One of the burning questions among these people is, Where is Samuel Grimason. He, they state, was the general manager of the concern and the man who seemed to be more directly interested in it than any other—at one time. But, where is he now? To this question none of these poor shareholders who were interviewed could give a positive answer. Samuel Grimason was their idol a twelve-month ago, about the time the organization of the Toronto Co-Operative Equitable Society was under contemplation, but to-day, where is he, and where has the money of the shareholders gone?

History of the Society.

The success of the Society is by no means written down in the pages of any history. Its career has been short-lived. About nine or ten months ago the store at the corner of Dovercourt Road and Main St. was established. To-day, with its doors locked and window blinds down, it presents a desolate picture indeed. The other store, at 74 Dundas St., West Toronto, was established about five months ago. Later it was gutted by fire —and insurance received—and to-day it, too, presents a desolate appearance.

The company is said to have had some six hundred shareholders. The price of each share was placed at first at two dollars with the understanding that it would advance later and no person was to be allowed to hold more than twenty-five shares. Some of the stock has not been paid up and those who have taken it are now in a quandary as to whether they will have to hand over the balance or not.

Loose Methods Employed.

W. R. Cowan, clerk in Klees meat market, Yonge St., knows considerable about the concern. He states that for two weeks he was employed in the Dovercourt and Main store, but that he was very glad to "wash his hands clear" of the whole thing at the end of the fortnight.

"They wanted me to go up and run their store for them," he told The Grocer, "and I consented on the grounds that they would meet their accounts and that I should do the buying. They fulfilled their promises in neither case. They wouldn't allow me to look at their books and they wanted me to put $200 into the company. I told them I was too old for that game."

Sunday Meeting Held.

Continuing, Mr. Cowan said: "I tried to make it appear that I would be glad to get out and on a Sunday they held a special meeting. I got my walking ticket on Monday and left—the notice was signed by Chas. Haggart, the then president, who afterwards would not admit to me that he sent it when I had his own signature to it."

Mr. Cowan produced the notice which was signed by Chas. Haggart and which bore the laconic message: "From date your services are no longer required. Please note."

"According to what I saw," said Mr. Cowan, "the liabilities were quite a bit over the assets. It seems to me they —the promoters—divided the money among themselves. They used to take in a lot of money, too, and the business was strictly cash."

General Meeting Called.

The business of the Society was apparently drifting into a bad state and about three or more weeks ago, a general meeting was called at the Occident Masonic Hall. The stockholders, or at least the majority of them who were not conversant with the existing conditions, were there and, it is said, passively agreed at the suggestion of some of the officials to take over the business of the Society. They were offered and accepted the entire control of the business so that now the former promoters and officers have nothing to do with it.

Another meeting was held on Thursday night, March 4, but it was attended by shareholders only. The others were absent.

Among the stockholders are a number of widows residing in the districts where the stores are located and as can be expected, they are highly indignant over the turn affairs have taken.

Lucky Picton Farmers.

It begins to look as if the Picton farmers, who at one time appeared so anxious to organize a similar concern in their town, will be now extremely glad they have their hard-earned cash in the banks and not in a Picton Co-Operative store "where they buy their goods cheaper and are sure of obtaining six per cent. on their money." It does not seem probable that these stores are going to meet with brilliant futures in Canada according to their past history, as it is not likely people will trust their money in concerns that only live a year and hold such reputations as the high-sounding Toronto Co-operative Equitable Society has been represented to possess.

J. P. Langley, McKinnon Building, Toronto, is the assignee and tenders are now being called for the stock, furniture, wagons, etc., of both the stores. At the Dovercourt and Main store the total amounts to $1,444.68, and at the other $476.51. The society is now known as the "Estate of Toronto Co-operative Equitable Society, Limited." T. Parkes was the last president of the concern.

A SUDDEN CHANGE.

Did you ever notice, as day by day,
You meet your grocer upon the way,
How he changes tone and alters his looks
To fit your account upon his books?
If the bills have run but a little while,
He meets your nod with a smuggy smile,
But if for days no cash you send,
His neck is stiff—it will not bend.
This morning my grocer sang out
Hello"
And spoke my name! 'Twas such a blow
I staggered a bit, but soon understood
Why he was in such a cordial mood
The day before, by force of will
I had managed to pay my grocer's bill.

The Business Man and Law Reform Bill

How the Merchants of Ontario Will Benefit by the Provisions of the New Measure—The Wider Jurisdiction of County Courts as Proposed and as it is To-day—Curtailment of the Number of Appeals—The Contract System Between Client and Lawyer as to Costs Sanctioned—Other Features of the Bill.

As long as law governs all men are subject to it. They cannot get away from its provisions much as they would like to, owing to its costly character, vexatious proceedings, tedious delays, irritating appeals and uncertain results. The trouble hitherto has been that many a business man has chafed under a palpable injustice or silently suffered gross wrong because he did not care to rush into litigation. In the first place, he had no definite idea where an action once begun, would terminate, and in the second place, the expense involved is of such an uncertain nature that the costs of the court, not to speak of solicitor's fees, have financially crippled many an otherwise prosperous and peaceful citizen, who has sought to keep out, of, but has been drawn into, the legal maelstrom.

Reforms are frequently agitated for years before they are realized, but, after public attention and interest have been aroused and various associations have taken up the matter, a law relief measure has at last been introduced in the Ontario Legislature by Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General. The bill has not been printed as yet and will not be specifically discussed and its various details considered in the House until it comes up for its second reading.

It is, however, only natural that any reform of the law which promises to curtail appeals and legalize legal business with a consequent lessening of lawyers' costs, should receive criticism from at least a portion of the legal fraternity. The measure introduced by Mr. Foy, on the other hand, ought to be that much more valuable from the ordinary litigants' standpoint. So far as at present understood, it should produce a simplification of the law that is highly desirable.

Four Main Features.

Stripped of their legal phraseology the main features of the bill are :

The abolition of appeals to the present divisional court.

Limitation of appeals to Privy Council.

Increased jurisdiction for county and district courts.

Contracts between solicitors and clients made possible.

Two branches of supreme court of judicature established to embrace divisional courts.

The question naturally arises what benefit or advantage will the proposed alterations be to business men.

Mr. Foy, the accredited framer of the document, was seen by a representative of The Grocer. The Attorney-General said that he had been an exceptionally busy man with the measure and had been besieged by so many interests, legal and otherwise, that he was not able to partake of his meals without interruption. He added that he had not a word to say in defence or criticism of the bill and would offer nothing in the line of comment until it came up for its second reading. Mr. Foy firmly, but politely, declined to state whether or not it would afford relief to merchants who may find it necessary to go into the law courts.

No Division Court Changes.

There is no change made in the Division Court, and its powers remain the same. These are : (a) All personal actions where the amount claimed does not exceed $60. (b) In any personal action if all the parties consent thereto in writing and the amount claimed does not exceed $100. (c) All claims and demands of debt account or breach of contract or covenant or money demand, whether payable in money or otherwise, where the amount or balance claimed does not exceed $100. (d) All claims for the recovery of a debt or money demand the amount or balance of which does not exceed $200, where the amount or original amount of the claim is ascertained by the signature of the defendant (or of the person whom as executor or administrator the defendant represents). The accrued interest upon any such claim is also included.

The Retail Hardware Dealers' Association is seeking an amendment to the present act, whereby accounts under $25 may be collected by garnishment and accounts under $10 may be collectable before a magistrate. Mr. Foy has promised to give the request careful consideration.

Section 180, Chap. 60, R.S.O., 1897, now says : "No debt due or accruing to a mechanic, workman, laborer, servant, clerk, or employe, for, or in respect of, his wages or salary, shall be liable to seizure or attachment under this act or any other act relating to the attachment or garnishment of debts, unless the debt exceeds the sum of $25, and then only to the extent of the excess."

Section 181 reads : "Nothing in the next preceding section contained shall apply to any case where the debt has been contracted for board or lodging, and in the opinion of the judge, the exemption of $25 is not necessary for the support and maintenance of the debtor's family, or where the debtor is an unmarried person having no family depending on him for support, and the debt was contracted on or after the 23rd day of March, 1889."

County Court Powers.

The jurisdiction of the county courts has been greatly extended and under the terms of the new bill county and district judges will have a great deal to do. Their positions will be much more responsible and their duties more onerous. This is a change, which, in the opinion of many, will benefit the business man and, while the advances are not as great as some may have desired, still a half a loaf is better than no bread.

The changes in brief are :

In all causes and actions relating to debt, covenant and contract, to $600, where the amount is liquidated or ascertained as being due, by the act of the parties or by the signature of the defendant. The amendment raises the amount to $800.

Personal actions, except actions for criminal conversion, libel or slander, up to $200. This sum has been raised to $500.

Trespass or injury to land where the value of the land is not over $200. The amendment makes the sum read $500.

Actions of replevin or for the recovery of property, real or personal, where the value of the goods or effects distrained, taken or retained does not exceed $200. The amendment raises this figure to $500.

In sale or foreclosure proceedings up to $200 ; now changed to $500.

Partnership actions where the capital involved does not exceed $1,000. This is raised to $2,000.

Legacies and interest up to $200, where the value of the estate does not exceed $1,000. These figures are altered to $500 and $2,000, respectively.

All other actions for equitable relief where the sum does not exceed $200. This is made to read $500.

Creditors' claims not over $400 will henceforth rank as $500 in amount.

Lessening Number of Appeals.

The number of appeals is also discouraged and the intention and spirit of the act is evidently to obviate a too often ruinous proceeding to the loser. The sum is elevated from $4,000 to $10,000 on which appeal may be made in the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, except where constitutional or other highly important points are at issue.

In plain language the amendment on this phase of the matter says :

"Appeal by right to the Privy Council is abolished, and leave to appeal granted by his Majesty is also abolished except where some constitutional matter is concerned, where the matter in controversy exceeds $10,000 in value exclusive of costs, where the questions involved affect rights or interests of such magnitude or importance as to warrant an appeal and the Divisional Court so certifies, and where the liberty of the subject is involved. In other words, the amount upon which appeal can be taken is increased from $4,000 to $10,000.

Court of Two Branches.

The divisions and Divisional courts of the present High Court of the province are also abolished and in their place are established two branches or divisions of the Supreme Court, to be known respectively as the Appellate and Supreme division of the High Court. The Court of Appeal hereafter will be known as the Appellate division, and the bill states that this division is not to be known as a new court, but only as a division of the Court of Appeal. The High Court is to be known as the High Court division of the Supreme Court, and shall not be regarded as a new court.

All jurisdiction power and authority now vested in the Court of Appeal or Divisional Court shall be vested in the Appellate division and there shall be as many divisions of this as shall be necessary to dispose of business.

Neither the Chief Justice nor any of the present judges of the Court of Appeal shall without his consent be arraigned to any duty except sitting on appeals.

Appeals to the Appellate Court may be heard by four judges, except as to controverted election appeals under the criminal code.

A high criminal court will sit in Toronto monthly except during vacation giving ten sittings a year instead of four, thus facilitating the clearing away of criminal business.

Contracts With Lawyers.

Many a business man has been deterred from prosecuting a just claim on entering an action in defence of his rights as, with the way opened for so many appeals and the unknown costs of the court, especially of lawyers—he had no idea of what the outlay would be. The probable expense has held him in check. Under the new measure it is permissible for a client to enter into a contract with a lawyer whereby a case will be carried on for a fixed sum so that the former will enter litigation with his eyes open and know at the outset what a case will cost. Some lawyers strenuously object to this provision and say that, although the practice is in operation in certain states in the Union that it cheapens the profession. Mr. Foy's amendment, however, declares that no solicitor may purchase an interest in his client's action. This is simply the re-enactment of the present law to prohibit the taking up by solicitors of cases on speculation.

The provision in the new act sets forth that, subject to sections 30-46 of the Act a solicitor may make an agreement in writing with his client stating the sum the latter is to pay him for his services in lump sum, salary, or otherwise. Where, however, the solicitor serves his client in any but the Division Court the sum he shall receive for his services shall first be allowed by the taxing officer, should the taxing officer consider the amount unfair he shall have authority to submit it to a judge who may reduce it as he thinks proper and tax the costs in the usual way.

The solicitor is limited to the amount mentioned in the agreement, and this agreement does not free him from liability for negligence or improper conduct during litigation.

No formal action shall be brought on such an agreement, but summary application may be made to a judge who, if he thinks it fair, shall allow it, if not may declare it void.

This measure will it is said, aid litigation as by reason of it the lawyer and client will know exactly where they are at. The contract system between the client and lawyer resolves itself into a straight business proposition. A disputant, when he begins an action does not know whether it is going to cost him $10 or $500, but if the measure carries, he will to his solicitor be able to say: "Here, Smith, how much will you take and see this matter through?" Smith will name his figure and if satisfactory there is an end to it, so far as lawyer's fees are concerned, and a better understanding should prevail.

Speaking from the standpoint of a business man it would appear that simplicity and decentralization are aimed at in the fairly broad measure of law reform. Both are valuable points to the litigants, and they have a strong claim to some consideration. While not as advanced a measure as originally outlined, Attorney-General Foy is evidently proceeding on right lines.

In speaking of law reform it has been asked why it should not be the aim of all interested to work out a code of laws, and state them so explicitly, that all would know them and understand them, leaving to the courts only the task of sifting evidence as to facts? Facts will always be in dispute where self-interests clash, but why should there be eternal disputes as to laws and their meanings? Echo alone answers why?

NOTES FROM ST. CATHARINES.

March 10.—W. A. Sherwood & Son installed a silent salesman last week. It will be used almost exclusively for confectionery, and will no doubt be the means of improving sales and profits on this line.

It is admitted by those who know that twelve and one-half per cent. is about the lowest percentage of cost that a retail merchant can do business on successfully, and yet we find in this city some grocers selling some lines of fancy biscuits at a gross profit of ten per cent. Even at this there is no allowance for shrinkage or overweight.

Several changes have taken place in Niagara Falls. Mr. Marsh, of Marsh Bros., has purchased the stock and goodwill of Bradt & Co., Erie Avenue. The new proprietor will readjust the stocks and improve the store service. A. McMullen has purchased the stock and good-will of W. E. Misener, grocer, Morrison Street. W. E. Misener has opened up a new store at Niagara Falls South under the firm name of the Cataract Grocery & Meat Co.

BERRIES IN COLD STORAGE.

Red raspberries were a novelty offered for sale in Chicago the other day. A fruit dealer last August put three crates of the berries in cold storage and had them frozen solid. Lately they were thawed out and offered for sale at 25 cents a quart. It is said that, though the red raspberries could be kept fresh in a frozen state for three years the black raspberry, treated in the same way last August, has come out of the ordeal entirely lifeless and tasting like cork.

PERSONAL NOTES.

A. F. Choate, general merchant, Warsaw, Ont., was in Toronto during the week on a business trip.

Thomas Dunne, manager for Whittall & Co., Ceylon, in New York city, was in Toronto this week on one of his periodical visits.

W. S. B. Armstrong, sales manager Red Rose Tea, Toronto, is missing from his accustomed post this week, being confined to the house with the "grippe."

L. W. Smith, formerly with Malta-Vita Pure Food Co., has joined the traveling staff of Hearts of Wheat Co. Ltd. Mr. Smith commences his trip in the city this week.

Harold B. Cox of J. & G. Cox, gelatine manufacturers, was the defeated Unionist candidate in the Edinburgh election the other day, though he reduced the Liberal majority enormously. He is a strong advocate of closer trade relations and the giving of preference to Canadian products.

TRADE NOTES.

The Shredded Wheat Biscuit Co. have now nicely established themselves in their new offices at 49 Wellington St. They were moved from 32 Church St.

E. K. Scoley, grocer, Jarvis Street, Toronto, has formed his business into a limited liability Company, under the title of E. K. Scoley & Co., Ltd.

The Natural Food Co., Niagara Falls, N.Y., intend placing a new breakfast food on the market in a month or so, known as "Choconel." It is made from wheat and the heart of the cocoa bean.

Oliver Peake has bought the Dominion Co-Operative Associations branch grocery and provision store at 1039 Gerrard Street, east, Toronto. Frank Harding, late of Snell's grocery, East Toronto, is in charge.

It takes more than a big store full of goods to keep the people thinking about you. The people think about the things they are constantly told to think about.

Every time you make a sale and forget to charge the goods you lose the cost of the goods and you impress the customer with the idea that after all there is some advantage in not paying cash.

Now in the Hands of the Receivers

Dominion Co-operative Association Has Failed—Smoothness Does Not Mark Its Path—Two Toronto Branches Given Up—Secretary Declines to Say Much About the Failure—History of the Association.

Just at the time of going to press The Grocer received definite information that the Dominion Co-operative Association has failed and that it is now in the hands of a receiver. It made an assignment to E. R. C. Clarkson on Wednesday afternoon. The affairs of the company will be wound up at once. The officers of the company say that not more than $7,000 stock has been sold. The actual liabilities are not known, but stocktaking is now being carried on at the stores and a statement will soon be ready.

During the early part of the present week persistent rumors were afloat to the effect that the Dominion Co-operative Association, Toronto, was going out of business.

To The Grocer, H. Macdonald, secretary of the association, gave a contradiction to this rumor.

"It is," he said, "a difficult proposition to establish a co-operative society in Canada, and at present all co-operative societies here are doing pioneer work. In England, where these associations exist and flourish the building up process has been comparatively easy, because wherever a branch is located there is confidence placed in the organizers by reason of the fact that they are life-long residents and well-known to the people. In Canada, however, this does not hold. Here, where are communities of people from all parts of Britain, not to speak of other parts of Europe, not known to one another, there is rather distrust than confidence. The Association has been trying to gain hold with the newcomers because they have seen and understand its workings."

The Dominion Co-operative Association was incorporated and organized last year under the provisions of the Ontario Companies' Act, "for the purpose," according to the prospectus, "of establishing a main office, supply depot and storehouse, stocked with general merchandise of every kind, to be purchased in the leading Canadian, British and other markets, suitable to the wants of all classes of citizens." The association was to have Toronto as a base and operate branches in the leading centres of the Dominion. The capital was fixed at $1,000,000, divided into shares of $5 each.

The first three stores were opened in Toronto; branch No. 1 at 964 Bloor Street West, last September; branch No. 2 at 1039 Gerrard Street, last December, and branch No. 3 at Yorkville Avenue and Yonge Street, about the middle of January. A movement to establish a branch in Picton a short time ago failed, as was reported in The Grocer at that time.

At present but one store is being operated, branch No. 1, on Bloor Street West. The store on Gerrard Street East was sold some few days ago to Oliver Peake, a shareholder of the association, and the grocery stock at the Yonge Street store was taken away to branch No. 1 this week.

Lack of capital, incompetent help and expensive management are assigned as the causes for the retrenchment. When the first store was opened a large stock of meats was put in, and this is said to have deteriorated, causing some loss to the association. At branch No. 3 the Co-operatives took over C. J. Frogley's cake stand and bakery, and for a time made bread, cakes and pastry. About three weeks ago a stock of canned goods, teas and general grocery lines were added, but the stumbling block seemed to be the baking of bread and placing it on the market in competition with other makes. To establish a custom quite a few loaves of bread are said to have been given away, and to make up for this loss there was no immediate compensation.

For some little time past there appears to have been a number of complaints made by shareholders regarding the management of the association, and the meetings of late are believed to have been not at all harmonious. A change in the directorate was made in February, but evidently the course of sailing has not been smooth.

It is understood a meeting of directors will be held on Saturday evening next at which plans for submission to a general meeting of shareholders on March 19, will be proposed.

One proposition to be submitted is believed to be a plan of reorganization.

A number of grocers in the immediate vicinity of the three Toronto stores were interviewed by The Grocer, and with the exception of those near the Gerrard Street branch, the competition was not at all felt. At the Bloor Street branch the patrons of the Co-operative store lived too far away to affect sales in the grocery stores nearby. There was thus the expense of delivery in almost every case to be reckoned with by the Co-operatives, and this expense cut down profits. Near the Yonge Street branch are some of the highest class grocery stores in Toronto, and the proprietors but smiled when asked the question of competition by the Co-operative store. The Yonge Street branch sold groceries for the past three weeks only, and not one of the grocers nearby missed a single visit from a single customer.

In the east end the Co-operative store was located in the midst of a community of Old Country people who took stock in the association and who became buyers at the store. This affected somewhat the business done at the other grocery stores in the neighborhood, though not seriously. There is one compensating advantage, however, now that the association has withdrawn competition, and that is that the Co-operatives have taught purchasers to buy for cash and the grocers roundabout will not take their one-time customers back except on a cash-paying basis.

LEAVES FOR WINNIPEG.

Presentations to Jas. E. Knox, of McCann-Knox Milling Co. and to Mrs. Knox.

A delightful evening was spent in the Albany Club rooms, Toronto, on Monday night, when Jas. E. Knox, president of the McCann-Knox Milling Co., was the guest of honor and the recipient of some handsome presents. Mr. Knox has been appointed representative of the Dominion Textile Co. and of the Montreal Cotton Mills, and has been transferred to Winnipeg, to which city he went on Wednesday.

The McCann Milling Co. presented him with a black traveling bag and his wife with a leather writing pad. Mr. Knox was also honored by the Albany Club, who gave him a set of cut glass decanters and Mrs. Knox a silver tea service.

Among those present were: Wm. R. Travers, general manager Farmers' Bank; Jno. Sanderson, of the Dominion Textile Co., Montreal; Geo. Cowan, M.P., Vancouver; A. E. Donovan, M. P.P., Brockville: Jno. Cox, Toronto; D. M. Dafoe, Toronto; J. H. Eddis, of the Imperial Bank; Alex Cavanagh, grain merchant and vice-president of the McCann-Knox Milling Co; Wm. McCann, the managing director, and W. G. Milne, secretary-treasurer of the company.

Mr. Knox has been president of the McCann-Knox Milling Co. since it began business.

It's a poor policy to try to get people to patronize you just because you need the money. They may know some fellow who needs the money more than you do.

Too Many Grocery Stores in Vancouver for the Population — Japanese Like British Columbia Apples—Mild Weather at Calgary a Stimulus to Trade.

VANCOUVER.

March 9.—The dropping out of first one grocery store and then another in the residential districts is bringing a realization of the fact that far too many are being started up. It is stated that Vancouver with a far less population than Seattle has as many grocery stores. Certain it is that almost on every corner in districts within walking distance of the downtown business portion are grocery stores, large and small. In the West End of Vancouver are 15 or 20 stores, perhaps more, in an area seven blocks west from Granville Street and ten blocks north and south. One instantly wonders how all can make out. It is the same in other parts of the city, where many residences have been erected within the past couple of years, and to-day several are quitting after losing some money.

Consignments of sugar from Scotland continue to arrive regularly. These are placed on the market at $5.15.

The wholesale grocers have entered into an agreement to close their respective places of business at 1 o'clock on Saturday, a start having been made last Saturday. As all are included in this agreement, it is not probable that there will be any odd ones left open causing disagreement.

H. T. Lockyer, as president of the Wholesale Merchants' Association forwarded $335.95 as a contribution toward the funds of the Children's Aid Society of this city.

A government bill has been brought down in the House to amend the Farmers' Institute and Co-operation Act. It is intended to give to farmers' co-operative societies the power of business companies and joint stock companies under the Companies Act, only making the provision that the business done must be of a purely co-operative nature. There are the usual powers for increasing capital, issue of stock and paying of dividends. In introducing the bill, Hon. Mr. Tatlow, Minister of Agriculture, said there was only one clause that was likely to prove contentious. This provides that not only shall the liability in future be limited, but also in the past, the reason being that these institutions were not like a corporation, but really limited companies.

R. Crawford, who for a year and a half has been in the grocery department of Hunter Bros., Rossland, B.C., has come to the coast.

The services of Harry Beach have been secured by the Kootenay Jam Company of Nelson, as foreman. He was brought up in the business, having had many years practical experience in the Beach preserving and canning plant at Evesham, Worcester, England. He is a brother of Alfred Beach, head of Beach & Sons, Limited.

Reports from H. Duncan, of this city, who was sent with an experimental shipment of 40 boxes of apples to Japan are that the fruit has been received with such favor that there promises to be a large demand for the product of this province on the other side of the Pacific. Mr. Duncan, who is a fruit commission merchant, was sent out from here by the Victoria Fruit Growers' Association, and the apples he took with him were eagerly taken by the merchants both in China and Japan. It is a question of British Columbia being able to supply the demand, for last fall, there was hardly enough fruit on the Coast to fill the orders from the district east of the mountains. All the local apples are practically off the market here now, although it is only the first of March, and what are for sale are nearly all from the State of Washington.

CALGARY.

March 9.—Since the "Government Railway Policy" has been announced by Premier Rutherford, a feeling of increased confidence has been manifest, and preparations are being made for handling a larger volume of business in all lines. Both the C.P.R. and C.N.R. companies have locating parties working close to Calgary, and it now appears certain that in the very near future Calgary will have what she has so long wished for, "More Railways." Both the Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern will build into Calgary just as fast as it is possible to do the work. The new country which these lines will serve, will create traffic that will more than sustain the line, as practically every acre is good agricultural land. The directors of these railways have visited Calgary often of late, and are satisfied of its growing importance as a distributing centre.

The mild weather is improving business in the city and wholesalers and retailers alike, anticipate a very prosperous year. Reports are coming from Southern Alberta that the farmers are preparing to start spring ploughing.

Grocery prices are steady with a strong tone. Advances are anticipated in some lines of California dried fruits. Prunes, raisins, and peaches are extremely low in price, and any considerable demand from the large Eastern centres will tend to raise prices in California. Local produce is in better supply and selling at more reasonable prices since the cold snap gave way to spring weather.

M. F. Goddard of the Maple Tree Producers' Association, Waterloo, Que., is in town this week booking spring orders for "Pride of Canada" maple syrup and sugars. Mr. Goddard is surprised to find here such mild weather and dry streets, having left his own province buried under two feet of snow.

An Extensive Fish Trade Carried on in Halifax—Collapse of Montreal Building —Milling Men Do Not Think More Canals Necessary—Sisal Grass Coming From Havana for Twine Manufacture.

HALIFAX.

March 9.—Fish of all kinds is now in good demand and dealers find trade very active. Salt and pickled fish is in plentiful supply, but there is a scarcity of fresh fish, such as haddock and halibut. Lobsters are also unusually scarce. These conditions are brought about by the stormy weather on the coast, the fishermen being unable to go out to the fishing grounds. There is, however, plenty of frozen halibut, smelts and salmon on the market. Fish prices are steady in all lines, though there is a tendency for salt cod to advance.

None of the grocery dealers in Halifax handle fresh fish. This class of trade has always remained with the fish dealers, and for many years it was confined almost exclusively to the waterfront. In fact, there was in force for a long time an ordinance preventing the sale of fresh fish in stores in any part of the city except along the waterfront. There has been a marked change in the sale of fish here in recent years and the advance is most noticeable. Fish stores are now located in several of the uptown sections of the city, and they are models in cleanliness. Very little fish is exposed for sale, it being all kept on ice, and not brought out until a customer calls for it. The fish that is on view is shown on marble slabs, and only a small quantity of each kind is exposed. Then again, it is always satisfactory to the consumer to buy his fish at these stores as they employ men who know how to clean and dress a fish ready for the table. There is a marked change in such fish as cod and haddock from the time they are taken from the water, and pass through the fish dealers' hands to the consumer. Then the fish have been shorn of all scales, fins, etc., and the flesh is white and clean. There is a large consumption of fish in Halifax. There are at least six large dealers in fresh fish in Halifax, and some of them have as many as six delivery teams. Then again some of the dealers send their teams around with fish daily to the doors of the consumer, and in this way the housewife is able to make her purchase at the door without the bother of going out.

The grocers all handle canned fish, and some of them also sell fresh oysters in bulk. They also handle pickled mackerel, pickled herring, dry salt codfish, and smoked finnan haddie, bloaters, Digby chickens, etc. The profits in fish are not very large, the dealers here handling these lines for the convenience of some of their customers.

Peter Laing, president of the Laing Packing and Provision Company, of Montreal, was on a visit to the trade in Cape Breton this week. This was Mr. Laing's first visit to this section of the Maritime Provinces and in an interview he expressed himself as immensely surprised with the industrial and general development of the Cape Breton district, and he is of the opinion that even more progress would be recorded in the future. Mr. Lerhle, the company's representative, who came down with the president, will remain in Cape Breton for several days.

A. L. Doyle & Co., who for several years conducted a large grocery store at the corner of Sackville and Water Sts., and who retired from business about a year ago, will again resume business at the old stand, known as the "busy corner on the busy street." Everything about the place is now "spick and span" and the shelves are filled with a fine stock of goods. Everything is fresh and new and under the old management the store is expected to take a place in advance of that it before occupied. An elevator has been installed to handle more expeditiously the jobbing trade. The firm will handle the entire output of one of the Annapolis Valley creameries. The store was opened last Saturday for business.

W. A. Craven, representing Chase & Sanborn, wholesale coffee dealers, of Montreal, was in Halifax on business this week.

MONTREAL.

March 10.—The much talked of advance in the harbor rates have not come. The Board of Harbor Commissioners have decided to postpone the proposed advance, for another year at least. Official notification of this decision has been received by the various companies interested.

During the past three years, the heavy expenses incurred by the erection of the new steel freight sheds, have very considerably increased the financial burden of the Board, and many considered it inevitable, that an advance in wharfage rates should come. Strong protests came from shipping and commercial men, and the result was that the Board decided to postpone the advance.

N. S. Crocker and A. V. Boucher, proprietors of the Castle Blend Tea Co. have bought the Lyric Hall block at the corner of Stanley and St. Catherine St. for $271,150. The transfer was made at the rate of $17 a square foot. The property sold was formerly known as the Emmanuel Church property. The purchasers occupy a building on the property, at the present time. The Castle Blend Tea Co. has made the purchase with a view of enlarging their presaent store. Mr. Boucher states, that a new building will be put up on the property neyy year, which has a frontage 120 feet on St. Catherine St., and 140 feet on Stanley St.

Arthur J. Hodgson of the export cheese and butter firm of Hodgson Bros. & Rowson, arrived in England last week on his annual trip.

James Alexander, of James Alexander Limited, left the city on Friday last for New York, whence he sailed for Liverpool on S.S. Baltic on Saturday, Feb. 27, 1909.

Chas. Desjardins, head of the firm of Charles Desjardins & Co., the well-known furriers, has left on his annual visit to Russia, where he will attend the auction sale of furs to be held on the fur markets at Nijni, and Moscow. On the way Mr. Desjardins will also visit the leading fur houses of London, Paris and Leipsic.

Special interest is centred in Mr. Desjardins' trip this year, because he will gather together the stock for his new fur emporium on St. Denis St., which it is said will be the largest store of its kind in the Dominion.

"Canada for the Canadians" seems to be the slogan of Montreal business men. Instead of constructing the Georgeian Bay Canal, via the Ottawa river, to Montreal, as is at present proposed, a New York engineering paper suggests the enlargement of the Welland Canal and the St. Lawrence river canals, and the connecting of Montreal with the seaboard via New York by connecting Lake George and Lake Champlain with the Hudson river by a canal. After presenting a detailed comparison of the Georgian Bay canal via the Ottawa river with their proposed deep waterways canal to New York via Montreal and the Hudson river they conclude with the following declaration:

"Canada will get her full recompense for this seeming final diversion of traffic from her seaports in the enlarged prosperity of her Western provinces and in the tolls which she could readily charge upon a route offering such great advantages to commerce."

Robert Meighen, president of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, when interviewed regarding this matter said, "In my opinion until climatic conditions in Canada can be altered, the taxpayer, should not be called upon for a further expenditure in connection with canals.

"In a climate such as ours, my opinion is, that canals are something like Noah's Ark—back numbers. You must however bear in mind, that I do not include the Soo Canal. Double track low grade railways, from tidewater to Eastern Georgian Bay ports, would, I am of opinion, make further canal expenditure unnecessary. Let us, winter and summer, be in a position to handle our Western traffic over our own railways. I am decidedly against free canals; I would level toll on all canal traffic, and make the port of Montreal free. What we want, is to have the product of the West brought from Fort William to the Eastern shore of Lake Superior, having elevator capacity there to handle western products, through our own system of elevators, and over our own railways, instead of allowing our freight to be diverted for storage, and exported from Buffalo." Continuing Mr. Meighen said, "It was simply a scheme to completely divert Canadian export business into the United States." Robert Reford, when interviewed also characterized the scheme as ridiculous and also stated that it would divert Canadian trade wholly into the United States channels.

A gentleman connected with the wholesale confectionery trade of Montreal, has invented a new showcase, which will shortly be placed on the market. This case possesses a decidedly novel feature, in the shape of a mirror, which divides the case in two lengthwise and vertically. In front of the mirror, are placed "dummy" packages of stock, and that required for daily use is placed behind the mirror. The stock in the front portion of the show case in this way, need not be disturbed, and the mirror produces an optical illusion of a never changing well stocked case. Another advantage is cleanliness as the display stock is in a dust proof compartment. Patents are being secured in the principal countries of the world.

On Monday night the interior of the building 29 William Street, devoted to commercial purposes, collapsed, three floors and their various contents descending to the basement in a great mixup. The building is owned by C. H. Catelli Ltd., manufacturers of Vermicelli, who occupied the top floor. The second floor was used as a storehouse for woodenware by Laporte, Martin & Co., wholesale grocers, and the ground floor by A. D. McGillis & Co., commission merchants.

The latter deal principally in butter and cheese, but at this time of the year their stock is very light. It is supposed the top floor was overweighted with flour and machinery, causing the collapse.

The buyers in town during the week were:

ST. JOHN.

March 9.—There was considerable change in the markets last week, with an upward trend in some lines. Both Manitoba and Ontario flours advanced ten cents a barrel. The quotations now are: Manitoba high grade, $6.60 to $6.70; Ontario mediums, patents, $5.70 to $5.80; Ontario full patents, $5.95 to $6.05. Sugar went up ten cents last Thursday. In the provision line, pork and lard are both dearer, prices now being: American mess pork, $24.25 to $24.75; domestic mess pork, $22.50 to $23; American clear pork, $22 to $24.50; American plate beef, $17.25 to $17.50; pure lard in tubs, $13¾c to 14c. Fancy Barbadoes molasses is cheaper, the quotation now being 38c per gallon.

There was very little doing in the produce line last week. Hennery eggs are cheaper, being quoted at 28c to 30c a dozen, and dealers say the probability is that prices will go still lower. Butter is slightly easier, but it is said the market is problematical as yet. All kinds of canned goods are selling well now.

Another aldermanic candidate has appeared in the field for civic honors in the person of Rupert W. Wigmore, manager of the Sussex Milk & Cream Co. Mr. Wigmore announces that he will oppose Alderman Hamm in Kings Ward.

The grocery and provision store of Captain James A. Calder, at Deer Point, Campobello, was broken into one day last week and about $20 stolen from the cash drawer. No arrests have yet been made.

W. Herbert Downie, who figured in the sensational robbery of the T. S. Simms Co., recently, was given a preliminary hearing last week and has been sent up for trial at the sitting of the Circuit Court, which opens here this week. He was allowed out on $5,000 bail.

The stock and fixtures of C. D. Trueman, wholesale grocer, who assigned recently, will be sold at public auction this week.

The steamship Talisman, in the St. John-Havana service, sailed last Thursday with a full general cargo, including 550 tons of pressed hay from Carleton County. Hay is reported in great demand in Havana, and this is the largest consignment which so far has been shipped from this port. The steamer on previous trips took away thousands of barrels of potatoes for the Cuban market. From Havana the steamer will proceed to Pregresso, Mexico, to load with a cargo of sisal grass, which, for the first time since the line started, will be brought to St. John direct. The grass is consigned to Welling (Ont.) and will fill between fifty and sixty cars. It is used in the manufacture of rope and twine. In previous sailings from the south the Talisman has called at Boston and other U.S. ports to discharge cargo, but it is expected in future the steamer will be supplied with a full cargo direct for this port, as the business is growing all the time.

A new line of steamers, known as the Canada Line, is to operate a service between Hamburg, Rotterdam, Bremen and Halifax and St. John in the winter, and with Montreal as its Canadian terminus in the summer. The first sailing will be the Prinz Oskar, which leaves Hamburg March 22 for this port.

GUELPH.

March 9.—A large attendance marked the annual meeting last week of the Clerk's and Salesmen's Association of the city at the Commercial Hotel. Officers were elected and the affairs of the Association generally discussed with a display of the greatest interest by the members. Another matter discussed was in connection with the usual Thursday half holiday. It is altogether likely that an effort will be made to have the weekly holiday again this summer.

The following officers were elected :
Hon. Pres.—W. G. Hood.
President—B. A. Macdonald.
Vice-President—J. McKenzie.
Secretary-treasurer—R. S. Robinson.
Executive—John Kennedy, Frank Pepper, Jos. Dingman, J. D. McArthur, E. Hicks, W. G. Buscht, Geo. Freeland and Morgan White.

J. A. McCrea & Son had a half-page ad. last week in our daily paper as an announcement of their annual china and glassware sale.

There was a large and busy market last Saturday. The big winter fair building was filled with plenty of farmers and buyers. Prices however kept high, although everything was picked up readily. Poultry was scarce, chickens holding the fort at from 80 cents to $1.25 a pair. Butter sold at from 24c to 26c a pound, and eggs from 25c to 28c a dozen. Turnips are selling at 3 for 5 cents, parsnips and carrots at 20c per basket. Onions at 25 cents basket ; potatoes 50 and 55 cents per bag. Cabbage are very scarce at from 60 cents to 75 cents per dozen.

The Whitney government has at last passed the grant of $25,000 for the great winter fair at Guelph. This grant solves the problem of where the fair is going to be located. The work can now be proceeded with and the future success of the show is assured. As the grant only provides $5,000 out of the $10,000 extra required, the city will be called upon to decide whether they will increase their grant, or have the plans pared down. The one important factor will be for those in charge to move quickly and have the new building ready for the show in December.

LONDON.

March 9.—Wholesalers report business fair during the past week, trade giving every evidence of picking up. The feature of the week was the advance of 10c in refined sugar, due to an advance in England and increased home demand. Raw sugars are easier, with little coming in, and brokers say it will be a month before there are any large arrivals. Coffees keep very high, and Rios and Santos are advancing. All grades of teas, from finest to lowest, are very firm. There is nothing doing in Japans, last year's crop being pretty well cleaned up.

There is strong probability of an advance in the price of bread in the near future, owing to the repeated jumps in the price of flour. Local bankers claim that while flour has within a little over a year advanced over 75c per cwt., the price of bread has remained stationary. Manitoba flour has increased from $1.90 a bag to $2.75 wholesale car lots. Ontario flour, which is little used in the making of bread, has gone up 40c in the last three months.

Ex-Ald. Wm. Scarlett has purchased the broom manufacturing business of Welford & Co., 381 Glebe St., and will continue it on an enlarged scale.

A new grocery business has been opened by C. Finchamp & Son at the corner of Talbot & Fullerton Sts.

Allan McGregan, city traveler for the Canada Spice Company, has resigned to accept a similar position with Gorman, Eckert & Co.

The fourth of March—settling day—passed off satisfactorily in London, the banks reporting outstanding paper well met, and no business failures or unsatisfactory conditions are known. Bankers interviewed were unanimous in expressing the belief that business conditions are steadily and surely improving. There is more money in the banks than there has been for many a year, and the banks are therefore in a position to encourage with loans all legitimate enterprises. Prices of practically every commodity were never higher than at present, which materially reduces the purchasing power of the dollar. Business conditions in the city are, on the whole, good, both merchants and manufacturers seeing noticeable improvement. Wholesale houses have larger advance orders than they have had for some time and predict that the spring shipments will be greatly in excess of those of a year ago. Customs, inland revenue, bank and clearing house returns all indicate a steady improvement in business.

London is represented as being second only to Montreal among Canadian cities in the manufacture of cigars, and local manufacturers report the outlook as satisfactory on the whole. Some report an increase over the previous year's business while others claim a slight falling off. Interviewed on the subject, R. D. McDonald, of Line, McDonald & Co., said: "The manufacture and sale of the cheaper line of cigars have, to a certain extent, been killed, due to the fact that the Government saw fit to raise the rate of revenue on raw leaf tobacco from 10c to 28c. This increase was made on the first of June last and since then there has been a falling off in the sale of the cheaper goods. It gives the manufacturers in Lower Quebec an advantage and they are displacing some of the trade formerly held by the London manufacturers. This means that the sale of the cheaper lines is much poorer, but the sale of the higher-priced cigars is much better this year than last." At the time that the duty on raw leaf was increased the Government lowered the duty on the manufactured article, but the manufacturers state that the amount of the raise on the raw leaf was more than the cut rate on the cigars and also that there is far more raw leaf brought into the city than there is that goes out, so that this increase was far more than the decrease in the revenue.

The first maple syrup of the season made its appearance in the local market Saturday. If the present weather continues the sap will run freely.

C. L. Mountjoy, head clerk for Ryan & Russell, has so far recovered as to justify his removal from the hospital to his home. He expects to return to his duties at the beginning of next week.

The officers of the Retail Grocers' Association have been informed that the City Council has no power to further increase fruit peddlers' licenses. The association will likely get after tea peddlers who pay neither license nor business tax.

T. A. Rowat & Co., London, grocers, have purchased a store four or five doors east of their present premises, and will shortly move into it.

PETERBORO.

March 10.—J. C. Eaton, of the T. Eaton Co., was in the city last week and denied the rumor that the company had intentions of locating here.

The revenue for the month of February from the Customs House was $17,664, as compared with $16,404 last year.

E. R. Robinson, of Warkworth, has disposed of general store to Mr. Riendeau.

Henry Brandon, of Cannington, received a car of Manitoba flour on Saturday.

An interesting window display is that of White & Gillespie's, illustrating the evolution of the churn. Four specimens are shown. That of the present day is of earthenware with a glass top, providing the best sanitary facilities and at the same time being a labor saver. The next is one that was in use fifteen years ago; there is also one of thirty years, and the last is marked fifty years ago, but might possibly have been used on the ark when that good old ship was mistress of the seas. White & Gillespie keep in stock a complete line of dairy utensils, and this is an ad. for their stock.

The grocers state that they are receiving large demands for dried fruit and chief among the different varieties is the dried apple which is one of the staple Lenten articles.

Four Peterboro grocers and a baker have jointly purchased a building comprising three storeys in the up-town district, and are opening up a boot and shoe store in one of them. The grocers are R. C. Braund, J. T. Braund, Nelson Routley and Wm. Routley. Robert Routley has disposed of his bakery business, and besides having an equal share in the enterprise, he will manage the boot and shoe store. The building is of two storeys and was erected last summer for Lendrum, the photographer, from whom it was bought. It is located on Charlotte Street, near George Street, and is considered a good place for business. Work was begun this week to furnish the boot and shoe store. R. C. Braund, J. T. Braund and Robt. Routley were in Toronto three days last week, where they purchased a large stock of what they state is classy footwear. Robert Routley, in abandoning his bakery business, is leaving a good trade which he established some years ago, and has since built up. The four grocers in the enterprise are energetic, and are achieving success. It is not many years ago since not one of them were in business. Their stores are located in different parts of the city, and their union for a single interest should, with their combined efforts, result in the fulfillment of their every expectation.

It is not likely that any of the confectionery dealers of this city will appear before the magistrate for selling "brandied" chocolates. A short time ago a deputation from the local temperance workers waited on the vendors of candies and asked them to do away with any brandy candies they might have in stock. The dealers have complied with the request, and it has not been necessary to take any further action.

Howard Hopwood has been appointed secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, taking the place of W. Harstone, who resigned. He will call upon the members of the Association and hopes for their co-operation in order to make the organization a success.

Wesley Boorman has purchased the bakery business of Robert Routley and is now in charge of it.

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Board of Trade on Tuesday night, the following officers were elected: President, Ald. G. A. Gillespie; Vice-President, Ald. W. H. Bradburn; Treasurer, Peter Campbell; Secretary, T. Q. Quartermaine.

TORONTO.

March 9.—In a large city it takes all kinds of grocers to cater to the wants of all kinds of people, and a few notes about the stores as you find them may be interesting. Here is a store with windows clean and clear, and dressed with taste and skill, and the inside neatly arranged, and everything in order. The proprietor and his clerks are all courteous, cheerful, active and obliging, with sense enough to treat even the driver with respect and decency. The very air you breathe seems to be filled with gladness and encouragement. Within two minutes' walk you enter another store, but before you do so, you look at the windows, but you cannot look in for they are boarded up about five feet from the floor. You wonder what it means, but you cannot arrive at any conclusion. You open the door and find the merchant behind his counter and you look around to make sure that you are in a store. Contrary to your expectation you will find the man sociable and a great talker. His ideas are all original and very interesting to himself. You look at the window which on the outside was a mystery, but which is all explained when you see that he is using it for a warehouse. Then you take a look about the store and you are puzzled to know what you see and what you don't see, for the mixture is too much to comprehend at first sight. Instead of trying to get an idea of the whole store, you now confine your attention to what is immediately before you, and you will find on one shelf a few pieces of calico, a few cans of salmon and a fruit cake, and on another a bundle of socks, some underwear and some jam. In the show case there are marbles, candy, shoe polish, spools, ribbons, pies and cakes. This sort of store actually exists in Toronto. Among the many things the "boss" related was the fact that he had only been away from his store three times in five years. Once he went to his father's funeral and twice to the Police Court.

Another five minutes' walk brings you to another grocer. He deals principally in candies, three for a cent, and prides himself on being an "American" and not of the slow-going Canadian kind. You now strike a number of very fine fellows, with good stores, where everything looks businesslike. They keep in touch with everything connected with the trade, and are, of course, readers of their trade paper—The Canadian Grocer.

Johnston Bros., 298 Dundas Street, have added an up-to-date pair of scales and a new refrigerator to their store fixtures.

W. Waddell, 218 Christie Street, has sold his business to H. W. Smith, who takes possession at once.

T. F. Gibbs has moved from the corner of Melleville and Shaw Streets to 1012 Shaw Street, into a new store.

F. H. Ross has moved from 93 Arthur Street, to 1049 Shaw Street, where he owns the property.

Mrs. E. J. Tilly, 129 Augusta Street, is extending her store by adding another room to it. She will now have a nice store, and, with her own business ability and the assistance of her bright daughters, should increase her trade.

W. H. Woods has purchased Mr. Baker's business, 182 Dundas Street, and has taken possession.

In response to the desire of grocers on Yonge Street north of the track to have the free express delivery, The Canadian Grocer interviewed the two express companies in the city and found that neither the city nor any one else has any jurisdiction over them. and that they extend their limits from time to time as business develops sufficiently to make it pay. If the merchants in that part of the city could get some estimate of the express business, and then see the companies, they would likely give careful consideration to their needs.

BRANTFORD.

March 9.—The merchants are still dissatisfied at the way in which farmers are allowed to come to the city and purchase cheese at the wholesale house and take it on the market. Some have a particular stand in the market house where one can see them every Saturday, usually selling at two cents per pound less than the merchants. They can, of course, easily afford to, as the only expenses they have is 25 cents for stand, and as the cheese is all cut in one day they have no loss from shrinkage. Needless to say, they are doing a flourishing business, one man selling as much as five hundred pounds on a Saturday.

The Grocers' and Butchers' Association representatives met the Buildings and Grounds Committee of the City Council and presented their grievances in regard to the way cheese was being sold on the market and after a consultation with the city solicitor, were unable to do anything. The grocers have no objections to the man who makes his own cheese going there to sell it.

J. Huffman is on the sick list.

One morning last week the firemen were called out to a fire over J. Forde & Co.'s grocery, Market St., arriving in time to put it out with chemicals before much damage was done.

F. Matthews, who has a fine store on Brant Ave., in the residential portion of the city, has also started to handle flowers, he states that it is a very profitable line and also assists materially in making the store much brighter.

ST. THOMAS.

March 9.—Both markets were quite large for this season of the year on Saturday owing possibly to the fine mild weather. Eggs were in demand and although the supply was liberal, all offered were readily disposed of at 25c per dozen. Butter was somewhat similar and 28c was the ruling price, although many of the grocers were selling butter at 25c a lb. The farmers sold potatoes from 80c to 85c a bag and spy apples at 45c per peck. Cabbage was not to be had but other vegetables such as parsnips, carrots and turnips, were quite plentiful.

James McMannus, formerly a grocer in this city, has accepted a position as traveler for Wall & Guppy, Windsor.

CHATHAM.

March 9.—There is a merry soap war among the King Street grocers just now—at least, it is merry for the purchasers, though most of the grocers view it in any but a cheerful light. For some time hast the practice of "cutting" on soap has been indulged in by a few grocers on the back streets, but the King Street men took no notice till last Saturday, when one of the prominent grocers advertised all lines of soap at 6 bars for 25c. Monday morning all the other King Street grocers dropped their prices to suit, and purchasers are now able to buy all the leading soaps at a price cheaper than the wholesale price plus handling. The soap war was the outstandard topic of discussion among the grocers this afternoon. "You can say that the grocers have gone clean crazy," remarked one of the fraternity to The Grocer representative. He proceeded to illustrate by figures.

"One particular soap," he said, "costs us $3.65 per 100 bars, when we can buy in large lots. Selling at 6 bars for a quarter gives a fraction less than $4.17, or 52c approximately, profit. That isn't too bad. But come to other varieties, which cost $3.75 when grocers can purchase in the largest lots possible—and those who can't buy in large lots pay $3.85 or $3.90 per 100. Sell at $4.17 per 100, and you will have a profit of 42c at best, or 27c at worst—less than 10 per cent. Now, it costs the average grocer from 12 to 15 per cent. to run his business. So we are actually losing money in order to do business."

He added that there was a man with a wagon who sold 8 bars for 25c, with every $1.50 worth of goods purchased. "In such a case there are opportunities for making up, and the customer pays the shot; but when the grocer makes a straight sale of 6 bars for 25c he pays."

Another grocer, who had also come down to the prevailing price, declared that it was simply a case of the grocer working to put money in the pocket of the manufacturer. "It doesn't even draw trade," he added, "because we have all come to the same price. The people who start to cut after this fashion hurt others without benefitting themselves."

Something of the same kind seems to be going on in Ridgetown, the only difference being in the commodity, which is sugar. Both the Craig Co., Limited, and Jeffries & Smith, are advertising sugar at $4.50 per cwt., or 22 pounds for $1.

Wm. Anderson has in a stock of potted flowers appropriate to the coming Easter season, comprising hyacinths, daffodils, ferns and others. The potted plants add quite a bit to the attractiveness of the interior, and are a good side line.

The local butter situation is in a dubious state just now, the grocers being as it were between two fires. The local prices have been kept high, and the outside market is in bad shape, so that in paying the local market price here, grocers will be giving from 5c to 6c more a pound for their butter than they can get for it outside. The situation would be all right if the supply were not greater than the demand, since butter retails here at a fair living profit. The retail price, 25c, gives a fair average profit, the butter costing the grocer 20c. This is, however, 5c higher than the grocers can get outside, the best offers just now being no more than 15c.

Grocers are experiencing a scarcity of bananas, supplies being difficult to secure. The effect is enhanced by the fact that apples also seem scarce, and people are calling for bananas for use in salads, etc.

J. A. Mackness, who recently purchased the O. I. Dolsen grocery, 68 St. Clair Street, is doing considerable newspaper advertising and reports business good.

The capital of the Wallaceburg Sugar Co. has been increased from $500,000 to $1,500,000, a step no doubt resulting from the recent purchase of the Berlin sugar factory. Agriculturists are now busy securing the beet acreage for the Berlin concern, which it is intended to operate this year.

J. A. Hillman has purchased the grocery business of E. G. Coulter, at Wheatley. Mr. Hillman has had quite a bit of business experience and is a live salesman.

A new peach district, which promises to develop, is located in Lambton county, on the Huron shore. D. Johnson, president of the Forest Fruit Growers' Association, has 11 acres in peaches, and intends adding 10 next spring. He states that frost this year has caused no damage.

Canned Fruits—Good demand.
Starch—Declined.

Montreal, March 10, 1909.

Reports from the country state that trade is keeping brisk. A little slump is generally expected at this time of the year, owing to the breaking up of the roads. Country paper maturing has been fairly well met during the last week. There have been few changes in the market of very great importance during the week. The demand for nuts has brightened up somewhat during the week. The tone of the market is steady and stocks of walnuts are moderate, and with an increase in the demand, higher prices, it is felt, would prevail. Shelled almonds are stronger in tone owing to stronger tendency of the primary markets. Sugar is the feature of the week. The raw market has been very strong for some time, consequently refiners have put up prices 10c all around. Glucose has advanced 10 cents.

Cgnada laundry and corn starch are down a half cent.

SUGAR—Owing to stronger position of primary markets, prices on sugar have advanced 10c all around.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—There is an improved demand for canned fruits and vegetables. Canned fish is not going as fast as it should, for this time of the year. Baked beans are moving well. Meats are neglected.

TORONTO — As intimated before canned peas are running short and it is not likely the supply will be able to meet the demand. No new peas will be on the market until July. Corn is taking the place of peas, where the latter cannot be had, and there may be a shortage in canned corn also.

Tomatoes, beets and pumpkin are in fairly good demand, more so than fruits. Of the latter apples, peaches, plums, pears, raspberries are in only fair demand, in the order mentioned.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—
Sugar—Advanced 10 cents.
Starch—Decline Maintained.
Glucose—Advance 10c cwt.
Beans—Steady Demand.
Tea—Market is Strong.
Dried Peaches—Good Demand.
Rice—Scarcity in Cheaper Grades.

Toronto, March 11,1909.

Brokers and wholesale merchants are all agreed that the coming year will bring improved business conditions. The outlook is indeed very bright. Collections are, however, reported but fair.

As anticipated last week the price of sugar advanced here. This occurred on March the fourth and amounted to 10 cents. It followed the advance in the United States mentioned last week which was due to raws going up.

The reduction in starch referred to last week was not a natural one, but purely local. Back to its former condition in a short time is not unlikely. Glucose on the other hand has advanced 10 cents per cwt. due to the high price of corn.

The market in tea this week is very strong with the probability that it will be still stronger. Dried fraits, principally prunes, peaches and Valencia raisins are good sellers. Canned peas and probably corn will be short.

SUGAR—On March 4th sugar advanced 10 cents, as was expected. The demand has been firmed, the advance here following that on New York mentioned in last week's issue. It was due to a rise in the price of raws. Another advance would be no surprise.

TEA—The tea market is very strong this week and the tendency is for a still stronger market. All grades seem to be affected. One wholesale grocery firm states that there is a good demand now for bulk tea from the retailers.

DRIED FRUITS—The market in prunes is reported bare, so far as some sizes are concerned, but full lines are expected soon. There is a good demand for prunes and especially good for dried peaches, which have eased off in price. Dried apples and apricots are only in fair demand. Currants were scarce, but are not at the present time. One wholesale grocery firm in speaking of the raisin situation said: "We never sold so many raisins as we did this year." The call for Valencias is splendid. Bosnian prunes are on the market here and are reported to be good sellers.

WESTERN WHEAT INTERESTING

In Restless Condition During Last Week—Dry Weather of Last Autumn Not Advantageous—West Wants Ontario Oats and Ontario Horses —Government Ownership of Elevators.

Winnipeg, March 9.—The wheat situation has been the leading interest for another week and bids fair to hold the centre of the stage until navigation opens at least. Winnipeg is at present a narrow and easily influenced market, so that it goes up and down with almost equal rapidity. It broke Thursday and Friday and showed on Friday night a drop of 4⅛ from the high point of the month for May, but on Saturday, with apparently no reason, it rallied 2c. This was mainly on a big buying order of one brokerage firm and was supposed to be for one local speculator only.

The high prices of the earlier days of last week certainly increased the receipts passing Winnipeg, and though lines of elevators report that receipts are still light, they are certainly increasing. There seems always wheat to be dug up once the price is high enough.

The advance in prices has put a serious check on export trade, but some fifteen to twenty loads was worked on Friday night, and was sold on the bid received on offers sent out on Thursday when the market was at its high point, by Saturday morning cables were so much lower that with the reaction of 2c it was impossible to do business.

The milling trade presents some interesting features. Pretty close inquiry goes to show that both of the largest milling companies still need to buy wheat and a good many are speculating as to whether the failure to agree to put up the price of flour in proportion to the recent advances in wheat, bears any relation to the fact that they need more wheat and have been waiting for the slump. It was pretty generally understood they were buyers on Friday when the market reached its low point and indeed are buyers right along when there is any break in the market. Reports reaching here from Ontario indicate that the stocks of Ontario millers are lower than usual and that they, too, have been hoping for a slump in Western wheat prices.

Autumn Damage to Wheat.

The U.S. Government report of Monday is being awaited with considerable interest as the recent crop news from the winter wheat states has been bearish, or rather more bearish than expected. There are a good many Winnipeg grain men touring in the south at present, as is usual during February and March and letters and wires from them indicate that damage to winter wheat is really serious. The damage being largely that, at the time the wheat was planted the ground was so fearfully dry that a very large quantity, many thousand acres, was blotted out and never replaced. In many parts of the winter wheat states the weather continues extremely dry and some of the most conservative of the Winnipeg dealers, who have been quietly gathering information for some weeks, hold a very unfavorable opinion of the winter wheat crop. The condition of the United States winter wheat crop is unquestionably the leading factor in whether our wheat will or will not go higher.

Oats have continued to develop interest during the week and the outlook is strong. The demand from Ontario has increased very materially and there are also many inquiries from the West from railway contractors.

The enormous amount of railway construction planned for the coming summer has stimulated interest in both oats and horses.

Ontario Horses Go West.

Shipments of horses from Ontario have been heavy of late and there have been one or two auction sales at which the prices realized were good but the best trade is being done quietly in the big sale barns. One house sold 45 horses in less than a week and the demand is certainly good. Dealers complain that they cannot get as many good heavy horses from Ontario as are required for the Western trade.

The movement in the direction of railway construction has helped the price of hay also, but only for freshly baled hay. Hay that was baled in the fall with the view of supplying lumber and wood camps continues a drug on the market and many who speculated in the baling of hay will lose considerably. The long spells of extremely mild weather have also materially lessened consumption among the farmers themselves.

Millinery Openings.

It is a far cry from oats and hay and horse to millinery openings, but all have their place in the situation in the West just now. The spring openings of both the wholesale and big retail houses were all held during the past week and the department stores also held openings of spring costumes and suits. Wholesale men and retail alike agree that it has been the best opening season for several years. The weather was exceptionally fine and mild, there was a large attendance of milliners from country points at the wholesale openings and they bought largely of good stuff. Retail men declare also that this spring the amount of orders actually placed on the opening days was exceptionally large.

Spring millinery and suit openings are generally considered a pretty good barometer of trade conditions and certainly the barometer showed a strong upward tendency in the volume of trade.

It looks very much as if the Roblin Government, which prorogued this week, wanted to shut off inquiry into many of their little doings which have been actively pushed by the Opposition, as there is still a large amount of business that has not received adequate attention and the session was exceptionally short. The present attitude of the Roblin Government is to throw the whole onus of the ownership of elevators on the Dominion Government. The argument has been hot along this question and also along the line of compulsory education.

In the matter of the Government ownership of interior elevators, in spite of the monster petition presented to the Government asking for them, there are not lacking signs that the more intelligent and thoughtful of the farmers are in no haste to have this question decided off the bat. It involves too much and is too radical to be dealt with in a hurry. The chief indication of the awakening of farmers along that line is the increasing number of letters on the subject to the daily and weekly papers.—H.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, March 9.—Many new lines of goods are being introduced and great confidence is shown regarding future trade. Wholesalers report last week business to be very satisfactory. Prices have advanced on sugar and rolled oats, but show a decline on starches.

BUTTER—The market is yet dull. Manitoba creamery is jobbing locally at 25c per lb., although in some cases as high as 26c has been obtained recently. Some purchases have been made on the basis of 24c. The top heavy condition of the eastern market is not without its effect here and prices of creamery are likely to be lower.

Owing to the absence of outside demand the dairy butter market is also very weak. The prevailing price for round lots is 15c to 15½c f.o.b. Winnipeg. The butter now being shipped is fodder goods and the quality is not all that might be desired. With the approach of spring the cold storage stocks must be cleared out and the price is not unlikely to recede further.

EGGS—The egg supply is now about equal to the demand, prices being much lower. Local dealers are now paying 25c to 27c per dozen and prices may continue to drop.

VERDICT FOR $134,116.

New York, March 10.—A verdict awarding the United States Government $134,116 damages in unpaid customs duties from the American Sugar Refining Company was rendered last week by a jury which heard charges of misweighing sugar imports.

The verdict rendered was for the full amount sued for by the Government, on the contention that this sum was due through underweighing by the company's employes of sugar imports on the company's Brooklyn docks. Testimony was adduced indicating that fraudulent devices had been attached to the scales there, causing them to register less than the true weight.

CHATHAM CORRESPONDENCE.

Wm. O'Brien, of Blenheim, has rented a store and intends starting a cigar factory, which will be in full swing by April 1.

The annual meeting of the Tilbury Canning Co. was held in Tilbury last week, when the following officers were elected: H. H. Shaver, president and general manager; W. C. Crawford, vice-president; J. S. Richardson, secretary-treasurer.

H. C. Chapman has resigned his position as processor with the Leamington Canning Co. and will travel for canning supplies for the Industrial Construction Co., New York.

Wooliver & Whale's new creamery at Wallaceburg, is ready for operations, the whistle having been blown last Monday.

Grocer H. A. Andrew reports a peculiar freight discrimination. Recently he shipped a barrel of oil from Chatham to Blenheim via Pere Marquette, paying 40 cents freight. The barrel was returned empty, the freight on the empty being 50c. The Board of Trade will be asked to look into the matter.

There is a fair-sized agitation on foot for a provincial or local inspection of meats offered for sale on the market. The claim has been made that hog carcasses rejected by the Government inspectors have been offered for sale on the market. Butchers are divided on the subject. It is stated that the disease originates in the mouth, and that by the time the young hog is killed, it has extended no further, and that the carcass itself is good meat. The Government inspectors have reported that the percentage of hogs rejected as diseased is very small, and that all diseased hogs are condemned and destroyed.

Hamilton Grocers Alive to the Times

Bain and Adams, a Firm That Has Made Systematic Advancement to Their Present High Standard—They Cater to the Best Class of Trade—Advertising and Window-Dressing Among Their Methods—Two Telephones Kept in Use—Have Prompt Delivery Service.

Hamilton, March 10.—With such a history of progressiveness as that which has attended Bain & Adams, 89-91 East King St., Hamilton, any grocery firm might well be proud. But when one turns over in his mind the methods by which A. G. Bain and later Mr. Bain, with his present partner, A. J. Adams, conducted their store, he does not wonder at success following their efforts. Their advancement from that of a moderate business to a now leading and first-class establishment, has been watched with a keen interest by many Hamilton people.

Previous to the last three and one-half years, the business was carried on in a most successful manner under the sole management of A. G. Bain, now senior partner of the present firm. Mr. Bain, seeing the great future which could be obtained, by a high and general class grocery, and who, at this time was doing more than the average man could satisfactorily accomplish, decided to still further increase his business, by sharing his interests with a partner, consequently A. J. Adams, the former widely-known representative of the H. J. Heinz Co. for Western Ontario, received the proposition to become a partner. His wide experience had taught him the lesson of "opportunity," and he assumed the responsibilities of partner—hence we have the live and aggressive firm of Bain & Adams.

This firm is truthfully named high-class grocers, being large importers of seasonable novelties, etc., as well as extensive buyers of tropical fruits and vegetables, consisting of strawberries, pineapples, plums, tomatoes, lettuce, celery, sweet potatoes, etc., these arriving weekly in four shipments. As well as imported fruits, they handle only the best of our local grown, and advanced and hot-bed specialties, which enable them at all times to cater to a high-class trade.

Extensive Advertisers.

As advertisers, Bain & Adams are novel and original. A daily change appears in all three city papers, a marked feature being that prices are not quoted. They also issue a useful catalogue, which is published for the convenience of customers and camping parties. Their own brand, viz., "The Bain Brand," is applied to many leading lines, a very noticeable example being their package tea. They also, of course liberally stock package teas of other packers. The same brand refers to a splendid range of olives, of which this firm are extensive handlers. Statistics show one of their recent shipments to be the largest ever entering Hamilton by any retailer. They also cater to a large trade in bulk form.

Make Neat Arrangements.

A delicatessen counter, showing some very choice cooked meats, fancy cheese, exceptionally fine bacon, lard, butter, new laid eggs, and out-of-season delicacies, is well arranged, and a marvellous trade is here transacted in a comparatively small space.

Bain & Adams are doing an immense liquor and wine business, and being direct importers of same, are in a position to cater to all classes of trade.

Have Two Telephones.

Another striking feature of this store is their telephone trade, which has been developed most successfully. Two telephone lines are kept constantly busy, and the enormous business which is being transacted daily in this way, and the correctness and care which must necessarily follow to retain such a connection, can only be appreciated by those who have a similar trade to handle.

Believe in Window Displays.

No small amount of attention is paid to the window-dressing by this energetic firm. They are strong believers in "goods well displayed are half sold," and it would serve as an object lesson to any professional window-dresser to pay a visit at any time, and note the good taste and judgment here manifested.

The order and delivery section of this store is strictly systematic. The orders are handled by a special staff, whose duties are solely the preparation of same, consequently accuracy and promptness is unquestionable. From this room they are handed to the delivery department, whose requirements are six busy wagons, tastefully decorated, the name of the firm in a conspicuous place, and one ad. only appearing, viz., "Bain's 5 o'clock tea," which makes a traveling advertisement.

Alive to the Times.

In conclusion we venture to say there are few who can excel this firm in regard to their being live and up-to-date grocers. The Bain & Adams store is surely one of which Hamilton is proud, and all hearty congratulations are extended this esteemed firm.

BACTERIA IN EGGS.

A Claim That It Passes Through Shell—How One Firm Prevents This.

A firm in the North of England claims to have a new way of preserving eggs. It is based on the theory that an egg decomposes because of bacteria entering through the pores of the shell. Under the new process, the egg is first disinfected, and then immersed in a vessel of hot paraffin wax in a vacuum. The air in the shell is extracted by the vacuum, and atmospheric pressure is then allowed to enter the vessel and press the hot wax into the pores of the shell, sealing it hermetically.

The above paragraph, states a writer on the subject, might strike some as wild theory. The idea of bacteria passing through the pores of an egg shell and contaminating the interior, sounds, perhaps, at first to be absurd, but several years ago there were stored in one of Boston's great cold storage warehouses in one room eggs and in another room lemons. The rooms were separated by a thick brick wall partition. When the eggs were taken from cold storage and distributed, complaints began to come in that they were flavored with lemon and the cold storage company actually had a suit brought against them for damages by the owners of the eggs. Whether the flavor of the lemon in connection with the eggs was imaginary or not, cannot be said, but the subsequent action related above is true.

REPRESENTS LONDON FIRM.

H. Becker, of Becker & Co., London, England, is making a trip to Montreal and Toronto in the interests of his company's goods—candied peels, alimentary pastes and glace fruits. He spent a few days in Toronto this week. Mr. Becker is arranging for a representative in this market. In this present trip he went as far as Chicago, and was much pleased with the amount of business he had done. Wm. Forbes, of Montreal, represents his company in the east. He was very much impressed with the business possibilities in Canada, and he looks forward to a large trade. Mr. Becker belongs to an aggressive firm which recognizes the great future of this country.

CATALOGUES AND BOOKLETS.

Manufacturers and wholesalers are requested to send catalogues, booklets, etc., to The Grocer in order that it may be announced to the retail trade that they have been issued. Retailers in sending for catalogues referred to, should mention this paper to show they are in the trade and they should be read thoroughly by them on account of their educative value. Often they may be able to secure new ideas.

H. J. HEINZ Co.—In an attractive little booklet issued by the H. J. Heinz Co., Pittsburg, the progress of the company is concisely set forth. It is handsomely illustrated by cuts of the present buildings, interiors of the various departments and also the establishment of the company when it first began business. The illustrations are finished off in sepia. The booklet presents some valuable information to readers, the farms on which the raw material grows being also shown.

William H. Dunn, Montreal, has recently been appointed sole distributing agent in Eastern Canada of the products of the National Licorice Co. of Brooklyn.

THOUSANDS OF GUESTS

Many Ladies Attending the City Dairy Inspection Luncheons.

To entertain at inspection luncheons a large proportion of the housewives of Toronto is the immense task undertaken by the City Dairy to show that its watchword, "cleanliness, purity, quality," is lived up to in every process of the great plant. The luncheons are being served three afternoons a week and the appetizing menu is as follows :

Rolls and Butter — Cream Cheese
Milk — Red Rose Tea
Charlotte Russe — Ice Cream
Little Cakes.

The plant includes a bakery presided over by an expert French pastry cook, and every article on the menu is City Dairy product, except the tea. The management were anxious to serve the very best tea they could get, and asked the Red Rose Tea Company to provide Red Rose, which, in a few years, by its distinctive quality, has won such wide popularity among the people who are particular about their tea. Their services are rewarded by the often heard comment : "My ! what delicious tea." After the lucheon the guests are shown over the dairy and every department is seen in operation, and is particularly explained.

The City Dairy supplies 12,000 families with milk and cream every day and most of them before breakfast. Involved in this work is the washing, filling, capping and delivering of 5,300,000 bottles each year. In the same time the dairy makes and sells 250,000 pounds of butter and 2,500,000 good-sized dishes of ice cream, enough ice cream to give every individual in Toronto eight large dishes.

The City Dairy has won the confidence of the citizens by living up to its motto, "Milk good enough for babies," and its success is due largely to the keen business capacity, executive ability and high ideals of the General Manager, Charles Ed. Potter.

Toronto is famed among leading dairymen in the large American cities as the home of the finest dairying plant on the continent. But the City Dairy's fame has gone round the world. The visitors' register bears the names of leading dairymen, scientists, and Government experts from all of the five continents and Australasia. Many of these visitors have recorded their opinions. The one by A. Mitchell of Ayr, Scotland, is typical of many others : "Have seen a good many dairies in Scotland, England and Ireland, also Denmark. None so complete in every way as this one."

HARMFUL TO STRAWBERRIES.

Open Weather of Past Winter May Have Bad Results—The Plants Need Protection.

S. Edgar Masten, of the Farmers' Canning Co., Bloomfield, Ont., was in Toronto this week and when asked regarding the fruit crop outlook stated that as yet it was rather early in the season to make any positive assertions. He had no reason to think that damage to any noticeable extent had been done to fruit trees, but on account of the lightness of the snow fall during the winter, he considered that there would be harmful consequences to the strawberry crop. The peculiar climatic conditions of the past two months would have a disadvantageous effect on the plants which need considerable protection from the snow.

He spoke with the county of Prince Edward and neighboring counties in view and while that district raised some splendid strawberries it was not so essential to the supply as the Niagara peninsula.

Mr. Masten is very optimistic regarding a renewal of former good trade conditions and predicts a splendid season.

Produce and Provisions

Stocks of Cheese Reported Small in Old Country—Siberian Butter on the English Market — Price of Cured Meats Advance in England—Few Old Eggs on Canadian Market.

Cheese is in a strong position, and the prospects point now to a strong finish of the season. Receipts at Montreal for the season since May 1, 1908, to the present time, have been 1,958,947 boxes against 2,053,905 boxes, for the corresponding season of last year. Reports from the Old Country, state that stocks are small there, but buyers do not seem very keen, so prices have remained unchanged. Buying is chiefly for immediate requirements, and holders are asking good prices, as they know the situation cannot change for some time. The New Zealand product is not arriving any too freely, at the present moment.

Considerable butter has been sent out of the country therefore the market is in a more healthy condition now, than for some time. Although stocks are pretty liberal, it is beginning to look as if all this surplus stock would be required before the beginning of the new season. Some even think that we will see some stiff prices yet. Reports from the old country state that stocks there are not large. Trade, however, is decidedly dull. There is a lot of Siberian stock on the market, which is exerting a depressing effect. The supply of colonial is fast disappearing. Receipts of butter at Montreal for the season, since May 1, 1908, have been 419,624 packages against 415,483 packages, for the same period of last year.

The prices of cured meats in England have advanced, so that it would now pay our packers to export, but on account of the scarcity of hogs and the active demand here, they are not prepared to take advantage of it.

Egg trade is in a healthy condition. The supply and demand nicely balance each other, and there are no complaints about the quality, as there are no old eggs on the market now.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—A feature of the provision trade is the strength of the live hog market and prices have advanced 15 cents per 100 lbs. The demand is good from packers and supplies coming forward are ample to fill all requirements. An active trade was done and sales of selected lots were made at $7.75 to $7.80 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars. In sympathy with above, prices for dressed stock were marked up 25 cents per 100 lbs., with sales of abattoir fresh killed at $10.50 to $10.75, Manitoba dressed at $10 to $9.50 per 100 lbs. Lard, both pure and compound, is firm and advances in the near future are expected.

BUTTER—One dealer on Wednesday morning expressed the condition of the butter market as being "sick." Last week it was reported as demoralized. All hope of evading a loss is abandoned, and the most of those who have refused much higher prices some time ago are now letting it go, and take what they can get. Some creamery solids for which 25c was refused not long ago have been sold at 20c. Liberal consignments came in from country storekeepers, who have to face serious losses. No doubt this will have a good effect in the quality of the butter in the future. Some times it takes severe lessons to teach people to consider the fact that consumers will not continue very long to pay their money for goods which are not good enough to use. The butter must be made better, the country storekeeper must get out of his old habits, and the people will use all the butter the country can produce at good paying prices. Good butter creates its own demand.

EGGS—There are no held eggs on the market, and the demand must depend entirely on new laid eggs. The receipts are increasing from day to day, varying a few cents as the weather changes. During the cold snap a few days ago, they went up again to 30c, but are now down to 25c and 26c. Owing to the large demand it is not likely that they will be much lower before Easter.

SELLING SUGAR ABROAD 2c UNDER NEW YORK.

The duty imposed on sugar imported into the United States is a live problem among the wholesale grocers across the line. A committee of wholesalers has been formed to urge a reduction of the duty, as they claim the tariff tax is not needed. In a communication which the secretary of the committee, F. C. Lowry, sends to its members to be placed before the representatives of Congress, he points out that the American Sugar Refining Company has recently sold considerable quantities of sugar for export at nearly two cents per pound less than the price quoted in the domestic market, thus showing that the tariff is not needed by the refiners. He further says that the high rate of tax is not justified as a protective tariff as shown by the fact that our refiners can compete on a free trade basis with foreign refiners in neutral markets.

C. E. Moyle has been appointed as representative for E. W. Gillett Co., Toronto, in Alberta, British Columbia, east of Revelstoke, and North Saskatchewan. He was sales manager for the company in Toronto, for some years, and also looked after their jobbing interests in the city. He has been succeeded as sale manager by J. H. Teakle.

GROCERY ADVERTISING.

How Advertisers in Switzerland and Britain Bombard the People.

From Merchant's Review.

"The reason why some of our domestic manufacturers think they need protection is perhaps more due to insufficient advertising of their wares than to anything else. Some of them plume themselves, and justly, upon the volume and high efficiency of their advertising, but our best in advertising is inferior to the European best.

"A writer in Louisiana Planter says: 'No traveler can fail to be impressed, for example, in Switzerland, with the enormous amount of advertising done by the manufacturers of chocolate. It is safe to say that no business in the miniature republic spends so much money for advertising as this class of men. They vie with one another to have the largest signs, they bombard the people in the papers with display advertisements, all the street cars must have it and statistics show that more chocolate is consumed than ever.'

"Have you noticed how our own food manufacturers 'bombard' the people? Take the American Sugar Refining Company, the big coffee roasting concerns, the large tea importing houses, and notice the feebleness of their advertising bombardment.

"The British advertisers of grocers' specialties could give our own manufacturers some valuable pointers. They use the trade papers more freely than their American cousins are using them, and show greater enterprise as advertisers in every field."

Why, Brother Small, did you not include the wholesale grocers? We know of no trade in which less "bombarding" is done than by the wholesale grocers. It may be that they are under the impression that in the publications published in their interests (for which the manufacturer in a good many instances pays the cost) is sufficient and all that is necessary.

What a grand opening there is in this city for a wholesale grocer who would use printer's ink. It would not be long before he would have his competitors sitting up and taking notice in order to keep their trade.

ELECTRICITY IN FRUIT.

Experiments Made in England Indicate That Electrified Areas Enhance Production.

London, England, March 8.—Some experiments have been made in the vicinity of Bristol, England, to decide whether or not electricity has any influence in forcing the growth of fruits, wheat and vegetables. In order that the effect might be correctly estimated, two crops were grown under similar conditions, one with and the other without the help of electricity. Surprising results have been obtained. In the case of strawberries, on the first pickings 40 per cent. more fruit was gathered in the electrified than in the unelectrified area, which proved also on analysis to contain nearly twice as much sugar. With regard to tomatoes grown out of doors, the early ripening was remarkable, and the yield was 30 per cent. better on the electrified than on the check plot. Wheat in an electrified area of 7.675 acres yielded 32.5 bushels per acre, as compared with 26.15 bushels per acre in the area not so treated.

Some experiments have been carried out in greenhouses also, chiefly devoted to cucumbers, with which the first results of electrifying was earlier bearing, the first month's picking having been found to yield double the quantity obtained from the check pot. This great acceleration, however, did not seem to exhaust the plants, which not only began earlier, but also continued to bear much later than those grown under normal conditions.

It will be seen that if growers can, by means of electricity, place their goods on the market early before a possible glut takes place, much better prices will be obtained than in the ordinary way. It may be asked whether or not the increased outlay on the apparatus is justified by the returns, but at Evesham, where extensive experiments have been carried on during two or three seasons, the growers are more than satisfied.

TIN PLATE DUTY.

It is reported in New York city that the Ways and Means Committee has practically decided not only to retain the present rate of duty on foreign tin plate which is 1¼c per pound, but to provide that no drawback shall be allowed on such tinplate when exported in the form of cans and other packages containing the products of the farm and factories. It is stated that the effect of the removal of the drawback privilege from foreign tinplate would probably be to cause the Standard Oil Co. to abandon its great case-oil plants in this country and ship its oil in bulk to Wales to be put into cans there.

FIRST USE OF COFFEE.

The initial using of coffee is ascribed to the superior of a monastery in Arabia, who, desirous of preventing the monks from sleeping at their nocturnal service, made them drink infusions of coffee, upon the report of shepherds, who observed that their flocks were more lively after browsing on the fruit of the coffee plants. It is claimed that black coffee, dripped, is less injurious than coffee served with cream, but the latter will not be so injurious if allowed to stand until it forms a scum on the cup, which can be lifted off. If you purchase ground coffee, put it in a glass bottle and cork it. It will retain its strength for years if kept in a tightly-sealed tin. If exposed, the aromatic oils evaporate, leaving a tasteless, woody bean.

THE FLOUR AND CEREAL MARKETS

Advance Forecasted in Rolled Oats—Demand is Strong for Flour and the Various Cereals—Good Spring Trade Anticipated.

March 9.—The flour market seems to be quieting down somewhat. Few changes in the quotations as announced a week ago have occurred, although the demand is still firm as no lower prices are anticipated. The millers report the market brightening up and a good spring trade is expected. There is an export demand from Great Britain for low grades but little in the higher grades. Mexico still continues to take large quantities of Canadian wheat and is expected until the end of April, when the present low duty there expires. The demand from that quarter has something to do with the high price of wheat in Canada.

The demand for rolled oats is also good and as the price of oats is very firm they are likely to advance.

Prices are firm for bran, shorts and middlings with a strong demand for all of them.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—Prices remain firm at the recent advance. There was a rumor that the big millers had gone back to the old basis but this is untrue. Trade in winter wheat patents is dull as dealers are well stocked. Millers in the West are offering more freely.

Winter wheat patents		5 50
Straight rollers	4 70	4 80

Five Roses		5 80
Harvest Queen		5 30

Manitoba Patent, anchor brand		5 30

ROLLED OATS—Rolled oats continue firm, under a good demand. There is a rumor that higher prices will prevail before long, but not much confidence is placed in this statement, as it is thought the market will be steady for some time. The price of the raw material continues strong.

Fine oatmeal, bags		2 72½
Standard oatmeal, bags		2 60

Golddust cornmeal, 98-lb bags		2 10
White cornmeal	2 00	2 05

FEED—There has been a strong feeling in the bran market, owing to continued good demand, and limited supply. The demand for shorts and middlings is growing larger every day, and prices are very firm. Stocks held here have been considerably reduced, so supplies are very light.

Ontario bran	21 50	22 00

TORONTO.

FLOUR—The demand for flour has been firm during the week and many inquiries have been received by local millers. The reason is ascribed to the fact that dealers are realizing that prices will not decline in the near future at least. The situation is brightening up considerably. It is expected by some millers that the war among Western men will soon subside and if it does advances in Manitoba may result. Toronto millers quote flour in car lots at 10 cents less than prices given.

Manitoba Wheat.

Strong bakers	5 20	5 30

Winter Wheat.

Straight roller		4 80
Patents	4 90	5 00
Blended	5 30	5 40

CEREALS—Prices remain the same as quoted last week but in the case of rolled oats especially there is a strong probability of an advance. To this fact is attributed the good demand as dealers seem anxious to protect themselves against advances. Oats have been particularly firm in price recently, not having changed for some time. The same cannot be said of wheat, which shows fluctuations. In carload lots 20 cents are taken off in each case.

Rolled wheat in barrels, 100 lbs	2 85
" oats in bags, per bag 90 lbs	2 60
Oatmeal, standard and granulated, in bags 98 lbs	2 85

STARCH PRICES.

Starch prices have been reduced in some instances. The Edwardsburg Starch Co., Limited, advise us that they made these changes so that some of their packages would be more attractive to the retail trade as they are firm believers in showing the retailer a reasonable profit on all of their goods. A careful study of the new price list will prove this point.

VISITORS AT LONDON OFFICE.

London, England, Feb. 27.—Charles E. Edmonds, Secretary-Treasurer of the Christie, Brown Co., who, with Mr. R. Harvey, vice-president of the same company, is now making some business visits in England and Scotland, called at the London office of The Grocer a few days ago. Mr. Edmonds, who has not been in his native land since childhood, in the stress of business affairs, made time to visit the town of his birth, Bideford, Devon. He is expected to arrive in Toronto in a couple of weeks.

Wm. Dobie, President of E. W. Gillett Co., Toronto, has gone on a trip to the southern United States with Mrs. Dobie. Mr. Dobie was in Washington, during the inauguration of President Taft.

AIDS IN ART OF SELLING.

Requisites to Success as Defined by John R. Butler, New York—Politeness and Neatness Necessary.

New York, March 9.—That neatness of appearance, politeness, promptness, integrity and conscientiousness of purpose are necessary to insure success for sales persons was a sentiment expressed by John R. Butler, vice-president of the Simpson Crawford Company, in his lecture at the Women's Night School, Forty-first Street and Third Avenue recently.

In the discussion of his subject, "Salesmanship or the Art of Selling," Mr. Butler said that character is one of the greatest essentials to success in that endeavor. He held that success never is accidental, but the result of painstaking effort.

"You must be neat in appearance, polite to customers and prompt in the discharge of your duty if you hope to be successful," he continued. "Cheerfulness is another great help in selling goods. Industry and integrity of the sales person contributes importantly to success. To be successful one must be true and loyal to one's employer, and one must believe in the house with which he is employed and in the goods he sells. Let the question of salary take care of itself, for if you are faithful your employers will soon discover that fact and act accordingly."

The speakers added that, strangely enough, there were more vacant positions in the big New York stores at salaries ranging from $15 to $150 than there were capable persons to fill them.

CENSURES U. S. MEATS.

Recent Consignments Bearing Government Label Were Found Diseased.

(By Cable to N. Y. Herald.)

London, England, March 8.—Following startling allegations concerning the diseased condition of recent consignments of United States meat made today by Dr. Williams, medical officer of the Port of London, members of the Health Committee say to-night that if the charges be true consumption of such meat by the poor is almost certain to lead to an increase of cancer cases.

These members, Aldermen W. H. Williamson, J. S. Robinson and G. Davies, declared the question to be one of national importance, affecting the health of the whole United Kingdom, and they have appealed to the Corporation to give the discoveries the widest publicity and to take immediate steps to "prevent a recurrence of the disgraceful business."

Dr. Williams presented his report to the City Council at the Guildhall today. He alleged that in a shipment of meat that arrived February 2, consisting of tongues, kidneys, liver, tripe and sweetbreads, he found that 28 sheep livers and 130 tongues were diseased out of a total of 528. There were also 300 frozen hog carcasses on board this ship, of which 15 were minus the lymphatic glands. One carcass was affected with tuberculosis.

"There is no necessity," Dr. Williams says, "of removing the lymphatic glands, unless with some specific object, and presumably in the case of the fifteen carcasses found without glands they had been discovered on inspection in the United States to show some evidence of disease."

Continuing, Dr. Williams points out that in the above consignment more than six hundred cases of tongues, livers, etc., bore an official label indicating that they had been inspected and passed as sound in the country of exportation.

The City Council decided to forward Dr. Williams' report to the Local Government Board with the idea that the allegations therein be brought to the notice of the American Ambassador, Whitelaw Reid, and the various port and sanitary authorities, and that urgent representations be made to the Board to give this matter earnest attention in the interests of the public health.

BLAME ON THE COOK.

Cardinal Manning, the famous English churchman, was gaunt of face. The great ecclesiastic's appearance was so ascetic that he seemed to have been almost starved. Once in Liverpool he visited a convent, and the cook knelt to him for a blessing, which she got.

"May the Lord preserve your eminence," said she, and then, looking at his thin face, she added, "and, oh, may God forgive your cook!"

THE word "Christie" on a biscuit means biscuit perfection to a vast majority of the particular housewives of Canada.

Grocers throughout the wide Dominion, for this and other reasons, extend a preference to Christie's Biscuits—they stock Christie's in preference to all other makes.

The high grade quality of every ounce of raw material entering into our bakes—the absolute cleanliness of the big factory and the high standards governing the entire output—goes far toward explaining the delicious and lasting goodness of Christie's Biscuits.

GENERAL PARCEL DELIVERY IN ST. MARY'S.

(Toronto Star)

One combination for which nothing but good can be said has been formed in St. Mary's. This combination is composed of town merchants, and the object in forming it was to reduce the cost of delivery of purchases to customers. That object has been accomplished.

For many years each merchant in St. Mary's, as is still the case in other towns, maintained his own delivery system. Some four years since, these merchants combined in organizing a single system for the service of all. Under the arrangement made, four wagons are supplied, one for each ward into which the town is divided, and each wagon makes four trips daily over its own route for five days in the week, and five trips on Saturdays. The service so secured is more frequent and more efficient than it was under the old individual plan, and the cost, according to a correspondent of The Canadian Grocer, is from 75 cents to a dollar a day for each merchant, or not over half the amount spent before the co-operative idea was introduced.

The plan might easily be applied in any town of 5,000 or less. It should not be impossible to work out a similar system even in larger places. A very considerable part of the cost of living in urban centres is made up of needless waste involved in the multiplication of delivery wagons.

A new grocery store is established in New Glasgow N.S. Geo. M. Stevens is taking the store formerly occupied by Harry McDougall.

FISH PROTECTED.

A despatch from Ottawa states that by an order-in-council the special fisheries regulations for the Province of Ontario are so amended as to absolutely prohibit the sale and export of black bass, maskinonge, and speckled trout for a period of five years, from and after May 30, 1909.

March 19, 1909

HE DIDN'T have the biggest store in town nor the best corner. He only sold shoes and such like—but he sold good shoes. He used to say, "It hurts me whenever a shoe hurts a customer."

¶ He didn't do as much as other dealers—he did more : he stood for plus ! 'Twas good to talk quality, he thought, but better to deliver it —every time he made a sale he added a new customer.

¶ You don't sell shoes maybe—you're keener on the flour end. But the principle is the same : you cannot afford to give a buyer a bad bargain ; you need satisfied customers to perpetuate your flour demand.

¶ Did you ever handle FIVE ROSES ? Dealers say it fetches the repeat orders. "Near-good" flour is always a barrel of trouble, but FIVE ROSES in many a kitchen is considered only second in importance to the cook herself. Many live dealers use FIVE ROSES as a magnet to draw new customers of whom permanent customers in all lines are easily made. The "live wires" in the retail trade have discovered that they can sell two barrels of FIVE ROSES in less time than it takes to dispose of one barrel "near-good" stuff !

¶ If you only knew what splendid records it's making for dealers, how easily it sells and stays sold, you'd be interested at once. If only we could make you appreciate the money there's in FIVE ROSES, we couldn't keep you out of our list of regular buyers, even if you had to borrow the money to pay for your first order !

GREEN FRUITS—Reports from Port Limon state that floods in the neighborhood have interfered with shipment of bananas. TORONTO.

GREEN APPLES—Apples are more plentiful this week. One of the fruit houses has picked up an exceptionally fine lot, throughout the country and which has arrived in excellent condition. It is claimed they are the best, ever sold at this time of the year in Toronto. They sell as high as $6.50 a barrel. Oranges are in good demand and are of splendid quality. A car of Cuban grape fruit has arrived which is of a very superior quality. It may be interesting to know that there is more fruit consumed in Toronto for its size than any other city in the world. A few years ago we scarcely knew what grape fruit was, and now there are from 1½ to 2 car loads used each week.

TO ADVERTISE RAISINS.

New York, March 9.—A. Gartenlaub, the big Coast packer, has made a definite proposition to the raisin growers of Fresno that if the growers form a legal corporation to buy raisins and allow the packers to sell the crop for them, or at least to pack the crop, the packers of that section will spend $75,000 annually to advertise California raisins.

The proposition presented by Gartenlaub in substance provides that the growers form an organization incorporated under the laws of the State of California. Each grower who joins will be a stockholder. If this corporation can secure the control of the raisin crop of this section so that a standard price can be fixed, the packers will advance the stockholders 2 cents a pound as soon as the raisins are delivered to the packing house. If the packers are allowed to sell the crop for the growers a reasonable price will be taken out for packing charges and the advance money returned, all surplus going to the growers' corporation in the form of dividends. In this way a minimum price of 2 cents will be guaranteed the Eastern buyers. Each grower will be a stockholder in the corporation, the percentage being according to the acreage or tonnage. Gartenlaub stated that he had been advised that a corporation would be legal, while nothing could be done with co-operative associations. In order to accomplish this and gain the confidence of the packers, Gartenlaub declared that it was necessary for the growers to get at least 80 per cent. of the crop.

Opinion regarding this proposition is divided, some believing that a growers' organization can be formed, but not believing that 85 per cent. control is necessary. Others are of the opinion that the growers and packers should work together, each providing a certain portion of the funds, and a third contingent favored the payment of funds for advertisement by the growers alone. No definite action was taken on the proposition, but President Hobbs at the conclusion of the meeting was instructed to appoint a committee of five to report to the Chamber of Commerce their idea of the best way to advertise raisins.

ANOTHER FORM OF STEALING

Peterboro Clergyman Delivers Sermon on the Non-Payment of Accounts to Merchants—Characterizes the Actions of Those Who Neglect This Duty as Worse Than the Deeds of Thieves—They Profess Friendship But Are Not Faithful.

Peterboro, March 9.—Merchants of the Liftlock City have not to fight their battles in the collection of accounts alone. Frequently the clergy of this city have appealed to their congregations along these lines, advising them from a moral standpoint to pay their merchants' accounts.

In a strong sermon delivered by Rev. Father McColl, rector of St. Peter's Church, last Sunday, he characterized the person who deliberately buys goods on credit without any intention to pay for them, as worse than the thief who enters a store or house by stealth and steals.

His sermon dealt with the different forms of stealing, but in particular upon the phase of it relating to those people who borrow money or contract accounts with merchants and have no serious thoughts of settling up.

Pretends Friendship.

There were various forms of stealing, he said. The robber enters a house and with a pistol takes by force; the burglar enters by stealth, but there was a meaner way than either of these. There was a certain amount of honor in the man with the pistol, but meaner was he who takes your money, pretends to be your friend, tells falsehoods about repaying it and at the same time does not intend to pay it. Persons of this kind were just as bad if not worse than those who steal openly with a revolver.

People, he maintained, should live according to Christian principles. If we are not well provided with money or if we are in poverty we can at least be honest, upright and respectable. He gave, as an illustration, the lives of Christ, His mother, and St. Joseph.

There was a great deal of competition in these times, and if the world were less strenuous the people might live more healthy lives. The strenuosity of to-day is because of the striving among men to have more money than their neighbors, to have more power and in a business and worldly sense to be accounted greater and more influential than those who are vying with them.

Beating Their Way.

Unjust means of doing business was another form of theft, Father McColl stated. The poorer people, moreover, emulate the rich. They, too, contract debts which they know they are unable to make return for, and even obtain things which they do not intend to pay for. In every walk of life people of this kind were found. To use a common expression, they were "beating their way" everywhere. The storekeepers met them, the business men knew them and they were even met with in church circles. Father McColl's sermon was an appeal for honest living. In conclusion, he stated: Let your lives be worthy of Christians such that you will never be ashamed of them."

Another strong advocate of the necessity of character in the payment of accounts among the clergy in Peterboro is Canon Davidson, who periodically reminds his people that one of the essentials of upright living and Christian brotherhood is the straightening out of debts so that men can look each other in the face and live at peace with the world.

GROCER WINS THE PRIZE.

H. C. Davis, Dundas, Gets $100 Worth of Advertising Space Free.

In a recent contest instituted by the Dundas Banner, H. C. Davis has been judged by subscribers to the paper as the most highly esteemed merchant in Wentworth.

Mr. Davis is the head of a flourishing grocery business, was born in Dundas and has lived there all his life. For twelve years he served efficiently on the board of school trustees, and has been on the public library board for two years.

He has always taken a leading place in sports. In the famous baseball team which held the Canadian championship in 1891, he was the pitcher. He was the president of the curling rink which won the Ontario tankard in 1903, and has won many prizes as a marksman. At the present time Mr. Davis is an enthusiastic member of the Dundas Bowling and Curling Club. He is respected by all as an upright and progressive business man and citizen and is a general favorite on account of his kindly manner and generous nature.

By winning in the contest Mr. Davis receives a hundred dollars worth of advertising space in the Banner and the Business Man's Library, composed of a six-volume set of books.

BUSINESS AT GOW GANDA.

W. F. Morley of the Canada Brokerage Co., has returned from a business trip to Gow Ganda. Mr. Morley had a most interesting and satisfactory trip in the north. In conversation with a Grocer representative he stated that there was already a heavy rush of prospectors into that new mining district but he considered that on the opening of spring there could not help but be a congestion. At present there are over a hundred car loads of supplies for Gow Ganda at Englehart, Charlton and Elk City. What impressed Mr. Morley so keenly was the enthusiasm of everybody there. He was of the opinion that this was no poor man's boom as everybody was apparently well supplied with funds and from reports he heard the spring business prospects were good.

Reginald E. Green, of Green & Co., Toronto, has returned from a couple of months trip to London, and other Old Country cities. Mr. Green represents in Canada, Branson's Coffee Essence, Champion's Vinegar, and E. J. Nation & Co., Bristol. It is understood he is working up a nice trade for these companies in this country.

THE GROCER'S ENCYCLOPEDIA

Various Kinds of Raisins and Where They Secure Their Names—Manufactured From Some Classes of Grapes—What They Are Used for and Where Canadian Supply Comes From.

RAISINS—Of all dried fruits raisins have always been the most popular, and have even served as a medium of exchange. They are usually named after the country or district from which they come, and sometimes from the species of grape. Hence we have Muscatels, Blooms, Sultanas, Caraburnas, Malagas, Lexias Valentias, Black Smyrnas, Alicantes, Denias, Elemes and many others.

Probably the best known kinds are the Spanish Denias, (Pasas de Denia), of which there are two varieties, and the Pasas de Malaga, of which there are three, La Moscatel, La Flor and El Sol. There is another variety called Pasas de Legia (Lexias).

Not all grapes, are however, suitable for making into raisins, but only the fleshy varieties, which develop abundant Saccharine matter. A large amount of the raisins coming to this country, are produced on a narrow tract of Spain, on the Mediterranean border, and especially in the Malaga district, whence have come the finest Muscatels. Others are grown in Greece, Italy, Southern France, Turkey and Persia, also in Australia, California and the Cape of Good Hope. The Greek crop is now limited almost entirely to Messina, and Laconia, and is mainly brought up by Patras merchants, for export to England, and America. Of some 30,000 to 50,000 tons produced in California, over three-quarters are grown in Tresno county.

Gathering of the Grapes.

Raisin grapes are most extensively cultivated, around Denia in Spain, and the variety grown there, is coming into competition with the Malaga product. In Malaga, where there is no fear of rain, they are usually cut in bunches, when ripe. These bunches are then dried in the sun, and that requires two or three weeks. In Denia this cannot be done, on account of the climatic changes and the grapes are therefore dipped into hot lye, made by dissolving the alkali out of wood ashes, and quick-lime with water, and then adding a pint of olive oil, and a handful of salt, to each four gallons. This causes the saccharine secretions to exude, to the surface, and give the peculiar brown varnished appearance, to the fruit. The oil also helps the wrinkling, and brightens the appearance. This rapid process of curing, permits Denia raisins to be exported at a lower price, and earlier than those from Malaga, but they do not after all, present such an attractive appearance as the latter.

They are packed in boxes of 22 lbs. net. The finest are classified as Royal Clusters. There also come "Choicest Clusters, Choice Clusters, Black Baskets, Dehesa Layers, Imperial Cabinet, London Layers, Faced and Loose."

A Castile Legend.

In old Castile a delightful legend exists, that grapes to be successfully cured for winter, must be cut off the vines, carried to the lofts, and hung up to dry, without being looked at. The peasant women, therefore, on approaching the vines, close their eyes or bandage them over while groping for the bunches, cutting them off and placing them in the basket; and when this is full, they cover the top with vine leaves. They then open their eyes, but on arriving at the drying loft, the eyes are again religiously closed, or bandaged, while hanging up the bunches.

The Uses of Raisins.

In packing raisins, especially Muscatels, the Spanish method of showing the stems is now generally adopted, so that in opening a box, care should be taken to remove the right lid, and commence at the top. Raisins are used in pastry making, and cooking of pies, puddings, bun loaf, etc., and as a dessert fruit.

They are judged by size, color, and fleshiness, and are also used extensively in making and flavoring ordinary wines, as well as "raisin wine." Distillers use large quantities of them. The white Muscatel is always in great demand in Switzerland, and Austria, for the making of vermouth.

Raisins contain more sugar, and less acid, than fresh grapes, and are more laxative. Eaten to excess they are very apt to derange the stomach. The small seedless varieties, are much in demand by cake makers, but being gathered young and unripe possess little flavor, and will not keep so long, as the full grown kinds, in their ripened state. Of late the seeded raisin has come much into use. The chief difficulty is in preventing the raisin from "candying" after the seeds have been removed. Many preparations have been put onto the market to prevent this taking place. Muscatels maintain their fine qualities for a longer time, than stoned Valencias. For some time there was a certain amount of prejudice against seeded raisins, each housewife preferring to seed her own, but this has of late practically disappeared.

HOW THEY WORK

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10 — no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best.

"Enterprise" Economy

An Enterprising grocer, who does things right, uses an "Enterprise" Electrically-Driven Coffee Mill.

The right way is also the cheapest way in the end. It always pays. Take the experience of the Philadelphia grocer who grinds 15,000 pounds of coffee a month with an "Enterprise" Mill electrically-driven at a cost for current of $3.00.

He bought the Mill as a great convenience—a time and labor saver, and an up-to-date attraction for his store. Its economy astonished him.

Look through our catalogue and you will find Mills of any capacity, any power required, for direct or alternating current. Your local power supply company will co-operate with advice and assistance.

The Mill illustrated here is No. 08712, fitted with ½ horse power motor for alternating current. Capacity of each iron hopper, 6 pounds of coffee. One Mill is fitted with grinders for granulating, the other for pulverizing. Granulates 2 pounds of coffee per minute, and can be regulated for fine or coarse grinding while mill is running. If you haven't the catalogue showing all our Mills, write for a copy to-day.

ON

BANNER, CANADA, ONTARIO and HICONE LAMP BURNERS

The screw part or burner-base is covered, which protects against fire. Many burners are made cheaper by leaving the screw part open so that dust, dead insects, or charred portions of wick may collect thus becoming saturated with oil and liable to catch fire. OURS DON'T.

Worms in Horses and All Live Stock

The eradication of worms from horses and other animals is one of the most striking features of Molassine Meal, and is proof of its unique properties. When

is used regularly—although it is quite free from arsenic or drugs—in consequence of its antiseptic properties, all foul or putrid matter is evacuated, worms cannot live, and are naturally expelled.

A food which has effects like this must command the attention of all persons interested in the feeding of horses and cattle.

NOTICE—Users of Pitner Gasoline Lamps are warned against being induced to purchase parts of other makes of lamps to be used on the Pitner. The most vital part of any lamp is its generator, and the Pitner generator has been granted a patent in Canada, the United States and other countries, on the principle of its improved method of generating gasoline vapour. Supplies and parts for the Pitner Lamps can be received by return mail by applying to our representatives or direct to the Pitner Lighting Co., Limited 36-38 Lombard St., Toronto, Ont.

MAPLE SUGAR—Cakes or tins. Written guarantee of purity. Woodman & McKee, Coaticook, Que. (19p)

IF you are looking for a side line to add to your business, there is none better than COLUMBIA GRAPHOPHONES, Double Disc Records (which means two records for a single price) and Indestructible Records (that will not break or wear out no matter how much you abuse them). The Columbia Phonograph Company is the only firm that manufactures both Disc and Cylinder Machines and Records, therefore, a Columbia dealer has the advantage over all others, as he can furnish his customers with what they want while his competitor has to sell them what he has or lose the sale, which he generally does where there is a Columbia dealer. Are Columbia goods sold in your town? If not, why not? Do you want the exclusive agency? (remember exclusive). You had better write to-day or some one else in your town will read this advertisement and beat you to it. A postal will bring catalogues and full information free Write to-day. Do it now. TORONTO PHONOGRAPH CO., Limited, Exclusive Columbia Jobbers, 40 Melinda St., Toronto, Canada.

LITTLE HELPS or GREAT HELPS?

"Every little helps"—yes it does.

However many "little helps" a grocer may have, Great Helps are a necessity to establish and round out successful trade; and to the latter belong

The Case of the Nimble Sixpence

Read Our Next

(4) "LET THE WOMEN VOTE" (4)

March 26, 1909

PRETTY good customer of ours is Mustavit. Let's see, selling FIVE ROSES now at least fifteen years; takes about two cars monthly, although that's a lot more than he did when his first order came in.

¶ Had pretty strong opposition, too. One day, while leaning over a barrel of ROSES smoking a cheerful pipe, he was hailed from the "store across the street": "Say, you're a pretty idiot buying FIVE ROSES and pushing it when you could net bigger money on some other flour." Mustavit always replied: "Maybe so, but I've an idea."

¶ Thought it all out years ago, that idea of his. An average retailer on small capital, occupying small quarters and selling at small profits—he couldn't afford to take chances, couldn't tie up his small capital in doubtful-sale goods. Couldn't afford because of a "confidential" price to have "near-good" flour fall deeply in love with his small store space.

¶ First he handled two flours—FIVE ROSES and a bigger-profit brand. Soon found he sold four barrels ROSES in less time with less trouble than one barrel of shop-worn though bigger-profit' stuff. Deducting time occupied making sale, storage cost and general dissatisfaction, he decided wisely on handling ROSES exclusively.

¶ Although the profit per barrel was a trifle less, experience taught that by selling so many more barrels and saving so much time and consequent trouble his capital was turned oftener—another case of the "nimble sixpence."

¶ If your clerk's time is nothing to you, and the flour on which you make a bigger per barrel profit is really "just as good," go ahead and sell it. It's our loss. But, if your yearly turnover is more to you than the bigger paper profit on one barrel—why, you've got to push FIVE ROSES.

$1.00 Sold $25 Worth of Groceries

It was a thirty-mile trip to town and the instructions of Mrs. Smith to husband John were to get a dollar's worth of Windsor Salt at the grocer's – naturally husband John secured his entire list of groceries at the store that was stocked with "Windsor." He spent twenty-five dollars in that particular store.

The reason why Mrs. Smith was determined to have Windsor Salt was and is plainly evident—its uniform excellence, purity, whiteness and dryness. It pays to sell the salt that helps to sell other goods in the store.

Laboratory of Provincial Government Analyst

Montreal, February 22nd, 1909.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co.'s Extra STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 150 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent. of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

The Cart Before the Horse

(By A. B. Lever)

The calendar is all right in its place.

Its place, however, is not substitution for trade, magazine, or ordinary newspaper advertising.

The calendar as an advertising medium is supplementary only to these.

Even the circular letter ranks higher in importance.

If, after the proper mediums have been judiciously provided for, there is money to spare for artistic calendars which are designed to please, not to sell, well and good.

But don't put the cart before the horse in advertising.

Education to Consumers Included in the Advertising

Important Points in Forsyth's and Campbell's Ads., Which are Reproduced Here—Attractive Talks to the Readers the Feature of Former—Recipes in the Latter Highly Commendable—Improvements Suggested.

Advertising is rapidly becoming an important part in the advancement of sales in a grocery store. Herewith are reproduced two advertisements from newspapers in Dartmouth, N.S., and Elora, Ont., showing to what advantage printer's ink may be put in the arrangement and effectiveness of advertisements.

The one is that of Forsyth, Jr., of Dartmouth, whose ads. are always interesting and which always impart information beneficial to the housewife. The original ad. covered half a page of the newspaper and its general appearance as will be observed from the reproduction is nest and attractive.

The educational value of an ad. should always appeal to the interested reader and that of Forsyth seems to be along the proper lines. For instance, when it is said of herring: "Fine, fat, Newfoundland herring, of good size, and excellent flavor. Try soaking them and drying and broiling them. They are very tasty," it makes one feel like trying them.

Again, "An oyster stew for supper on a cold night is something not to be despised," should be a good drawing card for oysters. The other departments of the ad. ring with the same effective sound, and from a theoretic point of view the whole advertisement should be a good seller. The adding of the phrase at the bottom of the page, "The man who makes good his ads.," is a good feature, as it lends strength to the drawing power.

Campbell's Orange Ad.

The reproduction of the other advertisement, which occupied a space 9 ins. by 6½ ins. in an Elora paper, also shows an ad. which should have brought good results. There are some particularly good features about it which deserve close attention.

There are one or two parts to it that might probably be omitted, but on the whole it seems to be a splendid advertisement. For example, the question and assertion, "Did you ever hear an orange? Listen! hear about them now," while not at all objectionable, does not appear in theory to have a great deal of interest to the reader. Also in the latter part of the ad. the words, "Who says so? Campbell's," and, "Who will say so? Everybody," might also be eliminated without losing much of the effect.

One of the features of this ad. is the introduction of the two recipes on how to make orange jelly and orange marmalade. These should be read with interest by every housewife who picks up the paper, and should necessarily make her think of Campbell's oranges. Another splendid idea is the education given as to the different varieties of the oranges sold. The prices which follow would probably catch the eye more rapidly were they printed in a little heavier type. The advertisement is a good one and its selling ability should have also been good.

Lowrey's Department Store.

Advertisements used by Chas. Lowrey, proprietor of a department store at St. David's, Ont., have also been received for criticism, but as they covered various lines of goods sold it was not considered advisable to have them reproduced. They possess a bright appearance, being nicely illustrated and attractive. The prices in the grocery and crockery departments are plainly shown so as to catch the eye. Probably some short educative talks about each of the articles advertised might prove of a little more benefit. The talk given at the top of one of them is interesting.

The Canadian Grocer invites its readers to send in samples of their advertisements used and it will be the duty of the ad. critic to tell how, in his opinion, they may be improved.

Development of Refrigerators in Grocery Trade

Essential to the Grocer Carrying Food Stuffs Who Wishes to Be Abreast With the Times—Perfection Seems to Have Been Secured—Results of Cold Storage Examinations.

In view of the ever increasing demand of the public for a greater variety and a larger volume of perishable goods the refrigerator has become an absolute necessity to every store which carries food stuffs. The value of ample cold storage facilities cannot be too strongly urged. In many cases the amount of stock which perishes every year for want of refrigeration is sufficient to buy the plant many times over. In any case it is essential to keep goods in a fresh condition even though there is no chance of them deteriorating before sale.

In the days before the modern refrigerator was developed a cold cellar was the only place available but it is for many reasons inadequate for the purposes. At first when refrigerators began to make their appearance in the smaller towns they were useless on account of no general ice delivery. Those who were progressive, however, soon overcame this difficulty, by putting up ice for themselves. It was not long though before someone saw a little money in an ice delivery and now they are an integral part of the economic life of the smallest villages. In this way a difficulty which largely precluded the use of refrigerators has disappeared and they are a part of every well ordered store.

Perfection Secured.

Some of the latest models are about as perfect as human ingenuity can make them. The chief point of a good refrigerator seems to be accessibility and in this respect they have gone far. So sanitary have they become that one which is not absolutely so has only a meagre chance among its competitors.

Another salient feature is the impossibility of anything becoming contaminated even in case the ice used is impure. The development of the refrigerator has been so rapid and has now reached such perfection that it is an absolute necessity to every up-to-date grocer. The heat of our Canadian summer makes it absolutely necessary that some cool place be provided for butter, lard, fish, eggs, milk, etc., and the refrigerator handily fills the bill. It's use has become widespread and is continuing so.

Revolution to the Trade.

What cold storage equipment has done for the shipment of goods by rail and steamship, the refrigerator has done for the grocer. The introduction of this valuable assistant into the store has proven practically a revolution in the trade during the past couple of decades.

Apropos to this question the report of the Bureau of Chemistry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, on the effects of cold storage upon eggs and chickens will be interesting. It shows how long these commodities can be held without much deterioriation.

Eggs Change Rapidly.

The general conclusions given are that eggs in storage for one year show a 10 per cent. loss of weight, largely in water from the white. Eggs after storage for 16.5 months lose their power of cohesion, and emit a characteristic musty odor a few hours after opening. The work also indicates that the eggs begin to deteriorate considerably after the first three months of storage. In fact, at the end of six or eight months, it is stated, "there is an entire change in the character of the eggs, the yolk and white having blended so that it was necessary to examine the total egg rather than its constituent layers."

Drawn Versus Undrawn.

The much-discussed question of whether drawn or undrawn poultry for cold storage has interesting light thrown on it in the report which, discussing chickens, says, besides the table tests, fowls were subjected to a microscopic examination before being cooked. When the chickens had been in storage for 6.5 months, the verdict was that both externally and internally the undrawn bird was better in odor and appearance than the drawn cold-storage bird. After 15.5 months of cold storage the undrawn bird again presented a better appearance generally than the drawn one, both internally and externally. The flesh of the two fowls was somewhat discolored, but the odor was not bad. The liver, the lungs, and the muscle tissue were all in better condition in the undrawn chicken. On January 23rd, 1908, when the chickens had been in cold storage for 18.5 months, they were again examined. There was practically no disagreement as to the inferiority of the undrawn bird in this test, both the internal and external appearance, and also the odor, showing clear evidences of degeneration. The conclusion drawn from the examination of the uncooked chicken is that after 12 or 15 months of cold storage the undrawn chicken appears better than the drawn, while after 18 months in storage the undrawn chicken is in the worse condition of the two in every respect.

Breakfast Food Window of Immense Proportions

Grocers Have Splendid Opportunities in Making Artistic Displays—Fifteen Thousand Cartons Used in Window Illustration.

In the dressing of windows grocers have a splendid article to work with when it comes to breakfast foods in cartons. The display can certainly be made an artistic one, and the more splendid example of what can be done in the way of breakfast food display. The article shown is "Force" and the window is one that appeared in the grocery department of Gimel Bros., Philadelphia, Pa. This display has been commented on as one of the finest cereal displays ever constructed. It is one of the methods being adopted by the H-O. Company in their advertising campaign.

The display consists of four large arches—as shown in the picture—and the number of cartons used in the construction of the columns is about 15,000. The distance between the columns is 28 feet and the center of the arch is 22 feet above the floor, which will give readers a small idea of the size of this mammoth grocery department, which, by the way, is located on the ground floor of their Philadelphia store.

The Method of Advertising Chiclets in Canada

Several Thousands of Dollars Spent With Good Results—Factory Facilities Had to be Enlarged After the First Year —Street Car and Billboard Campaign.

By Paul Lewis, in Printers' Ink.

Chiclets is a peculiarly appropriate subject for this particular issue of Printers' Ink because this popular chewing gum is one of the most-advertised products in Canada at this time and the advertising is confined wholly to cars and billboards. A Chiclets card is to be seen in every street car in the Dominion, and boards are used wherever there is a bill-posting service. A new factory has been erected in Toronto recently to supply the fast-increasing business.

According to Mayer Swaab, Jr., secretary and general manager of Frank H. Fleer Co., Inc., makers of Chiclets, this factory represents the difference between what advertising and Chiclets together were expected to do and what they really did.

When the then new candy-coated gum was first introduced into Canada four years ago, a fair-sized factory, considered large enough to supply all demands for many years, was erected. Within a year it was running to capacity. Another year brought the necessity for enlarged facilities and a new factory was planned. This structure, one of the most thoroughly equipped chewing gum factories in the world, was completed last fall.

The first year's advertising, after a system of distribution had been perfected, was strictly a newspaper campaign, chiefly centered in the larger cities. Several thousands of dollars were spent in the newspapers and good results were realized. For the following year it was resolved to lay aside the newspapers temporarily and go outdoors. Two and four-sheet posters and some paint work were used and board space was taken in every town in Canada where a regular service was to be had. Response to this campaign was so immediate and returns so great that Chiclets have remained on the billboards of Canada for the last three years and are likely to stay there for some time to come, though newspapers will, of course, still be used.

Last year the outdoor display campaign was extended to street cars and now, as mentioned before, every car in Canada carries a Chiclet card.

Mr. Swaab was asked which, in his opinion, had proven most valuable, newspapers, billboards or car cards.

"That is impossible to say," he replied- "The newspapers did their work of introduction and did it most satisfactorily. Without the newspapers, I do not believe we could have gained our foothold in the larger cities, notably Toronto and Montreal.

"But for the continued campaign, we have found that on this particular proposition, in Canada, the cars and billboards are somewhat more effective than newspapers at less cost, for a localized campaign outside of large cities.

"Between the cars and the boards, of course it is impossible to distinguish in the matter of results. They are coordinate branches of outdoor publicity and we consider both very valuable in promoting Chiclets."

The poster and card work for Chiclets has been of exceptionally high grade. From the very first it has been the care of Mr. Swaab to emphasize daintiness and tastefulness in the advertising of this product. No art work which could even suggest coarseness or vulgarity has been accepted. Chiclets are a chewing gum in a dainty form which makes them a sort of confection, and they are bought largely by a class of persons who would never be associated with gum-chewing. The packages are most inviting. One of these is the only twenty-five cent packet of chewing gum on the market. Large boxes, in which bulk goods are displayed by the retailer having inner lids of glass to protect the contents from dust and germs and small green bugs in the store go with each box. Such features have been rightly considered as a part of the advertising.

The finickiness which characterizes posters and car cards includes of course all the store display cards and signs which are furnished to retailers in great numbers. No art talent is too good to make Chiclets display cards.

Words for the copy are chosen just as carefully as the pictures. This description: "The dainty pearl-gray, mint-covered, candy-coated Chewing Gum," and the slogan, "Really delightful," are employed in all the advertising—newspaper, street car and billboard. They come pretty near to telling the whole story and little else is needed. The chief talking-point, when any is used, is the value of Chiclets as an aid to digestion and breath-sweetener. About fifty per cent. of the ads used in the Province of Quebec appear in the French language, by the way.

All the distribution is through jobbers—the company does not sell to retailers.

In the United States, the present advertising of Chiclets consists of some street car work in Brooklyn, Philadelphia and St. Louis territory. A campaign of large proportions will be started in April, involving the use of thirty-five monthly magazines and eight weeklies, newspapers, street cars and bill-boards in all sections of the country. The magazine appropriation will be duplicated in the newspapers and an amount equal to double this sum will be spent on car cards and billboards. The magazine copy will vary from quarter to full pages. The business will be placed by Arnold & Dyer, Philadelphia.

This campaign is designed wholly to stimulate consumption and not to open up new territory, as the country is thoroughly covered by the system of distribution. The United States trade is supplied from the Fleer & Co.' factory in Philadelphia, which is the largest chewing gum factory in the world.

8 AND 9 CENT DUTY ON TEA.

Just before going to press it was announced that the duty on tea as recommended by the Ways and Means Committee of the U.S., will be 8 cents coming direct from the country in which it is produced, and 9 cents coming through another country. This, of course, has yet to pass Congress. G. Larkin, of the Salada Tea Co., states that if this goes through, it simply means an advance of 10 cents to consumers.

RATHER PRESUMPTUOUS.

It was rather presumptuous of E. M. Trowern, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, to appear before a committee of the Ontario Legislature on Tuesday and oppose Phillip H. Bowyer's amendment to the Pharmacy Act.

It is quite true that the Retail Druggists' Association is one of the affiliated organizations of the Retail Merchants' Association, and is opposed to the amendment, but as the membership of the latter association is largely composed of retail merchants who are adversely affected by the act passed by the Legislature last year, it would have been much better and much more in the interests of his general association if Mr. Trowern had not obtruded himself upon the committee when the amendments were under consideration, and the rebuke he received from the members of the committee who are also merchants was by no means undeserved.

When the Legislature last year allowed to slip through at the instigation of the druggists a provision which prevented general merchants selling harmless medicines it certainly went beyond its province, and Mr. Trowern must know this as well as anybody else.

A general merchant is just as competent to sell patent medicines in package form as a druggist, and if general merchants are prevented from handling them they can be just as easily obtained, without question, and in just as dangerous form from a druggist as from the ordinary general merchant.

It is to be hoped that the Legislature will adopt Mr. Bowyer's amendment.

Could there be a better illustration of the necessity of separate organizations for the different lines of trade than Mr. Trowern's unwise, though perhaps unintentional, action on T uesday last?

BUSINESS MEN, NOT PARTIZANS, WANTED.

With the transference of the man who is now at Leeds to Shanghai, there will be two vacancies in the Canadian Commercial Agency service in Great Britain. The other vacancy is at Birmingham.

It is to be hoped that in filling these positions none but experienced business men will be appointed. While there are some good men on the staff of the Canadian Commercial Agency service, it is on the whole weak. Little else could be expected as most of the men have been appointed, not on account of their business ability, but on account of service to party.

Efficient service can no more be expected from the ward type of politicians, than can grapes be gathered from thorns or figs from thistles.

Some of the commercial agents are the laughing stock of the business men among whom they are located, and it is not to be wondered at that such organizations as the Canadian Manufacturers' Association should exert themselves in trying to improve the service.

This service costs the country over $50,000 a year, and the business men would not begrudge a much larger sum provided adequate service was given. What is wanted is good service. This we are not on the whole getting at present.

By comparing the consular reports which are sent out by the United States Government at Washington with the weekly reports of the Canadian commercial agents the weakness of our reports is painfully obvious.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS.

In an endeavor to determine the opinions of some of the large manufacturers in the grocery line as to business prospects for the coming year, The Grocer interviewed a number of them during the week. The manufacturers at least are all unanimous that the year 1909 will bring that revival of trade which we looked for last summer after the year of depression before. Trade is brightening up, they claim, and good times are anticipated.

The proprietor of a large Toronto milling concern was one of those interviewed. The farmers, he said, had good crops last year and they are now getting the top prices for their products so that there is plenty of money in the country. Flour is in good demand and with the opening of navigation, accompanied by lower transportation rates, the demand will be increased.

A manufacturer of a breakfast food, viewed the situation similarly. In fact, the business he represented had never been slack during the depressing times. Not being a luxury there was always a demand, but he believed the prospects for the coming year would be particularly bright. This feeling of optimism is in the air and everything points to much better times than we have had during the past couple of years.

FAILURES FOLLOW FAST.

Almost within a week of each other the failures of two companies injurious to the business of the retail trade were announced. These were the Toronto Co-operative Equitable Society and the Dominion Co-operative Association, both of which, although entirely separate concerns, were operated along similar lines.

The Canadian Grocer has always taken a stand against the Dominion Co-operative Association and on several occasions we have opposed and exposed its tactics as our readers are aware. We have urged the retail trade to be on the lookout for the establishment of such concerns and the advice has proven profitable. These two companies have proven failures and the money of the shareholders has practically all been lost. Their stores are closed, so far as they are concerned, and their stockholders who were to get "cheaper goods" and make "six per cent on their money invested," are out of pocket and have to purchase their provisions elsewhere.

WILL PROVISION PRICES DECLINE?

If present indications count for much, and if the opinions of packers and grain men expressed in their interviews in this number of The Grocer are worth anything at all, then the answer to the above query is that prices will not come down in the near future.

Grain men and those conversant with the conditions of this country's, and the world's food products aver that while the present prices of wheat, oats, barley, corn and peas are unduly inflated and outrageously high when compared with the average of the past twenty years, there does not appear to be any prospect of relief. True, there is a surplus of corn in the United States amounting to $85,000,000, but Argentine went below the average last year, and both export and home consumption are rapidly pulling down this huge visible supply. It will be August before another harvest is garnered.

Oats are being imported into the U.S. from Canada and South America, and those stockmen unable and unwilling to import, pay the duty, and the consequent high price must perforce turn to some other feed. Corn seems to be the readiest obtainable. Corn is about 5 cents lower than at this time a year ago, and barley seems to be the most reasonable grain. All the others command too high a price to feed to cattle; This was also the condition last year when many farmers in Ontario slaughtered their cattle because they could not afford to pay the high price for feed.

Provision men say supplies—both cattle and hogs—are short, and just now they are paying top-most prices to farmers for their animals. This, taken into consideration with the fact that feed is so very high, leads them to believe that it will be some time before meat and provisions come to a lower price level—and the argument appears to be a good one.

THE HANDLING OF FISH.

There are at the present time a large number of grocers in Canada who deal in the fish trade and who find it profitable. There are also some who find that their business has not been what they desired and expected, and it is up to them to determine the reason why.

As will be observed in the news columns of this week's issue, the views of scores of retail grocers throughout Ontario are presented by a number of our correspondents and a perusal of their experiences in carrying lines of fish will prove of much interest, and, we hope, of benefit to our readers.

It is shown that where a little special care and attention is exercised, the handling of fish has proven profitable. It is a recognized fact that the consumption of fish has rapidly increased in Canada during the past twenty years, and that the industry is an important one for the Dominion.

In the correspondence from St. Catharines it will be seen that a store there gave some special attention to the handling and displaying of fish by means of a galvanized pan installed in the window. The manager states that the gross profit amounts to from twenty-five to thirty-five per cent. Also in the correspondence from other places grocers affirm that where care is shown they have profits. On the contrary where a merchant does not attempt to advance his sales or display his products he must necessarily have little demand for them. This phase of the situation is well exemplified in the correspondence from Barrie, where a merchant once purchased two kegs of pickled fish, put them in his cellar and went down for them on demand. No person could possibly make a profit while doing business in such a manner.

TAKE STOCK OF YOURSELF.

The reason that some men do not succeed in business is simply because they do not deserve success. They are so intent on chasing the almighty dollar that they never take time to indulge in a little self examination. They may be very particular about talking stock of their goods and chattels every year to find where they stand financially, but it never dawns on many of them to make use of a few minutes in taking stock of themselves. And what does taking stock of one's self mean? Broadly interpreted it is an effort to see yourself as others do. More specifically defined it means, are you strictly honest? Honesty is a comprehensive term and implies more than simply paying your debts and meeting promptly monetary obligations. The majority of men do that but, are they honest with themselves, their conscience, and their convictions? Too many make promises — rashly, thoughtlessly—which they evidently do not intend to fulfill. They will promise to give a traveler an order the next time that he calls. They will tell a customer that a certain line of goods is equally as valuable as the brand called for. They will inform a housewife that they are "just out of a particular thing but that they expect a fresh arrival in to-day without fail," and lastly, but perhaps the worst and most annoying of all, they will solemnly agree to have a job completed by a specific date, or to have goods delivered in time for dinner or tea, knowing full well that their delivery outfit cannot possibly get around to the house within the time mentioned. They regard all this as clever, diplomatic or "part of the business" as one merchant recently put it. They may think that such subterfuges retain custom, but they are very much in error. There is nothing which will in the end drive patronage away more effectually than failing to perform what was promised. The non-arrival of butter, sugar, or meats, etc., in time for dinner or tea is enough to set the temper of the best natured housewife on edge, and her order being placed she cannot always readily cancel it or she would.

A Hamilton woman has, in a measure, brought her delinquent grocer to time by saying "I will take the goods C.O.D. providing they reach my house by 11 a.m." If the delivery is later than the hour stipulated she positively refuses acceptance. The plan has worked admirably.

The faults and short-comings, the trials and perplexities, spoken of so freely in business, are not all on the outside of the counter. The reason why some merchants do not succeed is because they do not merit success and a few of the causes are those already referred to. The public is not as gullible as it may at times appear. The memory of a disappointed customer is not as short as many imagine, while patience at times ceases to be a virtue.

THE OLD BEFORE THE NEW.

It is a lamentable fact that in the running of a grocery store a great deal of waste is incurred just because the grocer neglects to sell off the older goods before he begins on his stock of new. A system has been adopted by certain manufacturers and packers whereby they make it compulsory upon the wholesaler and retailer who handle their goods to dispose of all their old goods before they start the new. Their idea is a good one and is a benefit not only to themselves but to the others who handle their products.

When such a system is carried out the manufacturer and packer know that their goods are received into the homes of the consumer in a comparatively fresh condition and if such is the case they create a demand from that consumer again. The manufacturer, the jobber and the retailer all reap the benefits.

If this plan is adhered to by the jobber and retailer a great many losses and complaints will be avoided. The stocks should be carefully looked after. When they are low they should be replenished and care exercised in the proper piling on the shelves so that the older goods will be sold before the new are touched.

This system has been adopted by the Salada Tea Company, which marks the date of packing on every package. E. W. Gillett Company absolutely insists upon jobbers and retailers selling old goods before the new. They have men who visit the warehouses to see whether the stocks are old or not. This has been the case in connection with their yeast for several years.

The shorter the time between the preparation of most goods for market and the sale for consumption, the better will it be for everybody concerned.

BUSINESS MAXIMS.

By Plato, Jr.

Courage with caution is essential in business as well as in warfare.

The lucky man is he who grasps opportunities when they come to him.

The rut which business men fall into becomes deeper and more difficult to get out of the longer it is followed.

He who reads a good trade newspaper possesses a guide which will keep him from falling into ruinous ruts.

He who is satisfied with the "good enough" way of doing things is just bad enough to prevent his securing high marks in the world of commerce.

Honesty and Fair Dealing Wins Him Success

John Goos, in Business Only Two Years, and Has Now a Well-Appointed Grocery Store—Making a Success in the Trade by His Methods of Doing Business.

Among the grocers who have made successes in a comparatively short period of time is John Goos, Walkerton, Ont. An interior view of Mr. Goos' store appears here and when it is considered that he has only been in Canada for seven years and that he just began business for himself in March, 1907, he has certainly been a successful merchant.

Seven years ago Mr. Goos came across the Atlantic from Germany to follow his fortune in this country. Readers of the Grocer will recollect his success as a window-dresser when a few years ago he captured first prize in the display contest. In the month of March, 1907, he purchased the stock of J. W. McIntyre, of Walkerton, and in February, 1908, he bought the business of N. Crawford, combining the two into the present one. He began without a cent of his own money and to honest and fair dealing with his patrons he attributes his success.

A glimpse at the illustration on this page immediately indicates cleanliness, an essential to the good management of any grocery store. It is roomy, but nevertheless is well stocked and in general appearance is certainly inviting.

THAT PHARMACY ACT.

Philip Bowyer, M. P. P., Proposes Amendment to Allow Storekeepers to Sell Harmless Household Medicines.

The proposed amendment to the Pharmacy Act to assist country merchants, introduced by Philip H. Bowyer, M.P.P., came before the Municipal Committee of the Ontario Legislature on Tuesday morning, March 16th, with the result that the question was left in the hands of a sub-committee to deal with. The amendment proposes to allow country storekeepers to keep for sale certain harmless household drugs and remedies now prohibited by the Pharmacy Act.

Mr. Bowyer repeated his argument made in the House some days ago, as to the hardships caused farmers through the prohibition of the sale of things required in everyday use on the farm, and in the home. Mr. Bowyer wanted such things as turpentine, epsom salts, cream of tartar, senna, alum, borax, castor oil, sulphur, glycerine, etc.

G. E. Gibbard, president of the Pharmaceutical Association, referred to the danger that might occur from indiscriminate selling of certain drugs. He produced figures to show the number of deaths due to poisoning in Great Britain through indiscriminate selling. He did not wish favoritism for the druggists, he said, and he had not been lobbying.

"Well, have you any suggestions to make?" interjected W. J. Hanna. "The prosecutions in Kent made the recent amendment look unreasonable. Without unnecessary talk, tell us what your suggestion is."

Mr. Gifford submitted as his opinion that schedule "A" of the Pharmacy Act, which contains the list of scheduled poisons which nobody but a druggist may sell, might be enlarged, but objected to the free sale of quinine, which he said, was frequently used improperly.

"You shouldn't have said that. Everybody will want it now," said Mr. Studholme.

"All I want is to allow a man to go to a country store and buy five cents' worth of quinine or cascara or castor oil, if he wants it. He knows what he wants," said Mr. Bowyer.

"Yes, but the storekeeper doesn't," protested H. Watters, a vice-president of the College of Pharmacy. "How many country storekeepers know that cascara should never be administered before two years of age? That's the point I want to make. The seller is ignorant of the stuff he sells.

"As coming from the other part of Kent from my friend Bowyer where these malicious prosecutions were made, I may say that if Mr. Bowyer had flooded the country with misleading pamphlets like Mr. Gibbard did, the country merchants would have been down here in such numbers that the Parliament Buildings would not have held them. We want this amendment very badly."

The meeting got very hot over the question, and Mr. Hanna's suggestion that a sub-committee be formed went to a tie vote, which was broken by Mr. Hanna himself.

The sub-committee is to be composed of Daly, McKay, Bowyer, Macdiarmid, and Nicol, and will meet representatives of the College of Pharmacy, and try to strike an agreement.

A new building is being erected in Macleod, Alta., for the soap company recently formed there. All grades of soap will be manufactured.

The sale of brandy chocolates is not lawful over the confectionery counter according to Provincial License Inspector Ayearst, but he states they can be sold by hotel keepers over the bar and only to adults.

Talk of Burning Its Coffee Arises in Brazil

Suggestion That 20 Per Cent. Additional Duty Be Paid With Coffee Which is to be Destroyed in Order to Make the Tax Least Burdensome—The Problem of Restricting Shipments to 9,000,000 Bags.

New York, March 17.—There is considerable speculation here as to whether or not the Sao Paulo law in Brazil restricting shipments of the berry to 9,000,000 bags for the year ending June 30, 1909, will prove effective. So far as the payment of the ordinary export tax is concerned, the full 9,000,000 bags have now been arranged for and will in due course come forward. But the interesting question is whether means will not be found to bring forward further supplies, with or without the payment of the additional tax of 20 per cent. that the Sao Paulo law imposes after the 9,000,000 bag limit has been reached.

The 20 p. c. ad valorem is upon the export price at Santos and not upon the warehouse price in New York, which is the basis of New York Coffee Exchange transactions. There has already been a sharp decline in New York prices from the pinnacle reached under the stimulus of duty talk, so that, it is argued, the additional 20 per cent. tax would not necessarily prove prohibitive.

Mail advices received yesterday from Brazil, however, indicate quite a general determination to fight the law, even going so far as to pay the extra tax by a payment in "kind"—viz. in low grade coffee to be destroyed. This is a plan that is quite frequently talked of in Brazil. Incidentally, it would bear rather severely upon the big roasters whose package coffee comprises low grades and who will not improve their grades , even when they can purchase better grades at the same cost as the poor grades. Their policy in this respect is that if they should improve their grades they would be compelled to maintain the improvement when normal relations existed between the low and finer grades.

A Sao Paulo correspondent describes the situation under date of Feb. 8 as follows:

"There remained still to be shipped on Saturday morning 1,116,823 bags. (We hear that the Sao Paulo coffee shipped via Rio is not going to be counted.) The stock on hand is $1,139,479 bags, so that almost every bag of coffee in existence here would be required to fill the 9,000,000 complement. This, however, is impossible, as a large percentage of the stock in hand consists of coffees unsuitable for shipment in their present state (low and lowest qualities). Another quantity, about 50,000 bags, is held under special agreement; in short, we estimate the whole quantity thus available at 250,000 bags, which would have to be supplied from the interior, but as selections there are poor, as far as quality goes, probably double that quantity will be required to give shippers the necessary stuff to fill the 9,000,000 bags open for export, and that would carry us far into the month of March. Besides, the putting on board is going on very slowly, because the coffee carriers have now claimed day's wages, and do as little as they possibly can for that amount, saying quite rightly, 'the more coffee we carry the sooner we shall be out of a job.' Thus Government interference with economical and commercial matters brings its influence to bear even on this merely manual operation.

"It is alleged, first, the stock existent here on July 1, 1908, cannot be included in the export restriction of 9,000,000 of bags, as no law can constitutionally be retroactive; this would set free about 700,000 bags more. The law is promulgated on August 25. It is further suggested to impose the tax in kind (elimination of low grades) in preference to a tax ad valorem of 20 per cent. If tax there must be, it is, of course, the duty of the executive power to make it least burdensome, and it is a matter of calculation only to find that out.

"A tax in kind would bring about speculation in, and consequent retention of, low grades, enhancing their value, and making the value of exportable goods, to a certain extent, dependent upon the price at which the goods to be destroyed can be acquired and would, therefore, bring about a new element of uncertainty into the coffee trade, which would affect both consumers and exporters. Moreover, it would not bring any grist to the mill (the Treasury), but eliminate only a certain quantity, presumably 200,000 to 300,000 bags of low grades by which our neighbors, Rio, Minas and Victoria, would benefit.

Up to the Goveernment.

"Everything," concludes the correspondent, "since the public conscience, so to say, woke up, is in suspense again, and it depends upon the decision the Government will at last arrive at, unfortunately at so late an hour that further uncertainties can hardly be spared to the trade.

"The consuming markets are firm and advancing, but business has become extremely difficult, as all the steamer room available for about 650,000 bags to Europe, 500,000 bags to the States, has been engaged or taken on hand, and so it is risky now to make offers on present basis. Under these conditions it is next to impossible to give any quotations."

VISIT TO LONDON OFFICE.

London, Eng., March 6.—E. D. Smith, Esq., M.P., of Winona, Ontario, was a recent visitor to the London office of The Canadian Grocer. Mr. Smith, accompanitd by Mrs. Smith and daughter, came on a health trip to the Old Country a few weeks ago, the intention being to spend a quiet time in one of the south coast resorts, but the fascinations of London, commercial and otherwise, appealed so strongly to Mr. Smith's many interests, that the stay in the capital has been somewhat prolonged. By the time he reaches home again, however, a number of the principal points of interest both in England and the Continent, will have been visited, and it is hoped that change may have as invigorating an effect as rest. Like other Canadians who visit London at this time of year, Mr. Smith finds the cold, damp atmosphere very trying. He speaks with pleasure of the way in which his products are being shown in some of the grocery shops and was agreeably surprised by the very fine display and prominent position given to his bottled fruits in the windows of the Ontario Emigration offices in the Strand.

WOMEN MAKE PROTESTS.

They Are Induced by Grocers to Sign Petition Against Tariff on Coffee.

New York, March 17.—Dealers in coffee and tea who are making a fight against the proposed tax on coffee and tea importations have appealed to the women to aid them. Many of the retail stores in Greater New York have petitions prominently displayed, urging Congress to refrain from imposing what is termed the "unjust and unnecessary tax," and customers are requested to affix their names to the appeal. The women are told that any tariff imposed by the government on coffee and tea must in the end result in an extra charge to the consumers, and consequently it requires no great effort on the part of the grocers to convince their female patrons of the logic of their argument.

The petitions are almost invariably signed without hesitation. These petitions will be forwarded in a day or two to the ways and means committee of the house of representatives, and it is safe to say when the protest reaches Washington thousands of housewives of the greater city will have recorded their objections to the proposed tariff.

The paper which the women are signing reads as follows:

"A special session of Congress will be convened March 15 to revise the tariff. It is proposed to place a tax of five cents on each pound of coffee and 10 cents on each pound of tea. If you want to avoid paying this unjust and unnecessary tax sign immediately the petition to Congress displayed in our store."

Geo. E. Maybee, Napanee, one of the oldest travelers on the road in connection with groceries and soaps, died very suddenly in Montreal from acute indigestion on Thursday of last week. Mr. Maybee represented the Dominion Soap Co., Hamilton, and was one of the best known travelers on the road.

Edmonton Packing Plant Will Need 1,000 Beeves Per Day—Many Fruit Orchards Being Laid Out in British Columbia—Settlers Arriving in Calgary District—Winnipeg Grocers Dine Travelers.

WINNIPEG.

March 16.—A post-bonspiel banquet given by the retail grocers of this city to their successful competitors, the travelers of Winnipeg, was held in Manitoba Hall last Wednesday night. The grocers lost in the curling contest and according to agreement they supplied the things for the banquet table. It was a merry event, replete with many good stories, jests and songs by some of the best local artists. E. B. Nixon as chairman and leading host, offered his most sincere congratulations to the victors of the games, saying that it was the intention of the grocers to get square with them at the banquet table for the defeat suffered on the ice. A. R. Christie proposed the toast to the victors. S. M. Screaton in response said that as a traveler he was disappointed in Winnipeg, after having been in the city for six weeks. He had come west with the idea of teaching the people how to do business, but found that he himself was the pupil. Instead of antiquated methods which would stand much reforming he had found the most modern, and most attractive stores he had seen in Canada. Instead of being a reformer, he was in the position to return east as a missionary and teacher. E. Tugwell, his companion on the toast list gave a brief address filled with humorous skits and funny stories. The toast to the vanquished was couched in wholly complimentary terms great emphasis being laid on the friendly relationship which existed between the grocers and travelers. The desire to beat each other seemed confined entirely to the sports division. Upon J. A. McKerchar fell the greater portion of the burden of the response. The wholesale trade was well represented, A. McDonald, as dean of the business in Winnipeg, giving the younger generation some exceedingly good advice. He had been in the city for 38 years, and while there had been a great many changes since then, the opportunities for the man ready and able to grasp them had increased in proportion. To-day they were ten to one to what he had found them. Push and perseverance would develop them. It was an excellent idea for the different branches of the trade to get together, and the idea might be still further expanded among the different branches. In a reminiscent mood he told of some of his early experiences, pointing his remarks with some telling statistics. R. R. Scott paid a tribute to the character of the wholesale men of Winnipeg, their integrity and fairness and the high standing of the retailers as a whole. H. Emery went briefly into the rise and growth of the wholesale fruit business of the west. In 1908 the prairie provinces had purchased 600 carloads of oranges, and this year would take about one-third more. Of bananas they had taken 129 cars and of other fruits in proportion. Modern shipping facilities were such that the products of South African, Australian, or South American farms were placed on the Winnipeg markets in excellent condition, and this had been the growth of but recent years. The banquet broke up with many expressions of good fellowship and mutual esteem engendered by contact in business and sport.

CALGARY.

March 16.—Business in grocery lines is quite good, and all are looking forward to the approaching spring.

The Provincial Government of Alberta was dissolved last Saturday, and the date for the new elections has been set for March 22nd. Many of our good business men are strong politicians, and there is with all more or less supressed excitement until the result is finally proclaimed.

Settlers from the east and south are already arriving, and indications are that 1909 will see Alberta's population largely increased. The cities will, as usual, attract many of the newcomers, all of which should benefit the tradesmen. Calgary's city council at Monday's meeting passed estimates for $234,459.50. There are several items not included in this amount, one of which is the completion of the street railway line, and altogether it is estimated that the city council will spend, roughly, about $1,700,000 on public works this year. This amount distributed will certainly benefit the retail ,merchants, and with trade at present good there is every reason to look forward with confidence to the future.

VANCOUVER.

March 16.—J. J. Ferguson, B.S.A., assistant manager of the Swift Company, Chicago, was in the city this week, on his way to Winnipeg, after having inspected the branches of the company on the Coast north of the Mexican border. Mr. Ferguson, by the way, is a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College, of Guelph, and is now confidential man for the big meat packing firm. He will not visit Edmonton on this trip but will come back there, and in the summer will make an extended report on the possibilities of that district. With the packing plant of the Swift Company at Edmonton in operation, the question, Mr. Ferguson says, is whether there will be enough cattle in that neighborhood to supply the plant, which will take 1,000 head of beeves alone per day. When asked, if the Swifts were laying lines to make war in the territory of P. Burns & Company, the firm which long has practically had a monopoly of the meat business in the West, and which still has control in the interior and western Alberta cities, he stated that plans were not that way at present. While that may be, P. Burns & Company are making every effort to be ready if an attempt is made, and it seems that it will keep competitors busy to oust them from the premier place. In Edmonton, they have bought out the large retail establishments of the Williamsons, and rumors are that they are negotiating for the abattoirs, farms and other interests of the same people. The price paid was $22,000. Other companies which have fairly large interests in Western Alberta are the Hull Co., Gainor Co., Vogel Meat Co., Swift Co., and Gallagher. In British Columbia, Blake Wilson, P. Burns & Company's best manager, has moved to the coast. This strengthening of position would indicate that something is in the wind.

The Maundrell Meat Market is a new butcher shop in Revelstoke in the interests of the Swift Company, the stock being supplied from Edmonton.

Jack Richards, who has been with the Cariboo Trading Company at 150-Mile House, has joined W. B. Bailey & Co., of Ashcroft.

G. S. McKenzie has withdrawn from McKenzie & Martin, of Vernon. having sold his interest in that business, and has joined his brother, A. P. McKenzie in the produce and commission business.

Mr. Laidlaw, who has charge of the grocery department of the Fink Mercantile Company, of Cranbrook, B.C., comes in for a good word from the Cranbrook Herald of last week: It says : "The grocery window of the Fink Mercantile Company is a dream. Mr. Laidlaw is an artist in window dressing, and each time he changes the contents of the window it is to try and surpass the decoration previous. It is wonderful where he gets his new ideas from, but get them he does, and he certainly puts up some of the most handsome window displays in the West."

An indication of the growth of the nursery business in British Columbia may be seen in the fact that the Fraser Valley Nurseries, which was established near this city a year ago has paid a dividend, besides carrying a substantial sum forward to the reserve fund. F. J. Hart, one of the directors of the company, stated to the Grocer that last year 200,000 trees were grown on the property, and this year the spring deliveries alone will amount to over $10,000. One order was received this week of 12,000 apple trees from one man. Because of the expansion, a larger tract, probably 100 or 200 acres, will have to be secured. The directors of the concern are J. J. Jones, F. J. Hart, C. F. Spratt, L. C. Hill, G. E. Clayton, C. R. Gordon, P. W. Crankshaw.

Notes From the Maritime Provinces and Quebec

Nova Scotia Gets Ontario Poultry — Pamphlet on the Fisheries Attracts Government Attention — Pork Products Higher—Montreal Grocers May be Prohibited From Selling Milk.

MONTREAL.

March 16.—The milk question seems to be a live issue again, and there is another rumor, that milk will be prohibited from sale in grocery stores. This, however, does not worry the grocers much, as they say there is very little profit in it, and it is kept practically as an accomodation for customers. There is a very general expression of opinion that it is more trouble than it is worth. The whole milk business has suffered during the year.

D. F. Carter, with Thos. Lipton, has returned to the city, from a trip to the Eastern Townships, and Quebec city.

John Robertson & Son, St. Catherine St., are showing a fine window display, of Jell-o this week.

Fraser, Viger are continuing their Orange Drive. They met with such success last year, that many others have this year instituted similar sales. In discussing the matter with Mr. Davidson, the manager, he stated that the success of such a sale depended largely on the time it was started. It would be quite easy to commence too early, owing to the desire to be first in the field. Such a course invariably was a mistake, as the oranges were not ripe and instead of creating a desire for more, it would do precisely the reverse.

The Thomson liner "Fremona" will be the first boat to take a cargo from the ruined city of Messina. A cable has been received at the local agency of the company recently, which states that the 'Fremona' leaves Palermo with a part cargo, and arrives at Messina on March 27. There, she will load green fruit, and after touching at Catania and Sorrento, will proceed to Montreal. She will arrive shortly after the opening of navigation, and will be one of the first if not the first to arrive in the season of 1909. W. A. Coates, of the Thomson Line, who was recently in New York, heard there that the Messina fruit merchants were commencing to do further business in an attempt to build up the trade again.

E. W. Gillett Company, Limited, are running a demonstration in the window of R & M. Kerr, St. Catherine Street, hardware merchants. A chef is there, making biscuits and other things, with the aid of Magic Baking Powder. Lake of the Woods flour is being used, and Regal gas ranges are supplying the heat, so it is somewhat of a three-barreled demonstration. Mr. Murray, the Gillett representative in Montreal, is on hand to help things along.

Brouillet & Guay, corner of Berthelet and University Streets, have discovered a neat way of displaying their oranges. The window is filled with a series of willow baskets, which are always well stocked with the different varieties of the fruit. While this may not appear extraordinary to those who have not seen it, the customer inside the store is impressed especially with this neat row of clean willow baskets, full of fine fruit, and it is certainly attractive. It is a case where simplicity and neatness tells.

Among the buyers in Montreal during the week were : J. R. McLaurin, Vankleek Hill, Ont.; S. Holdengraber, Bathhurst, N.B.; L. Massicotte, Batiscan, Que.; A. Meloche, St. Genevieve, Que.; G. Daoust, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que.; T. Huet, St. Julie de Vercheres, Que.; N. Monchamp, St. Philippe, Que.; C. J. Gervais, St. Constant, Que.; F. Lamarche, St. Henrie de Mascouche, Que.; E. Lahaie, St. Eustache, Que., G. Parent, Pointe Claire, Que.; J. N. Ledoux, Marieville, Que.; H. Tourangeau, Varennes, Que.; F. Gravel, St. Rose, Que.

ST. JOHN.

March 16.—There was no change in the price of staples last week. Eggs are cheaper in the produce market and dealers say there is every prospect of still lower prices. The butter market is considerably off, the quotations being lower than for some years at this season. According to reports from outside there is an over-supply of butter and considerable cold storage stock from last fall is offering. Potatoes are lower, being quoted at $1 to $1.25 a barrel.

In provisions pork and pork products are higher on a firm market. Veal is coming in quite freely and is selling at 10c to 20c a pound. Turkeys are offered at 30c a pound and chickens and fowl are quoted at $1.25 to $1.75 a pair.

Frozen stock predominates in the fish market this week. Rough weather in the bay has handicapped many of the fishermen and few boats ventured out. Many of the lobster traps have been inaccessible for weeks and the only crustaceans available at present are small-sized, selling at 15c each.

Business on the whole had a better tone last week. The country roads are now fairly good and the farmers are arriving in the city in large numbers.

An agitation was started recently about the weight of bread with the result that the bills and by-laws committee of the common council will prepare a bill to make the standard weight of a loaf of baker's bread, two pounds and will also probably fix the weight of "fancy" bread at a pound and a half or one pound ten ounces. A suggestion that may also be considered is that the weight of every loaf shall be plainly marked and a penalty provided for false markings. The question was brought up by the discovery that loaves which were supposed to weigh two pounds would only tip the scales at a little over one and a half pounds, while fancy loaves were found to weight from a pound to a pound and a half.

Some time ago it was stated in these columns that the creameries in this province were not putting full weight in their so-called two-pound prints of butter. In weighing a number of these prints a few days ago, by various dealers, all were found to be of full weight. It would appear that the protest raised has had the desired result.

The grocery store of W. D. Baskin, on the west side, was broken into last week but the alleged culprits were landed by the police and will be tried under the "Speedy Trials Act" by Judge Forbes this week.

Surrey M. Holder, who has been employed with W. F. Hatheway Co. as cashier and city traveler for the past eight or ten years, has made a new departure. He started out on the road this week and will cover the territory in Nova Scotia. Mr. Holder has shown himself very efficient in his work here and should make a success of his new work.

The Provincial Dairy School at Sussex opened on Wednesday of last week with a class of five pupils. The butter course is now being carried on and this will be followed by the cheese course. Dairy Superintendents McDougal and Daigle are in charge.

Chipman Trites, of Moncton, for many years in business as a meat dealer, died on Thursday last at the age of 67 years.

HALIFAX.

March 16.—The indications are that some of those who have been holding butter back will be hard hit this season. In some cases butter can be purchased at retail at lower prices than the wholesalers are asking. This week dealers on Argyle Street were selling choice blocks for 26c a pound, and another dealer in the same block was offering small tubs of fresh dairy butter at 26c. Butter seems to be in good supply, and there will not be any record prices paid this season. Near the close of last year it was predicted that butter would soar when the spring arrived, but the opposite conditions now prevail.

There has also been a drop in the price of eggs. This is mainly due to the more regular steamship service between Prince Edward Island and the mainland. When the steamers are running, the produce is shipped from the island to the mainland, and as a result prices usually drop. Some conditions in the local market are rather puzzling. Butter can be bought cheaper from retailers than from some wholesalers, and the same thing applies to eggs. This week some retailers were selling eggs at 25c per dozen, while the wholesalers are asking 27c by the case.

Apples of a better quality can be bought now than at any tine for several months. Some very choice Northern Spys of fine flavor and highly colored have been marketed recently, and they sold for five dollars per barrel. The local dealers were glad to get them at any price, as there was only the poorest kind of apples to be had in the city.

Poultry is very scarce and the only stock now offering is from Ontario. The turkeys are of an inferior quality, but the fowl and chickens are first-class stock. The turkeys retail from 20c to 21c, and the chickens are selling at 22c. At these prices the demand is not very heavy.

The pamphlet recently issued by the fisheries committee of the Board of Trade and the work in connection therewith appears to be bearing good fruit, as it has awakened an interest in the fisheries all over the province. Early this month a communication was received from a member of the Prince Edward Island Legislature asking that sufficient copies of the pamphlet be sent to allow of one being placed in the hands of each member, and stating that he wished to assist in the matter by having the Island Government make representations to the officials at Ottawa. A fish merchant of Digby has written for a package of the pamphlets to distribute among the fishermen there. Letters from St. John and other parts of New Brunswick show considerable interest is being taken in the matter in the fishing districts of that province. It is possible that a conference on the fisheries will be arranged with the Nova Scotia Government.

The commercial committee of the City Council, and a special committee of the Board of Trade met this week to consider cold storage matters. Two propositions were considered, but nothing definite was arrived at. The two companies are the Arcade Cold Storage Co. and the Nova Scotia Cold Storage Co. The city's representatives are opposed to the granting of any of the concessions asked for by the companies.

Guelph Grocer to Explain Collection System in Brantford—Oil Hold-up Case in Brantford Dismissed—Merchants in Peterboro Interested in Delivery System at St. Mary's—Hamilton Grocers Want to See Change in Pharmacy Act—Plan for collecting Debts Under Discussion in Chatham.

CHATHAM.

March 17.—The devising of a feasible scheme for dealing with bad debts was the chief subject of discussion at the meeting of the Retail Merchants last Tuesday evening. The subject was brought up as a result of an article in the Canadian Grocer some time ago with reference to the system in vogue in Guelph. W. M. Murdock, a former grocer, made a proposition to do all the collecting required for members of the association, charging therefor at a rate of 50c or 75c per member per month. He asked that the system be tried for a couple of months as an experiment, on lines somewhat similar to those at Guelph; adding that he would not only look after the dead beats, but also present accounts to other customers who were good but slow pay, thus saving the expense and time involved in sending out clerks with collections. The proposition came in for considerable discussion, one member urging that instead of leaving the collections entirely in the hands of the collector, his first move would be to induce debtors to call on the merchant and make arrangements directly with him. If this failed, then more decisive measures could be employed. Harry Andrew declared that the only accounts he would feel like placing in the hands of the collector would be those against people whom he didn't want to come back. He was strongly opposed to utilizing the collector in dealing with customers other than proven dead beats, as he felt that by handing over accounts to the official collector, good customers might be driven away. After a considerable discussion the matter was referred to a committee comprising P. Cunningham, T. W. Poile and H. G. Hodges, to look into and report at the next meeting. An interesting address was given by Barrister J. G. Kerr on the law of bargain and sale. The meeting was probably the best attended in the organization's history, and more than usual interest was shown.

N. H. Stevens, president of the Canada Flour Mills Co. and a large bean dealer in this section, was recently elected honorary president of the West Kent Liberal Association. D. J. O'Keeffe, of the Triangle Grocery, Thames St. and Grand Ave., was elected a vice president.

J. F. Cairns, an old Chatham boy, now located in Saskatoon, Sask., visited here last week. Mr. Cairns a few years ago started a small grocery and bakery in Saskatoon. He is now owner of the largest departmental store in the west, outside of Winnipeg.

Mitton & Cameron are opening a grocery in Ridgetown in the premises lately occupied by the Northway Company.

Allison Allen, proprietor of the Comber Creamery, has taken up his residence in that town. The creamery is now being erected, and will likely start operations by May 1.

D. H. Newcomb of Alvinston has erected a new block which he has just opened up as a general store.

Ed. Mayhew, who for several years has carried on business in Thamesville, has purchased the general stock of S. J. McCreery & Co. of Glencoe.

Jack Edgecombe, for the past two years in charge of Tilbury and Belle River canning factories, has been appointed manager of the Dresden factory for the Canadian Canners.

Changes are reported in the Essex canning factory. Mr. Ball has disposed of most of his stock to M. J. O'Brien, the millionaire contractor. Coincident with the removal of the head offices to Essex, Mr. Gray of Belleville has been engaged as manager. The present superintendent, Mr. Graham, has been reengaged.

The Dominion Meat Market, Wallaceburg, owned by Harvey Duchene, was visited by a small blaze last week, the damage being about $75, fully covered by insurance.

Del Davis, who recently purchased the stock of Hargrove Bros., grocery and general store at Sombra, took possession last week.

F. R. Gregory of Leamington, representing the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, has been arranging for the erection of a 40x60 warehouse at Blenheim this spring.

There was a general upward trend in meat prices last Saturday, possibly due to bad roads. Live hogs brought from $6.90 to $7 per cwt., and dressed hogs from $8.50 to $8.75. Potaties brought 85c a bag—a slight increase. Eggs are plentiful, and the price went down to 23c though butter remained steady at 25c. Grocers, however, are able to sell at 23c.

TORONTO.

March 17.—That the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association is steadily growing was evidenced at their regular monthly meeting on Monday night, March 15th, when some half-dozen new members were added to their list. The officers of this year have begun a membership campaign and their brethren in the trade are joining them rapidly. President T. Clark occupied the chair. One of the principal things considered was the annual excursion which always proves such a splendid success. David Bell reported what the committee had done so far and the matter was left with the executive committee to make final arrangements. A communication was received from W. B. Clemes conveying his thanks to the Retail Grocers' Association for the wreath of flowers they sent at the time of his brother's death. The Co-operative Association was referred to and the question was asked what should be done to see that it was not re-organized. The majority of the members, however, considered it best to allow it to die a natural death. No action was taken regarding the formation of an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association as the members thought it advisable to wait until they hear from London and Hamilton as to plans made by one of the Association there. They expressed their desire to aid in the project as soon as their assistance was requested. Some of the grocers are becoming experts on the bowling alley and all are very enthusiastic over the game. They have arranged a tournament—for association members only—to take place on the first Monday in April. Any grocer who is a member of the Association may compete, the admission fee to be one dollar and prizes will be given to the winners. The tournament will be a handicap one and a committee consisting of Fred Thorne (captain), Thos. Clarke and J. C. Beaumont was named to make all arrangements including the handicapping of the bowlers.

C. Moore, 80 Gladstone Ave., has bought Maloney's business. He came from Kingston and took possession on March 3rd.

"No, I do not want the Grocer," remarked one member of the trade recently," I have learned all I want to know." The appearance of his store tells the remainder of the story.

J. Trotter, 127 Northcote St., has purchased the business of Spence and took possession recently.

W. H. Woods, 182 Dundas St., has bought out Baker.

Some grocers are complaining that bakers sell bread to private customers at the same price as to merchants.

George H. Helson, grocer, died on Saturday at his residence, 1094 Bloor street west, at the age of 54 years. He had been in business in Toronto for the past twelve years, but had been confined to his bed for the past two years. The remains were buried at Brantford on Tuesday.

James Jarvis, who came from Teeswater, and who bought out W. Brack, 218 Annette St., West Toronto, last December is building up a good business, and is well pleased with his trade

A. Dyce is the happy owner of a fine new store on Roncesvalles Ave., where scores of new houses are expected to go up this summer. He struck it right.

E. S. Bullock moved into his new store at the corner of Roncesvalles and Garden Sts., which is fitted up with up-to-date new fixtures. He feels as happy as a bird in a new cage.

A. W. Johnson, 195 Parkdale Ave., is doing a good business and wears his usual smile.

W. J. Brown, 161 Parkdale Ave., is pleased with the "Canadian Grocer," and also with his business. One helps the other, he says.

BARRIE.

March 17.—Barrie's first annual seed show was held last Saturday and attracted quite a large crowd of people, principally farmers, which, by the way, made quite as additional amount of business in the town. The show in itself was fair and the directors will have quite a few new pointers to improve it for the next year. One of their weak points was in advertising. Had the show been advertised extensively the exhibits would have been more numerous.

Business in general in town has improved in the last week or two with very rapid strides asd no one would now think that there had been any stringency in the past. Green stuff is beginning to move, such as celery , green onions, radishes, etc., and the amount of this that is being offered reminds one of summer. Oranges, pineapples, bananas, etc., are also being readily sold and with the good sales of general groceries and fish the merchants are now wearing that sunny smile.

Stan. Hinds, of Hinds Bros., is in Gow Ganda for a few days. We would not be surprised to see a branch established there if Stanley finds that country tempting.

As has been long looked for, the prices of butter and eggs tumbled on Saturday and were sold as low as twenty cents all round, eggs selling in some cases at 21c. Poultry remains very high fowl selling at 12c to 13c, while chickens sold at 14c to 16c and turkeys, 16c to 17c.

Maple syrup has been offered this week is very small quantities. The price being asked for by the farmer is $1.25 a gallon. But with the splendid maple syrup weather that we are now having there should be a bumper crop and prices much lower.

BRANTFORD.

March 17.—The oil case was dismissed on Monday. Mr. Powers who represents the Liberty Drug, Oil and Chemical Company, of New York, was in the Division Court suing Wm. Tipper & Son, to collect an account for oil ordered from the above company, last October. Brewster, Muirhead and Heyd appeared for Mr. Tipper, while Mr. Powers pleaded his own case. Last October Mr. Powers visited Brantford and representing the above company, secured about one hundred orders for oil of different kinds from the merchants here. At that time Mr. Powers stated that if the oil was not satisfactory after being tested, it could be returned to him at Hamilton and would cost them nothing. In January invoices were received from the company for large quantities of oil delivered in Brantford and the price was in nearly every case $3.00 per gallon. The merchants considered this too much, as oil that would answer the same purpose could be purchased here for about 60c per gallon, and besides, the orders were to be only trial ones, and if the goods were not satisfactory they could be returned without any expense on the part of the merchants. The merchants all joined together and decided to fight the case. Mr. Tipper stated that the oil was sold to him for a trial and the price quoted was $5.00 for three gallons. He said the oil was about the same as he usually used which cost him about 60c per gallon. Mr. Brewster asked Mr. Powers what he paid for the oil and where he secured it. Mr. Powers refused to answer, but after considerable argument on the matter, the judge said it was necessary that Mr. Brewster's questions be answered. Mr. Powers said that he did not know just exactly what was paid for it, but not more than 50c. per gallon and that he purchased it from the Crown Oil Co. of Hamilton. Judge Hardy therefore dismissed the case.

That Brantford grocers are in earnest to do away with the bad debts, is evident. The local papers contain notices to the effect that on and after the 5th of April all delinquents will be listed. They also expect to have with them for the next regular meeting Mr. Occomore, the secretary of the Guelph association and perhaps one or two others to discuss the methods in vogue in that city.

A. L. Vanstone left last Thursday to spend a week or more in New York City.

Fred Corey, who on the first of February, changed his business from a credit to cash basis states that he is highly pleased and would not under any condition go back to the old system. His former customers have been very loyal, and collections on the old accounts were exceptionally good.

Local bakers with one or two exceptions have recently decided on a reduction in the weight of the bread loaf. The loaf in future will weigh 1¼ lbs. instead of 1½ lbs. as formerly. The high price of wheat and the consequent advance in the price of flour have accounted for the reduction in the loaf.

Most merchants report that last Saturday's business was the best this year there was a large market and considerable difference in the prices which prevailed. Eggs sold from 23c to 30c per dozen ; butter 26c to 28c ; potatoes 65c bag, and chickens, 90c to $1.25 per pair. Apples are becoming scarce at 40c to 50c basket.

GUELPH.

March 17.—Secretary Occomore, of the Retail Merchants' Association, has been invited by the association at Brantford to attend their annual banqpet and explain to them the "Collection Scheme" in Guelph, as referred to before in this paper. Collector Scroggie reports that collections have been very good for the last month, thus giving practical evidence that the scheme is making good.

Gillan & Hadden and C. T. Hicks are displaying Jell-O in their windows this week.

A new business man takes a place among the retail merchants of the city in the person of R. Webber, of Berlin. He has purchased the business of J. G. Chittick and is now in charge. Mr. Chittick has been doing a big business at this stand ever since selling out the flour and feed business to Wm. Stewart. Mr. Webber intends closing his store at Berlin.

Favored with fair roads a large number of farmers attended the market last Saturday. The supply and demand were both good and a lively market was the result. Butter and eggs remained about the same price as the week before, butter at from 23c to 26c and eggs at from 24c to 26c. Apples were plentiful and ranged in price from 75c to $2 per bag. Potatoes ranged from 50c and 60c a bag. Chickens were running at 15c to 16c per lb. for young, while 12½ was paid for old stock.

H. Walker & Son are showing some very large California celery, which is in great demand on this market.

Although the complaint has come from different parts of the country of a falling off in the number of exhibits at the various spring seed fairs, the fair in Guelph this week showed no indication of the general decline. In fact, it is one of the best that has ever been held both in regard to the number of exhibits and size. The fair is conducted under the auspices of the Puslinch Farmers' Club, and the South Wellington Farmers' Institute. The object of the fair is not so much for prize purposes, but for the sale of seed and to thus distribute through the district the very finest grain. Prizes are, however, also offered for the best class of wheat, barley, oats and peas, as well as potatoes.

HAMILTON.

March 17.—Trade here is not quite as good as the grocers expected for March, and a large number of shops and foundries must be either working short time or doing very little. The molders are out—not on strike, they say—but just won't work at the wages offered. As the international union will not pay them strike wages nor allow them to go to work, the situation seems bad and nobody realizes this as much as the grocers, who have been feeding them and their families in the expectation of getting paid a fairly decent sum on their accounts in March. It is freely predicted that the wholesalers will either have to extend the credit of some grocers or else close them up. The credit business certainly does not pay when times are not of the best.

This March weather has been grand for maple syrup making with the cold nights and warm days. The sap runs freely and the syrup is being marketed in fairly good quantities. The quality is choice.

The grocers here are strongly in favor of P. H. Bowyer's amendment to the Pharmacy Act. The question was recently discussed at the meeting of the association and it was thought the present act was very unfair, especially as it affected the country merchant and the farmer. The grocers also expressed their desire that in the law reform measure now coming up the amendment to the Division Court Act relative to the collection of small debts should become a part of the measure, and that it might go into effect at an early date.

KINGSTON.

March 17.--Frank Gleeson has finished a successful campaign in the interests of the Grocer. His genial ways and pleasing manners have left a deep impression here on those with whom he came in contact. I forgot to ask him if he drove single or double, so I won't say any more for fear it might bring trouble. Frank was well pleased with his stay at the Randolph Hotel. John Randolph and his good wife know how to make a patron feel at home.

Dan Couper, grocer and chief magistrate of our city, who so strongly opposed compulsory vaccination was threatened with arrest by the Board of Health. The council was so incensed at the insult that by a unanimous vote they voted down the clause making it compulsory for people to be vaccinated or go to gaol. The Board of Health resigned and very few seem to regret it

This is a great season for ice all the ice houses being full with the clear crystal that does in summer what the black diamond does in winter—keeps the temperature level. The ice men are now engaged filling boats. Ice cutting gives work to many of the unemployed.

Early closing of stores is being talked of here. Many groceries now close every night at 6 excepting on Saturday while others keep open and burn gas and wear out their brains and bodies. Grocers should close at 9 p.m. on Saturdays. There is no reason why clerks and drivers should be kept up all night to serve people who have no regard for any one but themselves. No man who starts in closing early will regret it, and he will find his sales just as large at the end of the week.

Prospects for work this coming season are bright. This is encouraging and it is wonderful how a business man's feelings are affected by thoughts of future prospects, just like a thermometer when the mercury rises. Drafts are bad things to meet—check 'em, check 'em.

BRACEBRIDGE.

March 17—Geo. Fenn, bookkeeper for the Skeleton Lake Lumber Co., has purchased the fruit and confectionery stock of Joe Isidean.

Allie Loughery left for Chatham two weeks ago to take a good position. Allie who was employed with Joe G. Myers here, has a host of friends. Joe Bontain will take Allie's vacated position.

Hutchison Bros. have a soap display in their large window. In the centre of the window stands a jar full of beans and above it hangs a handsome cuckoo clock, each purchaser of twenty-five cents worth of Comfort soap takes a guess at the number of beans in the jar. The contest is becoming very keen, and is a great drawing card. Their other window contains a beautiful fruit display.

A window worthy of special notice is one at Kirk Bros. Surrounded by Royal Oak flour stands an old Dutch wind mill. The wheel is driven by electricity although it apparently turns with the breeze. The window reflects great credit on E. J. Kirk as it is one of his creations. In their other window is noticed a large display of confectionery.

All along the street is observed up-to-date window dressing, mostly in fruits, and it is astonishing the quantity of oranges consumed in this busy town. We still have splendid sleighing and as a consequence large quantities of seed grain are on the move, in speaking to a number of the merchants who handle seeds they all say that the outlook for a heavy season in this line is better than ever. "More oats, wheat, and barley and buckwheat will be sold this year than ever before," exclaimed one merchant, "the sample is better and the farmers have the money to buy."

One thing this town is sadly in need of is an up-to-date green house. There is a splendid chance for someone to start at present. Home produced lettuce, onions, celery, radishes, etc., would certainly be a luxury.

Axler Bros., who were one of the unfortunate firms who lost heavily in the recent fire have left town for Gow Ganda. They are good business men and should do well in the North country.

Your correspondent intends interviewing the merchants in Huntsville and Gravenhurst shortly on trade conditions.

The busy housewife is at her annual making of marmalade. The Seville oranges are coming more into favor each year and with the price at 25c per doz., and a good sample, they go out with almost every order.

PETERBORO.

March 17.—The representatives of the local wholesale houses report that the past week has been very quiet in the grocery business. The retailers, it is said, are not purchasing heavily at present.

White & Gillespie state that they have experienced an exceptional business in flour this winter in spite of the tendency to high prices. Apparently there have been more households baking their own bread than in the past.

In regard to the selling of some lines of patent medicines by the small corner grocers, a question that is being talked of at present, there are many of the smaller stores in this city that carry a small stock of the ordinary "patents." It is mainly for the convenience of customers and at the same time the profit is said to be worth while handling these goods.

Eggs are now very plentiful on the local market, but the consumption seems to be equal to the supply. The grocers are also well supplied, the Lenten season being partially responsible. The price was down to 24c last Saturday and eggs were easily the most plentiful of any of the usual lines.

Butter is still rather scarce and it is stated that not a few of the merchants are going out of town for their supplies of dairy butter as the district around the city does not seem able to meet the demand of the city.

Apples are the diamonds in the grocers' lists these days, because of their scarcity. Now and then a few barrels of fairly good apples are obtained by different grocers in the up-town district, but it is not long before they are all bought up. The supply of potatoes it is generally stated will be more than sufficient to meet all demands until the new ones are received in the early summer.

The grocers handling seeds have placed their orders for the spring trade which will not now be long in opening up.

A recent article in The Grocer on the general delivery system existing in St. Mary's was read with interest by local merchants. The grocers here like the saving that their fellow businessmen in St. Mary's are realizing, but it is not felt that the system will ever be brought into force here where all the merchants have their own delivery wagons, and where the ground to cover is so large.

The wiser merchants are preparing for the spring cleaning houshold crusades and are laying in a large stock of all the necessaries which experience has taught will soon be in great demand.

ST. THOMAS.

March 17.—Saturday's markets were largely patronized, and the supplies offered found ready sale. Maple syrup and sugar were in keen demand, the former selling at $1.50 per gallon, which is rather a higher price than heretofore obtained, owing possibly to the light run of sap so far. Eggs were quickly purchased and ranged in price from 22c to 25c per dozen. Butter was easily disposed of at from 25c to 28c per pound. Apples sold at from 30c to 40c per peck. The millers paid $1.05 per bushel for wheat, but no advance in the price of flour has yet taken place, the dealers retailing at $3 per 100 pounds.

The city grocers generally report a large increase in business last week, possibly owing to the convention of the Ontario Grand Lodge of Orangemen held here. The hotel accommodation was taxed to the limit, and some inconvenience was experienced by the travelers. The grocers hope for more such gatherings, and St. Thomas will give them hearty welcomes.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Beans—Advanced 10 to 15 cents.
Peas—Advanced 5 to 10 cents.
Sugar—Advanced 10 cents.
Dried Fruits—Good demand.

Montreal, March 18, 1909.

Trade has been only fairly good during the week and it is generally expressed that business will not become brisk again until the opening of navigation. On every hand there is evidence that people are going slowly. They are ordering only for immediate requirements. While the volume of business is fairly satisfactory it is coming on the principle of "small and often." There have been a few changes during the week. Beans and peas have both advanced owing to higher prices being asked by holders in the country. The demand for beans especially has been remarkably good during the year which is generally the case when poor people feel the pinch of hard times. The fact that beans are a remarkably nourishing food is also becoming better known and their use is spreading generally.

Another advance in the price of sugar took place on Wednesday, the advance amounting to 10 cents per cwt. and due to the strong situation in the raw market in the United States.

There has been a reduction announced in French mushrooms. They are now selling at $3 a case. Filberts are easier owing to heavy stocks. Glucose is stronger. Other lines are unchanged.

DRIED FRUITS—There is a remarkably good business passing in practically all lines of dried fruits. One jobber stated that people in general had not yet felt the increasing prosperity or at least it was not reflected in the character of their buying. He said "When lines are good people buy more canned goods but in hard times they buy more largely of dried fruits as they regard them as more economical. Despite good demand the undertone of the market continues easy. Quotations have not altered during the week.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—Demand for canned vegetables is good. Fruits are slow. There is a first class call for canned fish owing to the season. Canned pork and beans are selling well.

TORONTO—The feature of the canned goods market is still the scarcity of peas. A shortage in corn is also expected but there may be a few tomatoes carried over. The demand for them just now is good. A wholesaler reports the stock of good red salmon getting low. The summer season is the time of year when the demand is best and last year's goods will be chiefly sold this year. The new goods will not be ready until about October.

New peas will be ready in September and corn and tomatoes in November.

There is reported an active demand in canned fruits and this is expected to continue fair all summer. Fruits are canned in the autumn principally.

Currants—Selling well.

Toronto, March 18, 1909

As intimated in last week's issue, sugar has taken another advance, the amount being 10 cents per cwt. The raw market in sugar has been strong which caused the advance in refined. When it is stated that 10,000 bags of raws were sold to the sugar trust in New York on Wednesday at 2 9-16 cents, cost and freight, prompt delivery and that 10,000 bags were disposed of at 2⅝ cents cost and freight, May shipment, an idea of the situation is obtained. No decline in the near future is expected. Sugar is now at the same figure as it was this time last year.

Wholesalers report active business in prunes, currants, dried peaches and apricots. Beans are rapidly going into the northern districts but the season will soon be over. In canned goods a great many fruits are moving as well as canned salmon, corn, tomatoes and peas. There is likely to be a pretty fair clean up in the old canned goods before the new arrives.

March according to custom, has been rather quiet. Business however to the north has been phenomenal and brightened up the situation. One wholesale firm reports having sent 17 car load of provisions into the Gowganda district and that a shipment to one man included 175 bags of flour.

SUGAR—On Wednesday sugar advanced again 10 cents making advances of 20 cents in about two weeks. The prices now however are the same as this time a year ago. The demand has been good and the raw market is getting stronger. A decline in the near future can scarcely be expected.

TEA—The tea market as reported by local brokers is rather strong. Ceylons in some quarters seemed to be moving better than the others.

DRIED FRUITS—The season for prunes is here and the demand is brisk. Prices is some cases have declined owing among other things, to depression at the coast. Dried peaches are cheap and are splendid sellers. This may also have some effect on the prune market. Some French prunes are being sold but only in small quantities. They have a thinner skin and smaller stone than the ordinary variety and are more expensive. Apricots are having a good sale also as well as currants. Dried apples and dates are quiet. There is a noticeable scarcity in table raisins but some are now on the way from Spain.

LAW REFORM FROM LAWYERS?

One Legislature Representative Does Not Think a Satisfactory Bill Can Come From Lawyers.

W. K. McNaught, of the American Watch Case Company, and representative of North Toronto in the Legislature, when asked his views regarding the proposed measure of law reform, which was dealt with in last week's issue said that he had not had an opportunity of examining the bill closely, but so far as he had been able to get information he thought the measure as a first instalment was a very fair one, but, of course, it did not go as far in the direction aimed at as many would like to see.

"My own opinion," he declared, "is that you will never get law reform from lawyers. Mr. Foy is a careful, cautious representative and is not apt to err on the side of going too far. I hold that if a government is anxious to get a general, free and purely disinterested expression of sentiment they should, in a matter like law reform go to boards of trade, and business men's associations. I would, if dealing with such a far-reaching question, where all classes of people are affected, appoint a royal commission to take evidence from merchants, laborers, mechanics, manufacturers, farmers and others, the same as a tariff commission hears evidence and, on this bases its report and recommendations. The manufacturers alone are not allowed to make the tariff, neither should law societies be permitted to say what the law shall be. Yes, I am strongly in favor of appointing a commission. These are my views on law reform generally and how I would proceed about it; and not a criticism of the present measure, which I have already pointed out, has not been discussed in the House or even printed, therefore, I am not sufficiently familiar with the proposed alterations to discuss them intelligently as to how they would or would not benefit business men."

BUYERS IN TOWN.

Among the buyers in Toronto during the week were: Wm. Carrol, Hamilton, Ont.; W. A. Brunton, Newmarket, Ont.; T. B. Reeve, Markham, Ont.; N. A. Malcolm, Walton, Ont.; Wm. Joyce, Oakville, Ont.; L. A. Whitmore, Edgely Ont.; Chadwick & Mannion, Gowganda, Ont.; Wm. Grills, New Liskeard, Ont. J. McNab, Claremont, Ont.; R. A. Bunting, Picton, Ont.

Brandon's Winter Fair Exceeds Expectations

Farmers of Western Canada Keep Pace With Development of the Times—Decline in Hog Raising Lamented — Poultry, Sheep and Horses Show Vast Improvements—Large Building Crowded.

Winnipeg, March 16.—Your correspondent has spent the entire week in Brandon attending the Winter Fair, which comprises a horse show, a fat stock show, a poultry show, and a seed grain exhibition.

This fair is an annual event and is one of the best possible barometers of live stock conditions in the West. This is the fourth show of its kind to be held in the City of Brandon, and the second to be held in the big Winter Fair pavilion, which was erected during 1907, at a cost of over $50,000. When the fair of 1908 was opened in this building, the general verdict was, that in the matter of space, the requirements of the Winter Fair had been anticipated for ten years at least. Imagine the surprise, therefore, of the fair board and exhibitors alike, when the building this year was crowded to the utmost capacity; a huge tent had to be requisitioned for part of the cattle and a large number of the horses had to be quartered down town in the livery barns. The fair opened on the morning of the 9th, and closed on the evening of the 12th, and during that period the building was constantly thronged with men and women anxious to see the exhibits.

There were no side shows, no attractions. There was not even a band, yet each evening the great amphitheatre, with its seating and standing room capacity of something like 2,000, was jammed to suffocation. The sole entertainment offered these people during the evening was a parade of horses, and on Thursday evening the presentation of cups and medals. While this was going on, in the main auditorium, the lecture room in the north wing, with a capacity of about 300, was constantly filled, listening to illustrated lectures on various subjects, intimately related to agriculture in its various forms.

The Poultry Show.

The poultry show, which is held under the auspices of the Manitoba Poultry Association, occupies the entire upper floor of the southern wing of the building. It has been pronounced by Judge Butterfield, the best arranged, best lighted, and largest hall for the exhibition of poultry in the Dominion of Canada. It is provided throughout with stationary, sanitary coops, made of wire and galvanized iron sheeting. The number of entries was so large that even in this immense building it was found extremely difficult to get them all in.

The total number of chickens entered was 1098. The turkeys, geese and ducks on exhibition numbered 90, making a grand total of 1,188. Putting the value of each bird at the extremely conservative figure of $1, there was over $11,000 worth of poultry on exhibition. Numbers of these birds sold for breeding purposes, at prices ranging from $5 to $25. Judge Butterfield said that he had no heaitation in pronouncing it the very finest poultry exhibition he had ever seen in Canada.

One pen of Partridge Cochins, he declared, were the finest on the continent of America, while a pair of Buck Ottingtons owned by Dr. A. W. Bell, of Winnipeg, and formerly of Toronto, were pronounced the finest in Canada, of their breed, and the same praise was meted out to a single-comb black Minorca hen. He also gave great praise to the exhibition of Barred Rocks, White Rocks, and White Wyandottes.

The City of Brandon had been most liberal, not only in the matter of the ordinary prize list, but also in the gathering together of no less than 85 special prizes and some 6 or 8 silver cups and medals. One cup for which there was a very active competition was the Junior Illingworth cup, sent out from Blackburn, England, for the best exhibit of poultry made by a youth of 18 years of age. The whole poultry show was emphasized along the lines of education, there being a very evident desire to encourage and stimulate poultry raising.

In conversation with breeders of pure bred poultry, it was ascertained that there was a very marked increase in demand for breeding stock from all over the country. Mrs. A. Cooper, of Treeshank, who makes a specialty of Barred Rocks, and who was the winner of many first prizes, and a splendid silver cup, reported that already her entire stock amounting to some hundreds, available for sale as breeding birds, had been disposed of, and if she had had double the number, she could have sold them all.

Sheep and Swine.

The show of sheep and swine was open to both pure bred and graded. The number of sheep showed a marked increase and the quality was much better than last year. The higher prices for sheep have evidently stimulated interest in the breeding of this class of stock. It is a matter of regret, however, that the number of hogs shown was smaller than that of last year. The quality was quite as good, but from conversations as to real size and from the very openly expressed opinions of breeders, at the annual meeting of the association, it is evident that the low price of the last two years has discouraged breeders and a great many of them are going out of hogs entirely. No amount of argument or persuasion seems to have any weight. The farmers generally who have been in the hog business, declare that there has been a combine to keep down prices. One of the representatives of one of the largest packing houses in Winnipeg attended the meeting and assured the farmers that if his company could be assured of a sufficient supply of hogs to keep their plant in operation steadily all the year they would not dream of importing American bacon, and they would be able to pay a better price for the hogs. The members of the Breeders' Association, however, took the very unreasonable stand that the packers should guarantee them a price of not less than 6½c per pound. This attitude plainly indicated that for the present at least argument is of no avail. Many of the breeders announced that they were putting all ir brood sows on the market and would have nothing further to do with the business. This is a very serious matter. The number of hogs marketed at Winnipeg last year was the largest in the history of the country, being 145,000. The total packing capacity of Winnipeg is 450,000, so that it will be seen that up to date the country has not furnished even one-third of packers' requirements, and if the breeders carry out their present intentions of going out of the business it will mean still more "American" bacon, on which we must pay a duty of 2c per pound.

Exhibition of Fat Cattle.

The fat stock show, so far as cattle were concerned, does not yet amount to a very great deal, but there is a nucleus of a good show, and as excellent prizes are offered, there is no doubt that there will be very rapid improvement.

J. D. McGregor, president of the Winter Fair Board, offered $100 silver cup, and $100 in money for the best beef steer or heifer. There were a large number of entries in this class, and though perhaps none of the animals were as highly finished as they would have been at a Guelph show, they were a great deal better than the ones shown last year. Up to the present time breeding stock has been shown as well as fat stock, but in the future the prizes will be for fat stock only.

Valuable Horse Flesh.

The horse show section of the Winter Fair was the thing that really startled everybody. It is especially designed for the exhibition of stallions. In 1908 the entire number of stallions shown, both in the light and heavy classes, was 49. This year there were 112 heavy stallions and 16 standard bred and hackney stallions. Clydesdales lead in the West, as heavy horses, and of this breed there were no less than 90 on exhibition. In the aged class there were no less than 29 entries, and the smallest class, which was for yearling colts, had 8 entries.

A very conservative estimate of the value of the heavy stallions alone would be $275,000, and it is quite safe to say that never in the history of Canada, and very probably never in the history of the United States, have so many high class Clydesdale stallions been gathered together. The money value, however, of the exhibit was only one feature of the show, The fact that men have been encouraged to invest such enormous sums in these animals indicates the outlook of the trade.

The president of the Horse Breeders' Association said: "The horse business in the West has been A1 for the past 5 years and there is every indication that it will be equally good for many years to come." and the demand is constantly increasing for highly bred horses.

One very important feature of this show was the competition in live stock judging. This was open to farmers' sons, whether at home or attending college, and there were 76 entries. The experts who afterwards read the score cards of these young men, declared that the work showed a very high state of efficiency. Fifty of the competitors were students of the Manitoba Agricultural College.

The people of Brandon and more especially the men who comprised the Winter Fair Board, are to be very heartily congratulated on the success of their labors. The fair will be for the future, one of the most important events of the year in the Canadian West.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, March 16.—The volume of wholesale grocery business in Winnipeg is increasing every month and comparisons with last year are the cause of particular satisfaction. Nevertheless, competition for business is very keen and unfortunately in some lines it is the cause of price-cutting which benefits no one. Country collections are good and the general outlook has never been better.

SUGAR—The sugar market is very strong, but prices quoted last week still rule.

EVAPORATED APPLES—There is a good staple demand at 8½c per lb. The market is steady and no change is expected in local prices.

BEANS—Prices are steady at the recent advance. Hand picked are quoted at $2.35 per bushel and the three-pound picker at $2.35.

POT AND PEARL BARLEY—Pot barley is quoted at $2.55 per sack; pearl barley at $3.75 per sack, and $1.95 per half sack.

BROOMS—Owing to the advance in broom corn all brooms have been advanced 25 cents per dozen.

CANNED GOODS—Stocks of canned peas are very low and the low range of prices now quoted is not likely to obtain much longer.

BUTTER—The dairy butter market is congested at present. Supplies are much in excess of demand and quality of offerings is poor. Produce houses are offering from 14c to 15c per lb. f.o.b. Winnipeg for round lots. Little or no No. 1 butter is offering at present. The eastern market is not taking any of the surplus from Manitoba, and there is an accumulation of confectionery butter that is a drug on the local market.

Creamery is selling to the trade at 25 cents and stocks on hand are fairly liberal.

EGGS—Supplies from country points are increasing every day. Produce houses are buying at 22c to 23c per dozen.

Commission vs. Salary for Commercial Men

How Canadian Travelers and Retailers View the System—Salaries Rule Here—Country Not Populous Enough for Profit-Sharing Method—Commission Representatives Good for Retailers.

An article under the above heading appeared in a recent issue of The Canadian Grocer, and was the cause of some comment by our readers. The article in question dealt with the condition of trade in the United States as affected by travelers paid on a commission basis compared with those paid a straight salary. The party from whom the information was secured showed that the commission system was in vogue across the border, that it was increasing in adoption, and contended that the wholesaler, retailer and traveler benefitted thereby.

Some Canadian retailers and travelers spoken to by The Grocer on this question, as it affected Canadian trade conditions, could speak only in an academic way, and in almost every case the person addressed wished to have time to consider the matter more fully. The consensus of opinion expressed offhand was to the effect that trade might be developed more quickly and grow larger in volume if the commission system ruled here, but the speakers were not so sure that there would be a corresponding benefit accruing to the wholesaler and traveler. These two classes of men of course would be more directly affected than would be the retailer, although the retailer would no doubt be affected adversely or otherwise in the course of time.

Population Scattered.

Some grocery, fruit, tea and produce representatives spoken to did not wish to have their names mentioned in connection with any discussion, and would not without considering the question over night express an opinion. The brunt of their remarks, however, showed that they favored the salary system, as they did not think the total of their sales in any one line would justify the adopting of a commission system in a country like Canada where the population was sparse, the territory covered extensive, and the larger centres few and very scattered.

E. Fielding, treasurer of the Commercial Travelers' Association, Toronto, without going deeply into the question, did not think the commission system would be generally workable in Canada. Conditions were different here from what they were in the United States. Across the border travelers were nearly all specialty men. Even when, say, large United States wholesale grocery houses sent men out on the road they did not always carry general lines of goods, but each traveler confined himself to one or two lines. Here in Canada where customers were few and where they were scattered as well, that could not very well be done, for traveling expenses would eat up much of the profit. Business houses, recognizing this, preferred having their travelers carry fairly full samples of general goods.

As to the benefits accruing to the wholesaler from paying his traveler a commission rather than a salary, taking into consideration these conditions, Mr. Fielding thought the wholesaler would not be the gainer.

"Let us consider, for example, a grocery traveler paid on a commission basis, taking out a general line of samples. He will, of course, try to sell goods to the retailer that are bought in large volume rather than the goods that his house would like him to sell, because his commission is paid on the amount of business he has done. That traveler would rather sell a carload of sugar than a dozen boxes of spices, because the total of his sales would be larger in the former case than they would be in the latter, and, consequently, his commission would be greater; although his firm would derive more profit from the spices than from the sugar. No, the commission system will not supplant the salary system in Canada just yet, for it would not help benefit wholesaler or traveler, and the salary system will still prevail in this country."

Other Travelers' Statements.

This opinion also seemed to be the one held by grocery travelers generally.

A traveler for a grocery specialty was interviewed, and said that for his part he favored the salary system and thought it was practically universal in this part of Canada. In the West, however, he said, a great many travelers carry several lines and the business was very largely on a commission basis.

"But what about bonuses?" he was asked. "I do not favor them," he said. "If a man is honest he will do his best without a bonus, and a bonus in lieu of part salary is, in my opinion, an intimation that the house does not trust its men.

"Of course there are two sides to the bonus question. Sometimes it is regarded as giving a man a larger personal interest in his business, making him feel in a way as if to some extent he had a business of his own, and from that point of view I should say it is a good thing for the traveler."

Another traveler in a similar line, who happened to be by, corroborated largely the views of his friend, but added, "There is a good deal to be said for the commission basis of paying salesmen. It is more of an immediate incentive to increased effort. It is all right to say that if a man is honest he will give his best services for a salary, but human nature is human nature, and a man is going to work harder for himself than for somebody else. I know a representative here of an American specialty house who says he has just passed up a $2,100 a year contract to work on commission because he thinks he can make more out of it. I agree, however, with my friend here, that the system should be either all commission or all salary."

Looking at the question from the broad point of view and not taking into consideration any concrete case, retail merchants thought the commission system the better. Their arguments pretty well coincided with the views expressed by merchants in the United States. It is held that the best salesmen are brought forward by the profit-sharing system, as a higher standard of salesmanship is demanded, which would eliminate the "fair" and "pretty good." The traveler is benefitted from a monetary standpoint by making more than he would on salary and the wholesaler receives an increase of orders and sales, because if the traveler wishes to increase his profits he cannot do it in any other than by selling more goods.

Traveler and Retailer.

The retailer is benefitted in this way: The traveler must be very careful how he treats his customers and what he sells them, for once he offends his customer or unloads on him his usefulness is done. The retailer will know when he is dealing with a reputable house and that the goods he buys are quality goods and that the prices are right.

In a late number of the Business Philosopher there is the short story of a traveler named Brown, who was afflicted with "salesman's itch." He imagined he knew all about the game, but his inexperience worked against him in getting a position. Brown at last got a job as salesman on a commission basis for a baking powder manufacturer who charged him five dollars for a canvassing outfit worth fifty cents. Brown was wise enough, however, to realize that the one way to get even was to sell enough powder to cover expenses. So he started in. At first it was slow work, but he persisted, and in time he got orders. Selling to retailers Brown found rather slow, and he started after bigger game and sold to wholesalers. He then made more money in one day than he had previously done in a week. So many orders did he receive that his house suggested a salary. No, said Brown, this commission business suits me. His house became so insistent that Brown quit. He worked for other concerns until they suggested salary, and he quit them. At last in self-defence, he was forced to start in business himself and he is now building up a business with a future.

"Undoubtedly I would still be on the road for that baking powder house," said Brown, "if they had only given me a square deal. There is nothing more assinine than the action of a house that cuts down its commissions to its men simply because those men are selling goods in large quantities. An honest commission should be paid every salesman, and this commission should not be changed simply because the salesman is selling so much that his profits are double those of the two next best men on the force."

More Money for the Merchants From the Farmers

The Results of Educating the Farmers in Fruit, Stock and Crop Raising—Assistance Being Rendered by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The education of the farmers to the advanced methods in agriculture, fruit-raising and live stock breeding has done much for the merchants of Ontario and development along these always means that the farmers will have more money to spend. The Ontario Department of Agriculture has done much and is doing a great deal towards the furtherance of the education of the farmer and its work is highly appreciated.

Fruit institutes have been organized in the various fruit sections and for the meetings, addresses have been arranged by men thoroughly conversant with the ways and means of advancing and aiding the industry.

It has been demonstrated during the past season in many sections of the province that fruit growing is one of the most profitable lines of agriculture, and the men who are following improved methods are being reimbursed many times over for their extra trouble and expense involved.

The time is opportune for giving fruit growers, whether upon a large or small scale, an opportunity to receive instruction near their homes. The district branch of the Department of Agriculture has, therefore, arranged for this education. The great value of this course of instruction to the farming community cannot be over-estimated, and every farmer and farmer's son, who has the interest of his business at heart, as well as its monetary success, should not fail to attend the meetings.

Instruction of a practical nature is the object throughout, and those in charge are doing their best to deal satisfactorily with every question brought up.

Recently lectures on fruit were given at Whitby, Port Perry, Simcoe, Port Dover, Vittoria and Delhi, when such men as A. W. Peart, Burlington; J. W. Crow, Guelph; L. Caesar, Guelph; W. R. Grierson, Oshawa; W. F. W. Fisher, Burlington; C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Ontario; R. Thompson, St. Catharines; J. E. Johnson, Simcoe; P. W. Hodgetts, Toronto, and many others.

Free courses in live stock and seed judging have also been instituted and some of the specialists in these lines are giving free lectures to the farmers with a view to better the conditions of the tillers of the soil.

All this has a direct bearing on the merchants. The higher the education of the farmer the better will be his ability in making money and the more money he makes the better will it become for the merchant.

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Price of Lard Advancing—New-laid Eggs Steadily Declining —Butter Speculators Trying to Unload Stocks—Good Cheese Season Anticipated—Maple Sugar Season in Quebec Not Yet Open.

Many undertake to give the reasons why such a heavy drop in the price of butter occurred, which resulted so disastrously to many dealers. For over two months, judging from the prevailing condition, The Canadian Grocer was predicting exactly what happened. The hog and cured meat market prove our theory to be well founded. The price of any commodity does not altogether depend on the production, but fully as much on its consumption. When an article of food is made of a superior quality, it naturally finds a larger demand, and the consumption may easily increase a hundred per cent. Take either bacon or butter, and if it suits the tastes of the people, each person will easily eat twice as much as if it were bad. The bacon in Canada, owing to the natural bacon hog, and the excellent curing process, is of an exceptionally high quality and consequently it takes fully double the quantity to supply the demand. This alone, if no other reason is given will account for the healthy condition af the meat market. On the other hand butter makers became careless, and produced a very inferior butter, and the people did not eat one half the quantity they would have, had it been of good quality, and in consequence it remained on the market. Some claim that it was on account of the high price, that the consumption of butter fell off. This cannot be the reason, because the high price of bacon, does not affect the consumption of that article of food. A Canadian newspaper even claims that the open winter had something to do with it. How they account for this is hard to understand. Another reason comes from the same source that a large portion of the poorer class of prohibited. This must be entirely facture of margarine' which is "now" butter was formerly used in the manuwrong because "margarine" was never allowed to be made in Canada, and the poor butter could not, and never is used, in the manufacture of that article. Another reason is given that it may be owing to the scarcity of water last summer. This is so far off the mark that to find a connection is impossible. The only remedy, it would appear, is to produce a high-class article, such as the packers have done in bacon, and the butter will find ready sale at firmer prices.

Advices from England state that all sorts of ruses have been indulged in, to awaken butter buyers from their lethargy, but so far to no avail. There is without any doubt, a large deficiency in supplies, in England, but to meet this contingency, the British consumer, has limited his use of the product. The Argentine, which is supposed to be a minus quantity in the British market at this time of the year, is continuing to ship to the British market. It is, however, generally thought both on this side, and the other side as well, that prices have about reached the limit.

Export cheese stocks in Canada are in very small compass, and prices are consequently very firm. Some speculation is being indulged in, regarding the new season. Many predict a smaller yield than ever, but this pessimism does not seem to have much to support it. It is said that the towns are taking more milk every year, consequently less is left for cheese. This however is only an economic variation, and should not affect the manufacture of cheese. A farmer stated recently, that the cows had come through the season admirably, and in his opinion, would render a good account of themselves during the coming season.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Advices from foreign sources state that prices for Canadian stock have advanced. This has been due to continued small supplies and active demand. Locally, hogs are unchanged. Pure lard has gone forward about one cent all around. Other lines are unchanged.

PROVISIONS—In spite of the general complaint of the high prices of hogs for some time, it has again advanced, and hogs are now bought at from $7 to $7.15 per 100 lbs. live weight f.o.b. In consequence of this cured meats are very firm and about ¼c higher all round. The demand is good, and very little affected on account of Lent, although the fish men report an unusually large consumption of fish. This shows conclusively that on account of the superior quality of our cured meal much more of it is used.

BUTTER—Two weeks ago the butter market was reported as being demoralized; last week as being sick, and a butter dealer was asked how it was this week. The answer came promptly and with considerable emphasis, "Rotten—absolutely rotten." Far more butter was quietly held on speculation, which is now coming in sight, than was anticipated. All are now trying to unload and are ready to face any losses, which are in some cases as much as 10c a lb. Good, well made, held stock is offered at such low prices that makes it almost impossible to move the "culls" which accumulated during the winter, at any price.

CHEESE—The cheese market is firm, but not doing anything but supplying the local trade. With the present condition of the butter market, it is expected that cheese-making will be started earlier, and perhaps with larger patronage than last year, which is a matter taken into serious consideration by our butter and cheese dealers. In view of this it may tempt some wideawake butter dealers to buy up some of the best packed butter, and take another chance by holding it in refrigerator.

Provision Prices are Not Expected to Decline

Feed Grains Too High in Price for That to Occur, Say Ontario Packers — Statements of Canadian Provision Men Contrary to Those of J. Ogden Armour, Chicago—Will Manitoba Become Extensive Hog-Raising Province?

A news item which appeared in the daily press of a few days ago contained the information that meat and provision prices in the United States were expected to be lower during the coming summer. The statement was attributed to J. Ogden Armour, of Armour & Co., Chicago, who in an interview based his assertion on an estimate of the corn crop. Coming from such an authority this statement carried weight and as there is a somewhat sympathetic feeling between prices and conditions in Canada and the United States The Grocer interviewed a few representative Toronto provision and meat packers to find what truth there was in the statement. The gist of the opinions expressed was that the interview in question was not published in full in the Canadian press and so there may have been important points bearing on the subject that were not mentioned.

Low Prices Not Looked For.

Wm. Harris, of the Harris Abattoir Co., did not anticipate low prices, even Chicago that very day quoting high-class cattle at $7.35. "Of course," said he, some cattle is being offered as low as $2.50, but that is of a rough grade and never does affect the market. The number of high grade cattle offered in Chicago and in the Canadian packing centres is very small. The Chicago high grade meats are sold in New York, Boston and the East, and these markets regulate prices. Feed grains of all kinds are very high in price and are easily double what they were some few years ago.

"Hogs, too, are very scarce. Live hogs are this week going at $7.15 f.o.b. at shipping point, and $7.35 laid down in Toronto, and the price may go higher. Supplies are very scarce. The newspaper scare of a few years ago has undoubtedly had some effect. At that time a couple of papers iterated and reiterated the statement that the packers were robbing the farmers, and the farmers believing the story have been scary ever since, so much so that not a single packing house in Ontario has been able to get sufficient supplies. We have been getting a few hogs from Manitoba, and I think that country will be the hog storehouse of Canada in future.

"For all kinds of farming the West is the country. Ontario is going backward. The sons of farmers who tilled the land in Ontario some few years ago are now in the West, and the old farms here are going to grass. Fully 50 per cent. of Ontario farms that a dozen years ago were raising grains are now in grass, and Ontario cattle instead of being stall-fed, are being shipped alive to the Old Country after a season's feeding on grass."

the Item Incorrect.

M. P. Ryan, of The William Ryan Co., did not think the newspaper item correct. Hog prices for the past two years were the highest ever paid, and feed and grain prices are also high. Instead of the packer getting rich, the farmer was making the money. The conditions prevailing in Canada and the United States were not identical. In Canada the farmer controlled prices, while across the border the packer fixed the price. The Ontario farmer thought he was being robbed and so did not go in so extensively for hog raising. If a person wished to make money his advice was to become a hog-raiser rather than a packer. He did not anticipate any lowering in price. Nor did he think the West would become a great hog raising country.

Wm. Fox, of The Fox Provision Co., did not think the report true. Supplies were very scarce and the prices very high. Grains were a big figure, too. He did not know conditions in the United States, but did know that prices across the border regulated prices here. If, as Mr. Armour anticipates, corn declines in price it must surely be this year's crop price which will not be harvested until late in the summer. In the meantime the hog-raiser will have to continue paying the high figure for feed, and he will certainly not reduce his pork price because corn is expected to decline. The supplies coming in now are not more than fair.

Adverse Conditions Exist.

J. L. Bowes, of The J. A. McLean Produce Co., could not see how prices could come down under existing conditions. The Chicago grain market shows a very high price for corn futures right up to June. If provision prices were to come down it would be to induce buying, for not many consumers can pay a higher figure than those now prevailing. "I do not think the West will become a hog raising country for some time to come," said Mr. Bowes. "Why, even last year the Canadian West took in immense quantities of provisions from the United States.

Not for Lower Prices.

Grain men, too, were sceptical. While they did not profess to know much about the cattle or hog situations they did think they knew something of the grain movement.

W. M. Stark, of Stark Bros. & Co., thought that if feed prices had anything to do with the cost of meats and provisions then the outlook seemed to be for higher rather than lower prices. The present figures at which all classes of grains are held, when compared with the average of the past ten or twenty years, are outrageously high. Mr. Armour's prophecy, he said, must surely have been based on the next crop of corn, which will not be harvested until August. There is now a surplus of 85,000,000 bushels of corn held in the United States from last year, but that is being decreased fairly rapidly, and corn prices at present are certainly not tumbling. Unless the lower price forecast is based on a combination of cheaper feed by garnering the present surplus corn, taking into consideration a good season of grass, and a big crop this fall there does not appear to be any chance for cheaper meat this year, that is if corn and grains generally count for anything.

In Kentville, N.S., there is apparently a live board of trade. They have committees selected to look after each phase of the work, these including the school committee, the streets and public buildings, tourist, immigration, press, trade and transportation, industrial and membership committees.

News of the Flour, Feed and Cereal Markets

Milling Companies Predict Rise in Flour Prices on Account of Firm Wheat Market—Cereals in Good Demand From Country Districts.

March 16.—The various milling companies seem to be unanimous that there should and will soon be a big advance in flour prices on account of the high prices prevailing in the wheat market. They affirm that at the present time they are selling flour practically at cost. Toronto companies have advanced winter wheat flour during the past week and they claim they have got to go further. The opening of navigation will bring a great stimulus to the demand on account of the better freight rates. One company in Toronto reports having an order for 2,500 bbls. from Newfoundland as soon as the boats begin to run.

On account of the wheat and oats markets being very strong the prices of rolled wheat, rolled oats and oatmeal are well maintained and not expected to decline. On the other hand if the grain market keeps up there is a probability of advances. Cereal companies report good business throughout the country and claim that the consumers with the approach of summer are easing off on package goods.

In the feed market the supplies of bran are said to be light. For shorts and middlings the prices are strong.

MONTREAL.

TORONTO.

FLOUR—Although the price of flour has not advanced to keep pace with the price of wheat there is a strong tendency now that it will do so. One miller said to the Grocer representative this week in very emphatic tones, "Prices simply have got to go up; we have made an advance this week in winter wheat flour, but the advance should have been 50 cents. We have been selling below cost." "No doubt about it," said another miller when this prospective advance was referred to. One company is awaiting the opening of navigation to obtain benefits in freight rates in shipping flour east. A Newfoundland company has one order in for 2,500 barrels.

CEREALS—If the grain market in wheat and oats keeps up there is likely to be some higher prices quoted for rolled wheat and rolled oats. Rolled wheat is in especially good demand and the volume of business done by local concerns is reported as being splendid especially with out-of-town districts. People apparently are easing off in package foods. One firm has a large order in rolled wheat to be filled for a party as far east as Bath, N.S. There is always, of course, a steady demand for rolled oats.

ENLARGE BISCUIT PLANT.

The McCormick Biscuit Manufacturing Co., London, Ont., have found it necessary to enlarge their plant due to the development of their business. New and modern machinery in the biscuit-making world is being installed which will thus enable the company to increase their output and meet the demand. In the manufacture of "Lemon Cream" fancy biscuits the company has heretofore not been able to supply the quantity desired, but with the enlargment of their plant this is eliminated.

Charles S. Crary, president of the National Canners' Association; F. W. Hannahs, of Newark, president of the National Wholesale Grocers' Association; Fred Mason, of New York; Samuel M. Clement, Jr., counsel for the local association; Andrew Ross, and A. H. Beckman, secretary of the National Wholesale Grocers' Association.

POSSIBLE TAX ON COFFEE.

United States Tariff Bill Not Yet Drawn Up—Government Apparently in Need of Money.

Washington, March 16.—The great speculative interest in the formation of the new tariff bill seems to center in the proposed duty on coffee. No one can predict now just what the Ways and Means Committee will decide to do ultimately in regard to this schedule. There is a widespread popular protest against taxing coffee, which is being brought to bear almost daily on members of the house. Some of the wiser and more experienced solons predict that in the end coffee will undoubtedly be admitted free of duty.

At this time it seems that the members of the Ways and Means committee are driven to the necessity of choosing between an increase of tax on beer or of putting a duty on coffee to obtain the necessary revenues. A tax of 4 cents on coffee will yield as much revenue as an increase of $1 on a barrel of beer. A proposal has been to increase the beer tax 50 cents a barrel and then put a tax of 2 cents on the importation of coffee, from which it is estimated that from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 can be secured yearly.

Bill Not Completed.

The work of preparing the tariff bill is far from completed. Some of the house leaders were predicting to-day that the bill would not be ready to report to the house on the first day of the extraordinary session, as was promised some time ago. It was said to-day that when the house organized next Monday, Chairman Payne probably would offer a dummy bill and ask for its reference to the Ways and Means committee, and that it might be the middle or end of next week before the real tariff measure would be reported back to the house.

There have been many protests sent to the committee in the last few days against the tax on sugar, but there is no likelihood that the committee will depart from the conclusion it already has reached not to change the rate. The only concession that will be made in the sugar schedule is the provision for the admission free of duty of Philippine sugar up to the limit of 300,000 tons annually.

The experts predict that it will be at least 10 years before that limit will be reached in the importation of sugar from the Philippine Islands. By that time it is probable that the country will be ready for another revision of the tariff. Meanwhile President Taft will have gained all that he has been contending for in the matter of the free admission of Philippine sugar.

All the interests to be affected by the tariff legislation are sending representatives to the capitol prepared to lobby in Congress next week. One of the most aggressive lobbies is that of the live stock men who have taken a suite of offices and are putting out literature and preparing to make a fight for a restoration of the duty on hides, which has been abolished by the Ways and Means committee.

HOME FROM ENGLAND.

Chas. E. Edmonds, secretary-treasurer of Christie, Brown Co., has returned to Toronto after a pleasant visit to the Old Country. Speaking to a representative of the Canadian Grocer, Mr. Edmonds stated that he found business men across the Atlantic optimistic as to the trade outlook for the coming year. "Business is good over in England," he said, "and although there are a great many unemployed yet things are looking brighter. In the southern parts of England the grain has all been sowed so that farming there is somewhat in advance of here. The chief conversation is tariff-reform and by all appearances it will come. There is an act ruling there now which prohibits the existence of any patent unless the article is manufactured in Great Britain."

Mr. Edmonds also referred to the splendid railway facilities of the old land and the phenomenal manner in which traffic is regulated in the world's metropolis. He spent five or six delightful weeks and was very much pleased with his visit. He is again back at his desk at the Christie, Brown establishment.

The Home Pure Food Co., of Canada, Montreal, is incorporated.

Douglas Campbell, of the Campbell Milling Company, Toronto Junction, returned home last Sunday from a pleasant six weeks' pleasure trip to Jamaica, Cuba and the Bahamas. He spent two weeks at Nassau.

Why it pays the dealer to concentrate on Christie's Biscuits—

YOU may have the brightest and cleanest store in your town. The first impression people get of it may be most favorable.

That first impression is important, but it won't go far unless backed up by the right goods.

For instance, a woman is attracted to your store by its appearance of cleanliness—by an atmosphere that seems to indicate the best of everything. When she gets inside let her see, prominently displayed, such standard lines as Christie's Biscuits and her confidence is won.

If she's thinking of biscuits, "Christie's" is the first name that comes to her mind. Other brands may be good, but she knows that Christie's are good—and that they cost no more.

By the use of your own personal recommendation you may persuade her to try another brand, on which your profit is slightly larger. What is the result?

This customer figures that you have deliberately deceived her, and unless she's very dull she will see your motive at once. Right here is where your store gets a black eye—and loses trade.

For sound business reasons, it will pay you to always give Christie's Biscuits the preference. In the first place they sell quicker than any others, and in the second place you can always rely on them giving thorough satisfaction.

Concentrate on Christie's and you'll find the volume of your biscuit trade increase to such an extent that the little extra profit per box on other brands will present no temptation.

Besides, Christie's Biscuits help you sell more than biscuits.

History of the Tobacco Plant—First Discovered in Cuba by Christopher Columbus—Where it is produced in Finest Qualities—Rapid Advance Made in Its Production in Canada.

TOBACCO—Tobacco enjoys the reputation of being the most praised and damned, of all plants. It has been called "herba sancta" "sana sancta indorum," "fool's herb," "poverty herb," and a host of other names. It is smoked, snuffed and chewed. It's use has spread from America throughout the world. No plant can compare with tobacco for the rapidity with which it has overspread the earth, and the blessings it is said to have bestowed upon mankind, in easing labor, and cheering leisure.

There are numerous species, and varieties of the plant, but only two species of leaf popularly cultivated Nicotiana Tabacum with pinkish flowers, is the chief and this is the source of Virginian, Havana, Latakia (Laodica), and Manila varieties. It derived the name Nicotiana from Jean Nicot of Nismes, a French Ambassador to Lisbon, who first sent the seeds from Portugal into France by Francesco Hermandez, Spanish physician to Philip II. in 1560. It is a native of South America, and was first discovered in Cuba by Christopher Columbus, in 1492. It was first brought into England by Sir Walter Raleigh about 1815, and although the original consumers were sailor men, it was Raleigh who brought smoking into fashion, among the young gentlemen of the Court.

Used as a Narcotic.

Of course tobacco grew in Cuba before Columbus got there. It was known as cohiva, and was produced along the Cumanas River, in the Eastern part of the island, and Cortez carried the seed to Mexico. The Aztecs, however, cultivated tobacco before the time of Cortez. They called it "tek," and used it as a narcotic and paid it as a tribute to the Court of the splendid Montezumas. It was the lotus leaf of the new West, and priests used it in their divinations. Cuba has however the honor of having given tobacco to the world, and, what is more remarkable, of having retained the reputation which it acquired of being the island in which it was grown in perfection. The Spanish called the roll of "herbs" tobacco, which name has since come to be applied, with slight variations, in different countries all over the world, to the plant itself, though still used in Cuba to designate the completed cigar. In the eighteenth century the now celebrated region of the Vuelta Abajo, was found to produce the best leaf, and from that period, dates the prosperity of Cuba. No other region holds in combination, such elements of successful cultivation, as that comparatively restricted district, known as the Vuelta Abajo. The entire section covers but a small portion of the province, being perhaps 100 miles in length and twenty-five in breadth. Scarcely any of the "vegas" or tobacco farms, occupy more than thirty-three acres, and, as their local appellation indicates, are mostly in low and damp localities, or along the margins of rivers. Here the tobacco plant flourishes luxuriantly. The plant grows to a height of from six to eight feet, being carefully divested of all superfluous leaves, that the resultant product may be finer and stronger. With the experience derived from ancestral tradition, the planter watches the plants throughout the season, carefully prunes and buds, wars against the numerous insect foes, and guides his pet production to development. It is said, that he can produce tobacco of whatevet strength or quality he desires, and it is this constant care, that, combined with the soil, and climate of the Abajo, that sustains the world wide reputation, which the product of that section has acquired.

"Tobacco of the best quality," says a Cuban expert. "such as is produced in the choicest vegas of the Vuelta Abajo, is known by its even tint of rich dark brown, and freedom from stains, burning freely when made into cigars with a white or brown ash, which will remain sometimes on the cigar, until it is half smoked without falling off."

In Many Countries.

Tobacco is now however cultivated in most parts of the world, the warmer countries producing the best. One of the most highly esteemed varieties is N. Macrophylla, as grown in Maryland, and which is also known as Cuban or Manila tobacco ; its leaves are broad and its flowers a reddish purple. The Virginian plant also ranks high ; it grows 4 to 8 feet high, bearing large leaves, and pinkish flowers of a trumpet shape, followed by two lobes full of innumerable, small, fine seeds. A smaller plant N. rustica, sometimes called green tobacco, with greenish yellow flowers, and roundish leaves, is more hardy, and is the chief source of Brazilian, German, Hungarian, and East Indian growths, but is mostly used for cigarettes.

There are altogether about forty named species, but the above are the only kinds extensively cultivated, although the names and flavors of tobacco and cigar productions imported, are very numerous, as also are the registered titles given to fancy brands, in this country. They are nearly all sweetened, colored, flavored and perfumed artificially.

Excellent leaf is grown in Sumatra, and is used chiefly for cigar wrapping. In Colombia, the plant is cultivated extensively. At one time the cultivation of tobacco was extremely profitable in England, but the flavor of the production has been so inferior, that the products of other countries have supplanted it in its own market. Tobacco is a powerful narcotic, sedative and emetic. Its deleterious properties depend on the presence of nicotine, one of the vegetable poisons known, and of which ordinary Virginia tobacco contains from 6 to 7 per cent. What will suit one class of customers is very distasteful to others. The consumption steadily increases.

Tobacco in Canada.

Canada has during the last quarter century done much toward the production of tobacco, and with gratifying results, as each year the consumption of native tobacco is increasing. During the past ten years, the popularity of Turkish and Egyptian tobaccos has increased wonderfully. Cigarette smoking has increased proportionately to a greater extent than any other branch of tobacco consumption.

THE TRAVELER'S HOME.

When on the road the commercial traveler depends for his home upon the proprietors of the hotels he patronizes. If they do not look after his wants properly he suffers many inconveniences. That is why knights of the grip always go to that hotel which best caters to their wants. This explains the wonderful success of Ottawa's fine Cecil Hotel, the commercial traveler's hotel. Up-to-date in every particular, not one modern convenience which is conducive to the comfort of the commercial traveler is forgotten. In the centre of the business district; near the railways, most convenient in every way, no wonder it is patronized. The proprietor, Walter B. Walby, for seventeen years spent his time in learning the good lesson in leading Canadian hotels. He saw the want for a really first-class hotel in Ottawa that would cater to the commercial traveler particularly, and the Cecil was established. That the boys recognize his efforts to make as near an approach to home as possible for them in Ottawa—comfortable and convenient quarters and an excellent cuisine service—is amply evidenced by the growing number of them who make the Cecil Hotel their headquarters when in the Capital city.—advt.

The Handling of Fish Attended With Profits

Interviews With Grocers in Ontario Indicate That Where Reasonable Care is Exercised, Money can be Made in the Fish Department—Neglect in Advancing Sales Means Loss—The Trade Developing in the Dominion.

The handling of fish by grocers in Canada is a line which has rapidly developed during the past few years and which is still in the development stage. In many places the fish trade has been carried on by exclusive fish dealers but in a great many cases grocers are holding a fair share of the business.

That dealing in fish, fresh and salt, has been a profitable investment is shown by interviews published below, which were obtained by Grocer correspondents in all parts of Ontario with retail members of the grocery trade. Some attention, of course, is necessary to this department to make it successful and the more attention paid the better will be the investment.

Lent in Lindsay.

Lindsay, Ont.—Linsday is a good fish town. That fact is made evident by the large number of sales made by the merchants in Lindsay, especially at this time of the year—the Lenten season.

Whether the demand is increasing, is difficult to estimate offhand, because merchants differ in their opinion as to this. When interviewed by your correspondent they had the following to say:

Jos. Brown.—"I have to have the fish on hand to compete with other merchants, but at the same time, I have several customers. I sell a lot of fish to the farmers."

Spratt & Killen do a large trade at all times and just recently got in 15 kegs. They have a good farm trade.

A. L. Campbell.—"Well, the trade is not as good as it has been in past years. This is the Lenten season, but nowadays there are so many fancy dishes that the fish trade is none too good, and the farmer doesn't take home the large amount he used to at one time when he bought the salted fish by the barrel—but it is different now. The farmers are getting beyond their old-time customs. Why, there are lots and lots of farmers who eat very little pork at all to-day. Yes, there is money in handling fish, but not a great deal."

J. E. Adams, of Adams Bros.—"Our fish trade is good. Of course, we handle fish all the year round, but we handle a line in the winter that we don't handle in the summer. We do an exceptionally large trade in Lent season."

John Fleury.—"Yes, we handle the finny tribe and have many customers."

Profit for St. Kitt's Grocers.

St. Catharines, Ont.—The grocers of this city and vicinity are handling only such lines of fish that do not require anything in the line of special fixtures or appliances for handling successfully. A splendid trade is being done in finnan haddie, codfish in packages of various sizes, Labrador herring and salmon trout. A few have handled oysters, but report only with small success.

The varieties of fresh fish are sold almost exclusively by Joseph Hodgins and Jno. Ross, the fish dealers of King Street.

That a good business is possible in the line of fresh fish by grocers or butchers who will give a little special attention was proven by the manager of the local branch of the Wm Davies Co., Limited. He had a large galvanized pan made to fit one of the store windows and in this displays of fresh fish are made. These displays are as attractive as possible and the various cuts of fish have the price tickets attached. Invariably the supply of fish is soon disposed of at prices that show an average gross profit of from 25 to 35 per cent.

Fish Business Growing.

Berlin, Ont.—Interviewed by The Grocer on the question of dealing in fish in connection with groceries, C. B. Dunke, of Dunke & Co., said he did not think they should be given too much prominence unless in a place reasonably separated from the grocery proper. In this, of course, he had reference to cured fish. Dunke & Co. handle fish, but do not push the department very strong, keeping the stock back in their warehouse and selling on demand.

The handling of fish has grown to quite large proportions in connection with the grocery business of Beck & Schell. Mr. Schell, when interviewed, attributed it to the fact that they are particular always to keep their stock fresh, receiving daily shipments. The result was a continual growth in demand and it helped the rest of their business as well, although he would prefer to have better facilities for handling fish than was possible within the limited premises of the store.

Make Money in Winter.

London, Ont.—With the advent of the Lenten season fish became a chief article of diet, and realizing that, London grocers feel it incumbent upon themselves to meet what at this season is a popular demand. As a rule the retail grocers of this city all handle fresh fish, but less salt fish is carried by them than was once the case. Does the selling of fish pay? was a question your correspondent put to several local grocers a day or two ago, and their answers were all pretty much to the same effect. Harry Ranahan, ex-president of the Retail Grocers' Association, said: "So long as the weather keeps cold there is fair profit in such fish as haddies, smelts, etc. The trouble is that as a rule grocers have not proper facilities for keeping and handling fish. If properly handled there should be good money in the fish business."

E. J. Ryan spoke of the difficulty of keeping and handling fish, especially when the weather is so changeable as it has been this winter. Mr. Ryan complains of the small size of the haddies brought here this year. Sometimes a 15-lb. box will contain no fish larger than 1½ lbs., while the popular demand is for haddies from 2 to 3 lbs. He suggests that the number of fish in each box be marked on the outside so that the reta ler might know what he is buying.

Some Care Must be Taken.

Brantford, Ont.—The bulk of the fresh fish trade in Brantford is handled by the fish dealers and the fruit stores. There is only one grocery during the summer season, which makes a specialty of fresh fish and that is the Cash Bargain Grocery, of which Fred C. Harp is proprietor. Mr. Harp says that there is only one way to handle fish successfully in the summer time and that is to have a proper place for packing it. Mr. Harp has a specially constructed fish box, lined with zinc, and connected with the sewer, which saves emptying the ice water. When the fish arrive they are carefully packed in this box by placing a layer of broken ice between each layer of fish. This insures them keeping perfectly and going to the customer in A1 condition.

Mr. Harp finds it a very profitable line and a help in bringing purchasers to the store who would not otherwise come, the following grocers handle a quantity of frozen fish during the cold weather: J. Peachy, Arthur Coulbeck, G. S. Winter, Son & Co, and R. Hartley.

Nearly all of the other grocers handle smoked fish such as haddie, bloaters, ciscoes, etc., and a large number, especially during Lent, handle the kegs of Labrador herring, salmon trout and white fish.

Very little of the large codfish is sold here, the trade mostly desiring the one-pound bricks or two-pound boxes.

Are Sometimes Neglected.

Barrie, Ont.—When asked if handling fish was a paying investment, Frank Wiseman, butcher, remarked that he found it profitable in the lines he carried. He confines his fish trade to Georgian Bay trout and whitefish.

James Vair and J. M. Bothwell both handle fresh fish in summer and when the product arrives in good condition they make a good margin. The past two or three weeks have shown a large increase in the consumption of fish owing to Lent and the comparatively low prices prevailing. Steak halibut and red salmon, for example, could be bought for 12½ cents in the piece this year, whereas in other years the price would be 20 cents. Therefore, the people are buying more fish than ever and merchants dealing in fish are obtaining the profits.

There was one merchant interviewed who claimed that fish was not a good investment. The reason was that he did not push the sale of them. He purchased a couple of kegs of pickled fish and put them in the cellar where no person could see them.

Addition to the Business.

St. Thomas, Ont.—Egan Bros. have handled fresh and salt fish for more than 20 years and believe it pays to do so, more particularly as it brings additional business.

Butler Bros. have also carried a full line of fresh and salt fish and have facilities suitable for the trade—glass in boxes, etc., and they state it is profitable to do so.

J. A. McCance carries at all times a full line of fresh fish and possesses suitable fixtures for making a proper and clean display of them. This materially assists their sales.

W. E. Ross also handles fresh and salt fish, particularly in their season, as his trade demands, and he deems the business profitable.

People Getting Educated.

Bracebridge, Ont.—Your correspondent interviewed Hutchison Bros. regarding the sale of fish and they say that the demand is increasing. They find fish one of the many profitable lines to carry.

Andrew Gillespie, of Armstrong & Gillespie, says that the trade in fish is a profitable one. Mr. Lacey claims that fish is now part of his business, and Melville Ross, of Ross & Co., also speaks with vigor in favor of the fish trade. Jos. G. Meyers also claims it is with the paying departments in his store. E. J. Kirk, of Kirk Bros., states that the fish trade means a lot of extra trade and could not do without that line of goods. They find the sale increasing year by year.

One thing is certain, said Peter Hutchison, of Hutchison Bros., the people of Bracebridge and surroundings are beginning to realize the value of fish on the table, and judging from reports received his statements bear considerable truth.

R. A. Lawson says that he never went into the fresh fish trade very heavy, but handled the year round salted varieties and found them profitable.

BY ARBITRATION.

The Method by Which Business Disputes Are Settled in France.

A short time ago the Grocer referred to the benefits that might arise from the settling of disputes of business men by arbitration. Apropos to this is the system prevailing in France as reported by Alphonse Gaulin, Havre, will prove interesting. He says:

In France all disputes relating to commercial transactions may be submitted to the local tribunals of commerce. These tribunals have exclusive jurisdiction in cases where the amount involved does not exceed 1,500 francs ($289.50) and orginal jurisdiction in other cases, where their decisions may be reversed by the civil court of appeals of the district; but the parties may agree before hand that the decision of the tribunal will be final, and such agreements are binding. The judges of these tribunals are elected every two years by the merchants of the district, and are generally chosen from business men who have graduated from law schools. The Havre tribunal enjoys the highest reputation, and its impartiality towards all concerned has never been questioned.

The procedure is very simple. The services of solicitors are not required as in the civil courts. It is not even necessary that the parties should be represented by attorneys. The suit is begun by the issuance of a writ of summons, which is served on the defendant. A written statement of the case is filed by the plaintiff on the return day of the writ, and the tribunal fixes the delay within which the defendant may enter his plea. Technical questions are generally submitted to one of these experts, or arbitrators, appointed by the tribunal. The report of these experts may be set aside, but this is a very rare occurrence. All cases are usually disposed of within a few months after they have begun.

The charge for the preparation and service of a writ of summons is $4.80. The fees of experts vary with the importance of the case. The State also levies a tax dependent upon the amount for which judgment is rendered, but all the above-mentioned costs have to be paid by the losing party. Moreover, if the parties accept the report of the experts before judgment is rendered, no tax is levied.

Trade disputes are occasionally submitted to aribtrators selected in the usual manner; but this is not a compulsory proceeding and a preliminary agreement must be entered into by the parties.

An excellent window display may be made or marred by the lighting. The light should be on the goods, not out in the street or back in the store. Study lighting effects a little. It will pay.

Don't always be complaining about "Just my luck." Dig in and make your own luck. The man who waits for Dame Fortune to come and drag him up on top of the pinnacle of success will have a weary wait.

Cold Weather Damages Sicily Lemons—Many Changes in Vegetable Market—South African Fruit Sold in Toronto — Tomatoes From Florida—Good Demand for Fish.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Advices from Sicily state that owing to unusually cold and wet weather the crop of lemons has been greatly injured. The amount of damage done has not yet been determined accurately, but it is said to be between 10 and 25 per cent. That there are no offerings for immediate shipment from Palermo is held to confirm the most adverse reports as to crop conditions. There is said to be considerable inquiry for late March and all of April shipment, with no offerings. Shippers on the other side seem to be unwilling to make quotations in view of the crop damage and the uncertainty as to results. The spot supply of Sicily lemons is relatively large for the season, but after Monday's sale the available spot supplies would not exceed 100,000 boxes and holders express confidence that better prices will be obtained, since the quantity afloat is comparatively small and nothing is being shipped. Next week according to the present plans of the importers, but one sale will be held. That will cover the unsold balance of the Guilias cargo, amounting to only some 6,000 boxes. In view of the crop advices, Sicily importers are disposed to hold back the other cargoes in port.

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—The fine lot of apples which appeared on the market last week were readily picked up, and what are left now are of inferior quality. Apples of all kinds are very scarce. Oranges are in good demand, with light receipts and prices firm with an upward tendency. Some lemons arrived which were slightly damaged by frost. A very fine lot of choice peaches, plums and pears from South Africa are being displayed in Wellwood's high-class fruit store on Yonge Street. "What is the price of your peaches?" was asked. "Twenty-five cents, sir." "Well, I'll take a dozen." "That will be $3." "Gee! I can't afford that; I thought you said 25 cents." "So I did," was the answer, "but I meant for each." Several attempts were made during recent years to bring fruit from South Africa, but for want of experience in packing they never arrived in good condition. This, however, is all overcome, and the fruit this year is landed here in splendid condition. As this is a time of the year when these fruits cannot be obtained elsewhere, the fruit trade from South Africa may develop so that in time the people of Toronto may eat these delicious fruits by paying moderate prices.

VEGETABLES—The price of potatoes seems to be a fixture all winter. With the excellent crop of last summer, and the mild winter weather to bring them out, they should be cheaper. The first car of Florida tomatoes has arrived and will be sold at $4 a crate, or 75 cents a small basket. Onions are dearer. Cucumbers at 25c each, and asparagus at $1 a bunch looks like eating money.

FISH—A jolly fish man, delighted with the active demand for fish, says that the people are just waking up to the fact that fish are much cheaper than meat, and even more wholesome and more nourishing. The fish market has never been so satisfactory. Prices are steady and yet firm. The summer frozen stock is rapidly diminishing, and very little fresh caught stock is coming in. Haddies are very scarce.

Worms in Horses and All Live Stock

The eradication of worms from horses and other animals is one of the most striking features of Molassine Meal, and is proof of its unique properties. When

is used regularly—although it is quite free from arsenic or drugs—in consequence of its antiseptic properties, all foul or putrid matter is evacuated, worms cannot live, and are naturally expelled.

A food which has effects like this must command the attention of all persons interested in the feeding of horses and cattle.

Crescent BM&Co TRADE MARK. Brand

(SODA CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

WHY YOU SHOULD SELL

of Tar and Cod Liver Oil

REASON NO. 1

Nine of every ten people when troubled with a cough or cold call for Mathieu's Syrup.

Hence there is no time wasted in selling it. It almost sells itself. This is the result of its exceptional curative properties in all chest and throat complaints — backed up by good advertising.

This advertising consists of

1. Our newspaper campaign.

2. One person recommending it to another, and probably telling him that he got it at your store.

3. Dealers who know a good article when they see it and gladly recommend it to their customers and friends.

Let us have an order from you to-day.

—Mr. Grocer—

Do you want to make money—here is a chance—to make it easily, quickly, and lots of it—Do you for any reason wish to take up this very profitable line—That will net you a good income, as well as increase your sales in other lines—If you do read this. Every housekeeper dreads ironing day, especially so when she has a lot of shirt-waists, men's shirts, collars, cuffs, etc. to iron, she always wants to obtain a high grade finish, equal to first class laundries. She of course asks the grocer for advice—in return he offers her the common wax—She knows it is impossible to do good work with common wax—So she walks away—one customer lost.

Now where she can procure an article of this merit—that reduces ironing time by half—reduces labor to a minimum—adds to the finish of clothes—and makes ironing a day of pleasure—There she is sure to do her buying—and leave her order for other things. The Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner is used in more than a million homes, read what users say.—

Chicago, Jan. 4th, 1909

To whom it may concern,—

Some time ago I tried the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner, and was so pleased with the work it did, that I recommend it highly and advise every women who wants to make her work easy, to try the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner and be convinced of its good work.

Respectfully yours
Mrs. T. Ohmes, D.S.C.L.O.T.M., 937 W. Adams St.

Mr. Grocer

We do not want you to order until you have convinced yourself of the merits of our Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner—Send us your name and address and jobber you do business with and we will send you one free of charge so that you may try it yourself and be convinced—Is this fair enough?

Think—Then Act

By A. B. LEVER.

THERE are a great many people who think about advertising who never get beyond the thinking stage.

They are like some men who fall deeply in love, but being afraid to "pop the question," die bachelors.

What is wanted with a great many business men who think is decision.

Faint heart ne'er won fair lady, and faint hearted business men do not make successful business men.

Good intentions count no more in advertising than good intentions in religious life.

There must be decision, plus action.

Think about advertising by all means. Good advertising can't be done without good thinking, but mere thinking never accomplishes anything.

Every day you waste in thinking is an opportunity lost for getting a new customer.

Opportunities lost to-day cannot be gathered up to-morrow.

Think, decide, then plan for a good advertising campaign, and judiciously use the mediums which directly reach the people to whom you want to sell.

Brantford Merchants Going After the Dead-Beats

Hear Instructive Address Delivered by H. Occomore, Vice-President of the Guelph Retail Merchants' Association, on how Debts are Collected in the Royal City — Committee Appointed to see What Can be Done for Brantford — To Report Later.

Brantford, March 24.—Some forty members attended the regular meeting of the Brantford Grocers' and Butchers' Association meeting here last night to listen to an address on one of the most important questions relative to the retail trade—the collection of bad debts. The speaker was H. Occomore, the first vice-president of the Guelph Retail Merchants' Association, and his discourse on how the merchants of the Royal City mastered the problem of "dead-beats" proved a revelation to the interested listeners, who have already decided on the steps to be pursued to attempt a similar scheme in Brantford.

A. Coulbeck, president of the association, presided at the meeting, and in a brief introductory address called attention to the importance of the address of the evening. He referred to the fact that the association deemed it advisable to secure a representative of the Guelph merchants to address them on the collection of debts, after noticing the story on the subject recently published in The Canadian Grocer.

When the preliminary business had been concluded, Mr. Occomore was called upon for his address. It was a pleasure for him to come over to Brantford to assist his brother merchants in any way possible and to impart to them the secrets of "a good thing."

The Germ Begins to Sprout.

"Three years ago," he said, "a Mr. Scott, a merchant tailor, first brought up the question of appointing an official collector of debts. He suggested that we put a special livery on him so that everybody would know who he was and on all occasions what he was after.

"We simply laughed at the man," said Mr. Occomore, "and he got quite angry and the matter was dropped. However, the good seed had been sown, and it grew in the mind of a grocer who, about a year ago, resurrected the collection scheme and we finally decided to make the attempt.

"We needed it badly, too; every merchant had money on his books he could not collect and one even had between four and five thousand dollars. A committee was formed, consisting of the president, vice-president, the secretary and another member, who were told to go ahead and devise some scheme, if they considered it at all feasible."

Mr. Occomore was a member of the committee which at the next meeting brought in a resolution to organize a Collection Department. A permanent committee was then arranged to work out a plan. They secured a list of merchants in the city, estimated the business they did and assessed them accordingly.

Thorny Path to Travel.

"There were many difficulties in the way," said Mr. Occomore, "but we were so enthused that we decided to try it for a year anyway. We aimed at paying our collector a straight salary, as we saw the difficulties of percentage—he gets $800 a year.

"We then had to interview every merchant to see whether they were satisfied with their assessment. The highest anyone had to pay was $15, and some considered this too much and some not enough. Some merchants didn't do as much of a credit business as others, whose annual turnover was less—and here was another difficulty. Another mistake we made was not getting all the merchants in before we started and not having all pay their assessment promptly.

"We got out a subscription paper and headed it something like this: "We the undersigned agree to pay the amount subscribed opposite our names towards the payment of the salary of the official collector."

Debtors Brought to Time.

"We handed our accounts to the collector—and I may say we were very fortunate in getting a good one—and right from the start people began to wake up. I, as secretary, at that time, got considerable abuse from those who did not like to see the collector, but we have remedied that by making the collector the secretary, too. Accounts of five years' standing and more were given out first, and it certainly surprised us to find that nearly 60 per cent. have been collected.

"Our collector, of course, does not have to collect monthly accounts, which we are practically sure of. It is the long-standing accounts and the doubtful ones we want in.

Divide the Money.

"Still another difficulty faced us. That was when a sum of money was collected from one party who owed several accounts, and which were placed in the hands of the collector all at once. We finally decided, however, to divide whatever money was secured among the various creditors.

"Then some merchants had not gotten anything on their accounts, and the collector was authorized to get out a monthly report so that each would see what had been done. For 80 members this became expensive and later we agreed that they should be made out every three months."

The Dead-beat List.

Connected with the scheme, the merchants got out a list of debtors which alone was worth the assessment.

"There is not a dead-beat in Guelph," exclaimed Mr. Occomore, "but we have him on that list."

Every merchant who pays his assessment gets a copy of it and all know just w her they are at when a "slow-pay" or a "no good" enters the store. The collector pays the merchants he collects for by cheque, and he always notifies them all as soon as any debtor catches up with his accounts.

"We have not really antagonized anyone we care about," said Mr. Occomore, "and on several occasions the collector is thanked for getting men and women straightened out financially with the world. It has been an education to the citizens of Guelph and the best thing the merchants ever took up."

Following his address, many questions were asked and answered by Mr. Occomore, after which the editor of The Canadian Grocer spoke for a few minutes. He referred to the failures of co-operative associations and advised the formation of a Retail Grocers' Association for Ontario.

Brantford Favors Scheme.

Mr. Occomore was complimented by the Brantford grocers and butchers for his educative address, and a vote of thanks, moved by Henry Foulds and seconded by F. C. Harp, was unanimously endorsed by all present. Mr. Harp was much in favor of forming an Ontario Grocers' Association on account of the weight it would carry and he also thought a system such as Mr. Occomore had outlined would e a very good thing to adopt. In reference to a query almost every man stood up to express his willingness to see some forward steps taken, and a committee was formed to go into the matter. It consists of J. C. Feely, D. Gibson, H. A. Foulds, M. H. Robinson, F. C. Harp, H. Howie and the secretary, G. N. Willis. They have arranged to meet next Monday evening and will present a report of their work to the next meeting of the association.

The meeting last night closed with the reading of an interesting letter by Mr. Foulds, written by Henry Moore, now of California, and formerly ex-president of the Brantford association.

To some men debt is a stimulus—an incentive. Before you go into it too heavily, better find out how it works on you. Some men are crushed by it.

Wind-Mill Flour Display Used in Bracebridge

Features of the Work are that Observers' Attentions are Fixed on Flour Alone and that There a Motion in the Wheel—Different Portions of Display Blend with One Another.

The "Old Dutch Windmill" has been used with splendid effect in a window creation in the store of E. J. Kirk, of Bracebridge, Ontario. The illustration on this page gives a good idea of the display—minus the motion of the fans which are apparently made to go by the breeze and in reality by electricity.

The entire display could scarcely be improved on for advertising flour. On either side the wheel stand two neatly arranged sheaves of wheat—the flour in its raw state. The wind-mill of course is the feature of the display and as it once was used extensively in the grinding of wheat it is here very appropriate. Then the flour standing around the central object completes a well judged display.

In looking at such a window there is but one thing impressed on the mind and that is—flour. This is a splendid idea and should be worked out so far as possible. Too many articles displayed divert the attention of the observer and unless one thing is brought out in a very striking manner he usually leaves the scene with nothing to remember.

The windmill display is also simple. Nothing elaborate is used in its manufacture and for a country town is most appropriate. Another good feature of it is that there is motion included in the display and one can scarcely resist the temptation to look into a window in which there is something moving. Prices are also displayed, which is another aid to the attractive power of the window.

It was the creation of Mr. Kirk and certainly reflects credit on his ability as a window trimmer.

BRANTFORD DISPLAY.

Perhaps one of the finest window displays seen in Brantford recently is the flour window now being displayed by the Cash Bargain Grocery. The window shows considerable originality and skill in dressing and is worthy of more than a passing glance from the shopper. The large white loaves of home-made bread, fresh from the oven, together with the motto, "It's easy with good flour," form a striking object lesson for careful housewives.

NEW COMPANIES.

An Ontario charter has been granted to The William Cane & Sons Co., Newmarket, to manufacture pails, tubs, wash-boards, clothes-pins, etc. The provisional directors are W. H. Cane, L. P. B. Cane, V. E. Cane, E. S. Cane, and C. E. Cane.

The C. J. Daniels Milling Co. has been formed in Ontario, with head office in Toronto, to manufacture poultry foods and to do a general milling business. The provisional directors are, C. J. Daniels, S. C. Daniels and W. H. Pettit.

An Ontario charter has been granted to E. K. Scoley & Co., Ltd., to carry on in all its branches the business of a grocer and provision merchant and for the purpose to purchase, prepare, manufacture, buy, sell and deal in all goods, wares and merchandise bought, sold and dealt in by wholesale and retail grocers and provision merchants and to own and operate retail branches for like purposes. The share capital of the company is twenty-five thousand dollars, divided into two hundred and fifty shares of one hundred dollars each, the head office of the company to be in Toronto. The provisional directors are, Edward Kent Scoley, Charles Fry and James Hales.

Progress Covering the Quarter of a Century

Advance of Regina Store Keeps Pace With the Western Prosperity—Grocery Department Makes Turnover of $75,000 in Twelve Months—A. Quartette of Bright and Experienced Salesmen.

Prosperity has certainly attended the efforts of R. H. Williams & Sons, proprietors of "The Glasgow House," during the past quarter of a century, and made their business one of the best in similar lines in the Provinces on the Western prairie. As will be observed by the accompanying illustration, the firm have a store of an unusually bright and attractive appearance, and four bright looking salesmen, who might do credit behind the counter of any grocery store in the Dominion. The interior of the store indicates cleanliness to a fine degree, as well as taste in the arrangement of the various goods.

As intimated above, the Glasgow House was instituted twenty-five years ago, so that the management this year celebrates its silver anniversary. Twenty-five years ago Regina did not amount to very much and probably the same may be said of the Glasgow House. But by the application of energy, tact and a progressive spirit it has become one of the most prosperous in Western Canada.

Grocery Department Pays.

The grocery staff includes a quartette of salesmen who have obtained reputations for their aggressiveness and who have learned their business from the ground up. During the past twelve months they have handled $75,000 worth of groceries, which means they have turned over the $10,000 stock just seven and a half times, and made the grocery department one of the best paying in the whole establishment. A retail business only is done.

Fifteen Years a Salesman.

John Stubbings is an experienced Western grocer, having entered the employ of R. H. Williams & Sons fifteen years ago. At that time the entire business done by the firm did not total nearly one-half of the present grocery department alone. Mr. Stubbings personally looks after the counter trade and knows the various tastes of the many customers.

Wm. H. Boyle, who gained his experience in Belfast, Ireland, and in some of Toronto's largest grocery stores, looks after the buying and keeps track of all the stock. There is not $25 worth of dead stock in the grocery department, which illustrates that Mr. Boyle is an artist when it comes to purchasing what the people want.

Two Ontario Boys.

C. C. Willson and J. C. Booty, the remainder of the quartette, are thoroughly versed in their business, too. The former hails from Uxbridge, Ont., and J. C. Booty from Galt. With such a hustling four, the interests of the grocery department of the Glasgow House are capably attended to and they promise to be among the future successful business men somewhere in Saskatchewan's big wheat fields or other districts in "the future granary of the Empire."

ARREST OF W. A. COULSON.

Charged With Embezzling Funds of Winnipeg Retail Merchants' Association.

The principal topic of discussion in Winnipeg retail circles is the issuing of a warrant on Friday of last week for the arrest of W. A. Coulson, the secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada, on a charge of embezzling the funds of the Association and of the Retail Merchants' Fire Insurance Company which he was instrumental in organizing in connection with it. Mr. Coulson was secretary-treasurer of the insurance company as well as of the association proper.

About four years ago he was appointed secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada then being formed under the presidency of T. J. Lawlor, of Killarney, Man. He displayed considerable organizing ability and commendable zeal and energy with the result that the Association grew very rapidly in numbers and in influence. For about two years all went well; the secretary was assiduous in his attention to his duties and the Association flourished and its interests were looked after as well perhaps as was possible for an organization insufficiently manned and extending over such a vast area as the three Prairie Provinces.

In those days The Canadian Grocer devoted considerable space to the doings of the Association. It was an easy matter to get news from the secretary for there was always something new in the association work. About two years ago, however, the association work proper began to lag and it has been hard ever since to learn of any real work that the organization was doing for the benefit of its members. Throughout the country the organization is practically dead, although in many centres the dealers are working harmoniously together in local associations as a result of the organization work done three or four years ago.

About two years ago Mr. Coulson undertook to organize a Retail Merchants' Fire Insurance Company in connection with the Association. The company was duly incorporated a year ago by an act of the Legislature of Manitoba, the incorporators being John Hiebert, merchant, W. A. Coulson, agent, Oswald Fertham, accountant, Bruce W. Thompson, barrister-at-law, and George Alexander Stewart Potts, barrister-at-law. The capital stock was fixed at $1,000,000 and the provisional directors were to call a meeting as soon as $100,000 had been subscribed and 20 per cent. of that amount paid in. It is stated that five different members of the Association put up $2,000 each but it is not known yet what was the total amount of stock subscribed or what was the amount of the payments.

It is charged that Mr. Coulson has embezzled some $1,600 of insurance premiums and it is on that charge that the warrant has been issued for his arrest.

On Saturday of last week Mr. Coulson gave himself up to the police, appeared before Magistrate McMicken and was released from custody on $8,000 bail.

Receiver Appointed.

A. R. Leonard has been appointed receiver of the Retail Merchants' Association, under direction of the National Trust Company, and will administer the affairs of the concern until such time as the tangles have been straightened out.

SOFT CHEESEMAKING.

Instruction in This Art Being Carried on at O.A.C., Guelph—Differ From Cheddar Cheese.

During the month of February instruction in Soft Cheesemaking has been given at the Dairy School, O. A. College, Guelph. These cheese differ from the Canadian Cheddar cheese in that they are of a soft texture, containing a high percentage of moisture, fat and proteids. The fat varying from 21 per cent. to as high as 63 per cent. according to the variety made.

These cheese are usually eaten fresh or nearly so, but at a temperature of 50 deg. F., they will keep from 6 to 10 days, improving in both flavor and body. The following varieties are being made at the College: Cambridge, Coulommier, Camembert, Gervais and Double Cream.

To obtain a uniform product of good quality, the following points are absolutely essential:

New sweet milk of good quality must be used, preferably milk right from the cow-stable, which has not lost its animal heat.

A making room of even and constant temperature, not too dry atmosphere, and of a temperature about 65 deg. F.

A room of cooler temperature and a little dryer atmosphere than the making room, in which to place cheese when they are finished and ready for market. Temperature of room 50 deg. F.

Experimental work in Soft Cheesemaking will be carried on during the summer months of 1909 at the Dairy School, O. A. College, Guelph.

John Stubbings, Wm. H. Boyle, C. C. Willson and J. C. Booty, Salesmen in Grocery Department of the Glasgow House, Regina, Sask.

Why stop with showing the customer the thing asked for? As long as he stays in the store he's a possible further purchaser.

John Fullerton, of Rowat & Co., Glasgow, and Arch. Snowdon, of Snowdon & Ebbitt, Montreal, were in Toronto this week calling on the trade.

SLOW MAPLE SUGAR SEASON.

Reports arriving from the Eastern Townships of Quebec state that tapping is going on in some localities, but so far no serious operations have been undertaken. The weather has not yet become suitable to a free flow of sap. Freezing weather at night, with warm, bright days is the sort of weather which starts the sap through the trees.

The remarkable advance in the art of sugar making is encouraging. In spite of this progress, Canada is not yet as efficient, and up-to-date in its methods, as the neighboring states of Vermont, and New Hampshire. This excellence is due almost altogether to good equipment. Ordinary skill coupled with up-to-date apparatus will achieve gratifying results. In a general way, the lighter in color sugar or syrup is, the better it is, that is, the flavor is better and the genuine maple qualities are more largely developed. Maple sugar is dark, and unattractive, from two reasons, dirt and slow evaporation. Dirt is derived from unsanitary and old vessels, and containers, old wooden buckets and other ancient utensils. Too slow evaporation, permits the sap to burn, and consequently become dark brown in color. These difficulties are obviated by modern equipment and shallow evaporation. In the first place, tin buckets with covers prevents fragments from the trees, and other excrescences, such as moss getting into the sap, and discoloring it. The second provision against discoloration is accomplished by forcing the sap in a shallow stream through the evaporater. This rapid action results in less liability to burn. The farmers are rapidly learning these lessons, with the result that the quality of Canadian sugar is improving. There remains, however, a lot to be accomplished in the way of better regulations of its sale.

STRAWBERRY CROP OUTLOOK.

Fruit growers state that it is rather early in the season as yet to forecast the crop prospects in the Niagara district as to strawberries. Some patches have been looked over and they seem to be in good condition, notwithstanding the fact that the weather has been somewhat contrary. The freezing at night and thawing during the day when the ground is bare causes the plant to heave out of the ground and a great deal of damage results from this. The critical time therefore has not yet arrived.

According to A. E. Kimmins of E. D. Smith, Winona, Ont., the general impression is that strawberries this year will be as cheap if not cheaper than they were last year provided the plants come through this spring in anything like fair condition. Nearly all canning factories, he says, are carrying over a certain amount of stock and the acreage during the past two or three years has been very largely increased.

During the dry season last autumn the plants in the districts west of Winona were probably affected, but the soil is lighter there. It will be some days yet, however, before a forecast with any degree of certainty can be made by the fruit men.

A WINNIPEG WORLD'S FAIR.

It has been definitely decided by the city of Winnipeg to go on with the project of holding in that city in the year 1912 a Selkirk Centennial Exhibition, which is to take the form of a World's Fair. The project has had the serious and careful consideration of a strong committee of the best business men of the western metropolis, and it has been regarded simply and solely as a business proposition. Capable committees have visited St. Louis, Chicago, Seattle and Portland, to get information from the management committees of the Fairs and their reports have convinced the committee in charge in Winnipeg that the project for 1912 is in every way feasible and practicable.

The principal value of the exhibition will no doubt be the advertising which not only the city of Winnipeg, but the whole of western Canada will receive. If several hundred thousand visitors from all over the continent and from abroad attend a successful exhibition of this kind in the new city of Winnipeg, the commercial capital and metropolis of the new Canadian west, and learn of the resources and opportunities available, the advertising secured will be of immense benefit. This is what Winnipeg business men have in mind and it is because they are convinced of the feasibility of the project that they are prepared to put up their money to support it.

Grants from the Dominion and Provincial Governments will no doubt be secured and western business men will subscribe liberally. It is a project in which all Canada is interested and it undoubtedly will receive the generous support which it deserves. We cannot afford to allow it to be only a partial success; it must be made a big success. If the necessary support is secured the Selkirk Centennial will be the best advertisement which Canada has ever had.

INFERENCE TO BE DRAWN.

Since the failures of the Toronto Co-operative Equitable Society and the Dominion Co-operative Association were announced in the Grocer, two others of a similar nature have followed suit. These are the Duck Lake Co-operative Society of Duck Lake, Sask., and a similar one at Hochelaga.

The inference to be drawn from these co-operative societies is plain. It does not appear that they can thrive in Canada and the idea of placing money in these concerns should be discouraged wherever possible. In some cases at least these associations have been established by what might be termed "impractical philanthropists" who usually fail in their objects. The promoters do not appear to have any consideration for the money of the poor shareholders, who, so far as some of the associations are concerned, cannot account for the whereabouts of general-managers or their money either.

STORE INSPECTION.

Because a number of grocers in the city of Montreal were careless in not properly attending to the sanitary conditions of their stores, the whole of them may be prohibited from selling milk. It is time now that grocers kept stores that would permit them to carry milk—an article so necessary to every family. There are many in the trade who have their stores equipped with sanitary refrigerators of modern type and who can safely keep milk for their customers and it does not seem fair to them that they should be prohibited from selling this article just because others may not meet with the requirements of the law. It is often very convenient to customers to obtain milk at the stores in which they deal.

There should be some inspection provided for grocery stores to compel grocers to place their establishments in proper sanitary conditions and then one would not have to suffer for the neglect of another.

A DISGUSTING HABIT.

There are many merchants who should be more particular in the manner in which they allow customers to taste butter. A system very much in vogue and which should be discouraged wherever met is the using of a small butter-trier, which is inserted into the butter and handed to the customer to taste and the balance placed back again. This not only applies to retail men, but to some wholesalers as well. It is a very common thing to see a dealer plunge the trier into a tub of butter, take off one or two bites and return the rest.

This certainly is a disgusting habit especially in a retail store and should be stopped. No grocer who has a good conception of cleanliness, so essential in a successful store, can imagine that a lady of clean habits will call very often at his store for butter if she is liable to purchase goods that had been so used.

There are different ways in which it might be done properly. One is always to keep on hand a clean cloth with which to wipe the trier so that the customer can see the operation. Insert the trier into the butter print but use a small taster to take off a small portion of the butter for the intending purchaser and return the remainder left on the trier back to the roll.

Many good customers have been lost through having careless habits in this respect. A grocer is not only judged by this one untidy habit, but it stamps him as careless and unclean in all his work.

SELLING ONLY FOR CASH.

Many a merchant, who is so situated financially that he is in a position to do a strictly cash business, fails to do so owing to lack of backbone or through a groundless fear of losing trade. In a certain town in Northern Ontario the grocers are kicking because farmers, who were accustomed to pay cash for their groceries now ask for credit and have in many instances secured it. It arose in this way. The hardware dealers in the place some months ago inaugurated a strictly cash trade and they have rigidly adhered to it. A farmer would come to town and order some food supplies saying "Now you will have to charge these, Mr. Brown, I cannot pay you to-day; of course, I have some money in my pocket, but I require a few articles in the hardware line and you know I have to pay cash for them or I can't obtain the goods."

The grocers in several cases have not had the necessary courage and stamina to say "No," and the result is that the credit system in their trade is surely but slowly superseding the cash basis which formerly prevailed.

A confectioner in a Western Ontario village started business with a fair amount of capital. He declared that no goods would, under any circumstances, be charged—that either they would be paid for before they left the shop or else they would be given away. His answer to all requests for credit was: "I keep no books whatever. If you can not pay for the goods I will give them to you and with pleasure. I would honestly rather—much rather—make you a present of them than to open up an account, employ a book-keeper, etc."

The frank, fearless attitude of the confectioner worked successfully, and he meant every word that he said. To the deserving poor he gave provisions but all those who were able to pay had to do so or else not get the goods. The third week after he was in business he received no further requests for "tick" and his trade has grown greatly year by year—and it's all cash.

WHAT CUSTOMERS OBJECT TO.

There is always a feeling among customers of grocery stores which demands that everything be clean and neat. They look to the same evidence of care and cleanliness even about the grocer himself, in the appearance of his display shelves, the absence of dust, clean windows, tasty show cases, and care in arranging the stock. It is a good sign to see a modern delivery vehicle painted in a conspicuous but appropriate color. This tendency to cleanliness is in itself a splendid advertisement and the customer does not appreciate the grocer who thrusts his hand into a case of dates to fill an order after having poured out a gallon of coal oil, parcelled up a half peck of onions or tied up some fresh herrings.

The advantage of this to the grocer can scarcely be estimated. The customer who notices that the merchant exercises some care will be pleased and is very likely to return again, and, at any rate, it is only proper that this caution should be exercised.

WESTERN MERCHANTS ORGANIZE

The idea that organization among merchants is attended with beneficial results is rapidly spreading throughout Canada. As will be noticed from correspondence in this week's issue from Vancouver the merchants, business men and hotel keepers of Rossland, B.C., formed a commercial association for the mutual advancement of the members and it is their intention to diligently look after dead-beats and to discuss plans for the elimination of the church and society begging schemes, whereby merchants were practically compelled to purchase tickets for every social and picnic held in the district.

The time has come when merchants realize the necessity of organizations—not to the disadvantage of the consumer—but to protect their own interests from the ravages of existing habits and customs. Separate trades are now organizing in the provinces and the time will soon come when there will be retail grocers' associations in a number if not all of them, to look after the private interests of the grocery trade as a whole.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES AND BUSINESS.

Slow and sleepy China is gradually awakening. Among the evidences of this is the recent announcement that there are one thousand Government and private schools in one province of that country teaching western branches of learning, and that as a result of this teaching the Chinese are showing unusual zeal in acquiring a working knowledge of English.

This is not without its lesson to Canadians. We are probably among the most laggard of all nations in acquiring a knowledge of foreign languages, and yet foreign languages are becoming more and more necessary as a qualification for those who intend following commercial careers.

Germany is to-day one of the most progressive nations in a commercial sense. Probably no nation places more importance on the acquiring of foreign languages, a result of which can be seen in the way in which young German business men make headway in other countries.

Every young man in Canada aiming at a business career should master foreign languages, and particularly German and French. If he can add Italian and Spanish so much the better.

BUSINESS MAXIMS.

(By Plato Jr.)

Perseverence is the price of prosperity in business.

Success is too nimble to be caught by the lazy business man.

Clerks who never "stir their stumps" are not desirable business building timber.

Vinegar is all right in the barrel but it is a bad place to have it in the merchant's countenance.

Clerks who are diligent in business are serving their own as well as their employer's interest.

The man who thinks to work through all his waking hours will some day be unable to work through any of them.

Business Items From the Western Provinces

Drop in Edmonton Egg Prices—Australian Plums and New Zealand Onions Arriving at The Coast—Rossland Merchants to Look After Dead-beats—Attractive Winnipeg Stores.

EDMONTON.

March 23—The most striking feature of the past two weeks here has been the rapid decline in the price of eggs. Two weeks ago fresh laids were retailing for fifty and fifty-five cents. They have been dropping at the rate of five cents a drop until now they are selling at thirty and thirty-five. Within the last week on account of the balmy spring-like weather the market has been simply flooded with eggs and the trade has been very scarey on loading up to heavy expecting this state of affairs to happen.

Business in general has shown a healthier tone since the milder weather has come. Everybody is very optimistic and full of confidence and looking forward to a very busy and prosperous year owing to the great amount of railroad work both in and around Edmonton being undertaken by the Canadian Northern, Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk Pacific and other new lines under survey to the far north of the province and in other directions from here as a centre. The transcontinental line of the G.T.P. are already starting their operations for 1909 both to the west and east of us. In a few weeks if this fine weather keeps up, the laying of the steel will be begun from where they left off at Wainwright, now that the big Battle River and Clover Bar bridges are practically completed and the grade nearly finished too. We expect the much heralded and anticipated event of its entrance to take place about May.

There has been a merry war among the merchants all over town in the can goods line lately. Corn, peas and beans have been slashed to ten cents a can and tomatoes to two for a quarter. The corn, peas and beans formerly sold at fifteen, or two for a quarter and tomatoes fifteen cents straight with a very small margin at these prices. The wholesale price of peas is $2.23 per case while corn and beans are $2.28 and tomatoes $2.80, so it is readily seen that they will not get rich very fast if they continue to sell at these prices, which means about a seven per cent. basis when at least calculation it costs the merchant twelve per cent, to do business.

VANCOUVER.

March 23.—Now that fresh butter is coming from western Alberta in good quality, those who have Australian are beginning to fear that they may get caught. There is considerable Australian in the city, which cost about 28 cents to get it here, while Alberta is being jobbed at 30 cents, so that there is no chance for the Antipodean article as far as competition is concerned. Moreover, it is done up with less salt and has not the keeping qualities.

With the alternation of the seasons in Canada and the Antipodes, trade is furthered, and to-day there are Australian plums on the market, at 35 cents per basket. They are of good quality, and are a tasty thing at this time of year.

New Zealand onions are also here in two varieties, the light skinned, which is more the shape of an apple and of good size, and the dark skinned, which is large and flatter in shape. They are excellent quality and should command the trade. On the Makura, which is now in port, 500 cases were brought in, being the first to come to Canada, and on the next steamer, one month hence, 5,000 cases will be brought up for distribution in the Northwest. With more cold storage facilities on the boats plying between New Zealand and Vancouver more of this trade would follow. Four hundred cases of potatoes, white rose and bismarcks, have also arrived from the South Seas. They come at a time when potatoes are getting scarce.

Andrews & Nunn, grocers in Mount Pleasant, Vancouver, have on exhibition two fine black squirrels. These are a rarity here, and were brought from Ontario. As they are pretty and lively they are attracting considerable attention. After exhibiting the animals, Andrews & Nunn, will donate them to the zoo in Stanley Park.

Rossland merchants, business men and hotel keepers formed a commercial association last week, which has for its object the mutual protection and advancement of the members, and a correction of some of the evils that attend the credit system. Those present were: A. W. Smith, R.H. Anderson, George Owen, George Agnew, H. S. Wallace, W. H. Goodeve, George Urquhart, Kenneth Martin, James Belton, T. G. Challoner, Thomas Dixon, H. W. Jones, W. G. Ternan, A. Cameron, W. F. McNeill, Dr. A. H. Tanner, W. K. Esling, J. W. Lougheed, P. R. McDonald, J. O. Athey, Mayor John Martin and Dan Thomas. H. S. Wallace was elected president; George Urquhart, vice-president, and R. H. Anderson, secretary. Annual fees were placed at $2.50. It was pointed out that the Board of Trade did effective work, but what the merchants wanted was a protective association whereby there would be less loss from deadbeats. Mr. Goodeve complained of the number of subscriptions that business men were called upon to contribute to and the number of tickets they were asked to buy, and said that there was scarcely a day that contributions for some object or other were not called for. In Ontario towns, the business men had associations and pledged themselves not to buy tickets for fairs, raffles, etc., over the counter. The constant drain on the hotels and business houses in Rossland had grown to such proportions as to seriously affect profits. A long debate ensued on the expediency of interviewing the mine managers with a view to ascertaining if they would accept orders for the pay of those employes whose credit was considered doubtful. It was suggested, however, that those from whom orders would be demanded establish credit for themselves at the banks or some central agency, so that they can meet their current expenses without the intervention of credit on the part of those who run stores, etc. This idea met with the approval of all present and an effort will be made to put it into effect just as soon as a proper plan can be formulated.

The annual report of the Edenbank Creamery Association, which operates in the Chilliwack district, was very gratifying, showing a substantial increase over the output for the preceding year. Although the average price for the year was a quarter of a cent lower than last year, being 29¾ cents, as compared with 30c for 1907, yet the amount of money distributed among the patrons and shareholders for cream amounted to over $1,766 in excess of 1907. During the year, the patrons delivered to the creamery 196,686 pounds of butterfat, from which was manufactured 224,412 pounds of butter, realizing $57,765.05, or an average price of 29¾c, after deducting all the cost of manufacture, including commissions, freights and the handling of cream to the creamery. The Edenbank has the reputation of turning out a first class class article at all times, and is one of two large creameries in the Chilliwack district. The other is the Chilliwack Creamery Association, and the large amount of money these concerns bring into the one section is making for general prosperity among the dairymen there. Edenbank directors, elected at the annual meeting, were J. A. Evans, C. T. Higginson, I. C. Lucas, J. Thompson and A. C. Wells.

WINNIPEG.

March 23.—It will be generally admitted that attractiveness of interior design, and neatness and cleanliness of appearance are enviable requisites for the modern grocery store. In Winnipeg there are many such stores. It may be attributed to the fact that the city is comparatively young, and that there is no occasion for inferior stores. At any rate, the majority are up-to-date in every way. Special mention might be made of the grocery department of Robinson & Co., department store. Upon entering this store the first impression received is the beauty of the whole place. The spotless hardwood counter, the shinning coffee grinder, and the attractive display of goods in every hand, compels one to look around, and be at home in the delightful surroundings. C. W. Waring, the manager, is largely responsible for this condition of things. Regarding trade this store is, as a natural sequence, progressive.

The local retailers do not report the trade booming at the present time. Up to the present they have been buying cautiously, and goods have been moving steadily, and one grocer predicts this condition to exist until May, when, as is the usual annual event, there will be a decided boom in the business generally.

A fact which should be of considerable interest to the farmers of Manitoba, is that a few of the local retailers are compelled to receive southern eggs to supply the growing demand. Many Manitoba farmers succeed in producing many eggs for market, and it should not be necessary to go below the boundary for this commodity. With the introduction of mixed farming in Manitoba, it is expected that the local demand for eggs, as well as other goods, will be more adequately supplied from the immediate farmers. The prices of eggs have dropped, and no retail price is quoted. Retailers are paying at present about 22c for fresh, and 25c for new-laid.

The butter handled by the majority of retailers in this city is of creamery production. It may be asked, why dairy butter from the farm is not more popular.? It is the old story of quality. The creamery succeeds in putting up a uniform quality in acceptable form. The farmers, as most retailers can testify, are capable of putting up almost any grade of butter in any form imaginable. In other words, the creamery is the most reliable source. A rural merchant, in writing to the Nor'-West Farmer, suggested the use of printed wrappers for the farmers. These wrappers would have the name of the porducer and the number or name of the producer's farm, and would be supplied by the merchant with whom he deals. This seems like a sane suggestion. At any rate, such a system would ensure the cognito of the producer of good or poor butter, and it would compel the producer to stand behind his product—be it good or bad. Such a system would undoubtedly stimulate the maker of home-made butter to turn out the best possible quality, and thus eliminate much of the nuisance which the dealer of inferior grades of butter has to contend with.

CALGARY.

March 23.—Proof of growing business is amply shown by the bank clearings, last week's showing an increase of 72 per cent. over the corresponding week last year. The grocery houses, both wholesale and retail, report gratifying increases from month to month, and 1909 will doubtless prove a record one in all lines of business in the west. The implement dealers are already shipping out spring orders in large volume. Steam plows will be at work very shortly tearing up virgin prairie, and by the time fall wheat seeding arrives the acreage should be increased to be fully 25 p.c. greater than ever. Last year was a banner one for Southern Alberta. Actual shipping statistics reveal the fact that districts between Calgary and Macleod shipped as high as 60,000 bushels of grain to the mile, a record which has not heretofore been equalled in any part of the west. Seed oats are in demand at high prices, from 42c to 47c being paid. Many Alberta farms produce from 60 to 90 bushels to the acre, and it will thus be seen that the profit to the grower is a good one.

Hay, which was a good crop last year, is quite low in price, demand being poor owing to the mild winter and little demand from B. C. points. Butter and eggs are more plentiful. The latter are being shipped in in large quantities and are retailing at 30c per dozen for strictly new laid.

Potatoes are still being brought in from both east and west, although quite a few are being shipped down from Northern Alberta points. This will tend to ease the market, Albertas being lower in price. First shipments of New Zealand onions will arrive about the middle of April, and should retail at 5c per lb.

Sugars are advancing in sympathy with the eastern markets. California dried fruits are still being offered at very low figures, although advances are looked for in the near future as the season is at hand when enormous quantities are consumed throughout the prairie provinces.

There has been a war among the wholesale fruit dealers, and oranges, which are plentiful, are being quoted to the retailer at $3.00 per box for California navels.

Notes From the Maritime Provinces and Quebec

Sugar and Molasses from the West Indies Arrive at Halifax —New Brunswick Mutton for Winnipeg—Big Grocery Merger in Cape Breton—Officers of Montreal Retail Merchants' Association.

ST. JOHN.

March 23.—Except an advance of 20 cents a hundred pounds in the price of sugar there was no change in the market prices last week. The increase in the price is attributed to a strengthening market. John K. Schofield, who is one of the largest dealers in the commodity in speaking of the increase said: "For some time the conditions upon which Cuban sugar has been admitted to the United States have seriously affected the price of the commodity. The market has been glutted and the price has been forced down considerably lower than the demand would lead one to suppose it would. The Cuban crop, however, has been thoroughly exploited by now and the dealers who are regulating the prices are holding back the output in an endeavor to bring about the old order of rates." Mr. Schofield added that further increases might be expected within a very short time.

George A. Fawcett, of Sackville, has been shipping a large quantity of potatoes to Montreal. During the past week he sent away over 700 barrels of the tubers.

W. Herbert Downie, who was arrested and charged with the theft of $1,114 from T. S. Simms & Co., brush and broom manufacturers, was found guilty and sentenced by Judge McLeod on Saturday last to serve three years in Dorchester penitentiary.

George Coles and Robert Ewing, who were charged with burglarizing W. D. Baskin's grocery store on the west side were tried before Judge Forbes last week under Speedy Trials act. Ewing was allowed to go under suspended sentence of ten years and Coles was remanded to jail, pending an inquiry into his record.

Judging by the volume of business done by the New Brunswick Cold Storage Company during the past year, St. John is rapidly assuming an important place as a cold storage centre. It is estimated that 2,000 cars of goods have been handled with a valuation of about one million dollars. The bulk of the goods were, of course, of a perishable nature. The largest quantity of any one class stored was apples, which totalled 90,000 barrels, probably the record of any cold storage plant in Canada. A feature of the business has been the development of a market in the west for New Brunswick sheep. There has been shipped to Winnipeg 15,000 carcases. The opening of this market bids fair to mean much for New Brunswick farmers, as the sheep already shipped are reported to surpass the western article to such an extent that the local product is much in demand. The fish business, amounting to 100 cars within the last three months has been a feature. A very large quantity of beef and poultry has been stored, the winter port steamers alone taking for their own use 100 cars. This beef is principally western. The feature of the fish business has been the shipment from here of large quantities of eels to the United States, English and German markets, about 50 tons having been exported. Haddock and cod have also been exported largely. A considerable quantity of butter and eggs has also been stored. One local dealer had fresh blueberries and strawberries stored there all winter, taking them out as required. The fruit was in a fine state of preservation.

Communication between P. E. Island and the mainland was cut off for a few days last week, owing to heavy ice in the straits. The steamers are now running as usual.

Owing to the entry of a third candidate in the contest Harry G. Smith, the west end grocer, has decided to retire from the aldermanic field.

HALIFAX.

March 23.—General improvement is noted in all lines of the grocery business. The retail trade has increased greatly since March came in, and the travelers now on the road are sending in good orders. The changed conditions in the retail trade are largely brought about by the slump in the prices of butter and eggs. As a result of the bottom falling out of the market for these articles, prices are now reasonable and as a natural result the consumption has largely increased. Collections on the whole are considered quite satisfactory for this season of the year.

Pickford & Black's steamer Sobo, that arrived here this week from the West Indies, landed eleven thousand bags of sugar and five hundred puncheons of molasses.

Wentzell's, Ltd., wholesale grocers, of Halifax, have chartered a vessel to load a cargo of molasses at Barbados, for Halifax. One cargo of molasses has already arrived here and from now on it is expected that they will be quite frequent. As the molasses on all the markets has been pretty well cleaned up, the shipments this season will be very heavy.

T. F. Courtney & Co., retail grocers, will have a new building erected on the site of their present stores at the corner of Brunswick and Jacob streets. This firm does one of the largest retail grocery business in Halifax. The new structure will be of brick and stone and it is estimated that it will cost $25,000. The permit has been issued and work will be commenced at once.

Business continues very active in the fish markets. Halibut is still scarce but other lines of fish are coming in more plentifully. The catches on the whole are pretty small. Prices are generally steady, though a slight advance is looked for in salt cod.

"Harrington Limited," is the name of a newly organized concern which is to carry on a business in groceries and kindred commodities,—a merger in fact, of several large dealers now operating at various points in Sydney, C.B. The merger embraces the large groceries of H. C. Harrington, on Charlotte street, and the general stores of Norman McDonald, King's Road, Daniel Campbell, King's Road, Thos. Cozzolino, The Sydney Supply Co., and Messrs. Cuaig and Koning, who have been conducting the last named business on Victoria Road, are the promoters of the organization. Negotiations are pending with other business firms with a view to their consolidation with those already in the organization. The new company will be incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Act, and will have a capital of a quarter of a million dollars, with about one hundred thousand dollars paid up. It is stated that there will be absolutely no water in the stock in this concern, the capital paid up representing the actual value of the merged interest, their stock in trade and realty.

The incorporation will not be complete until the first of April, but a board of provisional directors, comprising those already parties to the transaction, have been appointed. Although the interests involved have been formally taken over, each store will, until the first of April, be conducted by the former holders, but for the benefit of all concerned. When the new order prevails under the incorporation, there will be a central management, of which F. G. Koning, who has had many years' experience, will be the managing director. The initial branch houses of the corporation will be on Charlotte street, King's Road, and Victoria Road, in Sydney, and in the near future a measure of expansion will probably be taken. It is calculated that under the new regime a big saving in operating expenses will result and substantial profits made for the shareholders.

Quite recently the business of the Workmen's Co-operative Association on George St., and J. McLeod & Co., Whitney Pier, were acquired by the Sydney Supply Co., and this additional patronage will add to the volume of the trade to be catered to by the new limited institution.

MONTREAL.

March 23.—F. V. Samwell, late of W. J. Craig & Co., Kingston, Ont., has accepted a position with S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal. He will cover the main line of the Grand Trunk, and the Ottawa Valley.

T. Yamada with S. T. Nishamura & Co., Montreal, left last Tuesday for Japan.

Thomas Montgomery, of Thomas Montgomery & Son, died suddenly last Saturday at his home in Westmount. Mr. Montgomery was known throughout Canada, and particularly so in Montreal. The respect in which he was held was due to the uprightness of his business career. Besides his widow, he leaves two sons and three daughters. Thomas, is associated with him in business and Norman is with the Canadian General Electric Company. The late Mr. Montgomery was born in Montreal sixty-seven years ago.

A meeting of the Montreal branch of the Retail Merchants Association took place Thursday evening, March 18, at their hall at 270 St. Catherine St. East. The chief business of the evening was the annual election of officers, for the ensuing year, which resulted as follows: President, J. G. A. Filion; 1st vice-president, Arthur Leger; 2nd vice-president, O. Normandin; treasurer, J. A. Bore; secretary, J. A. Beaudry. Isaie Prefontaine, President of the Chambre de Commerce, was among those present. F. C. Larieviere delivered an address on methods of retail selling.

Montreal continues to suffer from a scourge of burglaries. Almost every night some store is entered, and goods taken. The police seem to be totally inadequate to deal with the matter. It is thought that the improvement of industrial conditions will improve the situation, as in some cases, there is evidence that the perpetrators are driven to these straits, by absolute want. One grocer who has been a victim, in discussing the situation stated, that he was absolutely sure who entered his store, but he said he had not pointed out the suspect to the police, as only the bare necessities of life had been taken and he added, "Heaven knows they needed it."

S. T. Nishamura, of S. T. Nishamura & Co., Montreal and Japan, returned last week, from New York, and other American points, and left Tuesday night for Japan.

Considerable excitement was caused here among the grain men, by the announcement that the Trunk Lines Association had decided to reduce the rates on grain, from the great lakes to New York, to meet the "foreign water" competition which last summer gave Montreal and other Canadian ports, practically all the wheat carrying trade to Europe. Local grain dealers are not, however, disturbed by this action, as they state, that whatever reduction the Americans make, will be fully met on this side of the line.

Buyers in Montreal during the week were :

Some Interesting Ontario Grocery Correspondence

London Wholesale Fruit Dealer Tells of Conditions in Cuba—United States Potato Buyers in Western Ontario — Cutting Prices Discouraged by Chatham Grocer—Galt Grocers Cannot Sell Cigarettes.

LONDON.

March 24.—Wholesalers report trade rather quiet in the surrounding district. Locally business is fair with a bright outlook. Brokers report teas and coffees excited, due to impending U. S. tariff changes.

Local retailers are pleased over a reduction of 15c. per case in the price of Shredded Wheat, which enables them to sell two packages for a quarter. The reduction from $5.15 to $5 per case went into effect Saturday.

John M. Dillon, of A. M. Smith & Co., has returned from a six weeks' visit to Florida and Cuba.

C. L. Mountjoy has returned to his duties as head clerk for Ryan & Russell after a severe illness.

Last week saw two advances in the prices of sugar. The reason given here for the advance is that the cane crop in Cuba, owing to the dry season there, is smaller than usual. Last year at this time, when similar conditions prevailed, the price was identically the same, but it dropped some time afterwards. Some dealers have been retailing at twenty pounds for a dollar, and as yet there has been no change in the retail price.

G. G. Steele, wholesale fruit dealer, who has just returned from a two months' trip to Florida, estimates that there will be four million boxes of citrous fruit shipped out of that State. He says the grape fruit and orange crops will both be heavier and pineapples will probably be 25 per cent. greater in yield, though the greatly improved quality will tend to keep the price about the same as last year. Pineapples, he says, will be here two weeks earlier than usual. Considerable American capital is at present being invested in Florida fruit farms, but as far as Mr. Steele could see no Canadian capital has found its way there yet. The land costs about $50 an acre and before it will begin to bear pineapples from $200 to $300 must be spent in fertilizer, labor, etc. After that, however, it will bear for from fifteen to twenty years, if properly cared for, though the sandy nature of the soil makes the fertilizer a necessity every year. An average would probably be $100 per acre per year for fertilizer. Mr. Steele met a young man from Seaforth, N. Campbell by name, who was engaged in growing tomatoes and who said that he was getting along well. He also met several people from Michigan who were growing tomatoes and pineapples.

Butter prices are on the decline, both the dairy and the creamery products having started on the down grade. It is predicted that dairy butter will go below 20 cents per pound and creamery to from 22 to 23 cents. A year ago dairy butter sold io the market here at from 32 to 35 cents, wholesaling at from 29 to 31 cents. The prices at present run from 20 to 25 cents retail and 18 to 23 wholesale. Creamery butter a year ago retailed from 36 to 40 cents, with a wholesale price of 30 to 32. To-day the same class retails from 25 to 28 cents and from 22 to 25 cents a pound wholesale. "The amount of butter in the cold storage is the cause, said a local dealer. "There is plenty of butter and the price will go lower than it is at preswnr. On account of so much being stored away the prices remained high practically all winter with no demand. The speculators now have all this on hand. Outside dealers generally order in advance, either buying the goods outright or on a margin.

Eggs are coming into market very freely just now, the effect being to bring the price down to 20 cents per dozen retail, or 18 cents by the crate.

Buyers from the United States are going about this district buying up all the potatoes they can lay hands on. The tubers have been selling at from 55 to 65 cents per bag all winter, and it is expected that the outside demand will send the price up. Meanwhile, as a rule grocers have goodly supplies in store, as have also the more prudent housekeepers.

A rumor that the T. Eaton Company, of Toronto, were negotiating for a location in which to open a branch in this city cannot be verified.

CHATHAM.

March 24.—Coincident with the arrival of spring, the first lettuce of the season has made its appearance. John McCorvie & Son offered some on Monday, grown by a local market gardener.

Eggs are plentiful now. The prevailing retail price on the market Saturday morning was 20c. a dozen, and this dropped as low as 17c. in the afternoon. Last week the price was 22c. On Saturday one grocery firm, after retailing, sold 500 dozen of eggs to the packers. How many were sold in the entire city is hard to estimate.

Considerable price slashing has been in progress lately, but this condition of affairs, is probably a temporary one, coincident with the militarist propoganda abroad. Following the little soap war recently, one leading King street grocer last week held a Wednesday bargain sale, advertising cut prices in many lines. Sugar, 23 pounds for $1, was a notable instance. Another sale on similar terms was held on Saturday. The "cut" is understood to have been of a retaliatory nature, for the purpose of punishing an earlier offender in the same vicinity. "It's a losing game," remarked one man to the Grocer representative this afternoon. "Some years ago a grocer with whom I was employed saw golden opportunities in a Wednesday bargain sale. We used to have customers come from other stores ; but they never bought anything but the bargains—the things on which we were losing money. As a means of attracting trade, the "cut price" scheme wasn't up to much. Then, a next door neighbor cut his prices to match ours, and—well, by and by we saw that we were injuring the other fellow in order to injure ourselves too, and we quit. While the cut lasted we used to have the same people come, every bargain day, and buy the same things—but in 99 cases out of 100 they never bought anything else."

A Shredded Wheat banquet was held last week by the local King's Daughters, in aid of charity. A very timely display was put on simultaneously by John McCorvie & Son, in the shape of a Shredded Wheat window.

Mr. Blackburn, John McCorvie & Son's head clerk, is spending a couple of weeks with his daughter in Detroit.

The Continental Cigar Co. is the name of a new concern which will shortly start operations in Wigle's Warehouse on Lansdowne avenue, Kingsville. Mr. Bailey is the manager.

Irvine Wallace has relinquished his position as manager of W. C. Crawford's grocery department at Tilbury, and will leave to take a position in Amherstburg.

John Karr has exchanged his general store at Karrville, in Dawn township, for John McDowell's store, at Oungah.

Jas. S. Proal & Co., pork packers, of Leamington, have already commenced putting their product on the market, in a small way. A free site has been secured from the M.C.R. and the company will erect a modern packing house as soon as the spring opens. This will be a duplicate of the firm's new Michigan factory.

An agitation is being renewed for a new market for Leamington. The Westcott property at the electric railway terminus is being spoken of as a site.

The Heinz Pickle Co. has purchased land in Leamington adjoining its present property, and plans are being made for the erection of a processing house and a pickle salting house in the near future. Leamington is to be made the headquarters for the entire Canadian trade.

Henderson & Morris, bakers and confectioners, of Leamington, have dissolved partnership, J. E. Henderson continuing the business.

GALT.

March 24.—"Exceptionally good," is the unanimous verdict of all Galt grocers regarding the business of the past fortnight. "We are rapidly returning to the conditions which existed before the stringency," said John Sloan to your correspondent. "Of course we never doubted that the stringency was merely a matter of a few months, but it was severe enough while it lasted,"

Ald. T. G. Robinson, who conducts a grocery store on Brant Road, will shortly leave Galt. He will locate in either Toronto or Michigan.

Harold Ante, formerly with Radigan, left this week to take up a homestead in the West.

Tomatoes are being offered at Sloan's at 10 cents each.

Deans & Walker have recently had a demonstration of jellies.

Ald. Radigan is again on the sick list.

The by-law requiring the taking out of a license before cigarettes can be sold was passed by the council at its last meeting. The by-law becomes effective on June 1st and the fee is $25. The passing of the by-law means that all groceries will be prevented from selling cigarettes. The Main Street stores never did handle them, but the smaller grocers in the suburbs found quite a demand and consequently a stock was kept on hand. They will not however be in a position to pay a license of $25.

Can anyone from the outside give us any information regarding the Galt Merchants' Association ?

The grocery clerks' are already discussing the chances for a half holiday during the summer months. The agitation has become an annual affair and although the agitators have never been successful they are not yet discouraged.

"How is it," asked a grocer to-day, "that you never hear of bankrupt sales of groceries ?" Why is it ? Grocery firms fail just as well as dry goods and other lines, but there is nothing doing in the way of sensational bargain events.

The price of eggs is somewhat of a puzzle in Galt just at present. At Saturfay's market they were selling at from 20 to 24 cents per dozen. Butter is worth 26 cents per pound in Galt.

KINGSTON.

March 24.—Again the wheel of time has turned twelve times and again tenders are being asked for for institutions here. I met the old war horse of commerce in the centre of the market recently and I said I had figured on the contract for many years without success. "I don't doubt it," he said; "you don't know the ropes; no honest man has a chance. Look at the estimates and perhaps you will see that 20,000 lbs. of corn meal is required, and you put down your price, say, $1.70 per cwt. Jim the Grocer gets a tip that no meal will be used and he puts it down at 40c, and the contract is his another year. Tenders call for pure Mocha coffee, and sometimes 12c is accepted." Another grocer standing nearby leaning on a farmer's wagon, said he sent samples of black tea about five years ago to Ottawa. Tenders asked for a Ceylon at 17c or 18c. He sent them his figures and also put in a Congon at 12c. He didn't get the contract, but what he wanted to know was why were 25 chests of the same Congou accepted at 18c from another firm—something rotten in Denmark.

The agent of the Hobart Co., makers of electric coffee and spice mills, has made his semi-annual trip here again.

READS THE BACK NUMBERS.

London Office, March 15.—Charles E. Choat, of Halifax, N.S., who recently disposed of his retail business, and who with Mrs. Choat is now enjoying a few months rest in the Old Country and the Continent, was a recent visitor to the London office of THE GROCER. Relief from business cares, together with the delightful climate of the south of France, seems to have completely restored Mr. Choat's health, and when he returns to Halifax next month his friends will notice the improvement in his appearance. It was with evident pleasure that this old subscriber scanned closely the back numbers of his favourite paper, not having seen it since early in January.

Albert Gloon has one of their mills in use three years.

James Crawford has the contract for supplying groceries to the Royal Military College. He got the papers asking prices one day and they had to be mailed the same night. But Jim was on his job. Mr. Crawford is figuring on putting in an electric plant for roasting and grinding coffee, spices, etc.

George Crawford's broom factory is in full swing again. He donesn't want any fires for some time to come.

The new Patent Medicines Act is calling forth a lot of "cusses." It's an awful job to go through a big stock and stick stamps on every bottle. One man said he had cough medicine and soothing syrups 30 years old. The demand for drugs seems to be getting less. Druggists are having bergain counters and offering dollar goods at 50c, and 50c goods at 25c. Christian science must be playing havoc with doctors and medicines.

Harold Buck, clerk for Jas. Redden & Co., has bought out Mrs. Clow. The store is on Earl Street, and at one time was a coffee and spice factory run by Mr. Karch, now of Montreal.

W. F. Morley, of the Canada Brokerage Co., Toronto, is staying at the Randolph. He is on his yearly trip getting orders for canned goods for next fall delivery.

J. Waters, after four years' stay in the West, has returned and opened a store in his old stand. He thinks old Kingston is as good as any of the new places.

The demonstrations of tea, coffee, jellies, cocoa and Maggi soups this winter is much appreciated by the people.

Miss McMahon is serving a particular brand of soups this week at Gilbert's store, Gore Street, and next week she will be at the Golden Lion Grocery.

TORONTO.

March 24—A. E. Goggins, 237 Broadview Ave., has just now a very attractive window.

E. Berrie, 349 Broadview Ave., prides himself in keeping very fine delivery horses, and thinks he has the best and most careful drivers in the city.

F. Harding is manager of the one-time co-operative store, 1039 Gerrard St., now in the hands of Oliver Peake.

R. W. Dockeray, member of the milk dealer's section of the Retail merchants' Association of Canada, is appointed on the milk commission by the Ontario Government.

N. B. Bamford, 1043 Gerrard St., keeps a fine store, which is carefully looked after by two ladies.

J. A. Newman, 681 Markham Street, is a grocer who caters satisfactorily to his nearest neighbors and saves long-distance deliveries.

Mrs. Tomlinson, 968 Bathurst Street, is one of the first grocers on that street, and holds her trade by good friendship and good service.

I. B. Hagan, 638 Bloor Street West, is a grocer who is making money in his business, while his property is growing in value.

Vaisey & Wilcox, 930 Bloor Street West, are getting a new delivery outfit, that will attract attention, and aid in advertising the firm.

D. McEachern, 934 Bloor West, has the reputation of a successful grocer by keeping a clean, attractive store.

F. B. Robinson, 1218 Bloor St. West, has bought out R. T. Stillman.

INGERSOLL.

Notwithstanding that this is a "between season" local grocers report a steady trade that is very encouraging. Several of the grocers who realize the value of printer's ink are calling special attention to fruits and vegetables, and it is surprising the amount of trade that can be secured theough these "talks" in the advertising space. Oranges for marmalade have been extensively advertised and large sales made, while lettuce, green onions, pineapples and other imported fruits are also in good demand.

PERTH.

March 24.—At the next meeting of the Farmers' Club the question of "Potato Growing in This District" will be discussed. The aim of the meeting is to bring about the growing of some one good variety all over this section. This makes the meeting of special interest to grocers. At present potatoes here are so mixed up as to variety and grade that it is impossible for a dealer to buy a car of any one variety for shipment. A representative from the Farmers' Institute branch will address the meeting.

Package seeds are again in evidence everywhere. They are a good line, too, and easily sold. A good margin is obtained and there is no risk when handled on commission.

Miss Wrathall, who. for a number of years has been one of Perth's successful salesladies, was recently married. She will be missed in local grocery circles. Miss M. Taylor has taken Miss Wrathall's position with C. A. Farmer & Son.

A movement is on foot in Smith's Falls to change the early-closing by-law. Those behind the movement want to stay open three nights in a week and close the other three at seven o'clock instead of six.

ST. THOMAS.

March 24.—The markets were well attended last Saturday by the usual sellers but the scarcity of buyers was much in evidence. However, most of the supplies were disposed of. Eggs sold from 20 to 24c. per doz. The market was weak and the prospects are that they will go much lower shortly. Butter was likewise easier and sold from 23 to 27c. per lb.; potatoes sold from 75 to 85c. per bag, and apples are about done. Green stuff was sold, such as rhubarb, lettuce, green onions, etc. No change in meats occurred except that the buyers paid $6.90 live weight for hogs instead of $7.00 per 100 lbs. The two recent advances of ten cents per 100 lbs. each of sugar should stop those dealers who have been selling 20 lbs. for the dollar. The grocers generally are selling 16 lbs. for the dollar and the buyers are satisfied. The cutters should consider that when others do likewise their object is defeated and all lose money thereby and the first to complain are those who begin the cutting.

The grocers are pleased to learn that the Provincial Legislature intends to amend the peddlers' act and state exactly the amount of the license fee to be imposed, thus preventing the magistrates from dismissing the charges on account of the city by-law being prohibitory, in their estimation.

GAIN FOR THE GROCERS.

Through Instrumentality of P. H. Bowyer, M.P.P., Pharmacy Act Has Been Amended.

The proposed amendment to the Pharmacy Act introduced by P. H. Bowyer, M.P.P., East Kent, into the Ontario Legislature recently has been acted upon. The sub-committee appointed to consider the bill have sent in their report and the retail merchants of Ontario and particularly the country merchants, have benefited thereby.

Up to the present time the merchants have been allowed to sell the following articles: Proprietary or patent medicines, turpentine, Epsom salts, senna, alum, borax, castor oil, sulphur, Glauber salts, cream of tartar, carbonate of soda, bi-carbonate of soda and glycerine.

The new bill as passed by the committee allows them to sell the same articles but in addition also the following: Carbonate of megnesia, Rochelle salts, blue stone, copperas, rhubarb root, saltpetre, spirits nitre, solution of ammonia, phosphate of soda, chloride of lime, gum camphor, citrate of magnesia and quinine. All of these were before prohibited.

Carbolic Acid, Too.

As well as the above mentioned articles the merchant will now be allowed to sell freely carbolic acid not exceeding a 5 per cent. solution, hellibore, arsenate of lead and tincture of iodine, provided they are sold in well secured packages distinctly labelled with the name and address thereon, of the person preparing or putting up such packages, and marked "Poison," with the further restriction that the vendor of the above mentioned solution of carbolic acid shall keep a record of the persons to whom he has sold the same.

Mr. Bowyer, when seen by The Canadian Grocer, said he was satisfied with the arrangement and so were the druggists.

The sub-committee in whose hands the matter was left was composed of W. F. Nickle, a Kingston barrister, chairman; Dr. McKay, Dr. Nixon, F. G. MacDiarmid and P. H. Bowyer.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Sugar—Advanced 10c.
Teas—Advanced.
Dried Fruits—Trade is brisk.
Nuts—Primary markets advance.
Rice—Decline in price.

Montreal, March 25, 1909.

Business is limited to the fulfillment of orders for immediate requirements. Very little trade for future delivery is passing. Buyers, while they think good times have started to come their way, are nevertheless using considerable caution in their buying, for fear they may have been too sanguine. Collections are only fair. Wholesale houses state that they are better outside the city than they are here. The chief feature of the week was the rise in sugar. This was due to the New York market, which our own follows closely. Raws are higher, consequently a rise all round has resulted. Teas have all gone up the scale more or less. The high grades are in the greatest demand, owing to availability for the American market. Grades below the U.S. standard have advanced in sympathy with the others.

Arrivals of new crop Brazil nuts are expected in a few days. Walnuts are selling freely in jobbing lots. The whole nut market is stronger in tone, owing to advancing primary market. The first shipment of molasses has arrived, but has not affected the market visibly.

Dried fruits are brisk. No very important changes have taken place in other lines during the week.

SUGAR—Another advance was recorded on March 19 of 10c. This action is due to the remarkable strength of the raw market, and an advance in refined prices, in New York. Locally trade is good.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—For the first time in the history of the molasses market, as far as anyone knows, choice in the primary markets is higher than fancy. First shipment has arrived at Halifax, but has not affected quotations, which still remain firm, and unchanged. Syrups are quiet and the quotations remain the same as last week.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—Some of the large interests have been stirring things up a little, by indulging in a little price-cutting, and consequently wholesalers are able to offer goods from 10 to 15 cents lower than recent quotations. CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—In view of the season, the demand for fish has been disappointing. Vegetables are moving fairly freely. Fruits are slow. Meats are meeting with only an indifferent sale, which condition, dealers say, will change soon, as summer is coming and demand will be much larger. Cold meats are not as popular in winter with housekeepers as they are in summer when they make as little use of a fire as possible.

TORONTO—Gallon tins of apples have advanced 15c a dozen locally, and export demand is offering 5c higher still. Stocks are low and going off rapidly, green stock being unavailable.

Canned fruit lines are beginning to move fairly free, but wholesalers complain that they expected them to move long before this and is greater volume.

Peas, tomatoes and corn are free sellers among the vegetables, though the first-named are getting very scarce. Fish lines are easing up slightly, that is, they have not been in such demand this week as a month ago. The season for them is hardly over as yet and no uneasiness is felt.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Another advance of 10 cents.

Canned Apples—Gallon cans up 15 cents a dozen.

Raisins—Valencias, firmer ; California, easier.

Peas—Extra sifted out of the market.

Prunes—Good sellers.

Teas—Big demand.

Toronto, March 25, 1909.

Still another advance of 10 cents per cwt., is noted in sugars. This makes the third advance since the beginning of the month. The market is very firm. Raw sugars from the West Indies which commenced arriving a fortnight ago at Halifax are still coming to this market, though supplies are not so plentiful as was anticipated. They are coming on a bare market. The U. S. Consul-General at Havana says Cuba will produce 1,100,000 tons of sugar this season.

Valencia raisins are firming up. Because of demand caused by a shortage of green apples, raisins are called on to supply the deficiency. California raisins are easy. The crop was enormous last year and present supplies are more than enough to meet demands. Muscatels may not advance again until the new seeded crop arrives.

Prunes are good sellers, and peas are scarce. Extra sifted peas are out of the market at present. Rice, tapioca and spices are unchanged.

Teas share with sugars the chief interest among grocery lines. The rumored U. S. tariff changes have caused a big demand to be made for all available teas in nearby markets and the local market is pretty bare. Wholesalers are not unanimous as to prices advancing, but it rather looks that with depleted stocks the prices will go up.

Cereals are not moving so well as during the cold weather, and beans are not so much in demand this week.

Business generally is opening up fair—not so much as was expected ; still satisfactory. Collections are slowly improving and orders received call for a larger volume of general stocks.

SUGAR.—Since last issue sugar has gone up another 10 cents, and the market is firm at the advance. Raw sugars are arriving, though it is stated not so freely as was expected. Stocks are in consequence lower. No immediate decline is anticipated.

TEA.—The market is very active and exciting. Buying on speculation is indulged in by U. S. dealers who anticipate the tax on tea to become law when the Payne bill gets through Congress. As yet prices are unchanged, though with depleted stocks it is hardly natural to expect that prices will not advance for a time at least until the law of supply and demand rights itself.

DRIED FRUITS.—Prunes are good sellers just now, though strange to say, evaporated apples are rather slow. It may be on account of the low prices of some dried fruits. The West bought some evaporated stock, though it is said they are being held in storage at Winnipeg until the green stock is off the market, when better prices are expected to be realized. Raisins are interesting locally. Valencias are firmer on account of scarcity of apples, and Californias are easy on account of over supply. Currants, dates, figs and peels are unchanged in price and conditions.

TRADE NOTES.

Frederick W. Marshall, general merchant, Mount Dennis, Ont., died last Saturday.

A petition, largely signed, bearing the signatures of nearly all the retail grocers in Hamilton, asking that a by-law be passed keeping fruit peddlers off the streets of the city, was presented to the Markets Committee on Monday. The aldermen decided to make an investigation before taking action, and a subcommittee was appointed for that purpose.

A letter has been received from E. M. Trowern secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, on the subject of P. H. Bowyer's bill, but owing to its length and the lateness of its arrival it will not appear in The Canadian Grocer until next week. The matter for this week's issue had been arranged for when it was received.

Much Wheat Left in Western Farmers' Granaries

Estimated That 14,000,000 Bushels Are Required for This Year's Seed—No Active Buying From Great Britain—Increasing Trade in Coarse Grains, Bran, and Hay.

Winnipeg, March 23.—There has not been relatively much change in the wheat situation for the past ten days. The market has varied up and down and occasionally the variation has been considerable, as is always the case with a narrow market and the wheat market of the Canadian West has been an exceedingly narrow one. There have been a few days when export trading was good; there have been no days when it could be said to be very active. No advance in prices and no "bull dope" as to the condition of winter wheat seem to have been able to shake the British miller from his serene calm or tempt him into anything like active buying. Stocks are light in the old country, and for a long period the actual world's crop news shorn of all exaggerations, was bullish and yet the British miller with his many million mouths to feed has absolutely refused to do anything but buy from hand to mouth. Now the news on the whole seems to endorse the wisdom of his policy, for taking world conditions at the end of the third week in March they are decidedly more bearish than they were at the end of the third week of February and the season is a month nearer another harvest. This is emphatically so, so far as the Canadian West is concerned. Receipts, which for so long a period after the new year set in, were phenomenally light, began to increase about that time and have steadily increased ever since. Not only receipts in Winnipeg but receipts at country elevators. C. C. Castle, the Warehouse Commissioner, has just issued a report placing the crop of the Canadian West for 1908, wheat alone, at 105, 149, 354 bushels and this report coincides with the final returns of the various provincial governments. According to the details of this report there are 14,673,154 bushels still in farmers' hands and 12,511,000 bushels in store in interior elevators, making 27,184,154 bushels of the crop of 1908 still to come forward. The seed requirements for 1909 are put at 144,000,000, which is excessive, so that even the figures mentioned as available may be slightly increased. In the opinion of your correspondent the government and Mr. Castle's estimate of the wheat crop is too high by several million bushels, but the amount still to come forward is fully endorsed. There is a great deal of truth in the homely wisdom of an exchange to the south, which remarked some weeks ago, "make the price high enough and it is remarkable what the farmers can do with brooms and shovels in the bin corners." It is quite probable that this report will have the effect of making the British miller still more indifferent in his buying.

There is a factor in the British millers' position that seems to be rather generally overlooked. It is not only that he seems to see plenty of wheat ahead to buy when he needs it but it is more than probable he sees a decreased demand for bread with the 2½ pound loaf doubled in price in the west end and 1½d. higher in the east end of London. It is no use to say that people must have bread, the awful fact is that when times are hard, as they have been all this winter in Britain, an advance in the price of bread means a direct and very noticeable decrease in consumption. The outlook for better times in Britain is not brilliant at the present moment. All these things affect more or less directly the wheat market in Winnipeg.

An Early Spring Expected.

With St. Patrick's day behind them, westerners are talking spring. The weather has been mild and very bright and though throughout the country there is a good blanket of snow, in the cities it has almost disappeared. There seems to be a general feeling that spring will be early this year and implement houses declare they are already beginning to feel the pressure of spring trade. Seed houses report the same condition.

The building trade has certainly felt spring, as within the past week a very large number of excavations for business and residential blocks have been started and are being pushed vigorously. Wherever steal frame work is in course of construction it is being rushed.

Emigrant trains are arriving two and three times a week and the class of settlers coming in is of an unusually high order. The rush of emigration promises to be large this season and immigration officials are making every preparation to handle the rush. The opening of so large a number of homesteads in the Province of Manitoba has concentrated attention more on the older province than has been the case for some years.

The various committees appointed to inquire into the feasibility of a Selkirk Centennial reported to a general meeting the other day and these reports were so favorable that it was unanimously decided to go ahead with the project as fast and as energetically as possible.

Cattle Moving Slowly.

The cattle market is very dull here just at present and there is little coming forward beside some rather indifferent butchers' stuff. Last year at this time quite a few range cattle were moving but so far there is nothing doing this spring. This is probably due to the fact that range cattle were more closely cleaned up last fall than was the case in the fall of 1907 and therefore a new supply will not be available until later in the season.

Dealers in coarse grains, bran and hay report a rapidly increasing trade and an excellent inquiry looking to business later in the season. The projected railway construction is largely responsible for this. Contractors are already getting their outfits under way and the moment the snow is off the ground work will commence in many districts. In some districts in Alberta work has already commenced.—H.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, March 19.—There are large stocks of goods being taken in at the present time in almost every commodity. The city trade is quiet but heavy shipments are leaving the city for western points. The immense railway construction proposed this season will require large stocks of canned and camp goods. Preparations are being made to supply this demand which will open up shortly. The advance on all sugars, and the extreme advance on brooms, are the features of this week's quotations.

SUGAR—All sugars advanced within the past week. On March 17 an advance was quoted of 10c per 100 lbs. On March 19 another advance of 10c is quoted. The following prices are most accurate that can be secured, but a further advance is still expected.

CATALOGUES AND BOOKLETS.

Manufacturers and wholesalers are requested to send catalogues, booklets, etc., to The Grocer in order that it may be announced to the retail trade that they have been issued. Retailers in sending for catalogues referred to, should mention this paper to show they are in the trade and they should be read thoroughly by them on account of their educative value. Often they may be able to secure new ideas.

Facts About Canada.—The 1909 edition is out of the valuable booklet, "5,000 Facts About Canada," compiled by Frank Yeigh, of Toronto. Nearly 25,000 copies were sold of the 1908 edition, the demand coming from every part of this continent and the British Empire. The idea worked out, that of a concrete fact in a sentence, is an excellent one, the data being arranged under such self-indexing titles as areas, agriculture, banking, commerce, finances, mining, railways, wheat fields, etc. The book is published by the Canadian Facts Publishing Co., 667 Spadina Avenue, Toronto, Canada, or may be had from newsdealers.

THE STRAWBERRY CROP.

Opinions From Growers in and Around Niagara Peninsula.

St. Catharines, March 24.—Your correspondent has interviewed several fruit growers who are largely interested in strawberries to ascertain if possible the crop outlook of this fruit for 1909. Present opinions vary, yet all agree that more definite statements can be secured within the next few weeks when the snow and ice disappear.

From the vicinity of Vineland, Chris. Frety reports that the vines have stood the winter well and every indication points to a good crop.

Mr. Cartmore, of Clinton, reports that the plants were not covered during the winter, consequently are not in the best of conditions. A medium crop would be up to his expectations.

A. Griffiths, of Grantham, says that it is almost too early to give an accurate forecast of the prospect for strawberries in his district for this season as the patches are yet partly covered with snow and ice. He says however, that the crop will no doubt be small or even medium at the best owing to the drought last fall. This retarded the development of the vines. Very few new runners were developed. He also expected a shortage of strawberry plants for the starting of new patches.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Mr. Dunlop, of Ward & Dunlop, New York, was in Toronto this week calling upon the jobbing trade in the interests of Jas. Robinson & Sons, Ltd., Paisley, Manchester and London.

Morrish & Snyder, who recently succeeded H. I. Morrish in the grocery business on Hamilton street, Goderich, have now bought out McEwen Brothers, of the Maple Leaf Grocery. Bert McEwen goes to Clinton.

R. A. Tyus, Canadian manager of Church & Dwight, Montreal, who has been seriously ill for some months and who is now in the Roosevelt Hospital, New York, is improving rapidly and expects to be soon able to return to work. His many friends and customers in Canada will be pleased to learn of his convalescence.

Tea from Canada Going Across the Border

Price to Consumers Will Not be Affected in This Country Even if Payne's Bill Goes Through Congress — Change of Duty on Other Commodities not Important, Say Canadian Wholesalers.

Beyond the fact that a flutter has been caused in the Canadian tea situation by the recently announced changes in the United states tariff, the grocery trade here in Canada is not affected by that pronouncement. This is the opinion expressed by a number of the leaders of the grocery trade in Toronto.

Representative Payne in his bill introduced to Congress a week ago called for among a number of tariff changes, some modification of the duties on grocery lines entering the United States. On starch there is a reduction of ½c per pound, with the exception of potato starch ; tea, which formerly entered free is taxed 8 cents a pound when entered from the country of production, and 9 cents a pound coming from non-producing countries ; sugar is reduced five-hundredths of a cent a pound, and dextin is reduced ½ cent a pound ; spices have a duty of 30 per cent. placed on them; and coffee is retained on the free list, except that provision is made that a duty equal to any export duty levied by any exporting country shall be collected on coffee imported from that country. This is meant to offset the export tax of 5 francs per bag placed on coffee imported from Brazil. Increases are placed on lemons, cocoa and substitute coffees. Other lines in which Canadian grocers are interested and on which changes have been made are : Barley reduced from 35 to 15 cents a bushel ; cabbages from 3 to 2 cents each, and bacon and hams from 5 to 4 cents.

The Grocer called on a number of Toronto wholesale grocers and tea men to get from them their views as to how the tariff changes would affect trade in Canada, and, as above stated, tea is the only line which shows any perceptible movement and that movement is of a purely speculative character.

Some Tea Going Across.

Arthur H. Paffard, sales manager of Davidson & Hay, did not think the U. S. tariff would affect Canadian trade or products. Just now there were some teas going into the United States, and buyers across the line were picking up all that was available in Canada, which was not much, in anticipation of the duty becoming law. He did not think prices here would change, although there might not be any surplus stock on the Canadian markets for a few weeks owing to this movement, which was a purely speculative one. As to starch and sugars the difference in duty did not amount to much, and would not affect conditions here in Canada. "The United States does not want our starch," said Mr. Paffard, "and we do not want theirs ; they do not want our sugar and we do not want their sugar. The consumption of sugar is increasing both in Canada and the United States, and the free importation of 300,000 tons of Philippine sugar would not be much when taken into account with the total amount consumed. However, the bill has not yet become law and anything may happen before its enactment. In any case with the exception of the present movement of our teas across the border there is no affect on Canadian grocery trade conditions."

No Surplus Stock Here.

G. R. Larkin, of the Salada Tea Co., did not think the Payne bill would affect the Canadian tea trade or prices. Canada had no tea market, and no surplus stock. The supply available here for picking up would not amount to more than 200 or 300 chests. London was the world tea centre and prices there might be affected ; but anything at present would be on a speculation basis. The tax on tea was a notification only and might never become law, so any opinions expressed would be simply conjectural.

Mr. Blain, of Eby-Blain, had not read thoroughly the provisions of the bill and could not express an opinion. Offhand, however, he thought that tea was going forward from Canada and other countries to buyers in the United States so that should the bill become law supplies across the border would be large. Prices to United States consumers would be increased ten cents, the amount of the tea tax, but he did not anticipate any advance here, at least not to the consumer.

J. F. Eby, Mr. Blain's partner, was also of this opinion. So far as the other grocery lines were concerned no change in conditions or prices was anticipated, both countries looking after tneir interests independently. Spices were not exported to the United States from Canada, houses here rather bringing it in than sending it out.

F. J. White, of Minto Bros., said at present there was a good movement in teas across the border, and buyers in the United States were giving two and three cents more than the market prices here. Last week as much as four cents higher than local quotations was obtained. Undoubtedly tea prices would be firmer here, although to the consumer there might be no advance. The present was an unlooked for movement and as such Canadian supplies might be short for a time. It would, however, be a matter of only a few weeks, and then things would right themselves. In the meantime the tea men were experiencing brisk business.

AN ONTARIO ASSOCIATION.

This is Not Favored by F. C. Higgins, a Toronto Grocer—Not Wanted, He Says.

Editor Canadian Grocer;

Dear Sir,—From time to time you take up the question of the formation of a Provincial Grocers' Association, endorsing the proposition, and doing your best to make out a case for the need of such an organization, in order that it might be the means of bringing about reforms and remedying abuses now existing in the trade.

While I agree with you regarding the urgent need of making the pathway of the grocer more pleasant and profitable, I absolutely disagree with you in your plan to bring about this much-to-be-desired result—in fact, if your views are accepted, and a simple one-line association formed, it requires no great prophetic vision to pronounce its future as doomed to failure. One only requires to pay a visit to the commercial graveyard to see numberless tombstones with the inscription written thereon, "Sacred to the Memory of a One-Line Association. Poor fellow; he meant well, but died from Lack of Strength."

Now, Mr. Editor, why do you overlook and ignore the fact that there exists to-day an organization that has within it the power of remedying every evil that exists in retail trade to-day, and which has proven its claim by its works, and should be supported by every retailer, as well as those who lay claim to be friends? Why you ignore these facts is a stumbling block to many of your subscribers.

Let us review some recent history. Who was it grappled with the trading stamp and rid this country of one of the greatest frauds that ever afflicted its commercial and moral life? Who was it that saved the retail trader from being saddled with two or three times more taxes than they are now called upon to pay? Who was it saved the day for legitimate retailing in this country and killed the co-operative bill down at Ottawa? Who was it that was up and doing and succeeded in putting into bankruptcy the two co-operative concerns doing business under a provincial charter, with headquarters in Toronto? Who is it that is bearing the burden and advocating the rights of retailers down at Ottawa that they might be free men, enjoying the same rights and privileges granted to other members of the community? Who? And the answer comes back—the Retail Merchants' Association, and then the query comes, Why? Have they been able to do what others failed or never tried, and the answer is, "Unity." The strength of numbers, not grocers only, but retail merchants of all classes unitedly insisting on their just rights.

Don't continue to persistently kick against the pricks. Let us have the joy of seeing the good qualities of The Canadian Grocer turned in the right direction, advocating the cause of the Retail Merchants' Association, and, if needs be, that some particular line of trade—say, the grocers—desire to call a provincial convention to discuss matters of special interest to their particular business, all well and good. That can be done by the sections, but don't keep on advocating the building up of one-line associations, which simply means the weakening of the great work that can be done by all retailers, standing shoulder to shoulder and fighting under one common flag.

History of the Fig and Its Trade Development—More Than 300 Varieties Known—Found in all Warm Climates—How They are Dried.

FIGS.—The fig (ficus carica) is so far as history records the oldest of historical trees and is frequently mentioned in the Bible. It was the flavor of Athens figs that tempted Xerxes to undertake the conquest of Attica in about 480 B.C. There are about 300 varieties of the fig—green, white, yellow, brown and black. Figs are natives of the Mediterranean regions, Syria, Eastern Persia, and Arghanistan. They were cultivated in China as early as the latter part of the 4th century. They now abound in all warm climates, like India, Asia, Africa and Southern America, and the common fig tree is now cultivated all over southern Europe.

It grows 15 to 30 feet high with dark green leaves, rough above and downy beneath. The spores are of very dark violet color, smooth externally, globose in form, and measure from 6 to 8 inches in diameter. The tree in all its parts abounds in a viscid milky juice, even in the unripe fruit. This juice is very acrid, and is said to destroy warts, and in Pliny's time it was thought to cure the bites of venomous animals and mad dogs. The flowers are never apparent to the eye, but are contained in those fruit-like bodies produced in the axils of the leaves, and it is not until one of these is opened that the flowers are visible. What is, therefore, termed the fruit is merely the enlarged fruit-stalk end which has become fleshy, and assumes the form of a hollow body, bearing on its interior walls the flowers or fruit of the fig. These pear-shaped fruits grow out of the limb twice and in some places three times a year—in June, September and a later imperfect crop in December—but this last is very precarious. The pulp of the fig contains over 60 per cent. of sugar. The largest and best come dried and pressed into layers in drums or in small square wooden boxes of ¼ to 14 lbs., from Smyrna in Turkey, the finest being known as Elemes, new crop arriving in the latter end of August or early in September, usually packed in skeleton cases holding 2½ to 3 cwts. Others are pressed into bags of 14 lbs. to 60 lbs. each. Also in mats and baskets. Rush baskets, called "tapnets," are often used. Figs are dried either in the sun or in stoves, and are usually known by the names of the places where produced. They form the greater part of the food of certain peoples in Africa, and even the peasantry in some parts of Spain and Italy. Those from Greece are usually very small in size, very much dried, and packed in barrels or baskets, also threaded upon long strings and not so carefully packed as Turkish—which indeed are the chief growth imported into England. Faro figs commonly come in tapnets of 28 lbs., and boxes of 22 lbs. In Spain figs are largely exported in mats from Malaga and Valencia, and they are more or less abundant in every province. The number of fig trees in the Lepe and Cartaya district exceeds 400,000 and produce some 2,000 tons yearly. The export from Huelva is, however, very small, and most of them come from Cadiz, whither they are shipped in faluchos from Cartaya. In quality these figs are much inferior to Smyrna figs and are principally used for cooking with rice or for making into fig cakes. All Spanish figs have a bluish cast with a sweet and agreeable taste, but the skin is hard and thick. In Syria and throughout the Levant, figs are grown in great abundance, and form the chief food of the soldiers and native inhabitants. They are medicinally a mild laxative, but (unless packed with a good supply of bay leaves) those dried entirely in the sun are frequently infested with small grubs. The cheaper kinds, commercially known as naturals, usually arrive in 56-lb. bags, or cases. They are liable to be affected with "fig smut," a reproductive parasite which commences work in the interior of the fruit, and soon converts the whole into a sooty mass. This insect, known as the Coccus Rusci, is especially partial to the fig, but it is also found on other trees..

Allowed to Drop.

Figs are best when thoroughly ripe and not gathered until they drop from the trees, the skin slightly cracked, and the exuded juice adhering on the surface like dew-drops. Figs are generally gathered and cured as follows: A sheet is held under the tree, then the branches are shaken to make the ripe fruit fall. Any bruised fruit is not fit for curing. A bath of strong potash lye is prepared, strong enough to float an egg, and when boiling hot the figs are dipped into it by means of a wicker basket for the space of two minutes, and then again dipped in clear water. After dripping for a short time they are fit for drying either in the sun or in ovens or machines. The figs may then be flattened by pressing by the hands. The sun is best for drying them; but as already stated, flies are apt to lay eggs in them and they may afterwards become wormy. The heat of an oven, on the contrary, is hot enough to destroy the eggs.

Pulled figs from Turkey bring the best prices obtained for the dried kinds and when honestly packed are decidedly among the best. Some unscrupulous shippers use this grade for the upper layers and "naturals" for all underneath.

Italian figs are of very fine flavor, and generally arrive in fine condition. Crystallized figs are preserved in a fresh state. They are very delicate and highly esteemed. They are usually packed in ornamented boxes containing half a gross of the fruit.

French figs come from the gardens of the south of France, especially about Argenteuil and in Roscoff, but the fruit is eaten fresh and never dried. The blue fig or Violette de Bordeaux, is familiar to visitors to the Riviera. It is also grown in Kent, in England. Each year figs are becoming more and more popular, and in view of their gentle laxative action are recommended.

INFERIOR DAIRY BUTTER.

Chief Dairy Commissioner for Canada Writes on the Question—General Quality Improving, However.

By J. A. Ruddick.

There is a great deal of truth in what is said by M. Moyer in his article entitled "The Evil of Making Poor Butter," which appears on page 31 of The Grocer, of the issue of March 5th, but I do not agree with him that the average quality of butter in Ontario is not as good to-day as it was 25 years ago.

I am positive that the general quality of the butter has shown great improvement in that time and that is one of the reasons why there has been such an increase in the consumption. At the same time, I am free to admit that there is yet a very large percentage of dairy butter the quality of which is very far from satisfactory. The butter makers, however, are not wholly to blame for this state of affairs. The defects which are found in ordinary roll or lump butter are often due as much to improper handling by the dealers or grocers as they are to methods of manufacture. Much of this butter is held in unsuitable places at ordinary temperatures for days and even weeks. Every trader who deals in farmers' butter should provide himself with proper cold storage for handling it even in small quantities. That this is not done, we have ample evidence from the reports of the refrigerator car inspectors employed by this Branch of the Department of Agriculture. I do not desire to excuse the slipshod methods followed by some farmers in the manufacture of butter, by placing a share of the responsibility on the proper shoulders. I do not mean to say that all grocers are neglectful in this matter. There are many who are provided with good cold storages and protect the butter in every way possible.

I am pleased to assist grocers and dealers as I have in the past to provide this equipment by sending them free of cost plans for small refrigerators which are inexpensive and effective.

TO PREVENT ROT.

A Brandon grocer who has tried the experiment claims that it is easy to prevent potatoes from rotting by placing them in different parts of the cellar in which there is kept a box containing a quantity of lump slack lime. He states that this lime absorbs the moisture which has such a detrimental effect upon potatoes, and in his case has resulted in keeping his stock of this commodity always in good condition.

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Not Many Canadian Cured Meats Going to Britain—Talk of a Deputation to Denmark to Look Into Situation There—Butter Moving Somewhat Better—Canadian Cheese Scarce.

The provision situation attracts attention all over the country. It is a fact that very little of our cured meats are shipped to England and that that market is largely supplied from Denmark, which is causing some alarm. Some are even advocating the advisability of asking the government to appoint a deputation to visit that country and find out what is "wrong in Denmark" or perhaps what is "right in Denmark." They seem to have excelled us in butter making, and apparently they are doing it in raising hogs. Several representatives have been sent in fromer years from here to look into their dairy industries and whether they brought back any useful improvements or not is not known, but our farmers went on making good and bad butter the same as before. If the results of a visit to that country in relation to the hog raising industry would be no better, it would be money wasted. In Denmark the people are Danes, who are all industrious and are working harmoniously on certain well laid out plans, but in this country we have different nationalities, who all work more or less on lines laid out by themselves. Some of our people can stand prosperity and continue to attend closely to business, but others can not. Our farmers for a number of years have been getting high prices for everything they produced, and now should be well fixed financially and will not drive their farms with the same energy they did some years ago. In consequence dairying and hog raising are somewhat neglected.

Stocks of cheese are in very small compass in Canada. Colored has practically disappeared from the market. It has been said, that not more than 2,500 or 3,000 boxes could be bought on the Montreal market at the present moment. It is hard however, to make the Englishmen believe this. They seem to have the impression that there are ample supplies here. Receipts at Montreal for the season since May 1, 1908, have been 1,958,978 boxes, against 2,053,792 boxes, for the preceding year.

There has been an improved inquity generally, for butter during the last week. Last week over 1,600 pkgs. was exported to England. So that during the past week or ten days quite a large quantity have been moved out, besides what has gone into retailers' hands.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS—Hogs are from 15 to 20c per 100 lbs. live weight cheaper. The cause of this cannot well be arrived at. These changes naturally happen between the buyers and the farmers. The farmers who would like to have their own way all the time and in everything, claim this interfering with the top price which they alone seem to recognize as the right one is probably the reason why farmers do not raise as many hogs as they used to. The whole business is "hoggish," but they claim that the hog is under their control and they have a moral right to be so in order to regulate the prices. It is claimed that the consumption of bacon and cured meats generally in Canada has increased 100 per cent. during the last few years, and this is the reason for the great demand for hogs as well as the high prices. This has been brought about through the excellent quality of the bacon produced by the packers, and they claim that the farmers are not entitled to all the profit.

BUTTER—The butter market is slowly, but surely recovering from its "sick" condition, and all think the worst is over. HONEY—Those who are wise enough to use honey as a regular food are now tapering off and are looking for maple syrup to take its place. This delicious, but much abused article of food comes principally from Quebec. Very few have any idea of the extent of this business in that province. The entire annual output runs as high as 15 million pounds, and some tap as many as 5 and 6 thousand trees. Five or six trees will average a gallon of syrup each season. Almost all have up-to-date evaporators, and the business carried on in an up-to-date fashion. With some this is their principal income. There is no new maple syrup on the market yet, although it was sold, and guaranteed as this year's maple syrup in one of the large stores in the city, over three weeks ago.

EGGS—This is the time of the year, when eggs are at their best. All old stock is sold out. The receipts are large, and more than supply the demand. Although a drop of from 2 to 3 cents has occurred. Since last week, a further drop is looked for. Everybody is expecting this and all buy only from hand to mouth, and in consequence prices have to be adjusted to keep them from accumulating. It is, however, not likely that they will be much lower before Easter. In order to get the highest prices possible before they get still lower farmers are rushing them in, which accounts for the heavy receipts. As soon as they get a little lower they will begin to use more themselves and the supply may not meet the demand, and prices may stiffen up for Easter.

Thousands of Dollars Lost in Butter Buying

Dealers Buy too Heavily Last Autumn and at too High Prices —Prices get Above English Market and Export Demand is Curtailed—The Producer Benefits and the Dealers Learn a Lesson—Butter From Western Canada.

Butter dealers, declines, and dollars lost—in brief represents a story too well known by many in Canada who figured on better prices and who were wrong. Thousands of dollars have been lost by these dealers and the farmers are in the money, according to men who are in the trade.

The cause in a nutshell seems to be that dealers last autumn bought up large quantities of butter at good prices, expecting a market similar to last year, when good prices prevailed. Things simply went against them the way they are apt to do in any deal and many have lost money.

Last year about this time dairy butter was sold at from 27 to 30 cents, while this year it is away down to 24 and 22 cents. Creamery last year was up to 32 and 33 cents, but now it can be purchased for seven cents less. In an endeavor to get at the cause of this condition of affairs and to find something about the butter situation generally, The Grocer interviewed a number of produce dealers in Toronto this week and found that the chief cause was the fact that the Canadian makers got above the English prices and it became impossible to ship butter to our principal customer and the market went broke.

Montreal Loses Heavily.

In discussing the situation Wm. Ryan, of Wm. Ryan Co., wholesale provision dealers, said he would not be surprised if between $15,000 and $20,000 were lost by Toronto wholesale houses carrying butter, but that Montreal was by far the heavier loser.

"Butter was too high here at the price it was placed at," he said, "and it was impossible to export to the Old Country. The merchants were looking for very high prices in February when the Canadian manufacturers got their prices above what was paid on the English market and the butter was left here on our hands as the Old Country is our best market.

"If England had to depend on Canadian butter alone all would have been well, but she hasn't, and she could buy cheaper elsewhere. She gets butter from Denmark, Australia and many other places. Although several will lose money, it will have a good effect on the price next year and will aid in cutting out a lot of foolish speculation.

"Last year the export demand was good and this continued all through the summer. But this year the prices got too high because the dealers bought too high and other countries came into the English market in competition."

"Was any poor butter in former years used for making oleomargarine?" was asked.

"No; oleomargarine was never allowed to be made in this country so far as I know," said Mr. Ryan.

"Does any butter come in from the West?"

"Oh, yes; Winnipeg sends some quantities east, but that chiefly goes to Montreal," he added.

Dealers Pay Too Much.

Andrew Gunn, of Gunns, Limited, also stated that many dealers had lost money.

"They paid too high prices last autumn," he said, "and the fact that there were too many stocks and low prices caused the heavy losses."

"Oleomargarine was never allowed to be manufactured here, but some years ago butter was renovated by melting down poor stuff and making it over. There is a law prohibiting this now and I think it is a mistake, as it has caused a great loss to the country."

Cause of High Prices.

"Conditions last year were vastly different from this year," said T. H. Smith, of T. H. Smith & Co.

"A year ago the butter was practically all used up by January 1st, and dealers had to depend on what was being manufactured after that. Why, in one month we paid 33 cents for 15,000 lbs. creamery butter—the entire make of one factory—and the fact simply is that dealers hung onto butter this year and the prices went down. If they had held as much last year the prices would not have been inflated."

"Did the demand fall off during the winter?"

"Certainly, if prices are high the demand is always limited—it's the same way with eggs, very few of which are carried by retailers if the prices are up. There has been butter brought from the West, but the quality is not good and so far, not a factor in Toronto, as it is only used by bakers. There are seasons in the West when they make more than they need, and sometimes the quality is not good. This is shipped east and good butter from Ontario takes its place in the West."

The Producer Benefitted.

"It is claimed that the dealer makes the money when butter prices are high, but this is not right—it is the producer who has been getting the best of it. High prices are bad for us, because it cuts into our profits. Making a cent on sixteen is much better than making one on thirty."

"The quality of the butter during the last ten years has been generally improved a great deal. There are many people who probably do not consider this correct, but the fact is their taste for butter has been developed greatly on account of the good quality turned out by the creameries. The general public want a better article than they were satisfied with ten years ago and butter is "inferior" now because the public taste is educated."

"The worst butter we get in the year is during the week or two in which the cattle are first turned out on the grass and this deficiency is hard to get over.

"But the fact remains," concluded Mr. Smith, "that the farmers got the money that the so-called speculator lost by holding the butter over from last autumn. Some, of course, unloaded at a little profit, but the price originally paid was too high."

Albert Thompson of the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal, was in Toronto for a few days last week.

News of the Flour, Feed and Cereal Markets

Change of Rates After First of April Will Likely Affect Demand for Flour and Cereals—Prices Remain Firm—Scarcity of Feed Reported.

March 23—The freight rates become lower by the first of April and in about ten days later navigation will open along the Atlantic coast which will mean an impetus to the flour and cereal markets here. Flour has not changed in prices since the last quotations but millers claim it should have advanced. There has been some inquiry from Glasgow, Scotland, during the week but otherwise outside demand is not great.

The call for cereals is reported good with considerable export demand. Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island will be bigger features in this trade when navigation opens. An inquiry from a retailor has been received by The Grocer as to whether a cereal known as "rolled barley" was on the market or not. It has been found that some of the milling companies carry these goods.

Feed is reported scarce by millers and the demand can scarcely be supplied.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—One local large milling firm, report business very good, while another, state that they are not excessively busy. It is said, buyers took full advantage of the low prices which prevailed a short time ago, consequently have sufficient stock for their requirements, for the present. No stock is moving for export trade.

FEED—The representative of one large milling concern, stated when asked if bran was scarce: "Yes indeed, and every other kind of feed too. We are sweating blood to get enough to supply the demand." Most millers will not sell bran, unless it is accompanied with an order for a round lot of flour. These remarks apply to practically all lines of feed. No quotable changes are recorded during the week.

FLOUR—The price of flour has not yet been able to advance despite the firm markets in wheat. One miller stated to The Grocer to-day that flour prices should be much higher. "We are all held back,j' he said, "by the war among a few of the millers. Yesterday I saw a car of flour offered for sale that was cheaper than the wheat to make it could have been bought." There is a considerable inquiry from Newfoundland and the Maritime Provinces and this will be better next month. There are no immediate prospects of a rise in flour prices.

Preservatives that Have Stood the Test of Time

Chief Analyst of Laboratory of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, Advises Their Use—If Others are Needed Benzonate of Soda is Best in the Light of Present Knowledge.

By A. McGill.

In reply to yours of the 8th inst., I shall have no objection to furnishing you with a brief account of the present status of sodium benzoate as a food preservative.

In bulletin No. 126 of this departmental laboratory I brought together such authentic information regarding preservatives in general, as I had been able to verify at the date of that publication, Sept., 1906.

The available data regarding sodium benzoate, as a preservative, was very meagre at that time. H. Leffmann, (The Analyst, 1899, 102) reported that this article had little or no retarding influence upon the digestive enzymes, in the quantities necessary for food preservation. A. Weitzel, (Analyst, 1902, 271) showed that sodium benzoate retarded the coagulation of milk by rennet. Positive evidence against this preservative did not exist, to the date of publication of United States food inspection decision, No. 76 (July, 1907), which made the official announcement that no prosecutions would follow the use of sodium benzoate as a preservative, in quantities not exceeding one-tenth of one per cent. in foods which had generally contained this preservative. This position was reiterated in decision No. 89 (March, 1908), and again in decision No. 101 (December, 1908). The fact of its presence was required to be stated on the label. A very comprehensive digest of recent investigation regarding sodium benzoate will be found in the Chemiker Zeitung, of 30 Sept., 1908 (Dr. K. B. Lehmann).

Unconvincing Investigations.

It must be granted that most of the investigations on record are unconvincing as to the safety of employing sodium benzoate as a food preservative. This is due chiefly to one or more of the following reasons: (1) The digestive experiments have been made in glass. i.e., under other than normal conditions. (2) The experiments as to physiological effect have been made with abnormal quantities of the salt, or upon individuals, whose personal idiosyncracy and susceptibility are unknown. (3) They have not been continued long enough to make a satisfactory study of cumulative and secondary effects.

The Department of Agriculture of the United States recently authorized a study of sodium benzoate as a preservative, employing a number of young men as subjects, so as to eliminate individual idiosyncracy, and continuing the administration for considerable periods. In his report of the results, Dr. W. H. Wiley, (Bull. 84, Part IV.) sums up conclusions as follows: "The administration of benzoic acid, either as such, or in the form of benzoate of soda, is highly objectionable, and produces a very serious disturbance of the metabolic functions attended with injury to digestion and health."

Opposite Opinions.

On the other side of the question we have the pronouncement, made in January last, of the Board of Experts, with Prof. Remsen, of Johns Hopkins University, at its head. This board was appointed by the President of the United States, for the purpose of advising him in connection with administration of the pure food law. The board caused experiments with benzoate of soda to be carried out, in much the same way as Dr. Wiley's tests were made; but the conclusions reached are diametrically opposed to those found by Dr. Wiley. "Sodium benzoate, in small doses, mixed with food, is without deleterious effect." Even large doses are found to be, "not poisonous in the general acceptation of the term."

Both sets of experiments appear to have been carried out with care and an honest endeavor to get at the truth. It is evident that the question needs still further research. I may be permitted to question the conclusiveness of any inferences drawn from experiments upon healthy young men. This much is indeed certain, that had these young men been definitely injured by taking sodium benzoate, that fact would have condemned its use as a preservative. But that healthy young men should suffer no serious injury from a few weeks' treatment with benzoated food cannot be considered as demonstrating the harmlessness of benzoates as food preservatives. The human system, at its best, has a wonderful recuperative power; a fact quite well known to everybody. But food consumption is not restricted to healthy young men; we must consider women and children, the aged and invalids, as well as great numbers who, without being invalids, in the strict sense, cannot be described as healthy young men. It is clearly a difficult thing to plan a course of experiments whose outcome should finally decide the matter. If tests made with healthy young men are open to question, it is undeniable that tests made upon unhealthy

TO KNOW good flour, that's the question. There's not a single dealer who would deliberately risk his "good will" on poor flour for mere cheapness' sake, but all flours look alike to the unexpert. How can he discriminate between good flour and "make believe?"

¶ Remember the expedient to tell a mushroom from a toadstool: Eat them. If you die, it's a toadstool; if you don't, it's a mushroom. Alas and alackaday, when your trade is dead it's mighty slim consolation to know the flour that killed it!

¶ That's why we say: Let the Women Vote.

¶ The housewife is a connoisseur in floury matters—she knows what good flour is. Let your own people make a FIVE ROSES test—compare results as against any other flour on the market to-day bar none. We're willing, nay anxious, to risk our chances of your trade on this vote of the womenfolk, even if other flours are not. It's an unbiased vote between FIVE ROSES and the other fellow's flour.

¶ Some of the brands offered you looked promising, but it's one thing to promise and another to pay. You see, FIVE ROSES isn't a mixture of good wheat and—not so good; it's the purest extract of the best hard wheat that Western Canada grows milled without a flaw in the water power mills at Keewatin without smoke or soot to mar its spotless purity.

¶ And not a bit is wasted—it's all good flour, FIVE ROSES. We know one woman who pounds with a rolling pin on each barrel bottom to rattle out enough flour for a last batch of delicious biscuits. Isn't that goodness to the last grain? Oh, we know already the verdict of the good cooks. That's why we say—let them vote.

¶ Think of the trouble saved by handling only the flour the women like. FIVE ROSES comes higher than some, but not as high as the bread rises over that made from a "make believe" brand. Ask the women about FIVE ROSES—right now.

old men would be equally useless. There is, however, a generally accepted principle which will apply to this, and all similar cases. Substances taken into the digestive system which themselves have no nutritive value, must be eliminated from the system either unchanged, or changed to no advantage. Thus profitless work is put upon the excretory organs, and work, possibly of an injurious kind, and at best of a profitless kind, upon the enzymes and other metabolic agents which operate our internal economy, and whose results we call life. The kidneys, in particular, have a hard time of it, in this regard; and everybody knows how rare a thing it is to find an individual who, after fifty years of age, is perfectly sound in the kidneys. It stands to reason, then, that it cannot be other than unwise to put any additional work upon these (and other) excretory organs, short of absolute necessity.

Apply Common Sense.

It is further to be remembered that to subject one's self for a period of weeks to a course of benzoate of soda, or other preservative, is a different thing from accepting the use of such drug as a daily and lifelong addition to one's food. They tell us that an occasional "spree" does less injury to a man, than a course of long-continued moderate drinking. All of which merely means the application of common sense to this problem of food preservation by chemicals.

That Have Stood the Test.

If we can get fresh food, by all means let us do so. Next best, let us preserve our foods by methods of sterilization or desiccation or cold storage, or hermetical sealing in vacuo, which introduce no foreign substance into the food. Where all these methods prove unavailing, and we must have preservatives added, let us prefer those that have stood the test of long experience; common salt, sugar, etc. When, for any reason, these do not meet our requirements, we must, of course, call in the aid of chemical preservatives; and, in the light of present knowledge, I do not know that any of the newer and effective preservatives is to be preferred to benzoate of soda.

But let it be clearly understood that this is a very different thing from saying that I am convinced of the entire harmlessness of benzoate of soda, as a food preservative.

ASKS TAX ON INCOMES.

Strong Letter to Payne on Behalf of the Working Men of United States.

Washington, March 22.—In a letter written by Wayne MacVeagh, former cabinet officer and brother of the present secretary of the treasury, to Senero E. Payne, chairman of the ways and means committee of the house, he protested strongly against the proposed taxes on foods instead of on incomes. He called the sugar duty "infamous" and on behalf of the laboring men and women protested that anything more should be added to burden them.

His letter in part says:

"If new taxes must be imposed, why should the colossal incomes and the colossal accumulations of the possessors of what Mr. Carnegie himself calls 'surplus' wealth continue to be exempted from proper taxation? It is an axiom among students of the subject that private property, to be entitled to respect, must show it has been earned and not merely appropriated, that is, that it must be able to show a service to the community fairly equivalent to the sums taken from the community.

"Now of all possible subjects of taxation surely the 'surplus' wealth which can make no such showing that it has been really earned is the least open to objection and a properly graduated system for taxing such unearned incomes and uncarned accumulation will give you all the revenues you need and without causing to the persons so taxed the loss of a single luxury."

The letter was written before the tariff bill was reported to the house.

People get tired of seeing the same things in the same old place day after day. Change things around. It will make the old stock look like new goods to give it a shift once in a while and clear the dust off.

How Christie's Biscuits Sell More Than Biscuits—

A NEW grocery store was opened close to the best residental district of one of our largest cities. It was well located and splendidly fitted up.

In passing, Mrs. —— was attracted by its bright, clean appearance.

She thought of it next morning as she was going to the 'phone to order her supplies. Some of the articles on her list she wanted in a hurry. She decided to try the new store.

After getting the number, giving her name, and receiving assurance that quick delivery would be made, she started to read off her list ——

"A three-pound tin of Christie's Zephyr Cream" Soda Biscuits," ——

"I'm sorry, madam, but we havn't got them in stock yet. We have ——'s and ——'s, though, if they will do," said the clerk.

"That's too bad," replied Mrs. ——, "for we never use any but Christie's. No, the others won't do."

"We will be glad to get Christie's for you and send them up as soon as possible."

"I'm afraid they wouldn't get here in time. I'll have te order them somewhere else."

"If you will let us fill the rest of your order we will send the goods up at once," urged the clerk.

"Well——no, I'll get everything at one place. Then I'm surer of having it delivered quickly," said Mrs. ——.

Just because he didn't have Christie's Biscuits, the new grocer lost his whole order, and probably many subsequent ones from the same source.

When he heard from his clerks of this and several similar occurrences, he figured that the little extra profit which had induced him to give other biscuits the preference over Christie's, counted for a good deal less than nothing alongside the trade he was losing.

Then he saw, very clearly, what Christie, Brown & Co's. traveler meant when he said that Christie's Biscuits sold more than biscuits.

Traveler Tells of a Drawback to Retail Grocers

Many Country Districts Becoming Depopulated—Families Going West in Scores—Effects of Grocers Starting Business Without Knowledge of the Trade.

Persistent statements to the effect that there are too many retail grocers in various sections of the country have recently been made, and they were emphatically endorsed by A. L. McKechnie, Mount Forest, and a traveler for Eby-Blain, Limited, in an interview with a Grocer representative during the week. Mr. McKechnie travels extensively through the north western section of old Ontario and this somewhat startling condition has been evidenced there. He apparently has ample testimony to bear out his opinions as to the causes.

"I have been told," he stated, "that in the County of Bruce alone the population has decreased 6,000 in the past few years."

Answer the Western Call.

"What is the cause of such a decrease?" was asked, and the answer partially consoling was: "Everybody is going west."

The young farmers lured by the rosy prospects of the prairies are attracted there and very often the father of a family who goes west returns to take his family with him to a western home.

"Young men are leaving Ontario in thousands," said Mr. McKechnie and for this reason many merchants in country districts are not doing the business they used to, and with the addition of new men in the trade it makes it worse.

"I was told by a merchant in Teeswater, that in the township of Turnberry the population is 1000 less than it was a short time ago, and the cause of it is—everybody seems to want to go west. Another merchant told me that his daughter who is a school teacher taught a whole year in one school with but one pupil attending. She was paid $350 for her services. She taught another year with only about a dozen pupils in a school where formerly from forty to fifty were in attendance. The people are all going west and their absence is being felt by the retail merchants."

Too Many Grocery Stores.

Mr. McKechnie was emphatic in his statement that there were more retail stores in many places than were required. The merchants, when such conditions exist, make very slow profits and are not getting remunerated for the amount of work they perform.

"Is it right that in some large cities there are too many corner grocery stores?" was asked.

"No doubt about it," was the reply. "Merchants in country districts sometimes become dissatisfied and they move into large centres to open stores.

"Also there are several men who get out of work who open the front rooms in their residences and place in stocks of groceries."

These men, Mr. McKechnie says, are too often detrimental to the trade. They forget or never knew that it costs something to do business and they think that if they make a cent on an article no matter what it costs they are a cent to the good. Freights and running expenses are forgotten, their prices are unknowingly cut and the trade in their sections is often demoralized.

Two Years to Learn.

"As a rule it takes retail grocers new at the business about two years to obtain knowledge of how to properly run their stores," said Mr. McKechnie, "and during that time many of them have to drop out."

He was of the opinion that travelers and wholesalers should discourage the opening of new stores where they considered there were already enough. He himself often found occasion to do this and he always felt it his duty to say what he thought.

Outside of the fact that the departure of so many to the west has affected trade in some places business throughout the country, as Mr. McKechnie finds it, is improving.

FISH—Frozen haddock is completely cleaned up, and fresh stock, from the United States only, is available. Supplies are fairly free for all lines. The Lenten demand is now beginning to weaken slightly, but as the season has nearly three weeks to run, it may revive again.

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—On the whole the fruit market is firm with slight advances, with the exception of grape fruit which is nearly a dollar a car lower. A car of "Buster Brown" brand of lemons arrived in first class condition from Palermo. This has been a favorite Messina brand, and the same quality of fruit is now shipped from Palermo. Lemons are somewhat higher in consequence of the recent frosts, which had a greater effect on the lemon crop than the late earthquake. It is estimated that from 10 to 20 per cent. of the crop is damaged. An incident is mentioned in a letter from a fruit shipper in Palermo who lost everything except his own life in the earthquake. In excavating the ruins his typewriter was found in perfect condition with which he wrote the letter. In the same room were three desks, and other fixtures which were utterly destroyed. The first car of November picked lemons which are held and specially treated for our summer use will be shipped to arrive here in about a month. California oranges will now have to be shipped under ice which will add to their cost. Nine cars of navels were on the track yesterday, and one of blood oranges. The C.P.R. was complimented by the fruit men for carrying the fruit with much greater care than formerly.

VEGETABLES—California and Florida vegetables are coming in freely, in good condition, and meet with ready sales. The enormous quantity of celery used is surprising. Florida celery now seems to be crowding the California out of the market. New cabbage is in abundance. Strawberries are still very high, but will likely be more plentiful in the near future. Potatoes are unchanged with a firm feeling.

ASSIST THE FISHERIES.

In its desire to aid the Manitoba fisheries the Dominion Government has passed an order-in-council appointing Prof. Prince (Dominion Fisheries Commissioner) and D. T. Reid of Selkirk, and T. H. Metcalfe, of Winnipeg, a Royal Commission to inquire into the condition of the fisheries in Lake Winnipeg and Winnipegosis, with a view to drafting regulations for a more adequate preservation of the Manitoba fisheries. The work to be done by the commission will be similar to that done during the past two years by the Georgian Bay and Great Lakes Fisheries Commission. They will take evidence from the fishermen and others in reference to any changes deemed necessary to remedy the recognized existing defects in the present regulations.

A WISE YOUTH.

A little chap in Philadelphia, whose father is a prominent merchant, and as such never loses an opportunity to descant upon the virtues of advertising, one day asked his mother:

"May Lucy and I play at keeping store in the front room?"

"Yes," assented the mother, "but you must be very, very quiet."

"All right," said the youngster, "we'll pretend we don't advertise."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Advance of the Apple Industry of Nova Scotia

Development Since 1880 Illustrates Its Importance and Magnitude—Wide Regions Remain Which Have Not Yet Been Laid Out in Orchards—How the Fruit is Picked and Packed—Many Evaporated Apple Plants in the Province.

By David F. Wilber.

The "Annapolis Valley," ranging in width from 6 to 10 miles, is one great orchard, and here apples have been grown for two hundred years, but their scientific production for commercial purposes is of comparatively recent origin. There are yet wide regions in this Province which are adapted to this industry and new orchards are being set out yearly, until now it is expected that Nova Scotia will in a few years play a very important part in supplying the demand for apples in all parts of the world where there is a market for this fruit.

Something of the magnitude of this industry and the improvement made therein may be gathered from the fact that during the season of 1880-81 the total number of barrels exported from Nova Scotia was 41,785; the season of 1906-7, 287,196 barrels; and the season of 1907-8, 438,237 barrels; while the shipments for the last week in September, 1908, amounted to 370,018 barrels, the total yield this season being estimated at 600,000 barrels.

The apple farms of this Province are nearly all occupied by their owners, no doubt a strong factor in creating the great interest manifested in the introduction of newer and more scientific methods in caring for the trees and harvesting the crop. The farms are not large compared with those found in certain sections of the United States, but few orchards containing more than 60 acres. The trees are set out from 30 to 40 feet apart, thus allowing plenty of room for them to get the required nourishment.

The Canadian Fruit Marks Act has done much to make the apple growers more particular in harvesting their crop. The fruit is picked from the tree in small baskets, then placed carefully in barrels and conveyed to a packing house especially constructed for this purpose where the fruit is gone over and packed for shipment. The best grade is marked "Fancy," and consists of "well-grown specimens of one variety, sound, of uniform and of at least normal size, and of good color for the variety, of normal shape, free from worm holes, bruises, scabs, and other defects, and properly packed." Next in order, the selections being based on the shape, color, size, and condition of the fruit, are those known as "No. 1," "No. 2," and "No. 3." This system, which is rigidly carried out, has done much to popularize Nova Scotia apples in foreign markets. By it one knows from the mark on the barrel the class of fruit contained therein and effects a saving in time to all parties concerned in their handling.

Apples not shipped at once are stored in warehouses so constructed as to resist 62 deg. of frost. When the demand warrants their being put on the market the fruit is transported from the warehouses to rail in carts in which are charcoal fires to counteract the effect of the intense cold.

The variety known as "Gravenstine" has perhaps accomplished more than any other one apple to make Nova Scotia's reputation as an apple-growing country. Annapolis Valley Gravenstines carry an aroma and flavor seldom, if ever, equalled in any other apple grown here. Besides this variety the Ribston, King, Bishop Pippin, Baldwin, Cox's Orange, Pippins, Northern Spy, Greenings and Russets are grown to a considerable extent.

Apple growers here have had the same troublesome pests to contend with as in various parts of the United States. During the last twenty-five years they have had the canker worm, coddling moth, bud moth, black spot fungus, and now they are battling with the dreaded brown-tail moth. The practice of spraying has gone through the successive stages of bucket pumps, barrel pumps with one set of hose, large barrel or cask pumps with two sets of hose, and, lastly, the power sprayer, with its 150-gallon tank, operated by a gasoline engine, the latter having become necessary in spraying some of the orchards as often as three times a year.

It is a significant fact, showing the quality of the apples grown in Nova Scotia, that at the Royal Horticultural Fruit Show and Colonial Exhibition held last fall in London, England, the gold medal for the best display of apples went to one "parcel," consisting of 150 varieties of that fruit from this Province. The gold medal was the highest award within the power of the judges to bestow.

Evaporation Process.

At the present time there are scattered throughout the apple-growing district small evaporated-apple plants, which buy from the growers the spotted, rough and undersized but solid fruit, not fit for export. This class of fruit is both evaporated and canned. An evaporating plant equipment valued at $4,000 and employing from 12 to 14 hands can turn out from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds per day. Machinery is used for the peeling, coring and slicing.

The fruit is first peeled and cored, after which it is transferred to the bleacher and treated to the fumes from burnt sulphur, about 35 pounds being used for finished stock weighing 1,200 pounds. After bleaching, the fruit is sliced and placed in the drying kiln, capacity 1,000 pounds, and hard coal used for fuel. Three kilns will use 1 ton of hard coal in a day. At this stage of the process the fruit is thoroughly dried, the sulphur used in bleaching passed off with the moisture, and the apple left white and pure. In the kiln its contents are turned every two hours for twenty-four hours, after which it is transferred to the "making" or curing room, and here it is moved from bin to bin for six days. At the end of this time it is ready for packing.

Uniform sized boxes are used by all packers, each holding 50 pounds and lined throughout with waxed paper. A layer of the fruit is first carefully arranged on the bottom of the box, and on top of this the slices are placed flat until 50 pounds are ready to press, the box is closed, and the apples are then ready to go on the market. They wholesale at about 7 cents and retail at 8 to 9 cents per pound.

While there are a number of packers of evaporated apples in the Province, almost all of the output is controlled by a Halifax firm and one of Belleville, Ontario. Both of these firms have factories in the apple district.

Besides using the inferior apples for evaporating, most of the plants run canneries, and in this way dispose of a large amount of the fruit. The apples for canning are peeled and cored, quartered, and 4½ to 5 pounds are put into a gallon (No. 10) can. These cans are sealed and submerged in boiling water from five to seven minutes. This thoroughly heats the contents, but not to such an extent that the fruit becomes soft or mushy. These wholesale for $2 per dozen gallon cans.

Many Plants in Use.

Alfred J. Fleming of Yarmouth, has furnished the following particulars as to evaporated apple plants:

There are plants at Bridgetown, Middleton, Lakeville, Sheffield Mills, Canning, Kingston, Kentville, Port Williams, Wolfville, Berwick, and probably two or three other places. These plants, on the average, cost from $1,500 to $4,000 each for machinery, buildings, etc. Those at Bridgetown and Wolfville have not been running this season. The head office of the first six plants mentioned is at Canning.

The fuel used is anthracite coal, with hot-air process, hand power. The machinery for all these plants, with the exception of the Wolfville plant, came from Hamilton, Ontario. These factories are all of the same capacity, and are located on railroad lines in the apple section. Sulphur is used for bleaching. The secretary writes that the product is put up in 50-pound boxes and the average price obtained this year is 7 to 7½ cents per pound, f.o.b. factory. The manager of one of these plants writes:

"The method used in one of our plants is the same as used in all. The apple is peeled by hand machines, six of these being used in the busy season in each factory. The apples are then sliced by the slicing machine, also operated by hand. Sulphur is used to bleach, and this generally of the cheaper grade, heat being obtained by the use of anthracite or hard coal. After the apples are sufficiently dried, they are put in heaps to mature, being turned over every other day, and when thoroughly cured are packed in boxes, 50 pounds to the box. The Lakeville plant this season has turned out thus far 1,000 cases and has consumed about 3,00 barrels of apples. This one plant has been operating two months. The plants at Sheffield Mills, Kingston, and Middleton have not turned out quite as much as the first named, as they started later. Sheffield Mills has packed about 800 cases, Kingston 400, and Middleton 550."

The Port Williams factory, with head office in that place, is a new enterprise started this year. The process is the same as in the others, and steam power is used. The value of the machinery of this plant is about $4,000. It is capable of evaporating 250 to 300 barrels of apples per day. This factory has been very busy since the season opened. There is also a smaller evaporating plant on a farm a few miles away from Port Williams, which is operated by the owner of a large orchard.

DIDN'T WANT THE SUGAR.

A bibulous and impecunious individual staggered into a Belleville grocery store the other day. As he was known to never pay his debts, the clerk was wise.

"Say, Mister, I want a barrel of sugar. How much will you charge me for it?"

"Not a darn cent," rejoined the salesmen. "We wouldn't charge you anything. You'll pay the cash every time."

"See here sonny, you don't know it all," continued the garrulous customer. "You think you're pretty smart, don't you? Say, do you know I have a whole barrel of money at home?"

"Well," exclaimed the knowing clerk, "you had better go right home, knock in the head of the barrel and get the cash out of it right away."

And the fellow departed suddenly discovering that he did not need the sugar.

PERSONAL NOTES.

F. D. Cockburn, manager of the Montreal Branch of Comfort Soap, was in Toronto last week. Mr. Cockburn met with an accident last October from which he has not entirely recovered and he has left on a health trip to Bermuda via New York, from where he sailed on Wednesday. He is expected to get "comfort" in the sunny south.

H. N. Cowan, manager of the Cowan Company, Toronto, left last week on a special trip to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Cowan knows the ground thoroughly having covered the Great West and Coast in every direction for many years. His customers and old friends will be pleased to see him again. This is the first time Mr. Cowan has broken away from the works since assuming the management of the Cowan Co.

Work for Fish Dealers of Maritime Provinces

Department of Trade and Commerce Anxious to Create Inland Market for Fresh Salt-Water Fish—Dirty Shops Hamper the Trade—Education for Showing Wholesomeness of Fish Diet.

Considerable correspondence has been sent to the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa with a view to endorsing the project of that department to develop an inland market for fresh salt-water fish. Many of the suggestions submitted are practicable and worthy of consideration. There seems to be a pronounced desire on the part of the more progressive fish dealers in the Martitime Provinces to work up the indifferent market such as at present exists.

One correspondent, the head of one of the largest fish cold storage companies on the Atlantic coast, stated that an immediate attempt would be made by his company to arrange for regular shipments to Montreal. The method to be adopted will be practically that advocated by the department, viz.: periodical consignments by means of refrigerator cars to an agent of the company in Montreal. It will be his duty to dispose of the fish. Knowing previously of its arrival, he will have some 56 hours to arrange its distribution.

The difficulty experienced in shipping by express into Ontario has been the inability to renew the ice in which the fish was packed. By the time Montreal was reached the ice had usually melted and the fish, instead of arriving fresh and firm, was flabby and soft. With the fast refrigerator car service extended through Ontario, however, it would easily be possible to supply Toronto and Western points. Such fish as do not deteriorate when frozen were shipped regularly during the winter from Halifax to the Pacific coast.

Dirty Fish Shops Condemned.

More than one correspondent has commented upon the positively repulsive appearance of the fish shops in Quebec and Ontario. The conditions have remained unaltered in twenty years. Indeed, carelessness in this respect has reached such an extreme that in many cases it is at the risk of ruining clothes and at least upsetting one's stomach that a purchaser invades the shop. That these slipshod methods detract from expansion in trade may be instanced by referring to a well known concern in Halifax. A few years ago it was as any ordinary fish shop in Canada, with dirty counters, no attempt at attractive display of fish, and general laxity as regards systematic cleanliness. It was suggested by one of the firm that the introduction of modern fittings and modern methods would induce business. Gradually marble cement counters, tables, flooring and walls were added until to-day the shop consists—with the exception of the ceiling—of this composition. It can be easily and is daily cleaned from ceiling to floor, and its attractiveness is unquestioned. At any rate the firm itself is satisfied for its books last year recorded $40,000 of trade.

Advertising at Exhibitions.

Exhibitions as a means of advertising the wholesomeness of fish diet have been utilized with success in the Martime Provinces for some years; several correspondents have advocated a similar plan in the inland provinces. Prizes were offered for the most tasteful and educative displays. An expert cuisine was conducted in several of the booths and in addition to actual gastronomic delicacies, there were distributed small attractively printed booklets of recipes. The firm awarded the gold medal has made splendid use of this success and its well known brand of finnan haddie bears record of the competition on every box.

Such a contest or display at any such large assemblage as the Toronto Exhibition, would, it is contended, have a very far reaching and beneficial influence. It has become almost an accepted fact, according to the Weekly Report of the Department of Trade and Commerce, that good fish is hard to obtain on Ontario breakfast tables. One of the correspondents referred to ordered fish for breakfast in a Montreal hotel recently as a matter of course. But it was too strong for him and went away untouched. His experience is not exceptional. Enlightenment is needed—the question is really one of who is to undertake the task. Individually little can be accomplished, but if the large fish firms of the Maritime Provinces were to exercise more initiative and enterprise, the results would undoubtedly be remunerative.

SUGAR BEETS IN COLORADO.

Extracts From Report of the Swiss Consul at Denver, Col., for the Year 1908.

Eight years ago there were in Colorado only 3,000 acres of sugar beets cultivated, valued at $200,000; last year (1907) some 150,000 acres were under cultivation and brought $15,750,000. Of this sum there remained to the farmers net $10,500,000, or nearly $70.00 per acre. In many sections, notably Arkansas, some acres realized actually $100,00 per acre. The beet sugar industry of last year was 38 per cent. greater than in 1906, and this latter doubly as great as that of the year 1905. Colorado stands at the head of all beet sugar producing states of the Union.

Equally as interesting as the beet sugar culture is the fruit culture of Colorado. The demand for fruit has grown enormously and according to figures available to date the harvest this year will be double that of last. It is a known fact that a number of fruit growers receive yearly $1,000 per acre, with a net profit of $700 per acre.

In Montreal the Standard Packing Company has been given a dominion charter to do business as packers of meats, provisions, spices, etc.

The Macnichol Packing Company has been formed at Back Bay, Charlotte County, N. B., to deal in all kinds of fish as well as in the packing of meats, milk, fruit, vegetables, etc. The capital stock is $49,000 divided into $10 shares.

Ask for Reduction in Rates From British Columbia

British Columbia Fruit Men Want Freight Rates to Winnipeg Equalized With Those of Ontario — Conference With Railway Company at Victoria.

Victoria, B. C., March 20.—Obstacles to the carrying on of the fruit industry in the prairie provinces and in British Columbia have recently been discussed in conferrence and in some cases will likely be removed. The provincial boards of trade and fruit growers submitted to the C.P.R. officials thirteen resolutions and of these three were granted, three were held over and the balance at the instigation of the company's officials were withdrawn.

One resolution asking for a reduction on freight rates on fruit and vegetables from British Columbia points to Winnipeg so as to equalize the rates with those standing for shipment of similar goods from Ontario centres, was carried by eighteen votes to four, this being the only resolution that went to the vote.

In this matter W. B. Lanigan told the delegates that the cause of British Columbia not being able to compete with the Ontario products in the Winnipeg market was the shipment of fruit and other goods from Washington, U. S.A., into Winnipeg. He also claimed that why British Columbia did not supply a larger proportion of fruit to the Winnipeg market was because British Columbia growers asked too much for their goods and that any reduction in rates in this province would at once be followed by a similar resolution in Washington. He gave the C.P.R. solicitor's opinion on the matter, which was that the United States fruit was under fewer restrictions than the British Columbia fruit, and held that a freight reduction would not improve the present conditions.

A Protection to Both.

Maxwell Smith, Dominion fruit inspector, however, took exception to the statement of the railroad official, saying: "Mr. Lanigan makes out a good case for the company, but I don't quite agree that he has made a satisfactory answer to the claim. Take it as a fact that there are defects in the Dominion fruit regulations and that growers require them remedied. That can be brought about by placing British Columbia and Ontario on the same footing in regard to rates as far as the Winnipeg market is concerned. They can then combine and go to the Dominion government for restrictions they have not at present. The Dominion act is not a handicap, and it was never so designed. It is meant for a protection to both dealer and consumer. The act in section 121 provides in its application to imported fruit, for the prosecution of handlers of unmarked and ungraded packages. The merchant and importer can be prosecuted, and I have prosecuted them on more than one occasion."

He denied there were unmarked cases in town, in reply to a statement from Mr. Lanigan.

Mr. Pitcairn asked if there was a reduction made in rates in Washington, would the C.P.R. make a similar reduction here. Me Lanigan replied the company would.

Reduction to be Asked For.

The resolution as carried read:

"1. Whereas the distance from Okanagan to Winnipeg is 1,200 miles, and from the fruit shipping portions of Ontario is 1,200 miles.

"2. The city of Winnipeg is the largest market and principal distributing point for the western fruit trade.

"3. The freight rates on fruits and vegetables from Ontario to Winnipeg are materially lower than from Okanagan to Winnipeg.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., be asked to reduce the freight rates on fruit and vegetables from Okanagan and other British Columbia points to Winnipeg so as to equalize the said rates with rates on similar commodities from the fruit shipping portions of Ontario."

The Weight of Cars.

The reduction of the minimum weight on car-loads to 24,000 pounds was the subject of a resolution by Mr. Rogers, representing the associated boards of trade of the Okanagan.

Mr. Lanigan announced that the reduction had been already arranged for in a new scale of rates shortly to be issued. A further request for a reduction of the limit on small cars to 20,000 pounds, he said the company could not grant. The small cars were fast being done away with and but one per cent. of small cars had been sent into the Okanagan last season.

The statement, however, was contradicted by Okanagan delegates, who claimed that 20 per cent. of small cars had been sent them and that they lost 2,000 pounds weight on each and in some cases more, not being able to put the amount for which they were compelled to pay in the cars. This part of the resolution was withdrawn. The whole read as follows:

"1. Whereas, the minimum weight of 30,000 pounds is in excess of the capacity of any of the cars furnished to Okanagan shippers to date;

"2. From Spokane east a minimum of only 24,000 pounds is required;

"3. For the smallest cars a minimum of more than 24,000 pounds is not practicable;

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. be asked to reduce the minimum weight for carload rates from British Columbia points east on mixed cars of apples, pears, fresh fruits and vegetables from 30,000 pounds to 24,000 pounds for small cars."

Minimum on Canned Goods.

The following resolution introduced by Mr. Rogers was granted by the company without being put to the vote:

"1. Whereas, the minimum rate for C. L. shipments on canned goods is 40,000 pounds:

"2. Said minimum is so high as to be impracticable;

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. be asked to grant a carload rate on the canned goods on minimum of 24,000 pounds."

A resolution regarding the granting of leases for the creation of storage premises at railway stations read as follows:

"Whereas, many fruit growers' associations are now put to unnecessary expense in collecting and reshipping their produce, by reason of the great difficulty in obtaining a suitable and convenient site for the erection of packing houses and warehouses;

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Canadian Pacific Railway and E. & N. Railway Companies be asked, whenever possible, to grant a lease of property on their right of way at shipping points for the erection of packing and warehouses, whereby fruit growers' associations will be able to ship their produce at a minimum of expense."

Mr. Peters said the policy as contained in the resolution was being followed where land was available.

Resolution Withdrawn.

These four resolutions were withdrawn on the company's officials announcing they could not deal with them:

"Whereas, the charge on icing is uncertain between any given points;

"Therefore, be it resolved that the system be suggested to the C.P.R. of making a stated charge regardless of expense and delay."

"Whereas, canned goods, apples, pears and fresh fruits or two or more of said commodities can often be shipped by the same shippers to the same consignees at the same time: and it would operate greatly to the advantage of the trade if canned goods could be shipped in mixed carload lots with one or more of the said commodities ;

"Therefore be it resolved that the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. be asked to grant carload rates on canned goods from British Columbia points to points in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, when shipped in mixed cars with apples, pears and fresh fruits."

"1. Whereas the distance from Vernon to Calgary is 360 miles and from Vernon to Winnipeg is 1,200 miles ;

"2. The C. L. rates on mixed apples and pears to Calgary is 70c per hundred pounds and to Winnipeg is 75c. per hundred pounds ;

"3. The L. C. L. rate to Calgary is 95c. per 100 pounds and to Winnipeg is $1.25 per 100 pounds ;

"4. On shipments from U. S. points via the boundary to Calgary the proportional part of the C.P.R. rate from the boundary to Calgary is 40c. per 100 pounds ;

"Therefore be it resolved, that the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. be asked to reduce the carload and L. C. L. rates on mixed apples and pears from B. C. points to intermediate points with Winnipeg proportionate to the mileage performed as compared with Winnipeg."

"Whereas, it is impossible to load the cars usually furnished Okanagan shippers to the present minimum without serious damage to contents ;

"Therefore be it resolved, that the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. be asked to reduce the minmum weight for carload lots for fresh fruits in packages consisting of prunes, plums, peaches, cherries, aprcots aad berries, from 20,000 pounds to 18,000 pounds."

Mr. Adams, of Adams & Co., Harrow, not long ago, met with a bad accident. He was shot by a boy who was shooting at sparrows, and was so seriously injured that he was removed to the Detroit Hospital. He was able, last week, to return to his home, and is progressing satisfactorily.
